BIG THREE PLEDGE

The Jordan government took these conciliatory tones. It urged Britain to reconsider her decision to recall 15 other senior British officers holding executive commands in the region. British officers interpreted this to mean that Jordan is not eager to rush into a military alliance with Egypt.

Eden told the Commons that if Egypt and the Israelis remain calm with the West, she can have them, "but not at any price."

"One way of ensuring that Egypt does not get them is to pursue a policy that produces friendship on the one hand and inciles hostilities on the other."

Eden added that his government also stands fast by the Baghdad pact as the foundation of Britain's Middle East policies. He credited that alliance with creation of unity in a wide area of the Middle East which had never existed before."

The pact joins Iraq, Britain, Turkey, Iran and Pakistan in a defence alliance aimed at preventing Soviet penetration into the Middle East and southern Asia.

OUTBURST OF SHOUTS

When Eden finished his speech there was an outburst of shouting from the Opposition benches. The prime minister clashed with Alfred Robens, Labor's chief foreign affairs spokesman, who said the Arab attacks have been stirring up trouble with money from American oil royalties.

Robens was echoed by a Conservative MP, Maj. Edward Legge-Bourke, who said "certain private commercial interests are using from America" are undermining Britain in the Middle East.

Eden accused Robens of having attacked the Baghdad pact, and said "if this was a very wicked business to do a pity you did not think of voting against it when it was introduced."

Robens' attempt to reply was drowned by the shouting of members on both sides.

Easter Seals Dollars Help Crippled Kiddies

To more than 3,000 members of 211 service clubs scattered across Ontario, Easter has special significance because it is at this time of year they enlist the public's support in their year round task of making life easier for handicapped children.

This is the tenth anniversary of the launching of the Easter Seal campaign by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, an annual event that has grown steadily until today it is the focus of the hopes of 10,500 children who benefit from the society's services. This month the Easter Seals sales objective is $625,000, to help finance the program of treatment and training made possible by province wide nursing service, the generous time and skills given by doctors, and the service club volunteers who find, and champion the cause of, crippled children.

The 3,000 members of the service clubs' committees form the bedrock upon which the Society's structure is erected. The central, and small, organization is the Society's offices, the headquarters of the army of service. To this office 21 graduate field nurses, with special training in orthopaedics, qualifies them to work with handicapped children, report.

In collaboration with the club Crippled Children committees, and through contact with local physicians, public health officials and school principals, the nurses visit crippled children, arrange for their examination by physicians or surgeons, and provide attention when the children first return home after treatment. They also teach mothers how to care for the little ones, how to provide exercisees, how to adjust appliances and so on.

The service club committees play a vital role in this program, in addition to selling the Easter Seals. They seek out the children who need treatment or training, they provide transportation, they assist with the hospitalization. . . in short, year round they form the army of volunteers who make possible a priceless program of self-dependence, or greatly improved self-reliance, to children who would otherwise go through life as victims of crippling conditions without help.

During the month of March these 211 Service Clubs are asking the citizens of Ontario for $625,000 to carry on this splendid work.

Twenty-one nurses in thirteen district offices located throughout the entire province have 10,500 crippled kiddies on their case loads. Your Easter Seal dollars provide this service. Please mail your donations in the familiar pink return envelope today to ensure that this treatment will be carried on. The Easter Seal Campaign which has a provincial objective of $625,000 is sponsored by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children in association with 211 service clubs. The campaign closes Easter Sunday.

DASH FOR SAFETY

WINNIPEG (CP)—The fox was a red streak racing across the sun-glittering snow, his legs thrusting him along at 35 miles an hour. A shot from a pursuing plane abruptly ended his dash for safety.

The shot whistled from the short gun of Peter Wiebe, 40, of Rosenfeld, Man., perched in the cockpit of a light yellow and maroon aircraft skimming low over the snow. Piloting the hunting plane was Jake Gerbrant, 40-year-old farmer from Lowe farm near Morris, Man.

They are two of a limited number of men with the skill and daring to tackle one of the most demanding sports in the world—hunting foxes and wolves from low-flying planes. Danger rides with them almost as soon as their plane disturbs a fox and his mate warming in the winter sun.

HAZARDOUS SPORT

In one five-hour flight Wiebe and Gerbrant are liable to return with the scalps of 12 animals, worth $70 in bounty money.

But, Gerbrant says, "we're not counting on the profit. We just do it for sport."

The real hunt begins when the fox or wolf is shaken from his repose by a threatening shadow from the plane. He takes off in the sun-dazzled, hoar-frosted open in a mad dash for safety, searching for cover.

This is when the demands on the pilot's skill and nerve reach a peak. Flying as low as 15 feet he must watch the terrain and at the same time be prepared for any turns the animal might make.

"You never know what a wolf or fox is going to do," Gerbrant says. "They stop dead, cut under the plane, angle off to the right and sometimes even charge the plane."

His keeps his aircraft at a steady 70 miles an hour, trying to follow the wolf and the contours of the countryside. Split-second timing is needed.

His eyes on his sights, Wiebe has only a darting moment to knock out his prey. Even with an automatic shotgun he is able to get only one shot.

A hit on the racing animal is usually enough to kill it as the shot pellets are given extra wallop by the plane's speed.

Ten Manitobans have the special licence, under $500 bond, that permits them to fire guns from aircraft. Wiebe has been hunting that way since 1951 and Gerbrant since 1952.

Heading out two or three times a week during mid-winter they have averaged six animals a trip, more than enough to pay their expenses.

She was the only woman ever to sit on the Conservative side of the Senate and the second Canadian woman senator.

She was a spirited advocate of women's place in politics. She once said:

"It is very important that women realize they are not living in the same world their grandmothers lived in. Their vote and influence is needed both in the international and national field."

The tall, twinkling-eyed senator relished her own duties.

"I have thoroughly enjoyed every minute of my work in the Senate, so much, so, I am one of the faithful few who always stay through to prorogation."

SKILLED HOUSEWIFE

But she was also a skilled housewife. As soon as the parliamentary session ended, she hurried home to her husband, Howard Taylor Fallis, and the farm in nearby Smith township. Mr. Fallis survives.

Born in Castleton, Ont., 30 miles southeast of here, Senator Fallis learned much of her early political training within her home. Her father, Michael John Doyle, always had a lively interest in politics but poor health restricted his activities. He was, however, warden of Northumberland county and member of a staunch Conservative line.

"Our house," said Senator Fallis, "was always the meeting-place for any discussions on public events."

The family moved to Colborne, Ont., and for a few years Senator Fallis taught school at Bethany, Ont. There she met and married Mr. Fallis and they moved to a wheat farm near Moose Jaw, Sask.

MOVED TO FARM

Eight years later, in 1917, they moved to the farm near Peterborough where they remained.

About that time women won the franchise and Mrs. Fallis became a pioneer in the political field. She was appointed to the executive of the Ontario Conservative Association and later vice-president of the Dominion association.

She was named to the Senate during the R. B. Bennett administration in 1935, five years after the appointment of Liberal Senator Cairine Wilson.

Her death creates a 12th vacancy in the 102-seat Senate. Present standing: Liberals 86; Progressive - conservatives 7; Independents 2; Independent Liberal 1; Vacancies 12—total 102.

PREDICTS WAGE INCREASE

NEW YORK (AP) — General Electric president Ralph J. Cordiner says it is possible that his firm's employees will have average earnings of $8,000 to $9,000 a year by 1965. He said such earnings will be possible in another 10 years as automation increases the number of jobs requiring higher education and skills. Average annual earnings by GE employees now are about $5,600, he said.

"Jest a Second"

"You'll let me see you again outside the jewellers at five? But isn't that rather early?"

"Don't be silly Mr. Smith. They close at six!"

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

MONTREAL (CP) — Are Canadians hewers of wood and drawers of water?

This old and new theme, refurbished and made topical during the current hearings of the royal commission on Canada's economic prospects, got a further dusting off at the annual meeting Wednesday of the Canadian council of the international chamber of commerce.

Three views were presented which might be summarized as follows:

One was that Canadians had better smarten up and develop their own manufacturing industries to a greater degree.

The second was that hewing wood and drawing water, in the sense that Canadians do it, isn't such bad work and Canadians shouldn't feel too downcast as they drive to their waterholes in their high-powered motor cars.

ABOUT NOTHING

The third view was that the whole controversy is somewhat of a hullabaloo about nothing—that Canada is getting it both ways: Waxing rich on her natural resources and at the same time building a husky manufacturing industry.

Hugh Crombie of Montreal, vice-president of Dominion Engineering Works Ltd., and a former president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, took up the cudgels for the development of Canadian manufacturing in a panel discussion of Canada's foreign trade.

The question for Canada, said Mr. Crombie, was whether she could really develop an independent rather than a satellite economy without a "more realistic" approach to her foreign trade policy.

DISGUISED SUBSIDY

Dr. D. B. Marsh, chairman of McGill University's department of economics and political science, said tariffs were a disguised subsidy and, when protection was necessary to protect an infant industry, it should be provided by subsidy. He added:

"A subsidy stinks and will ultimately disappear."

C. Bruce Hill of St. Catharines asked Dr. Marsh if the Canadian automobile industry could have been established without tariffs and whether it could be retained without them.

Mr. Marsh said he thought it time to do something about motor-car tariffs. He didn't think the Canadian motor car industry would disappear if tariffs were withdrawn on both sides of the border. Rather, it might result in a reorganization of the industry in both countries—with American plants concentrating on certain models and Canadian plants on others.

Both Dr. Marsh and A. F. W. Plumptre, assistant deputy minister of finance—the third member of the panel—said there was a limit to the price Canadians would pay for their goods in order to be Canadians.

In earlier sessions both R. C. Berkinshaw, president of the Canadian council of ICC, and Warren Lee Pierson, of New York, president of ICC, urged pursuance of the objectives of wider world trade.

Mr. Berkinshaw said Communist countries should be included in the world trading pattern. Satisfactory trading relations would, in the long run, be a more telling factor in the future of "free well-being" than political dissension.

Mr. Pierson said both Canadians and Americans would be the principal losers if the global trading system broke down.

Mid-East Tension May Affect Govt. Decision on Harvards

OTTAWA (CP) — Middle East tension may alter Canadian government thinking on whether the remainder of Egypt's order last year for 15 Harvard-training planes should be filled at this time.

"Consideration is at present being given to the question of whether there should be any interference by the government with the completion of this order," Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons Wednesday.

It was being given "in the light of the situation in the Middle East." Shipment of the first three planes in January provoked opposition criticism and the government imposed an arms embargo Jan. 20 until a debate on external affairs could be held.

The embargo was removed Feb. 6. The next day Mr. St. Laurent said the government did not plan to interfere with shipment of the remaining 12 planes unless the Middle East situation changed.

Replying to Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton), Mr. St. Laurent said Wednesday speed at which the decision on the Harvards will be reached "will depend upon events as they develop."

"We shall lose no time in implementing our policy to avoid doing anything that might increase uneasiness about the Middle East situation."

Mr. St. Laurent said a statement will be made to the Commons when a decision on the matter is reached.

George Nowlan (PC — Digby-Annapolis-Kings) asked whether it will be left to Dalhousie students to maintain an arms embargo.

Mr. St. Laurent replied: "I do not know that the students of Dalhousie University have any right to impose any embargo."

Fabulous Prices Being Demanded For Scarce Steel

OTTAWA (CP)—Spokesmen for Canadian builders, complaining that "fabulous" prices are being demanded for scarce steel on a world "grey" market, said Wednesday they would be willing to pay higher-than-normal prices for Canadian steel to end dependence on foreign supplies.

The question of getting enough steel and cement to appease the hunger of an ever-growing building industry was raised before the Gordon economic commission as it attempted to assess the outlook for construction over the next quarter-century.

A. Turner Bone of Montreal, president of the Canadian Construction Association, said the industry is dependent on the United States and other countries for much of its steel. Some builders had to pay "fantastic" prices to get around the current shortage.

MAKE LESS PROFIT

Commission chairman Walter Gordon recalled that the mills, in previous hearings, had stated they were less profit from structural steel used by the builders than from other steel products.

Mr. Bone said that might have a bearing on the problem. He for one would be agreeable to see normal Canadian prices boosted if mills would increase production to cover Canadian needs.

T. W. Carter, secretary, the association's vice-president, agreed. The current Canadian price was about $100 a ton and builders undoubtedly would be agreeable to pay $120 if they knew they would be able to get enough steel in Canada in the years ahead.

The association, in its brief, said construction in Canada this year was expected to reach a record $6,000,000,000, rising to about $15,000,000,000 by 1980.

Alsatian Dog, Pet of Canadian Army, Is Dead

LONDON (CP) — Death has ended the military career of Strathcona, an Alsatian dog whose wagging tail and stately parade-ground manner made him a pet of the Canadian Army.

Strathcona, owned by Maj. E.J. Perkins of Rock Island, Que., now attached to the war office in London as a paratroop expert, was believed to hold the dubious distinction of being the only dog ever brought up on a formal charge before the commander of a Canadian Army base.

The incident occurred while Maj. Perkins was serving with the Lord Strathcona Horse — the Calgary regiment after whom Strathcona was named.

"Strathcona was charged with unseemly conduct on the parade square," said an army spokesman. "Proper charge sheets were drawn up and Strathcona was paraded before the C.O. in exactly the same manner as any serving soldier."

Strathcona was stricken with a nervous ailment in mid-February and died a few days later. The inscription on the tombstone of his grave at Godalming, Surrey, included the words: Royal Canadian Armored Corps.

COMMIT TWO

HAMILTON (CP)—James Millar, 25, and Arthur Morris, 31, Wednesday were committed for trial on charges arising a 20-year-old woman Jan. 13.

Metro to Study New Basis of Representation

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto council will soon set up a committee to study a new basis of area representation for 13 member municipalities, it was reported Wednesday.

Under the present system, the city of Toronto contributes 12 members to the council: the mayor, two controllers and nine aldermen. Mayors or reeves from each of the 12 other municipalities also sit on council. It is argued that this system does not give representation according to population.

Meanwhile, it was reported the city of Toronto has a backlog of $17,000,000 in projects, approved by city council but not started because of capital-expenditure limits set for each municipality by the metropolitan council. The projects range from artificial ice rinks to street-widening.

informal notice from the Ontario government to council that it will take no action in representation changes until council makes recommendations.

Deathbed Wish Of Italian Priest Comes True

MILAN, Italy (Reuters) — An Italian priest's deathbed wish came true Tuesday when a 12-year-old boy lunged forward in his hospital bed and shouted "I can see, I can see." The cornea of one of the priest's eyes had made it possible.

The boy, Silvio Colagrande, son of a poor peasant, had been blinded since a hand grenade explosion destroyed his sight five years ago in a mountain village in the Abruzzi mountains in central Italy. Silvio and a teen-age girl each had received cornea grafts on the same day, 13 hours after the priest, Father Carlo Gnocchi, died of cancer.

Father Gnocchi bequeathed his eyes as he lay dying, expressing the hope that they would "remain alive through a child."

Silvio's cries of joy were heard by 17-year-old Amambile Battistella, who was lying in the same room, with her eyes still bandaged. She, too, hoped to be able to see again with the cornea from Father Gnocchi's eyes.

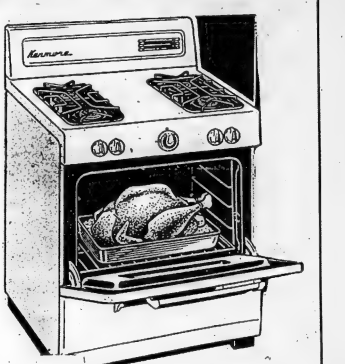
CARED FOR YOUNG

The priest was known as the "Angel of the Little Ones." He dedicated his post-war years to the care of young victims of the war and its aftermath. Silvio and Amambile were two of the 2,000 blind and crippled children cared for in eight institutes founded by the priest in Italian cities.

As the tall, thin, 53-year-old priest felt his life ebbing, he called for Dr. Cesare Galeazzi and told him:

"My eyes have seen the most unjust horrors of the war. They have seen children without hands, without arms, without legs. They have seen tender flesh torn by bomb explosions.

"Now I would like these eyes to remain alive through a child, and my prayer is that from now on they will see no more horrors, only laughter and happiness.



"I can give nothing more of myself to my children."

Oliver Flays Hospital Plan But MacDonald Praises It

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost has outlined to the Ontario legislature—stressing that it is only an outline—a full-scale hospital insurance plan for the province.

The premier said Wednesday that presentation of the plan is no way committed the government to accept it. The purpose was to show members the government's latest thoughts on the subject.

Mr. Frost described the plan during debate on second reading of a bill that would set up a provincial hospital commission — a group that would administer any hospital-insurance plan which might be set up.

The plan outlined included complete diagnostic, hospital and home care. It would cost $213,500,000 in 1957 if put in force. By 1960 cost would rise to $300,000,000.

OPPOSITION VIEW

Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver described the plan's introduction as a "faltering and feeble step by a government which does not know which way it wants to go."

CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald who for the last week has been involved in a running battle with government members, drew applause when he said his party would support the plan.

It is unfair, he said, to say the Progressive Conservative government is taking only feeble steps when the federal Liberal party had for 35 years been in head-long retreat over the question.

Mr. Oliver said it is well known the government has been studying hospital insurance with the aid of the best brains in Ontario for two years.

"Why then, he asked, does Premier Frost think it necessary to have a plan studied further by the legislature in committee? He said the premier hopes legislature study will be another excuse to delay implementation of any hospital plan.

ADJOURN DEBATE

Debate was adjourned without a vote until Monday.

Mr. Frost said the plan could offer more coverage at less cost than any hospital-insurance plan now operating in Ontario.

Coverage would not be free. Costs would be raised by monthly premiums from insured persons, or by direct sales tax.

The outlined plan went further than coverage suggested under a federal government aid program. It included mental and tubercular patients, left out in the federal setup.

Mr. Frost said the latest federal offer would pay only 25 per cent of the estimated hospital insurance cost in Ontario.

MORE REALISTIC

He described this as unsatisfactory and said he will press for a "more realistic" offer the next time the matter is discussed with federal officials.

Mr. Oliver said because Ontario is paying the cost of mental and tubercular hospitals anyway, the federal offer actually amounts to almost 50 per cent of the provincial cost.

Mr. MacDonald said the extra studies and publicity given the government's proposals ..... clearly the premier is waiting for a better federal offer before presenting a plan to the legislature.

PEI Cabinet Minister Suggests Country Doctors Be Subsidized

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A system of subsidies for country doctors has been suggested in the Prince Edward Island legislature.

Dougald MacKinnon, industry minister in the Liberal government, said Wednesday general practitioners should be aided in rural practices.

He suggested some of the hundreds of thousands of dollars contributed by governments toward hospital construction in large centres might be diverted to country doctors for small treatment centres.

With the aid of a nurse, two or three patients could be treated at one time. This would eliminate some of the necessity for long trips to large-centre hospitals.

Mr. MacKinnon assumed the post of acting premier as Premier Alex Matheson joined other provincial government leaders in heading for Ottawa to attend federal-provincial fiscal talks.

A Liberal member told the Saskatchewan legislature the province is "dangerously far behind" her neighbors in industrialization.

Alex Cameron said a CCF government member had put it well in saying Saskatchewan was "compelled to drag industry in by its boot straps." He said:

"When you realize revenue from the cattle industry last year netted $73,000,000, which is $8,000,000 more than came from the oil industry, you get the proper picture."

He said between 1948 and 1955, $411,000,000 was invested in Alberta manufacturing; $220,000,000 in Manitoba, but only $116,700,000 in Saskatchewan.

A. W. MacKenzie, Nova Scotia highways minister, said the Liberal government plans to introduce a point system to back up safety provisions in the province's Motor Vehicles Act. Previously New Brunswick introduced a system which provides for suspension of a driver's license after he receives specific number of demerits for graded violations of the motor vehicle act.

Hastings County Farm Forum

STH SIDNEY. — Two forums reported meeting on February 27, subject "Paying for Our Health"; Brookdale 12 present and Hazzard's 14 present.

1. "Disadvantages of Swift Current plan is that property is taxed and the advantage is that every one is protected. A co-operative plan is voluntary and too often those who should be insured are not, and in the meantime the number of indigent patients increases. We are more concerned with hospitalization than a full medical plan and we believe that a national provincial hospitalization scheme is near to realization and that it should be the basis of any medical plan.

2. "When we buy a new dress or suit we pay according to workmanship and cloth; and so with any medical or hospitalization plan we must pay according to the degree of protection. The question is "How much protection?". We believe that no plan should give 100 per cent protection. It would soon lead to abuse. We are opposed to property being taxed to pay for any medical plan."

REPORT FROM BROOKDALE

1. "Co-Op hospitalization and Co-Op surgical and medical plans are voluntary. They are controlled by the people they serve. Boards elected by the members decide on all policies adopted by the local co-operative. The disadvantage of a voluntary system such as Co-Op or Blue Cross is that a lot of people who should be covered are not.

"Advantage of a compulsory plan such as they have in Swift Current in Saskatchewan is that every family is given coverage. A disadvantage of this plan is that if care is not taken it is apt to become a political football.

2. "As we have a strong medical co-operative in the district, from observation we believe their rates are fair. On a family basis: (a) hospitalization $40; (b) surgical $20; (c) medical $10; (d) complete coverage including dental $72.

"This would perhaps be reduced when 100 per cent of families are contributing."

STERLING'S NIGHT

If you happen to be around Stirling way, or perhaps drift around Trenton someday in mid-June, Memorial Pleasant, Ivanhoe and the general district, don't start any controversial topics, such as war, taxes, divorce, the price of bacon in Lima, Orson Kelly, or baseball.

The good burghers just aint interested.

But mention hockey in general, and Stirling's stalwart crew of bantam puck-chasers in particular, and brother you're in solid. Just be sure you're on Stirling's side. You'd better be. The hell dang population is.

A bevy of beardless buckaroos has set Russ West's trim little bailiwick ga-ga over hockey. It has been that way periodically all winter, but right now the temperature is at fever heat.

And Friday night is "Sweet Auburn" night as far as Stirling is concerned. For that evening the village will be plumb deserted. All that remains will be the buildings, the shutins and the caretakers' population. And they would be here if they could make it.

That night Pete Uzman's gallant bantam crew jets battle with the starch youngsters from Forest, Ont., in the first game of a point-in-a-round two-tussle series for the Ontario Miner Hockey Association "C" championship.

And you can't blame the good residents of Stirling and district for their button-busting carriage. They have every reason to be proud. For this is the first hockey team to represent the community from the membership of strictly village-and-district home-brew youngsters.

Stirling has had staunch hockey teams in the immediate past that swept through to the provincial finals. But these clubs were more or less "combines" with players from Frankford and other centres hired.

If you could get a glance at their certificates you would note such birthplaces as Stirling, Mount Pleasant, Ivanhoe, Bethel and other close-lying communities.

And their pops and moms, aunts, uncles and country cousins, not counting the neighbors, the hired hands, and faraway relatives are solidly behind them.

And here's the proof. Over 300 of them motored to Stouffville for the second game of the semi-finals. Word from the village today stated that tickets are scarcer than donuts for Grace Kelly's wedding and that 1500 people, hopeful, hopeful will converge on Memorial Arena some fish day evening. And it's a safe bet that half the population will trek the 300 miles to Forest for the return battle.

Forest, incidentally, is situated some 20 miles east of Sarnia, cooled by the breezes of Lake Huron and boasts some 1,500 souls, all of whom, like their Stirling counterparts, are agog over the chances of their young puck-chasers.

Those good fellows of the Stirling Community Council sponsor the youngsters. Friday night there will be special cheers from the Mount Pleasant contingent for Scorp Smith, Rueburn Scott, Daniel Potts, Paul Jeffs and Billy Morgan, while village tonsils will echo loudly for Doug Fairs, Bob Noble (we're gettin' ancient, Gaspipe), Eddie Mayhew, Fred Palmer, David Bell, Allan McConnell and Doug Brady while the good folk of Ivanhoe and Bethel will be rooting "special" for Marvin Reid and Bob Green. Not forgetting, of course, Coach Uzman and Manager Doug Robson.

One of Stirling's patriarchs bullnosed us outside George Noble's drug emporium. "Listen, buster," he strained through his weather-stained beard, "You ain't seen hockey played like these pee-wankers play it since you, Gaspipe Willis Wilson, Charlie Vine and Hopalong Jake Steen played for Ed Gibson's Gore Gobblers. Besides they aint gotta barrel of sawdust apple juice for a trophy nuther. These kids is got class. And that sawdust rolls you call a rink down there in the city will be a bulgin' at the beams come Friday. Us Stirling critters don't do chores by halves. Jest wait and see. And tell them city fellers if they wanna see some future stars in action to drop around the arena come Friday."

Win, lose or draw, the Stirling youngsters have compiled an enviable record this season. They have won eighteen games, tied one and lost only three. Their goal average is 7.3 per game with 2.5 scored against them. Roger Smith, their ace sniper has potted 53 goals and with Eddie Mayhew and Palmer forms the team's top line. Doug Fairs is a lover of strength on defence and Paul Jeffs, the goalie, rates among the best in his class. There's nothing wrong with the rest of the crew either.

And they will be up against top opposition. Teams don't reach the finals of any athletic classification unless they are good. They have to be, to get there. Friday's game should be a minor hockey classic.

Eight Rinks From Ontario In Colt Spiel

TORONTO (CP)—Eight curling teams, representing eight Ontario centres, cross brooms March 15 in the final games of the Colts competition.

The Colts started 13 years ago when the late Harvey Sims, a Kitchener lawyer and a former president of the Ontario Curling Association, put up a trophy for curlers with no more than seven years experience.

The eight competing rinks are survivors of about 180 Ontario squads involved in the sudden-death competition.

Surviving are:

Warren Williams, Kingston; Jim Ellis, Chatham; Ralph Henson, Gravenhurst; C. C. Hopper, Toronto Granites; Ted Saunders, Peterborough; Jack Eccles, Guelph; Paul Kozlik, St. Catharines; and R. W. Thompson, Kitchener.

A secondary competition, the Dunker Cup, will keep third-round losers in action during most of the curling bonspiel.

Eccles of Guelph and Kozlik of St. Catharines are the only two skips who have competed in the Colts before. Both were in Toronto last year. Last year's winner, Dave Thompson of Galt, is not competing because he now has been curling eight years.

The bonspiel is to be at Toronto's Granite Club. It was first scheduled for March 8, but was put back a week.

But Draw Favors Toronto Rink While West Finds It Tough, Meets 3rd Place Nova Scotia

By GERRY MARTIN

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—Supporters of Ontario's rink in the Canadian curling championships can take heart. All is not lost—in fact, the second-place Toronto Granite Club is in an enviable position as the 13-club tournament starts its back-breaking stretch drive.

Three rounds—morning, afternoon and evening—have been the decision today and Alfie Phillips, the Toronto skip who took up curling as a hobby nine years ago after a big-time career in high diving, has what appeared to be his easiest day so far. His record now is five victories and one loss.

He has a morning-round bye and then two "setups" in Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland. They are placed No. 10 and 11 in the standings. And if the play goes according to form, Phillips should wind up his day with a record of seven wins and one loss.

A BIT TOUGHER

The situation is a little tougher for the leading Manitoba rink, conqueror 12-10 over Ontario Wednesday, and Nova Scotia's championship-bound skip, Hugh RiCard. Gerry Gilne who opened the day in third place with a 4-1 won-lost record.

Manitoba, the only undefeated club in the competition with five straight wins, meets Newfoundland and British Columbia in the seventh and eighth. Nova Scotia and New Scotia tangles with Quebec and Northern Ontario.

Then, it's Manitoba vs Nova Scotia in the ninth round tonight, and this could be the key game of the championships.

Northern Ontario won both its Wednesday games. The rink, from Copper Cliff, edged Prince Edward Island 9-8 and followed with an 11-6 walloping over Newfoundland. Quebec gained a split, 7-6 loss to Newfoundland in the fifth round and a 15-4 victory over British Columbia in the sixth.

HAD A BYE

Alberta, represented by 29-year-old Matt Baldwin from Edmonton who won the title in 1954, had a sixth-round bye following its 10-9 extra-end victory over Nova Scotia. The Baldwin rink is in fourth position with a 3-2 record.

The Edmonton skip, skipped by bespectacled Billy Walsh, have shown flashes here some nifty draw-style play in their drive to the top of the standings. Walsh and two of his mates—third Allan Langlois and lead Andy McWilliams—won the title for Alberta in 1952 in 10 straight.

A crowd of 1,500 saw Walsh hand Phillips his only loss Wednesday afternoon and 3,000 turned out Wednesday night to watch the Manitoba squad loped Prince Edward Island 11-5. The Manitoba-Ontario game was the big one of the day and for a time it appeared that Ontario would take it.

Ontario, helped along by a big three-end 11th end, led 10-8 and then the roof fell in on the Phillips' rink in the 12th. Manitoba sent lying in the house with the skips having one shot each. Phillips' only shot as his last stone and Walsh punched it out and stayed for three, and the game.

The Ontario rink was still jittery when the sixth round started and New Brunswick went ahead 4-0 at the completion of three ends. It was 5-4 for New Brunswick at the end of six but a three in each of the seventh and eighth ends served up the game for the Toronto foursome and it ended with Phillips on top 13-8.

New Brunswick had a bye in the fifth round.

WANTS TRADE

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—Jack Dittner, who as of now is the Milwaukee Braves' second ranking second baseman, Wednesday left little doubt that he would like to be traded.

The 26-year-old infielder from Elkader, Iowa, has been warming the bench for more than two years in the shadow of Danny O'Connell.

Charges Bobo Father of Other Children

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mrs. Helen Dolores Olson, wife of former middleweight boxing champion Carl (Bobo) Olson, said Wednesday her estranged husband is the father of several children by another woman.

San Francisco newspapers said birth-certificates naming Olson as the father of three children by Miss Judith Kalara Crabbe were discovered in city health department files. Mrs. Olson said there were actually five, one born in Honolulu and another that died at birth in San Francisco.

Olson himself was not available for comment and hotboy seemed to know for sure where he had gone.

"I have known about Judy for years," Mrs. Olson said at her Hillsborough home, where she lives with the four children she herself bore the Hawaiian fighter.

Leafs' Smith Thinks Smythian Talk Bench-Warm May Help Crack Slump

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A little bench-warming and a tip from the "old man" may help Sid Smith break his scoring slump, one of the worst in National Hockey League history.

Just last season Smith was an all-star left winger from Toronto Maple Leafs who racked up a total of 29 goals in 70 games.

This year he's one of the lowest goal scorers in the business. Smith has tallied only three times in the 50 games he has played with Toronto.

A thing like that can do strange things to a player. Man have been known to lose confidence. But Leafs stuck with Smith and now he thinks he's ready to produce goals again.

It was the two-week benching and a little talk with Leaf president Conn Smythe that helped him, Smith says. He figures it took the pressure off him and he's more relaxed at his job.

"Mr. Smythe told me that I used to get a lot of goals even before I was playing with Ted Kennedy, simply by sticking to my position. I had time to think that over on the bench.

It has been said that Kennedy, who retired as Leaf captain last season, was Smith's better half on the ice.

"I tried to pretend that I wasn't letting things bother me in that slump," Smith says. "Now I know that I was. When Kennedy left, I knew I'd have a period of readjustment because we'd been together so long we had been able to make plays instinctively.

"I knew I'd have to learn to do the same with another centre. It didn't help when people kept mentioning I couldn't do it without Kennedy. And then, when I was made team captain, I pressed even harder because I felt the team was counting on me and I was letting it down."

Since he was returned to regular work, Smith has used the tip and turned in five of his best performances of the season. He scored his third goal—he has 14 assists for 17 points—Sunday at Boston when Canucks and Leafs battled to a 2-2 tie.

Smith, a native of Toronto, broke into the regular lineup with Leafs in 1949-50 and until this campaign had never scored fewer than 20 goals.

The 30-year-old veteran is confident he can help his team hang on to the fourth and last playoff berth. Leafs have 58 points, three more than fifth-place Bruins.

COMES TO TERMS

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Earl Torgeson, last of the Detroit Tigers' holdouts, came to terms Wednesday night. Terms were not disclosed. Torgeson hit .283 for the Tigers last year.

Co-operation Big Factor

Canadiens 'Toe' Has No Kick Harmony Aided Club to Top

By W. A. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Hector (Toe) Blake, 43-year-old rookie coach who has piloted Montreal Canadiens to their first National Hockey League championship since 1947, Wednesday ascribed his success largely to co-operation of the players and harmony on the club.

"I was fortunate, too, in getting good hockey out of the rookies," said Blake. "Remember we are using four of them regularly—Jean Guy Talbot and Bob Turner on the defence and Pocket Rocket Richard and Claude Provost as forwards.

"But I'm particularly pleased with the fine co-operation the fellows have given me. How many players would have taken it the way Butch Bouchard did when he was pushed out? Butch has been my big helper with the rookies.

"Some veterans would have resented being shoved out of their job by rookies and would have showed it. But nothing could have affected the whole club.

TOOK RIGHT ATTITUDE

"Jackie Leclair wasn't resentful, either, when we sent him down to the Royals of the Quebec Hockey League. He took the right attitude about it, worked hard and got into top condition and came back."

Blake added he has always stressed harmony, although it is comparatively easy to maintain when a club is winning. "When it hits the rough spots, that's different.

"We ran into a bad streak in January, lost four of five games—three of them in a row. I told the boys not to get panicky or start blaming anyone for losing a game. I told them that was my job."

Blake took over this season from the man he now has played under—Dick Irvin, now coach of Chicago Black Hawks. Did Blake follow or divert from any particular methods of Irvin?

NOT QUITE SO STRICT

"I went along with most of Irvin's disciplinary rules, but wasn't quite so strict. Perhaps when your club is on top you're inclined to be less strict.

"I didn't set to implant a lot of new-fangled ideas into the play. I realized I had a good club, most of the players solid and mature. It would have been folly for me to tell fellows like Rocket Richard or Jean Beliveau to change their styles.

"I might remind some of them occasionally about a few things, such as passing too much instead of shooting. But I did try to help the rookies all I could."

"Lucky thing that knockout blow was to the midsection. He never did discover I got a glass jaw!"

Whitby-Maggie Game Postponed

Weather conditions forced postponement of the first game of the Eastern Ontario Senior B hockey playoffs last night between Whitby Dunlops and Brockville Magedomas.

The Brockville team was unable to reach Whitby owing to a heavy snowfall. As a result the first game of this best-of-seven series will be played in Brockville Friday night with the second game in Whitby Saturday.

Argonauts Sign Twelfth Import

TORONTO (CP) — Don Robison, halfback who played with University of California from 1948 to 1951, has been signed by Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union, assistant coach Bill Earley announced today.

The six-foot-one, 200 - pound player, is the 12th new import signed by Argos this season. Robison, 25, is married to a Toronto girl and will make his permanent home here.

He played in the Rose Bowl games in 1948-49 and the East-West Shrine game in 1951. He has played service football for the last two years while serving with the U.S. Army in Germany.

Hornets Win Over Hershey

PITTSBURGH (CP)—Pittsburgh Hornets pressed a man advantage to score twice within 16 seconds in the first period Wednesday and went on to defeat Hershey Bears 4-1 in an American Hockey League game.

The victory moved the AHL's defending champions within a point of the league-leading Providence Reds.

Sullivan weighed 160½, Lahua 159.

The pattern of the fight was slug and clinch. Sullivan did most of the pushing and threw many of the heavier punches. Lahua was content to counter-punch much of the way.

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Jack Dutton of Winnipeg was elected president of the Dominion Curling Association at its annual meeting Wednesday.

Sam Rothschild of Sudbury was elected vice-president and Arch Wilson of Calgary second vice-president. W. B. Cowan of Toronto was re-elected honorary secretary-treasurer.

The 1957 Canadian championships will be played at Kingston. Every other year the site of the championship is announced for two succeeding years.

Next year at Kingston the sites will again be named. Last year at Regina, scene of last year's all-Canadian event, Moncton and Kingston were named as championship sites for 1956 and 1957.

The association has accepted an offer from a soft-drink company to sponsor the Canadian schoolboy championship for teams not old ready sponsored.

The municipal also offered to sponsor the provincial schoolboy championships in provinces where they are not sponsored. Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia now have sponsors.

The Dominion Curling Association will pay cost of transportation to the bonspiel for the other school boy teams. The company has offered to cover all expenses of the rinks, four men and a coach.

TROPHY REMAINS

The association ruled that the Sifton Trophy, donated by Victor Sifton of Winnipeg, for the winning schoolboy rink, will remain in competition next year when the bonspiel is held in Winnipeg. After that it will be replaced by the new sponsor.

Plans were laid by the association for a visit of 27 Scottish curlers to Canada in January, 1957. They will play 20 games across the country in defence of the Strathcona Cup. A group of Canadians was defeated on a visit to Scotland in 1955.

The association named a committee headed by Senator John T. Haig of Winnipeg to meet representatives of the Canadian branch of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club if the branch wishes to join with the Canadian Curling Association.

Spring Training Notes

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willie Mays of New York Giants, Ernie Banks of Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati's Wally Post accounted for 135 hits and 100 home runs last season, and they're up to their old tricks.

Mays, who led the league with 51 circuit blows in 1955, walloped a 400-foot homer in the fourth inning of an intra-squad game Wednesday. It was his second home run in three games.

Banks, a 44-homer man in 1955 including five grand slams, connected with the bases loaded in a game against Milwaukee Braves. Post, who had 40 a year ago, hit one in a Redlegs' game in Tampa, Fla.

While this veteran trio was having itself a time, rookies stole the show in other camp tilts.

ROOKIE HITTERS

Second baseman Don Leppert belted a triple and two singles, stole a base and drove in a run in Baltimore's intra-squad contest. First baseman Julio Becquer had three hits, including a game-winning double, at Washington's Orlando, Fla., quarters and outfielder Gino Cimoli cracked an important two-run double at Brooklyn Dodgers' camp.

At Tucson, Ariz., Bobby Avila, Cleveland Indians' stubborn second baseman, ended his holdout siege Wednesday night and agreed to sign for an estimated $25,000.

General manager Hank Greenberg reached Avila at his home in Vera Cruz, Mexico. Avila, who is taking a rest cure of sheets, said he would report "immediately," which translated from Avila language means about the end of the week.

UNDERDOGS BECOME GIANT KILLERS

This is the darkhorse rink from Ontario which fooled the experts by sweeping to four straight Canadian curling championships at Moncton, N.B. The Toronto foursome, led by Ford Phillips, front; Bill Leak, Reg Mooney and Stan Jones, led all other provinces going into the fifth round in the five-day bonspiel. Two of their victories were over the highly rated rinks from Alberta and Saskatchewan. (Central Press Canadian).

Dutchies, Maroons Will Fight It Out For OHA Senior A Titular Honors

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chatham Maroons and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen will fight it out for the championship of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League.

Maroons, who got married to squeeze into the fourth and last playoff berth during the last week of the regular schedule, pounded Stratford Indians 6-2 Wednesday night to win the semi-final series 4-3. The league-leading Dutchmen shaded Owen Sound Mercurys 3-1 to win their semi-final 4-2. Both sets were best-of-seven affairs.

In both contests, the winning team's goaltender was outstanding.

Marv Edwards of Chatham had 33 shots to handle, 25 in the first two periods. Dutchmen's Denis Brodeur stood the game for them as he blocked 20 shots.

Maroons jumped to a 1-0 lead with the only goal of the first period at Stratford. By the end of the second they had built up a 4-1 edge.

Ernie Dick and Eddie Busch each fired a pair with singles going to Eric Unger and Lloyd Ferguson. Tommy Walker and Lloyd Fishbeiner scored for Stratford.

REGULAR GOALIE HURT

A knee injury benched Stratford's regular goaltender, Don Head. Permission was granted for Indians to use Bruce Dale of Windsor Bulldogs. Maroons also bolstered by the addition of defenceman Marty Zorica and forward Ron Halstead, brought up from the Wallaceburg senior B team.

A crowd of 2,000 fans at Owen Sound saw Dutchmen go in front 3-0 in the first period. Mercurys cut the margin in half in the second but with 13 seconds left, end of Mercurys' goaltender Bob Gillson out of the nets, Bob White clinched Dutchmen's third straight victory.

John Lumley of Owen Sound and Kitchener's Ace Mackenzie were banished with match penalties following a second-period stick-swinging duel in front of Dutchmen's bench. Both men are under automatic suspension until the case comes up before the OHA executive.

Ken Laufman and Paul Knox fired the winners' first goals, Knox scoring while Mercurys' Jack Taylor was serving a cross-checking penalty. Tommy Burlington whipped in Jack Hamilton's pass at 16:45 of the second period for the Owen Sound tally.

Will Recognize Saxton as Welter Champ

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—State athletic commission chairman Julius Helfand said Wednesday he will recognize Johnny Saxton as world welterweight champion if he beats Carmen Basilio in Chicago next Wednesday but he still won't permit Saxton to fight in his home state.

The only way Saxton, a native New Yorker who once held the title, could fight in New York would be to acquired a new manager, said Helfand. Saxton is managed by Frank (Blinky) Palermo. Helfand won't give Palermo a license.

Saxton meets Basilio, the current 147-pound champion, in the Chicago Stadium. Basilio is from nearby Chittenango, N.Y.

Helfand had turned down proposals for a Saxton-Basilio fight in Syracuse, where it would have been an automatic sellout, and New York. He also said he would give serious thought to establishing state championships in each boxing division, in a move to stimulate fan interest in small boxing clubs and in non-televised boxing in general.

Players Accept Club Owners Salary Decision

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—The major league player representatives Wednesday accepted the club owners' decision on minimum salary and a new world series TV contract. They also asked a workman's compensation coverage by all 16 clubs.

The players also voted to retain J. Norman Lewis on their staff, as their attorney for another year at a salary estimated at $15,000.

Lewis, who left the meeting early to catch a plane for New York, acted as spokesman for the players.

"The players came to conclusions on three major points," said Lewis. "On Feb. 4 the owners proposed two three-man committees to review the salary structures in the majors and report their findings to the player representatives in their own leagues.

"The players accepted the idea in principal but they asked a joint meeting of all 16 player representatives with the six members of the two committees."

LEAGUE RAISE

The players had asked for a raise in minimum salary from $6,000 to $7,200 but had been turned down by the owners. However, they gained a committee "to review the present league salary structures," to ascertain if the present minimum and present unlimited maximum standards are adequate."

"On the subject of the new TV contract," Lewis said, "we received the resolution adopted by the National League which we interpret to mean that the player representatives on the pension committee (Robin Roberts of Philadelphia and Bob Feller of Cleveland) are to be informed before any contract is to be signed. We haven't seen the American League resolution but we presume it will be the same."

The current world series-all star game TV contract expires after the 1956 series. It calls for approximately $1,250,000 for the players except a substantial increase in the new deal.

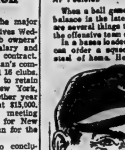
Canucks Blank Flyers 2-0; Take 2-1 Lead

BARRIE (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks punched in two third-period goals Wednesday night to down Barrie Flyers 2-0 and grab a one-game lead in their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association junior A quarter-finals.

Kitchener-Waterloo leads the series 2-1, with one game tied.

Some 3,000 fans, largest crowd of the season, turned out to see a ragged encounter. Bob Duncan and Willie O'Ree finally broke the deadlock.

Duncan's shot, a long one from the blueline, gave Bob Senior no chance in the Barrie net. Although Senior stopped 28 shots, Claude Dufour turned aside 22 Barrie scoring efforts to earn his shutout.



YOU'RE THE MANAGER

(Fifteenth of a Series)

By SEN OLAM
AP Features

When a ball game hangs in the balance is the late innings there are several things the manager of the offensive team can do.

In a bases loaded situation, he can order a squeeze bunt or a steal of home. He can be keen during and let the scheduled batter take his swings. Or he can put in a pinch-hitter.

In the following instance, Manager Paul Richards of Baltimore made the right move.

Would you have done the same thing?

It's the last of the eighth at Baltimore and the Orioles and Washington are tied 2-2. Chuck Stobbs (L) is pitching for the Senators. Hank Majeski leads off with a single. Dave Philley bunts to a force out. But Hal Smith's single and an error by shortstop Bob Kline op Chuck Dieting's grounder fill the bases. Willie Miranda (S) is the next scheduled batter with pitcher Ray Moore (R) to follow.

Would you

a. Let Miranda swing away?
b. Order Miranda to try a squeeze bunt?
c. Put in a pinch-hitter for Miranda?
d. Gamble on a steal of home?

Results: A—Miranda swung away and doubled to left, filling the bases. Two runs Baltimore added two more runs and won 6-2 (Italy 4).

Favorites Find Titles Trail Tough In Canadian Badminton Tournament

By DAVID OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY (CP)—Some of the favorites found the going rough in Wednesday's Canadian badminton championships but all the big senior events made it to the quarter-finals.

Vancouver's Dave McTaggart, former Thomas Cup star and a favorite to capture the men's singles crown, fought the hardest battle of the day to 15-9-over-Bill Bonney of Montreal surprised the experts by holding him to 15-9, 15-11 wins.

The closest Bonney had ever come to finals was when he reached the semi-finals in Quebec provincial play this year. McTaggart meets Martin Semple of Toronto in a night match.

TROUBLE AHEAD

Jean Waring, defending the women's and girls' singles crowns, advanced easily to the eights when she sidelined Nellen Armstrong of Saskatoon 11-1, 11-0. But expectations are she will have some tough competition from Mary Shedd of Toronto and Jean Miller of Montreal. Both defeated her in provincial play this year.

In play tonight, Miss Waring meets Maureen Bray of Victoria, the Victoria singles champ and who made an impressive showing Wednesday.

Mary Shedd and Joan Hennessy of Toronto, defending the women's crown they won in 1954 and 1955, got a bye in the event and play their first match today against Miss Jocelyn Peran of Vancouver and Miss P. Ingall of Edmonton.

In the men's singles, second-seeded Bev Westcott of Toronto, a 1953 Thomas Cup player, advanced to the quarter-finals when he sidelined Ken McMillan of Calgary, a junior, 15-3, 15-8.

B.C. singles champion John Bouck of Vancouver scored easy 15-1, 15-3 wins over Ray Cornish, of Toronto, to advance to the eights. In earlier play he defeated Larry Beemer of Niagara Falls 15-5, 15-6.

Pete Ferguson of Toronto, Ontario singles champion and a former Canadian junior title holder, maintained his winning streak and scored his third victory when he sidelined Randy Phillips of Vancouver 15-9, 15-6. Earlier he had defeated the last of the Victoria 15-3, 15-3 and junior Ed Hrejlac of Sudbury, 15-3, 15-10.

WINS HANDICAP

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—With the favored Bobby Brocato declared out of the race earlier Wednesday, Llangollen Farm's Porterhouse came from well behind to win the $27,200 Santa Anita Handicap at Santa Anita Park. Second was A. C. Block Farm's Colonel Mack, with Clifford Mosters' Cyclotron third.

Bobby Brocato was scratched apparently to point for the $100,000 Santa Anita Juan Cagistrano Handicap Saturday.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — This may be a quiet, unimportant day but such one is usually fine for study, checking for the purpose making improvements and plugging spots where harmful leaks exist.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Suggestions for today: avoid anxiety, overdoing, stubbornness or any other hampering tendency. Go ahead cheerfully with duties; accept added tasks as part of life's way.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Mercury's aspect now urges self-restraint and calm reasonableness; to keep things going smoothly and to avoid unnecessary irritability. Take sufficient time for activities, plans, thus do better.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — About the same for you as for most of us today. We will all need our best behavior, common sense and some humor. It's surprising what we can do when we exercise reasonableness and a sense of humor.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Not too exciting tendencies. Judge quickly, but serenely, how best to handle, and at what tempo, most urgent tasks. One needs restful days occasionally to view better his future course of action.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Avoid worry; it retards progress. There is never a day that doesn't invite intelligent striving and some extra effort now will bring better than good results — if not immediately, later and more lasting.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Aspects mild but going to very benefic ones for tomorrow. Proper preparations and sturdy new car can increase gain, make work; even under irritable circumstances, will be a sign of your true ability.

Sincere effort and sticking at tasks, lighter later. Don't become discouraged or quit.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — In vital matters, current events, you have a choice of opinion — but so do others. Give everyone that choice and be sure to state yours without overfulness. The right kind of effort will yield top returns.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — A period in which you can show unusual ability, accomplish much by your own methods and despite little outside help. Be decisive but concede, too, when you should.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Some competitive situations and maybe some money problems to handle but this need not stump you. Harness your efforts for vigorous action and, with faith, go forward. You can accomplish.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Even though your schedule looks difficult or you may not feel up to par, don't start with a defeatist attitude. The will to win, coupled with perseverance, will help you to achieve.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — A little with contentment should be your slogan now.

Fire Agreement Between Town, Twp. Under Fire

CAMPBELLFORD — The present Agreement between the Campbellford fire department and certain townships has come under fire at the regular meeting of Campbellford town council here Monday night. Councillor P. G. O'Sullivan said that the council's first obligation was to the residents of the town and that the citizens should not be left defenceless when the fire truck is over on one occasion last week, when two fires in the township took all the equipment from Campbellford.

Two fires broke out in the township, one of them while the fire truck was at the scene of another township fire about six miles away. The incident is without parallel in the history of fire fighting in the district. After the township fire was put out it decided that a joint meeting be held with Seymour township council. Normally, when the fire truck leaves the town to fight a fire in the township, one of the town trucks stands by at the fire hall, with extra hose and other equipment ready for use in the town corporation. This equipment would remain there until the return of the pumper and the equipment it carries.

The motion to hold a joint meeting carried, after the vote was polled, there being a 4-3 vote and the only "nay."

Councillor William Nicholas for the police committee recommended that "No U-Turn" sign be placed at the intersection of Bridge and Canobert Streets. He also stated that a special educational premium of about 55 employees using their own cars on town business qualify for reward for public liability. This would include the police, fire department and town clerk. The added coverage was approved by the council.

SCHOOL BUDGET PRESENTED

Hector Macmillan of the Public School Board, presented the budget for 1958. He said the budget this year is $32,000, an increase from $24,500 asked last year. Mr. Macmillan also presented to the council a statement on behalf of the school board, giving a detailed list of $700 on the year's activities. Part of the deficit will be charged to the Recreation Committee, and the town council, in granting the $700 to cover the deficit, will recover a portion of the grant, from other governmental grants for recreation.

M. E. Sayers requested the usual grant for the Belleville Agricultural Society. The grant was added to the usual grants.

Council passed a by-law prohibiting owners of dogs to allow them to run at large, at any time. The by-law provides penalties for owners of dogs found on the streets of the town. The move is to help control a recent rabies scare in the district. About 60 animals were vaccinated by the recent clinic held at Norwood health of animals division last week.

Accident made her victim of Rheumatic pain

No matter how long you have been handicapped by the misery of rheumatic pain, you may get the relief for which you longed. Take the case of Mrs. Minnie M. McIntee, 131 South Vickers St., Fort William, Ont.: "For long enough I suffered from rheumatic pain in my hip, arm and hand, a result of being knocked down on the street by a falling sign. Sometimes the pain was extremely sharp, and my joints were stiff, sore and swollen. I did not find the medicine I needed—until my son used Templeton's T-R-C's for rheumatic pain. So I tried them too. It was a blessing I did, for at last I enjoyed the relief for which I longed. Now I'm up and active all day, thanks to Templeton's T-R-C's!" Frost To Propose Major Changes In Tax-Sharing Plan

Premier Makes Statement As Fiscal Parley Opens

OTTAWA (CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario said today he will propose major changes in the federal government's tax-sharing plan as a new federal-provincial fiscal conference opened.

However, the premier told reporters he is willing to consider compromise.

"I'm always ready to look at things realistically," he said just before federal cabinet members and nine premiers went into closed session at 10:15 a. m. EST.

Premier Hicks of Nova Scotia, delayed by a storm, was the only absentee. He was expected here for the afternoon session.

Premier-Treasurer of British Columbia, only other premier advocating a major boost in the proposed federal tax formula, described the federal offer as "unfair."

The central government has proposed federal tax deductions of 10 per cent of the personal income tax, nine per cent of corporation income tax and 50 per cent of succession duties in provinces which levy duties in their fields.

In addition there would be federal equalization payments to bring the per capita direct tax yields of the less wealthy provinces to the average of the top two—Ontario and British Columbia.

Mr. Bennett said that in the case of Quebec the equalization payments and direct tax deductions would amount to deduction allowances in that province of 28 per cent of personal income tax, about per cent on corporation income and 50 per cent on succession duties.

Premier Duplessis of Quebec declined to make any statement, saying "We're here just to get news."

M. Frost said he will renew a aimed at giving Ontario more revenue to service that province's growing population.

"There must be recognition of our needs and the federal formula does not recognize them."

Mr. Frost also said he will seek a request that the federal government step out of the succession duties field. Under the federal plan, made public in January, this field would be surrendered to the provinces.

Mr. Frost also said he will seek a different basis for the payment of federal equalization grants to the provinces.

The Ontario premier wants the top four provinces—British Columbia and B.C.—used as the equalization standard, rather than the top four as suggested by Ontario.

Four Robbers Take $20,293

NEW YORK (AP)—Four robbers wearing masks and false noses today took a $20,293 construction payroll in a holdup staged with sub-machine-guns and a shotgun.

The holdup came minutes after the FBI announced that a second man had been arrested in connection with the spectacular $1,219,000 robbery of a suburban bank a week ago today.

The payroll was for 250 employees of the Fleetway Construction Co. which is building a housing development on the lower east side of Manhattan.

In the bank robbery case, the FBI this morning announced the arrest of Angelo John, a racehorse owner and trainer of White Plains, N. Y.

John was questioned Thursday after Arthur Painser, 33, was arrested and charged with the robbery of the County Trust Company's Jericho branch at Port Chester, N. Y.

A few known digits on an auto licence plate led the FBI to the getaway car in that robbery. The federal men say it belonged to Painser.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: A weak low pressure area which is in the Chicago vicinity this morning will move eastward bringing some light snow to southern Ontario tonight. Saturday will be mainly sunny. A few snowflurries are forecast for northern Ontario tonight. The weekend weather will be cold across all of Ontario.

FURTHER CUTS IN INTEREST RATES WANTED

Finance Companies' Small Loans Under Fire

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons' two smaller parties want the government to go even farther than its present plans in cutting down the interest rates of finance companies on small loans.

Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) said Thursday a government measure to reduce small loan interest charges will be no help to about 75 per cent of borrowers. The rate should be a maximum one per cent a month.

Victor Quelch (SC — Acadia) agreed. One per cent would be adequate. A recent marked increase in the number of small loans companies showed there are "substantial profits" in that field.

They spoke during Commons debate on a government bill setting a sliding scale of maximum rates on small loans and extending federal jurisdiction to loans of up to $1,500. Present legislation, on loans up to $500, sets an interest ceiling of two per cent a month.

WOULD SET CEILING

The bill would set 2 monthly interest ceiling of two per cent on unpaid balances less than $300, one per cent on balances between $300 and $1,000, and one-half of one per cent on balances over $1,000.

The measure, which was given second reading—approval in principle—was one of three bills before the House dealing with lending operations in Canada.

The other two would extend the credit available from two federal lending agencies—one which lends money to small businesses and the second which provides mortgage loans to farmers.

William Benidickson, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Harris, outlined reasons for the proposed changes in the federal law on small loans. He said the provision of pocket-size loans up to $1,500 loans was requested by the Association of Canadian Finance Companies, saying loans under $500.

THATCHER COMMENTS

Ross Thatcher (Ind-Moose Jaw-Lake Centre), who left the CCF party last year, said it is all very well for the CCF to demand lower interest rates. But if rates were lower the low lending companies might stop doing business.

The House did not conclude debate on a bill to widen the powers of the 29-year-old Canadian farmers' bank. It would increase the maximum on first-mortgage loans to $12,000 from $10,000 and eliminate provision for second mortgages, now a maximum $2,000.

Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) said the change is welcome. But there still was a need for mortgage credit available to young farmers wanting to set up their own farms, or to owners of uneconomic farms wanting to develop their land into a paying proposition.

Feeding Finicky Flamingo Is Tricky Declares Proprietor of Zoo-o-Rama

TORONTO (CP) — Feeding a finicky flamingo is just one more daily problem for Paul Chouinard, superintendent-showman from St. Gabriel de Brandon, Que.

The 29-year-old specialist today unveiled his display of several dozen assorted birds and two baby monkeys at the opening of the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show in Toronto's Exhibition Stadium. Ward's booth is labelled "Brown Owl's Zoo-o-Rama."

"Most of them are pretty finicky eaters," he told a reporter, looking for a meal-time collection, "and the worst is the flamingo."

"He won't eat anything solid. The only thing I can feed him is a soup that's made out of shrimp, cod liver oil, cracked corn, tomatoes, bread, potatoes, salmon and carrots.

The toucans, parrot-like creatures with cumbersome curved beaks, also present problems.

"They'll only eat bananas, apples and bread soaked in milk. They like to pick at the other fruit. And the seagull and the heron only eat fish, the owl and eagle won't look at anything but lean meat—I feed them beef heart. The parrots have to have sunflower seeds and peanuts."

The monkeys? They're garlic lovers.

"They take big garlic buds and eat them just like apples. When we're at home I feed them garlic buds and I'm sure you could smell them at apples and bananas. Otherwise you could smell the garlic a block away."

Chouinard turned professional showman in 1943.

Formerly a resident of Cochrane, Ont., he now lives four months of the year at St. Gabriel and tours for eight months, appearing often in Canadian and United States Sportsmen's Shows.

Eastern Canada Hard Hit By Snow, Sleet, Freezing Rain

(By Canadian Press)

A wild winter blizzard which slashed eastern Canada with 50-mile-an-hour winds, snow and freezing rain whirled out today over the Atlantic.

Residents, reeling under Thursday's blast, which tore down phone and power lines, blocked roads, paralyzed traffic and claimed at least seven lives, learned more trouble may be brewing in a Maritime disturbance.

The weatherman said a storm from Iowa is moving toward southern Ontario today. Snow, with risk of freezing rain, is forecast to reach southwestern districts this afternoon and to touch Toronto tonight. The precipitation will not be as heavy or as continuous as in Wednesday's storm.

And this morning the Ontario Highways Department reported snow was falling through southwestern Ontario with some drifting and that visibility was poor. There was also some drifting in the Ottawa region.

Quebec was hardest hit in Thursday's storm. Sixteen inches of snow cut highways, stalled and buried vehicles and forced the closing of many factories and schools. Three deaths were attributed to the storm.

Meanwhile, Western Canada suffered high winds and drifting snow, but clear weather was predicted in the area.

Airlines flights were cancelled in Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and Halifax. Power cuts caused most trouble in Ontario. The Niagara Falls, St. Catharines and Brantford districts, Oshawa, Oakville and any other areas had emergency services at some times. At least two singers at a Stratford Music Festival performed in complete darkness — and won.

The Bell Telephone Company, with hundreds of repair crews working, said Ontario lines fell faster than they could be repaired.

A transport truck Jackknifed on icy roads near Hamilton and five more vehicles skidded into collision with it.

Snow storms in southwestern Ontario Thursday night hampered efforts to repair sleet damage to hydro and telephone services. Hydro crews operators added repair crews by establishing communications between Exeter and divisional headquarters in London, 30 miles south. Many Huron and Bruce county communities remained without phone links. The towns of Wingham and Seaforth were isolated.

Nurses carried lanterns in St. Mary's Hospital, near Stratford, and schools in many centres were closed as power failed.

Two men died while shovelling snow in Ottawa. Whipsaws would be used four inches of snow into drifts in the capital.

In the meantime, the return of below-freezing weather had eased the threat of further flooding in the Thames river watershed. Levels of both the north and south branches of the Thames were declining gradually.

Peterborough, however, the Sydenham river continued to rise and the crest was not expected until some time today. A low-lying section of the town was flooded, but not enough to evacuate any families.

As the Thames was receding slowly in the London area, cracks in the abutment of the Ridout Street bridge were discovered and that traffic artery with south

Dulles Arrives to See Nehru But Talks May Prove Cool

NEW DELHI (AP)—State Secretary Dulles of the United States arrived in India's capital today hoping that his talks with Prime Minister Nehru will bolster sagging Indian-American relations. But few expect that any major change in either country's policy will result.

Observers are apprehensive that Dulles' visit to the defence endorsement of Pakistan's demand for a United Nations plebiscite in the bitterly disputed state of Kashmir will have a damaging effect on the talks.

Nehru ordered extraordinary security precautions to prevent any anti-American demonstrations. A dozen truckloads of police were at the airport, and officers and plain clothesmen were stationed every few yards along the road the motorcade took to the prime minister's home.

Dulles flew here from Karachi, where with the other seven foreign ministers of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization countries he agreed that the future of Kashmir should be settled by a UN plebiscite or direct negotiations between Pakistan—a Seato member—and India.

India has steadily opposed the plebiscite idea, never popular in India, was the main target of Indian papers, who viewed him as the prime mover for Seato's Kashmir statement.

Informed sources tressed to advance that the Dulles-Nehru talks would concentrate on commercial ways to improve American-Indian relations, with probably only passing reference to such continuing points of discord as Seato, Formosa and the Pakistan.

Nehru sent his chief foreign office aides to greet his visitor. The welcome for the American had some of the pomp and ceremony used for the visit last year of Russia's Premier Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev. Protocol experts explained that India rolls out the red carpet only for top-ranking visitors who must be country their chief destination, not for diplomaries just stopping over.

Ousted Glubb Urges Britain Avoid Tough Jordan Policy

LONDON (AP)—Jordan's ousted says it would "be a serious political error to get tough with Jordan at this stage."

Britain called on 15 of its highest officers to leave Jordan after King Hussein fired Lieut.-Gen. Glubb. Parliament also urged that the subsidy to the Arab Legion be cut off.

Glubb warns that to cut off the money "would either destroy Jordan or force the king into the arms of Egypt and Saudi Arabia, certainly ruin him."

He believes that Hussein might turn his influence by Egypt and Saudi Arabia, who "have made no secret of their desire for my removal."

Hussein, in alliance, he says, could prove ruinous to Jordan, The Egyptian revolutionary government was "more communist than many communists" and Saudi Arabia's ruler was "an hereditary enemy" of Hussein's Hashemite family.

Kirkbride conferred at length with the young king and Premier Samir Rifai. It was believed they asked him to impress on Eden that they were forced by rising nationalist demands in their country. And they did not want to break off other ties with Britain.

TWELVE PERSONS BURNED TO DEATH IN PENNSYLVANIA

Investigator Says It Could Be Foul Play

OXFORD, Pa. (AP) — Twelve persons died Thursday night in a fire which destroyed a three-room fat-paged borne in this rural southeastern Pennsylvania community. An investigator said today it "looks like it could be foul play."

Deputy coroner Ernest Schneider said a thorough investigation would begin later today when authorities were able to question John Twyman, father of most of the victims.

Schneider said Twyman was incoherent and unable either to identify the victims or give the names of all the persons who lived in the 30-by-70-foot home in the "bottoms" section of the community.

GAVE 12 NAMES

Schneider said Twyman had given authorities 13 names, but that a thorough cumbing of the ruins recovered the charred remains of only 12 persons. Records of Twyman's condition, investigators were unable to determine immediately whether the 13 named were all members of his family.

All the victims apparently were asleep when the fire broke out.

Twyman, a truck driver, was out of town and returned as he built of their bodies was being taken from the debris. He stood stunned, and even an hour later was unable to make himself understood.

Three days passed from the building, but one ran back in and was burned to death.

Northern U.S. Swept by Storms And Awaits More

NEW YORK (AP)—The northeast United States already slugged by flood waters, snow and sleet, prepared today to cope with blizzards, freezing rain and bitter cold.

Search storms Thursday saw the Allegheny river and its tributaries rap rampant over communities in southwestern New York state and northwestern Pennsylvania.

Thursday's high winds and swirling snow slashed eastern Canada, and the adjacent New England states were battered with a 12-inch rainfall in some sections, plus heavy snow in the mountains and hills.

The waters of the Allegheny slowly retreated from low-lying portions of Warren, Pa., today as the flood crest began to hopefully watched for a chance to return to their homes.

Biting cold blew in on the heels of the flood and helped curb the rising river. Bradford, Pennsylvania, town of 15,000. No casualties were reported. Thursday's storm along the Allegheny were expecting flood conditions today, but the weather bureau said serious damage was not expected.

However, the bureau warned that communities below Pittsburgh along the Ohio river should be on trouble-list tonight and Saturday. At Salamanca, N. Y., a city of 9,000 south of Buffalo, Allegheny flood damage estimates were, put at more than $1,000,000.

Government Boosts Interest Ceiling On Federally-Insured Housing Loans

OTTAWA (CP)—The government today raised the interest ceiling on federally-insured housing loans to 5½ per cent from 5¼ effective Friday.

The rise, which follows a general tightening of credit, boosts the maximum mortgage rate under the National Housing Act to where it was in February, 1955. It was dropped to 5¼ per cent at that time in line with the government's "easy money" policy to lift the country from recession.

Works Minister Winters, announcing the increase in the Commons, said the jack-up is necessary so that builders and prospective home owners can continue to get access to mortgage funds this year, expected to be a year of high demand for investment money.

Actually, he said, the rise in long-term government bonds would have justified a boost in the mortgage rate last August, "but the flow of funds to housing then and subsequently was so great, with the result that no such action has been taken."

The government's mortgage rate is based on yields of long-term government bonds.

"It is the expressed policy of the government to adjust the mortgage interest rate from time to time within the provisions of the statutory formula so that the lowest rate will be established which will attract on the market available mortgage funds," Mr. Winters said.

Makarios, Senior Bishop And Two Priests Flown Out

NICOSIA, Cyprus (CP) — Archbishop Makarios, bearded 43-year-old leader of the campaign for union of Cyprus with Greece, was deported from this British Mediterranean colony.

British authorities, announcing that Makarios had been sent away with three other Greek Orthodox Church leaders, said the action was taken "in the interest of promoting peace, order and good government."

A statement said Makarios had refused to abandon the "weapons of violence and intimidation in the pursuit of his political aims."

It said Makarios' activities have found evidence that he was "personally implicated" in the activities of Eoka, the underground organization which has used violence in pressing the union-with-Greece campaign.

The statement said Governor Sir John Harding, in negotiations with Makarios, had given him "last of conciliation and concession" in the hope that the archbishop might be led to abandon violence.

"The matters over which he has broken off the discussions cannot possibly be held to justify or excuse the continued resort to the violence and other methods which are still rife in the island. . .

"It is impossible to escape the conclusion that the archbishop 'is now so far committed to the use of violence for political ends that he either cannot or will not abandon it."

Deported along with Makarios were Bishop Kyprianos—one of the three senior bishops of the island —and two other priests.

The four Greek Orthodox churchmen were flown to an unknown destination.

The deportation orders were signed by Governor Sir John Harding under emergency regulations which have been in effect as a result of violence throughout the island.

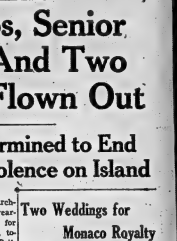
HOME SEARCHED

British paratroopers, meanwhile, searched the archbishop's home.

Negotiations between Makarios and British representatives on the future of Cyprus broke down last week and Makarios announced he would make a determined effort to end terrorist violence.

Makarios was to have left by plane for Athens this afternoon. But he changed his mind at the last minute. He went to the airport. One report said his departure was delayed by a bullet-proof car, in which he was then flown in the direction of Kyrenia, north of Nicosia.

The official statement said the four churchmen "will be held in custody by air for f destination "to be announced later. No date for the deportation went according to plan."



The Greek airlines plane left without him, and his sister and a nephew boarded it. Only her nephew was not allowed to board it.

Greek church bells began to toll over the city of Nicosia as news of the archbishop's deportation was announced in Greece within the capital.

Crowds began to gather outside archbishopric where about 200 paratroopers continued the search.

Freezing Slows Snow Removal In Business Area

Last night's sudden deep freeze slowed snow clearing operations in the downtown area as the city public works department attempted removal of snow to allow easier parking.

Front street north of Bridge street and Campbell street were affected by the cold weather which froze wet snow hampered operation of the snow loader and the work did not proceed as rapidly as was expected.

City public works chairman Alderman Ben Safe today commended his workers for what had been accomplished. "They did well to get as much done as they did," stated the alderman. "Snow clearing on the south end of Front St., on East Bridge and Victoria Ave. will continue tonight."

Yesterday most city streets and sidewalks were snowplowed.

As result of the plowing operations there were the usual complaints received at city hall of filled driveways.

But there isn't much that can be done about the driveways, stated City Engineer Charles Hunt. "The works department just cannot take the time to clear out all driveways."

Immunization Clinics Staged

A reminder that immunization clinics are being held every Thursday afternoon at city hall was issued yesterday from the offices of Dr. Metcalfe, city medical officer of health.

The clinics are for prevention of diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus—by law—and small-pox, and not for the prevention of poliomyelitis by the Salk vaccine, Dr. Metcalfe points out.

Chamber of Commerce Will Publish Tourist Pamphlet

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce, with a financial assist from the city of Belleville and the county of Hastings, will again this year publish the Highlands of Hastings tourist folder advertising tourist facilities in the city and county.

Wednesday afternoon representatives of the three bodies met in the Chamber board room to discuss plans, financing and production of the folder. The city and county will pay $500 each toward the production of the folder.

It was generally agreed there was a lack of advertising on the part of resort operators, hotels and business establishments who benefit directly or indirectly from tourist money. The Chamber will commence promotional drives to obtain advertisers for the folder.

"The folder will be published as soon as possible in order that copies may be placed at ports of entry and other tourist promotion centres at the earliest possible date.

Representing city council at the meeting were Alderman Ben Safe, Mr McCabe and Merrillan Argue, with reeves Dr. D. C. McVicker and H. W. Ketcheson, county clerk F. S. Denyes, representing the county. Chamber officials present included chairmen J. N. Yanover and R. G. Hamilton, secretary manager.

Curlers Accept Challenge to Raise $50,000 for New Rink in City

A new Curling Club was launched in this city Thursday evening at the city hall.

Despite the inclement weather nearly forty prospective members attended a meeting called by the president, William Gault, and it was evident from the outset that the enthusiasm, that was engendered at a former meeting had not died down, the great deal of business was transacted.

Don MacKinnon read the minutes of a previous meeting which were adopted and the president outlined the plans of the committee with the Fair Board, which he stated, were entirely satisfactory. Dr. J. Russell Scott, president of the Fair Board addressed the meeting that the board agreed in principle with the negotiations carried on but stated that the site had not been officially chosen although permission had been granted by the Parks Board for the building to be erected in Victoria Park.

Pat Houston, who has taken an active part in the proceedings to date, gave the meeting a most comprehensive outline of the plans of the building although the official plans had not been accepted. He pointed out advantages of the proposed building with a one and two-story clubhouse and the recommendation to accepted the plan for a two-story clubhouse.

FIGURES GIVEN

The speaker showed by figures exactly what it would cost to have a curling club in this city. The clubs share of the building would be $15,500 of the Fair Board giving their grants for the remainder, the ice plant would cost $25,000, the heating plant $4,-000, curling stones $3,000 and sundry expenses $1500 making a total at $50,000. "That is what it is going to cost you and me to have an up-to-date rink in this city and the next move is to find the money", said the speaker.

At this point Judge J. C. Anderson and Mr. Ferguson of the Bank of Montreal, who were named to the financial committee explained the several ways the money could be raised but after a lengthy discussion it was decided that a membership of $100 be charged with a limited membership of 300 but this amount would not be required by the city for the season to come. The finance committee felt that some financial interest should be shown by the meeting before other means of raising the remaining amount of $50,000 was attempted.

Both the Queen and Victoria Hurst, who had visited Simcoe recently, presented their financial report and showed that Simcoe built their rink under the same scheme as is proposed in this city and the arrangement has worked excellently. No more details sinkerely for his information.

FIRST SUBSCRIBER

Don MacKinnon was the first subscriber for membership tendering a cheque for $100. Others quickly followed and before the meeting closed 30 had tendered the required fee and more proved interested. another meeting is to be held next Thursday night at the City Hall and it is hoped that at least 200 subscribed will be listed.

Anyone wishing to make an journey into the Bank of Montreal and sign up. All the members present last night promised to get at least two more and there is no doubt that the 200 required to start the plan will have come forth. This is your opportunity to have a curling club of your own and by your response will determine the degree of success. Unless the peospective members assist there is no hope for fruition of the project.

All this work has been done without a properly-formed club and Claude Tice moved that a nominating committee be formed to bring in a slate of nine directors for the next meeting and from that board a set of officers would be formed. The nominating committee named was J. Ellis Arthur, Stephen Flintoff, Jack Yanover and the president.

Three Committed On Charges of Forging Will

WINDSOR (CP)—A city detective and two other persons will face jury trial next month on charges connected with forging of an elderly spinster's $11,000 will.

A preliminary hearing of forgery charges against Lieut. Alfred Carter, suspended second-ranking city detective, Mrs. Gladys Danyluck, recently - dismissed civil defence secretary, Mrs. Jessie Carswell and T. McMichael were completed Thursday.

All were committed for trial April 2 by judge and jury. Bail in the case was set at $10,000.

Mrs. Danyluck is charged with forging a will of Miss Mary Isabel Carswell who died two years ago, aged 76; with uttering the document; with making a false statement before a justice of the peace; and with stealing $850 from the dead woman's elder sister.

Manitoba Sure Of Playoff in Curling Tests

MONCTON, N. B. (CP) — Man lobs clinched a playoff berth in the Canadian curling championships today when the Winnipeg rink scored a convincing 10th-round 11-5 victory over Alberta. The victory broke a first-place deadlock with Ontario's Alfie Phillips who lost an extra-end 11-9 decision to British Columbia.

The final round of the 11-rink round-robin competition will be played this afternoon with the Billy Walsh rink from Fort George foursome needing a victory to capture the title won last year by Saskatchewan. Manitoba now has eight wins and one loss against Ontario's seven and two.

A Manitoba loss and an Ontario win would necessitate a sudden-death playoff starting at 7 p.m. tonight.

Manitoba is drawn against Saskatchewan this afternoon and Ontario tackles Nova Scotia. The games are scheduled to start at 1:30 p. m.

In other games, Saskatchewan defeated northern Ontario 11 - 9, Nova Scotia edged out New Brunswick 12-11 and Newfoundland took Prince Edward Island to an extra end before losing 10-8.

MAKAROS

The archbishop is not the most prominent leader in the long-standing agitation here to oust British colonial rule and unite the island with Greece. A terrorist campaign in support of the plan has been steadily rising in tempo over recent weeks.

British authorities today declared an immediate ban on all long-distance telephone calls, both within the country and to Greece, and ordered censorship on all telegrams.

The moves came as terrorists in Famagusta threw four bombs at British troops. There were no casualties and British troops put down a stone-throwing student riot with tear gas.

Paradise Beach as Beautiful, Colorful as Name Implies

By ELMER BONTZER

NASSAU, Bahamas, (Special.) I must say it took a lot of persuading for my friends to get me to visit Paradise Beach across on Hog Island, after TV'd see it. Once I wondered how anybody could be inspired by the name of the island to give such a beautiful spot its proper description.

Color beyond the reach of color film appeared in any direction. To the north looking out across the water white caps in perpetual motion raced along on top of the emerald green ocean. The beach in brilliant sunshine presented a pale yellow carpet for scores of swimmers and sunbathers. Behind was a grove of tropical trees in every shades of green. I first thought this was the spot for the Hollywood production.

Getting down to the docks where motorboats run across the yacht harbor between the two islands you pass along Bay Street and the heart of the business section. You get your first look at the straw vendors, natives who weave their own merchandise. This is an unequalled experience since Bahamians have to take to the streets when it comes, to sales tactics. They call to you on the street. Shove their wares under your nose. If you start a conversation with one of them the odds they'll sell you something before you get away.

"Get the money" seems to be the main object of every native of this island. And the straw merchant is no exception.

TIPPED OFF ON DEALS

An acquaintance who had visited the island for 15 years tipped me off on how to deal at the market. "Cut their prices a third and nine chances out of ten you'll get the deal," was the advice he gave me. I tried it and it did clang business and sure enough it worked. I got myself a straw hat with a crown that stood eight inches above the brim. "On you it looks good," one of my friends commented. The seller asked $1.50. I offered one dollar. There was a moment's hesitation but he took the cash.

Natives of the islands excel in weaving. They make some great of curious designs and colors. But if you think they are good at making hats, get one of the weavers to show you her baskets and bags for women.

On the third shopping expedition to the native arts enthusiastic saleslady persuaded me to buy no less than six articles including custom-made dresses, drapes for each of my two boys.

A merry crowd of tourists trundled aboard the little harbor boat that takes you to the beach. Teenage colored boys gathered about calling for people to throw money into the harbor so they could dive for it. There would be half a dozen in the water at one time as the coin sailed through the air from all angles. The bigger the piece the bigger the smile on the dusky diver as his head broke through the surface, back again from underwater to beg for more silver.

TOWNS HAVE SLUMS

This time I was impressed the cleanliness of everything ...mmended for the tourists' eyes. Later, however, I learned that this metropolis of beauty, like any other city, had its slums and sanitation problems.

The planners of this ocean resort certainly had artistic leanings. The half-mile walk from the dock to the beach takes you through an archway of tropical trees. Long fingers of sunshine stream down through holes in the foliage presenting a unique picture in light and shadows. You can ride in an open air taxi but most of the sightseers prefer to walk and take advantage of the natural surroundings.

One American woman we talked to had the best words to describe Paradise Beach. "One of the places that looks as good as the pictures when you get there."

A dull thud that sounded only inches away gave me a start prompting the thought that even Paradise can be a dangerous place to live. On close investigation behind the beach chair where I was sitting I found a huge coconut embedded in the sand. I had to cock my head well back to see where it had fallen from a cluster almost hidden among broad green leaves 30 feet up. Instinctively I kept a sharp lookout for any other unguided missiles until I moved on and felt that I could continue siesta in safety.

Apartments Dirtied by Sewer Gas Blast

TRENTON (Special) — Murphy street apartment dwellers suffered great inconvenience when their household furnishings and effects were soiled following an explosion of sewer gas in the cellar main on Middle Street early yesterday.

Small children had to be taken to neighbors' homes and cleaners worked until late last night.

Damage to property will run in the hundreds of dollars.

$70,000 Extra Grant

TORONTO (CP)—Welfare Minister Cecile of Ontario Thursday announced an extra grant of $70,000 toward the building of an addition to the John Noble Home for the Aged in Brantford.

The province had promised to pay one-half the $300,000 cost of the block addition. The home is operated jointly by the city of Brantford and Brant county.

Cochrane Man Is Found Guilty On Murder Charge

COCHRANE, Ont. (CP) — Paul Gauthier was convicted of murder Thursday and sentenced to be hanged May 23 for the robbery-slaying of 67-year-old grocer Joseph Riley.

When Chief Justice J. C. McRuer asked Gauthier whether he had anything to say, the convicted man, through an interpreter, thanked the jury for its recommendation of mercy.

"But," he said, "all the evidence was against me. Nevertheless, I am not guilty and the one who has committed this offence will have it on his conscience."

Two other men were sentenced to 15 years in jail for the same slaying. Cochrane bush workers Florent Lapointe, 26, and Armand Hebert, 24, were convicted of manslaughter last week.

Lapointe testified during Gauthier's trial that he, Hebert and Gauthier drove from this town 40 miles north of Timmins to Hunta, 15 miles east of here. They smashed the door on Rizzo's store and entered.

He said Gauthier remained in the store with the elderly merchant while his companions searched a storeroom for money. When Lapointe and Hebert returned to the store they found Rizzo lying on the floor, bound and bleeding.

Gauthier said one or both of her hit Lapointe and Hebert had beaten Rizzo despite his objections.

TASTES IN FOOD CHANGING

The Gordon Economic Commission is discovering that the Canadian businessman is apparently as much interested in prophets as in profits.

The briefs which are being submitted to the commission are grinding out as many forecasts as the Weather Bureau.

Recently the Canadian Federation of Agriculture predicted that the growth of Canada's domestic market may force us to call a halt to exports of most farm products by 1980. By that time, it was estimated, Canadian farmers will have to produce 78 per cent more meat, 80 per cent more evaporated milk, 73 per cent more cheese, 58 per cent more eggs and 54 per cent more milk for everyday use.

That should prove encouraging to farmers today who are worried about surplus production and think the possibility of surplus grain being converted into surplus hogs.

Perhaps, though, we ought to remember that it is not certain that Canadians in 1980 will feed exclusively on Canadian-grown products.

We already have a reminder that other countries have agricultural surpluses from the recent shipment of New Zealand cheese to this country.

There is another field, too, in which imports are satisfying a growing proportion of the public need. The Federation of Agriculture says that by 1980 Canadians will be consuming 78 per cent more meat—but it is not certain that this will be beef or pork from Canadian farms. It may be mutton—almost all it lamb, but most lamb sold in Ontario is really mutton.

In recent years there has been a noticeable increase in the amount of mutton sold locally—and probably this same increase has occurred throughout the country. There are two reasons for its growing popularity. It is cheap. And immigration has added to our population a number of people, English families for example, who are accustomed to mutton forming a large part of the meat in the family fare.

Mutton is cheap because it is frozen New Zealand mutton. It is good meat. Probably, though, it could not match Canadian-grown mutton—but Canada does not seem to be producing enough mutton to meet what is sold at prices which will compete with the New Zealand product. If the spread in price were comparatively small, many English families would probably prefer to buy home-grown lamb. New Zealand mutton is no novelty to the English—but they have always preferred their domestic product and, where able, have been willing to pay for a premium.

It is customary, even among the English, to treat mutton as one would pork, cooking it well, instead of handling it as any knowledgeable cook does beef and removing it from the oven before the pink glow of freshness disappears from the juicy interior of the joint. Canadians, many of whom persist in cooking beef until it is as brown as the material in a pair of old trousers, to spoil mutton. Still, it might pay to experiment and to follow the advice of one Spanish woman we know, who says that therefore is nothing like a good roast lamb as an Englishman would be by a well-done steak.

Another imported food which is gaining in popularity is duck. When everybody preferred chicken, ducks could be purchased for less than a plump pullet. Today, however, the price for ducks is higher than for chickens. Many people have discovered that the difference in taste is well worth the extra cents. Many of these ducks come from the United States.

Perhaps Canadian farmers ought to consider these trends and start producing more mutton and more ducks. There are probably dozens of other trends in the eating habits of Canadians which should also receive the attention of farmers, particularly in view of the heavy immigration which is expected in the next few years. Farmers are notoriously steadfast. Once acquired, they often last a lifetime and a mere incident like a trip across the Atlantic and a home in a new land is not going to alter them.

REGULATION IS WIDESPREAD

Hon. G. C. Marler, minister of transport, has opposed a suggestion by Progressive Conservative and Social Credit members of the House of Commons that private airlines be permitted to compete with the government-owned TCA.

There may be sound reason for advocating airline competition. But those who may regard restriction of competition as something reserved for the protection of government-operated services are not abreast of the facts. Restriction of competition is the mark of public transport is the rule, rather than the exception. Municipalities do it by granting "franchises" to bus companies. Provincial governments do it by requiring public commercial vehicle licences before permitting a trucker to operate and by controlling the number of these licences. In some instances these regulations may stifle competition which would be beneficial. In many others they are essential if the public is to be provided with efficient service.

TAKING CARE

I'm a nuisance to my loved ones
And a nuisance to my friends,
Since on taking care the doctor says my future health depends.
When I take a friend to dinner
She must guide me through the chairs;
And be watchful of my safety lest too fast I climb the stairs.

Taking care is dreary business
And a difficult command.
At the table when we're dining I must sit where I should stand.
And I mustn't get excited;
I mustn't share in any fun;
Even though I'm in a hurry I must walk and never run.

There are various kinds of tablets I've been told that I must take,
And they keep me busy swallowing all the time that I'm awake.
Is my partner fond of dancing?
I must never leave my chair.
"I am sorry," I must tell her, "but I'm busy taking care."

The dullest published volume that I have upon my shelf
Isn't half as dull as I am being careful of my self.
Step by step I climb the stair,
Step by step I must descend,
And a man becomes a nuisance when he's always taking Queen Mary School Wins Midget Championship. The Queen Mary Midget team became a one goal lead to win the Midget championship in the Xi-Y League at the local arena Friday night when they downed the Rotary Aces by a score of 4 to 2 with Bill Gordon, Belleville pole, scoring all four goals for coach Everett Fairman's kids. The "Wild Cats" proved too strong defensively once they went out in front, although the Aces staged a hectic third period rally to score two goals and advanced to a contending position, but failed to win. Row, sorden, Mallory and Hibbard all played good steady hockey for the winners. Line-up: Aces—Goal, Bride, Hisey; Clare and Bradley teamed with Gordon, Fairman, the following composed the teams: Queen Mary "Wild Cats" Goal, Row; defence, Gordon, Hibbard and Mallory; subs, Hill, Ramsay, J. Gordon, W. Reed and Sword. Y.M.C.A. Aces — Clarke, Jones, Mc-Bride, Hisey, B. Clare, Mc-cright; subs, Weller, Bradley, Higdon, Carlton and McGuire. The game was well handled by Jimmie Follwell.

Marshes Make Money

(By Horace Brown in Ontario Hydro News)

To the average person, a muskrat is something that makes a nice coat.

But to Bruce F. Bradley of Palmerston, Ontario, and his sons, the raising of muskrats, fish and wild ducks has become an interesting and rewarding occupation.

Dry and wet land farming is carried on in some parts of the level of surrounding bodies of water. Such a community lies a wide area of southwestern Ontario adjacent to Lake St. Clair. Here, man has combined with nature to make possible both types of farming.

With the assistance of the Ontario Government and municipal councils, huge relief ditches have been dug to carry off and regulate the flow of water in the low-lying land. Massive dykes have been built to hold back the lake and the rivers, while the hand of nature has built along the top of many of the dykes.

Without electricity and natural gas, these projects would be much more difficult. Large pumping stations, operated by electric motors or gas engine motors operated by natural gas, lift the water from the lake of this land at the needed necessary for the particular crops to be grown, for dry land farming sections. Similarly, in wet land farming, the pumps keep the water at the proper level for growing the muskrat's favorite aquatic foodstuffs — such as bulrushes, cattails, marsh potatoes, sedges, pickerel weed, wild rice and pond weed. Producing desirable water levels provides good nesting places and cover against predators for thousands of wild ducks in the spring and fall. Also the fish are caught in these man-made marshes. The revenue from hook-and-line fishing in the marsh and in the adjacent Lake Erie, alone, has averaged $2,300 each year for the last 3 years.

Mr. Bradley and his sons, together with their families, own 2,000 acres in the United States, own 2,000 acres in Canada, a total of 4,000 for dry land farming and the rest for wet land purposes.

For their present wet farming, they use land that they had kept dry from 1913-1918 by means of standard dry land crops of their district, such as corn, oats and hay. But in the spring and summer of 1929, when Lake St. Clair was at the peak of its high cycle, all the Bradley land was flooded three times from the lake, and they were able to pump dry and crop only one-third of the land. In the fall spring of 1930, the Bradleys decided to go along with Nature and allow the marshes to remain in their wet. But, as Lake St. Clair water had receded, in 1930, they had bought a second-hand pump to keep this four-fifth of their land in good condition for crops. Then on to their wet farm or artificial marsh to keep the water at the right levels in their marsh.

What seemed a disaster in 1929 when the lake rose first flooded, has become a successful enterprise in addition to the crops of corn, oats and forests to the family and also to bird-watchers and wildlife students. Each marsh contains a rich harvest of muskrats and pickerel for fishermen and picnic parties. Besides the muskrats, there are also the wild swans visit the marsh both in spring and fall on their north and south migrations, adding to the color and beauty of the place.

Over the years, the dry-and-wet land farming scheme of Mr. Bradley a great deal of money, because he says he was lacking in practical experience when he started. But making money is no longer his prime objective, although he naturally has its place. He has a theory, which he has put into practice, and he imparted this to his "creating values", i.e., land values, human values and spiritual values, although he has always been challenged by raw, undeveloped land that could be made useful.

In the dry land section of the farm, the Bradleys keep the water level or water table at the proper depth for the optimum growth of corn, onions and beets, registered seed wheat and other improved crops. There are 45 acres of onions, about 370 acres of corn, some 30 acres of beets, 80 acres of wheat and 25 acres of oats. The balance is in improved grass fields. In addition, about 300 head of cattle are fed each winter.

Wise farmers, the Bradleys get maximum production by crop rotation. Land is left to lay and pasture for two-year periods. Naturally, the cattle benefit from this procedure as well as the soil, and nothing is wanted.

This appreciation of the latest methods of farming is also demonstrated in the Bradley application of electricity found at the Bradley farm.

A 5-horsepower motor is used to operate a fan for onion-drying. The onions are stacked in crates 2 feet deep by 36 feet wide and 60 feet long in the barn above the ground floor of the bin and the electrically-driven air travels up through the growing, perforated floor, particularly effective in this bulk-drying scheme.

A 20-horse motor is used to operate 15,000 bushels of corn a year by the natural air system. The air is blown into cribs by a 42-inch fan, operated by another 5-horsepower motor, through a duct.

Electrically-operated conveyors are also employed in the farm for moving and grading vegetables.

Estimated value of the electrical bills range between $800 and $1,000 a year, the Bradleys say there is a considerable saving financially for the varied tasks Hydro performs.

Naturally, a project such as this has a man at the head who has a real love of the land and of nature. Bruce Bradley was born in Bruce, Ohio. Back in 1912, when Bruce was a young lumberjack, he did land in southwestern Ont. which was then mostly swamp and practically nothing else. The father intended to have young Bruce develop the land, clear it and sell it. However, by the time Bruce had put the farm in shape for sale, he couldn't find a buyer for the farmland and he had become greatly interested in it. Then, some less than 40 years later, that attachment is still there, perhaps in increased measure.

Three married sons now help their father operate the farm . . . Bob, 36, who has two sons and a daughter; Ivan, 34, who has three, and John 29, with three sons. There are also two daughters who help during the year, the farm given employment to 40 or 50 persons. Many of these are drawn from the neighboring men and women who want to make extra money as casual help.

The Bradley farm is practically a community in itself. There are 3 well-equipped houses on the farm. In the early days Mr. Bradley even built a school, because the roads were too muddy for children to walk to school. Now they board, heating and janitor's work. Today, the Bradley school has a teacher, by is maintained for the 12 to 15 pupils in the same way as any other rural school in Ontario.

Ban Parking Downtown

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

Toledo is embarked on an experiment of failing to all metered sized cities. It has placed a virtual ban on parking in a 32 square downtown shopping area. In addition, it has prohibited parking, during rush hrs., on all main thoroughfares leading to the shopping area. These drastic provisions are opposed at the height of the Christmas shopping season for a trial period.

The bans have the endorsation of the Chamber of Commerce, the Downtown Toledo Associates, the Automobile Club and other organizations actively interested.

The idea is not entirely new. On main shopping streets of some large cities on this continent, and in Europe, parking is prohibited. The Toledo experiment will be watched closely by cities of a similar size, having similar problems.

To be entirely successful, however, such parking prohibitions require off-street parking facilities. But the city will come when these are made available, and when cities will ban parking on shopping streets. Then the wonder will be why it was not done before.

Restoring Colon Function

As a laxative or physic cascara sagrada (sacred bark), the bark of Rhamnus purshiana, a shrub of the Pacific states of the United States, is no better and no worse than a dozen other popular physics, in my opinion. But for once I'll go along with recognized medical authorities who assert for instance, that if very small doses are taken two or three times a day, the general effect is better than one large dose daily. Furthermore, the authorities say, cascara used in this way does not lose its efficiency, but on the contrary, may be gradually reduced until colon function is restored to normal and there is no further need for cascara.

That I gotta say . . .

I believe cascara should be used as a tonic to the colon, not a laxative, and in this way it is a help to anyone who wants to break the constipation habit.

So, if you are serious about it, I suggest that you begin two weeks before you go on strike, taking each morning, noon, and evening a tablet containing about 1½ grains of extract of cascara sagrada, a mixture of cascara and a grain of yeast concentrate. Continue this for a week after you have quit taking physics, and you'll it does not produce any apparent laxative effect. If it does, cut the daily intake to two tablets, and, in any case, for several months after you have stopped taking the cascara-yeast-thiamin tonic it is essential for success that you get an optional daily ration of B-complex, either from an improved diet or from a suitable supplement.

Yankee Wisecracs may not take any notice of this letter but seriously since I am not a specialist nor a member of a clinic, so I'll just quote a famous nutrition authority who wam't, either:

Intestinal Disease. — This disorder is very common among children who are fed largely on sterilized milk, artificial foods, white bread, polished rice, poor butter, overcooked vegetables and excessive quantities of sugar . . .

One of the most constant results of food deficient in vitamins is colitis . . .

I have myself no doubt that a proportion of cases of colitis have resulted from the long continued use of deficient foods from childhood onwards.

"Poor butter" means that vitamin content — A and D — is low because the cows are poorly fed.

It's certainly time to think about when your young hopeful demands Yum-Yummy breakfast food, and send the box top with a few pennies — say 59 ct 'em—for a large gun.

Ideal way to increase daily vitamin B complex intake is by restoring plain wheat to your diet.

"The Best Pie in the U.S.A."

That's what it said on the enticing sign outside restaurant. Now the pie was very excellent, but I'm sure that I could tell you there are probably a million other places in the United States where just as good pie as does this place. Does this mean, therefore, that the proprietors were consciously lying? Not at all. Their estimate of the delectable quality of their pie was simply a measure of their enthusiasm and self-confidence. They might not have pie that is the best in U.S.A., but they thought they had and they proceeded on the basis of that confidence.

What was the result? The result was that they conducted a very successful business. They might have said it was because of the pie they served. This is greatly to be doubted. Their success was largely due to the confidence they had about the pie and about everything else in their establishment and about their own ability to put things across.

Have faith in yourself. If you don't, nobody else will have any faith in you. Have faith in most of the things we set ourselves to do if we go about our efforts in a spirit of confident faith.

Believe that you have the best pie in the country, or that you can run the fastest race or write the best novel and you'll be on the way to doing so.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In both the movies and TV, over which we can get as many as half a dozen channels today, the greatest weakness lies in the fact that you can always pick out the villain right from the start. In movies, villains always look bad and sometimes, of course, could be farther from the truth. The audience knows at once that it is that villains usually look like heroes, and heroes usually don't look like villains. And the movies and TV are doing no service whatever in creating a wrong impression of this very vital fact about life. Our children are being brought up to believe, as the consequence of daily familiarity with Westerns, that goodness can be readily identified by their appearance and their behavior, whereas the fact is that quite the villain appears, in a Western, right at the beginning of the story you can bet your life the children's little explanation of recognition. There is no mistaking him. He looks like a villain.

In adult entertainment, the same thing holds good. The casting director always tips you off, from the start, by casting villainous-looking characters for villains, a kindly-looking actors for heroes. Even from the dramatic point of view, this is poor business; because I think what a shock it must be when they could inject by choosing handsome villains and homely heroes.

And it would be trite to life, after all. For if you check your own experience you will find that it's rarely certain, make the surprising discovery that the villains in real heroes and heroines, once you encountered were entirely average in appearance, and that the two individuals were a little unprepossessing. Whereas, if you search for the really wicked, malicious and unredeemed characters you have considered amongst both men and women, you will be equally surprised to discover how ordinary, how prepossessing, affable and agreeable they were.

I suppose if you are villainous-looking, it is hard to be a villain, because everybody recognizes you. But if you are heroic looking, and with a face you can trust in all the holders, it is a simple matter to defraud and betray.

If you published pictures of criminals, we might suppose that villains do indeed look like villains. But police photographs are not intended to flatter those who are only criminal has some very handsome portrait photos of himself at 9 or 10 on a proud mantelpiece among his friends and relations.

Anyway, the world's worst villains are seldom photographed by the police. They are not only handsome. They are smart.

TODAY'S TALK

SIMPLICITY

One reason why there are so many people who are living high strung and sleepless is that they complicate their lives with too many interests that are unimportant. To live simply is to give first place to the every day things and opportunity for health and happiness.

The reading of "Walden" by Thoreau is a very beneficial activity. A favorite quotation is where he explains his reason for going into the woods, "because I wished to live less than fifty dollars) and there learn the essentials of life and its inhabitants, and trying to learn about the values in life, contrasting the false with the true. So many shoved carelessly aside.

Then, in his journal he wrote: "Simplicity, simplicity, simplicity! I say let your affairs be as two or three, and not a hundred or a thousand; instead of a million count half a dozen, and keep your accounts on your thumb nail." How many of us would order our life thus? Yet that is what Thoreau did—and he wrote a book that will be read as long as books can be read!

The happy life does not call for complications, worry and insignificant fears. Live simply; eat simply; think simply—and in this way you can be understood. Rejoice in your personal freedom, and do not fear it. Be independent. Associate with ghosts—that never yet have existed! Read books like those of Shakespeare and the Bible. They are inspiring. Live with those in whose company you could read night understand them.

Feast upon all the beauty of this earth about you. Glory in it all. Fill your mind with the wonder of it. Look into the heavens. Make friends with the stars. Have a few friends and cultivate them. He is every flower and bird song. Think on these things, and simplify. It's the direct road to success and genuine happiness.

But What?

Stories from Life of Jesus

By April Oursler Armstrong

THE DAUGHTER OF JAIRUS

The man named Jairus paced the marble floor.

"Are the doctors still in there?" he asked in a voice so low it could hardly be heard over the sound of his sandals. "Will they never tell me how Joanna is?"

His friend put an arm on Jairus' shoulder. "Jairus, since your daughter became ill you have not rested. The doctors are trying their best. You must have patience, and take care of yourself. What else can you do?"

"What can I do? I can get her the best doctors — and that I have done. And because I love my God, I have prayed night and day that He would make her well. And if doctors and prayers do not work, I know what I shall do."

"What more can you do, Jairus?"

"I shall ask Jesus to save her."

His friend's eyes opened wide. "Do you, the head of the synagogue, so wise and important a man, ask a poor, homeless Nazarene?"

"I do," said Jairus. "He has helped many. Perhaps He will help Joanna. And why should it surprise you that I believe in Him? He is wiser, and far more important than I."

"Men will call you foolish to go to Jesus and ask assistance of a preacher, who wanders the roads like a vagabond!" said his friend.

"Don't go to Him."

DAUGHTER DYING

Footsteps echoed on the stairs. The three men came into the room, carrying their scarlet and purple robes behind them. The oldest doctor spoke.

"Jairus, there is nothing more we can do. Joanna is dying."

Without a word, Jairus ran out of the house.

"Where has he gone!" asked the doctor.

"He has gone to see the One called Jesus," said his friend.

"Heal us, sweet Jesus!" asked Jairus of the washerwoman by the town well.

Jairus ran through the streets, his brown and orange robes streaming in the breeze. And as he ran he thought of Joanna, the little girl he loved so dearly, the twelve-year-old with the black eyes who liked play house under the fig tree in the back yard. Why would God want her to die? What reason could there be for a pink-cheeked little girl to die?

On the beach, a thick crowd surrounded Jesus, but Jairus squirmed his way through, and fell on his knees by Jesus' feet.

"My daughter is dying," he said. "Come — but lay Your hand on her — and she will live. Please, Lord — come."

CROWDS FOLLOWED

Jesus helped Jairus to stand, and rose Himself to go with him to his house. But the crowds followed Him jostling and elbowing to get closer to Jesus. And there was in the crowd a woman who had been sick for twelve years, with a wound that never stopped bleeding. And she said to herself, "If I can only get close enough to touch Jesus' robe, that would make me well."

Suddenly Jesus stopped. "Who touched Me?"

The apostles looked at Him and laughed. "Is this a joke, Master?" asked Phillip, look at the crowds. How can You ask who touched You?"

But from out of the crowd came the woman, and kneeling she said;

"Lord, I touched Your robe. I knew if I did, You could heal me. And see, I am well again!"

Jesus put a hand in blessing on her head. "Daughter," He said, "your faith has made you well. Go in peace."

Jairus did not dare say anything, but he was thinking: Why, oh why, does He heal this woman now? If we don't hurry it will be too late to save Joanna!

And then Jairus saw his friend and the doctors shouldering their way through the crowd.

"Jairus," said his friend. "Your daughter is dead."

Jesus heard, and He put His arm around Jairus. And Jesus whispered:

"Fear not. Only — believe!"

And with His arm firmly around Jairus, Jesus walked with him to Jairus' house. A crowd came with them — but there was already another large throng at the house. Joanna's aunts and uncles, and grandparents, and all who had known the laughing little girl were there, mourning because she was dead.

WAVED CROWD BACK

Jesus waved back the crowd who had followed Him. Only Peter, John and James — and Jairus — could go in with Him.

On the doorstep, Jesus spoke to those who were weeping for Joanna.

"Why are you weeping?" He asked gently. "The little girl is not dead. She only sleeps."

And the family and friends stared at the tall Man in the white robe, and yelled at Him, and tried to put Him out. They knew that Joanna was truly dead, and His words sounded cruel, and strange, because they did not believe in Him.

But Jesus went in with Peter and James, John and Jairus. He went to Joanna's mother, and wiped her tears. And He led them all to the darkened room where the child lay.

Jesus bent over the bed. He lifted one cold hand, and murmured: "Little girl, arise!"

And as He spoke, Joanna opened her eyes, and stretched, and got out of bed.

"She was dead and she lives! O Lord, thank You!" said Jairus, as he held her close.

Tears of joy streamed down the mother's cheeks, as she fell to her knees before Jesus.

Jesus, with the most tender smile, leaned down to Joanna.

"Give her something to eat." He said gently. Any little girl called back from death to life would probably be hungry."

SOLEMN INJUNCTION

Peter straightened up, and His bearded face grew solemn. One more thing, He said: "Tell no one what has happened."

Then taking Peter and James and John, He went silently down the stairs, past the weeping aunts and uncles and friends, and out the door. And the crowd who had waited for Him, followed Him back to the beach.

Joanna's mother hurried to fix her some bread and butter, and a cup of bubbly cold milk. Downstairs, the relatives and friends who had been weeping were noisy with questions.

"What happened? Is she really alive now? Did Jesus really bring her back to life?" "Tell us!" they grabbed. "You look so happy, something fine must have happened."

But Joanna's mother only nodded and smiled, for Jesus had commanded. These were the people who had laughed at Him, and who had not believed when He came. Let them ask and get no answer. For Jesus had no use for those who cannot believe.

And upstairs, holding his daughter close, Jairus whispered:

"My darling, no matter what happens in your life, always believe. I wondered why God would let you die and now I know. It was to show us what Jesus can do."

He held her chin in his hands. "Sometimes," he said, "you will wonder why God lets terrible things happen — why He does not hurry to answer our prayers. But sometimes you will not understand Him at all. But always you must trust Him, even when His answer to your prayer is No."

Jairus hugged her close.

"Remember what Jesus said to me. He said 'Fear not. Only believe.'"

"Fear not. Only believe!"

And though Jairus and his wife and Joanna obeyed Jesus and never told anyone the story spread faster than sunrise. The doctors, the relatives, the friends who had been there — all saw Joanna alive again. And they who saw her dying everyone they knew about the miracle, and eventually it was written down for us by Matthew and Mark and Luke so we could share the secret Joanna had learned from the Lord.

Refusal to Work Overtime Said Illegal Strike

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario labor relations board ruled Thursday that concerted refusal of employees to work overtime constitutes an illegal strike.

The majority finding, which labor officials said could have far-reaching implications, was supported by board chairman Jacob Finkleman and employer representatives H. F. Irwin and George S. P. Ferguson.

Labor representatives Dave Archer and G. Russell Harvey dissented, considering the majority finding distorted the intent of Ontario labor legislation.

The ruling was made on an application of Harding Carpets Ltd., Brantford, for a declaration of an unlawful strike against Local 501, Canadian Textile Council (Ind.).

Education Week

Agriculture as General Course Attracts More Students Yearly

(Editor's Note — Mr. Robert Phillips is a teacher at Bellecroft Institute and Vocational School and conducts the classes in agriculture.)

By ROBERT PHILLIPS

Agriculture was introduced in the vocational school of B. C. I. and V. S. 10 years ago. Agriculture has been taught in the science classes of the general course since before the present B. C. I. and V. S. building was built. Agriculture as an option in the general course was introduced with the opening of the new Quinte Secondary School.

"Agriculture is not taught with the idea that the students will all become farmers, any more than French is taught with the idea that all students will become Frenchmen, but as a general knowledge subject that has a very important place in our national life. General knowledge of farming in our community and in Canada is at least as important as the fruits of education the Province of Ontario mentioned in recent weeks.

Students of high school age are required to take the same basic training although individual interests may vary. It is with this thought then that agriculture in the vocational school is considered. Both the O.A.C. at Guelph and the Kemptville Agricultural school offer two-year winter courses for boys who choose the farm for later years. Both schools require at least Grade 10 and prefer a graduation diploma. However, a year's course at O.A.C. requires Grade 13 graduation.

FIRST IN ONTARIO

B. C. I. and V. S. and Chatham were the first vocational schools in the province to teach agriculture. The course was introduced by the Belleville Board before the high school area was created. Other small cities have followed. In grades 9 and 10 the four periods of agriculture in the 45 - period week allow for a limited number of purely agricultural topics, but also periods in motor mechanics, woodworking, machine, electricity and drafting round out an education. The program hard to improve upon for a boy planning to stay on the farm, but it does not close the door to the many who continue through Grades 11 and 13 before seeking other employment.

In agriculture the topics follow the seasons and tie in closely with the program of the agricultural representatives and the Junior Farmer and 4-H Club activities. Last year, 4-H tractor clubs completed programs and two representatives, Bob Morris and Doug Rollins, were sent to the provincial competitions at Guelph in October.

At the same time two members from the grain clubs, Earl Sills and Arthur Rupert, represented the school.

Previous to this Rodney oats, shown by the club at the Winter Fair in Ottawa won a first and second. The same grain sent to the Royal Winter Fair won a third and an eighth against all Canadian club competition.

This year winter wheat projects are under way and the new oat seeds are available as well as its navy as Britain, the song did not mean anything any more, except as an old folk tune, he said.

SAYS SHOULD STOP

LONDON (Reuters)—Labor MP James Callaghan suggested in the House of Commons Thursday night that Britons should stop singing the popular song "Britannia Rules the Waves." With the United States spending nine times as much on its navy as Britain, the song did not mean anything any more, except as an old folk tune, he said.

WENT DANCING

LONDON (Reuters) — Princess Margaret, Thursday night went dancing at London's Cafe de Paris. She did the samba with Lord Mountbatten of Burma, Britain's first sea lord, a foxtrot with American ex-envoy Stur Douglas Fairbanks and also whirled around the floor with Prince Christian of Hanover, Germany.

Student Argues World History Essential in Canadian Course

(Editor's Note — John Fuke, a Grade 13 student in the general course at BCIVS, replies to an article by Barbara Lamb, also a Grade 13 student at BCIVS, published in Tuesday's issue of The Ontario Intelligencer. Miss Annis explored the link of Canadian history being taught in the high school course.)

By JOHN FUKE

In reply to an article published in your paper on the 28th of this month, I would like to refute the arguments in favor of more Canadian history and less world history in Ontario schools put forward by a contributor of yours who is a student of BCIVS.

In the first place, it is questionable to assume that Canadian history could be studied intelligently without a knowledge of at least British and American history. An understanding of Canada and the cultural backgrounds of the two countries from which the majority of the world's people have come in 1867 if the British colonies in what is now Canada had not lost the American trade after the Civil War, if American settlers were not continually filling the Canadian West and if the Fenian Society had been less lacking in Canada from the United States. Canada would not have received complete autonomy when she did if it had not been for the first World War, Canadian history, therefore, would be terribly confusing and difficult to teach if the students did not first have an idea of world history.

KNOW WORLD AFFAIRS

Secondly, we must have a thorough knowledge of world affairs, rather than Canadian affairs, to be intelligent citizens of Canada today. It has often been said that the world grows smaller every year. How true this is! The countries of the world are continuously being knit into a more interdependent community.

No longer can we turn our backs on what happens in other parts of the world, for more and more, these developments outside Canada are influencing our government policy and history. In order to fully comprehend these world developments we must understand their background and causes. This study is essentially world history.

But your correspondent refers to such things as, and I quote, "remote topics." For her, examples of these "remote topics" she chooses three of the most important factors in our modern world: the French Revolution, the origin of democracy and liberalism; the Industrial Revolution, the reason for our current prosperity and material advances; and the changes of American foreign policy, upon which the course of world events has been so much dependent even since the turn of the century. The study of these events, beyond a doubt, is a must for anyone who hopes to have his place in society as a good Canadian citizens.

Your writer refers to the present course in history as "this problem of Canada's trend."

Grades 9 and 13 is there any concentrated study done in our present history. If there is any "trend" in our history course, it is not successful in giving the student more American history, but rather leaves giving him a more complete idea of the problems that confront him as a Canadian, and incidentally, the Grade 10 course, to which your correspondent refers, has been changed to a more practical course.)

WHY NATIONALISM?

Your contributor wanted Canadians to study more Canadian history so that they would be more nationalistic. Why does she want nationalism? Nationalism is based on the premise that the particular country of the nation-alist is better than any other country. Now, in our opinion, any thinking person can see that no country in the world can be undisputably the best. The nationalist, however, does not stop to think about this but rather goes blindly ahead following anything and everything that his country does because his country, to him, is always right. Arm in arm with this nationalistic feeling goes imperialism, the desire to better one's own country at the expense of others.

Almost every war in history was due to these two factors, nationalism and the imperialism, as is the current cold war. Surely, we do not want our students to become blind followers of this war-creating train of thought. Nationalism must not be for Canada!

I am also a student of Grade 13 and have taken the same history courses as your correspondent. I see no major objections to be raised to the Ontario history courses. To be sure there are minor imperfections, but nothing that is made by humans is without fault.

I believe that your correspondent does not speak the majority of the history students in the collegiate and it is the purpose of this letter to suggest some of the ideas that I think are more prevalent.

Pr. Wales H-S Assoc. Holds 'Open House'

Mrs. W. Wilson opened the March meeting of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association and welcomed the parents. Mrs. Burt read the minutes of the previous meeting and Mrs. Hunter gave the treasurer's report.

Mrs. Wilson stated that Mr. J. Sproule, Mr. I May and Mrs. F. Murray had been appointed to the nominating committee and the new slate of officers would be brought in at the May meeting.

Following the business, Mr. Sproule took the chair. As this was the annual "Open House", he read an informative article entitled "Report Cards and How to Read Them." He also spoke briefly on the subject which helped immensely to clarify many questions in the minds of parents before approaching their children's teachers.

On behalf of the school board, Mr. Sproule presented Lynne Green and Lois Conley with tokens of appreciation for having participated in the spelling bee.

Following the singing of "The Queen", the parents proceeded to classrooms, which were tastefully decorated in appropriate schemes for St. Patrick's Day, Easter and spring. The efforts of the children and teachers alike were admired by approximately 150 parents and guests.

Mrs. O. Slack, teacher of Grade 1 teacher, held her "Open House" during the afternoon to enable the parents to look in on her teaching methods; to see their children at work. This proved very interesting for the parents and a great delight for the children. Thirty-eight mothers visited Mrs. Slack's classroom during the afternoon.

So-Ed Club Holds First Spring Meeting

The first meeting of the spring '56 So-Ed was held at the Belleville YMCA on Wednesday night from 7.30 p.m. till midnight.

Registration which had begun on Tuesday evening continued from 7.30 p.m. till 9 p.m. and Wednesday night, a goodly number of new members were registered but due to the inclement weather of Wednesday night, it was decided to hold registration open so that people who could not attend on Wednesday could have an opportunity to register next Wednesday.

Chairman John Luscombe welcomed the members of the spring '56 So-Ed and introduced the executive committee. The chairman also expressed the thanks of So-Ed to the hospitality houses of Belleville who had so kindly permitted So-Ed posters to be placed in their windows and specially thanked Mr. Taylor of the Ontario Intelligencer and his staff, for the splendid job they had done with the So-Ed pamphlets.

Unfortunately, "Di" Diamandides, general secretary of the YMCA was indisposed so could not speak to the So-Ed members. Instead, chairman Luscombe relayed a message from him in which he welcomed the So-Ed to the YMCA movement.

The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing, group games, Paul Jones, color mixer dances and square dancing, all of which served to get the members acquainted.

Refreshments were served and a large spice cake was auctioned via a Chinese (Penny) Auction and won by Bob Suykens.

The Experts Say Salad Sales Soar Higher

By OLI DAUM
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — In its announcement that salad week this year is to be July 30 to Aug. 5 the Canadian Horticultural Council said Canadians are eating more salads every year.

Since 1951 when the council first began promoting salads, sales of mayonnaise and other dressings have increased more than 50 per cent and vegetable consumption 22 per cent.

This could be attributed partly to publicity campaigns which the federal government and provincial governments have been asked to support. But also, it said, salads became a habit in many households since they can be used the year-round almost anywhere in the menu.

NUTRITIOUS, TOO

Salads score high both for health value and appearance. Prepared mostly from raw fruits and vegetables, they have a higher vitamin and mineral count than cooked foods. Even an unpretentious dish like tomato on a crisp lettuce leaf, dotted with mayonnaise, adds color to a table. And salads are as much a home on a cocktail buffet table as on a rustic picnic table.

Good salads are not a haphazard mixture of leftovers, but a combination of carefully-selected and prepared ingredients. Greens should be fresh, crisp and dry; fruits should be plump, ripe and juicy.

An imaginative cook needn't limit her salad bowl to fruits and vegetables. She can use nuts, eggs, cheese, meat, seafood or macaroni in the courts of 18th-century nobility, some royal salad-makers combined as many as 35 ingredients.

ASPARAGUS SALAD

Here is a recipe designed to put the salad habit in your home:

Parboil vegetables for 20 minutes, adding to water a bit of bay leaf, a slice of onion and a few sticks of celery. Drain by letting cold water run on them. Separate into small pieces.

For 2½ cup prepared sweetbreads add an equal measure of cold cooked asparagus cut in pieces crosswise.

Beat ¼ cup heavy cream until stiff; add ¼ tbsp. granulated gelatine soaked in ½ tbsp. cold water and dissolved in ½ tbsp. boiling water. Add 1¼ tbsps. vinegar. Add cream mixture to sweetbreads and asparagus mixture and season highly with salt and paprika. Pack into refrigerator tray thoroughly. Remove when set to nest of crisp lettuce and garnish with selected asparagus tips, tomato sections, devilled eggs.

French dressing:

Three-quarter cup salad oil; ¼ cup vinegar; 1 tsp. salt; 1 tsp. sugar; ½ tsp. paprika; ½ tsp. mustard; dash of freshly ground pepper.

Combine ingredients in a glass jar with a tightly fitting screw top. Shake with thoroughly blended. Chill. Shake well before using.

On Tuesday evening, the ladies of the Jubilee Evening Auxiliary of Bridge Street United church, were hostesses to the ladies of the Afternoon Auxiliary and the C.G.I.T. at their Easter Thankoffering meeting.

A large number of members from these three organizations enjoyed the fellowship of a bountiful and delicious pot-luck supper in the course of which Miss Gertrude Lasier, president, welcomed everyone and introduced the ladies at the head table.

Announcement was made of the Presbyterial at King Street United church, Trenton, on March 19, the theme of which will be "Changing Patterns Challenge the Church."

On March 18 there will be a special church service for the rededication of leaders and the next regular meeting of the Evening Auxiliary will be on April 10.

The worship service opened with quiet music played by Mrs. J. G. Demers at the piano, followed by the "Call to Worship," read by Miss Lasier. Mrs. Clair Calnan read from Romans 4: 1-14, and prayer was offered by Miss Clara Wilson.

Mrs. Helen Cook, accompanied by Mrs. Demers, rendered the beautiful hymn solo, "Hosanna."

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. T. R. Colden introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. H. M. Davis, who chose as her subject, "Glimpses of Life in Labrador and Newfoundland."

Mrs. Davis had the rapt attention of her audience as she painted a vivid and often humorous word picture of life as it was in this remote region when the Rev. Mr. Davis began his ministry, teaching and preaching under the United Church Board at Cartwright and Hopedale, West River in Labrador.

At that time, Mr. Davis travelled between these points, holding six-week classes in pupils' homes but now there are boarding schools in both Cartwright and North West River.

Mrs. Davis paid tribute to the work of United Church missionary, Dr. Lester Burry, who has worked for 20 years in the North West River area, travelling by boat in summer and by dog team in winter. She spoke of the blessing of Dr. Burry's and broadcasts to trappers and other isolated people.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis came as bride and bridegroom to Little Bay Islands in Newfoundland where they began their ministry together, established their first home and here their daughter was born.

RUGGED BEAUTY

In this picturesque bay on the west coast, they found rugged beauty in summer, but lonely and perilous surroundings in winter. Mrs. Davis travelled from island to island on foot over the harbor ice in the performance of her duties. Boats were often crushed by the ice floes. One hundred and twenty miles of coastline were served by one doctor and Mrs. Davis, a former teacher and a registered nurse, served in many capacities.

During depression years, the clothing barrels from missionary societies were greatly appreciated. Mrs. Davis was in charge of a group of Newfoundland Girls in training to whom she taught home nursing, first aid, and cooking. Mrs. Davis is justly proud of these girls, three of whom are now nurses; three teachers; and one a Social Service worker.

Mrs. Davis spoke of missionary work in the north as being most challenging, satisfying and rewarding and spoke warmly of the Eskimo and Indian communities where she and Mr. Davis found among people the essence of courtesy, sincerity and hospitality. She concluded her remarks with the following poem:

"WHERE SHALL I WORK"

"No matter what I work today?"
And my love flowed warm and free.
Then He pointed out a tiny plot
And He said "Work there for Me."
But I answered quickly, "Oh no, not there!
Not anyone could see
My matter what well my task was done.
Not that small place for me!"
And His voice when He spoke,
It wasn't stern,
But He answered me tenderly,
"Disciple, search that heart of mine.
Are you working for them or Me?
Nazareth was just a little place,
And so was Galilee."

Miss Joy Nichols graciously expressed the appreciation of the ladies to Mrs. Davis for her lovely interesting talk and presented to her the bouquet of spring flowers from the head table. Mrs. Denyes added special appreciation from the ladies of the Afternoon Auxiliary.

A BEAUTY DIET FOR TEEN-AGERS

A glass of milk and a piece of fruit makes the ideal after-school snack for teen-agers.

There isn't a teen-ager alive who doesn't want to be prettier than she is and that goes even if she's pretty as a picture right now. But what, you wonder, does she know of prettiness in terms of food and drink. Not often, we'd guess, if soda counters wouldn't do the sub business after school hours that they do. From time immemorial, it seems, "school's out" has been a signal for soda-and-candy binges even though Mamas and Grandmas (having learned the hard way) warn of the dire consequences to the complexion resulting therefrom.

And Mama and Grandma are so right. If youngsters would have a glass of milk and a piece of fruit after school hours, instead of the sweets on which they gorge, they would'nt suffer from half the completion troubles they complain of now. Good looks are completely dependent upon good health. If teen-agers would only realize it. For their sake, then, we'll list some of the foods which are absolutely essential to good health and, consequently, good looks. Will you list 'em, Grandma?

If you've been having complexion troubles, clip this recipe out and study it, for it contains the foods you need to have a clearer skin:

Proteins—A n i m a l proteins: meat, poultry, fish, milk, eggs, cheese; Vegetable proteins: legumes, nuts, whole cereal grains.

B Complex Vitamins: Liver and other varieties of organ meats; pork, lamb, veal and beef; fish; poultry; eggs; milk; whole-grain cereals; green and leafy vegetables; legumes.

If your hair is dull and lifeless or your nails brittle, diet's probably at fault, too. To calcify, activate these conditions, your daily menus should contain a variety of the following foods:

B Complex Vitamins—Liver and other varieties of organ meats; pork, lamb, veal and beef; fish; poultry; eggs; milk; whole-grain cereals; green and leafy vegetables; legumes.

To insure lovely strong teeth and good bones, your diet should contain the following:

Calcium — Milk and cheese; some sea food, particularly shell fish; eggs; vegetables, especially green, leafy types, nuts and legumes.

Phosphorus — Meat (including glandular meats); sea food; poultry; eggs milk and cheese; whole grain cereals; soybeans.

Vitamin D — liver; irradiated foods.

You will note that the three diets contain many of the same foods. That's because they're the most important in the list of nutrients which keep us strong and healthy. A well-rounded diet contains all of them and it's a well-rounded diet that's needed for health and good looks.

Through your Canadian Red Cross you are not alone—when you need help or when you give help. In March give generously and serve by giving.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A MESSAGE FROM AN "EX-FOUNDED ALCOHOLIC"

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I read your column called "An Alcoholic's Promise" in the paper yesterday, and I think you gave very good advice.

I am a member of Alcoholics Anonymous. I drank every day I could for over 15 years, but since learning this wonderful new way to live without alcohol, I haven't found it necessary to take a drink. It's been almost a year now, and I am very happy.

There are only two things that I would like to add to what you said.

First, I have learned that we are not reformed alcoholics, but informed alcoholics.

Second, we have just as much, or even more fun since we don't need that drink, that we did when we drank. We have to give up some things, such as hangovers, getting into trouble, having people mad at us, and not being able to pay our bills. But we gain such things as respect, love, friends and real friends, not barflies who only stick around while the drinks are coming) and we also have peace of mind.

We know our disease is incurable as far as the energy to alcohol is concerned. It's the first drink that lights the fuse, not the last. Alcoholics Anonymous teaches us a new way of living so that the obsession to take that first drink is removed. Our thoughts are taken up with others, rather than with us, and we really don't have the time or inclination to drink.

Our sole purpose in life is to help others recover from the same illness, and the main purpose of this letter is to let the woman who wrote to you know about the Alcoholics (Alcoholics Anonymous) groups. The non-alcoholic wives and husbands, friends and relatives need help, too, since the alcoholic makes them unhappy, too.

The Alanon Groups are formed to help these relatives of alcoholics solve their common problem of how to help themselves, their families and friends and the alcoholic member to achieve happiness. Through these groups, people help each other to understand the disease of alcoholism and so to help those dear to them, who have the disease, to recover from it. It makes no difference whether or not an alcoholic relative is really trying to quit drinking. The non-alcoholic can be helped in the meantime.

We are not a religious fellowship, but we find that prayer helps, and I would like to pass on a prayer that we use.

Our Serenity prayer is:

"God grant me the serenity
To accept the things I cannot change,
Courage to change the things I can
And the wisdom to know the difference." — Mrs. A. H.

Dear Mrs. A. H.:

Thank you with all my heart for your thoughtful and wonderful letter. It is just one more instance that has come to my personal attention of the magnificent spirit that animates the lives of those who have become, as you say, "informed alcoholics" through the marvelous work of Alcoholics Anonymous.

I am very happy indeed to pass your letter on, through my column, knowing that it will be of the greatest help and comfort to many readers.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

Here I am again needing help. You are my great authority. I'm sure my family gets tired of "Mary Moore says—" but they also know it will be something good—even if they have to eat their potato skins! Our 5-year-old daughter is on a wheatless, oatless, yeastless diet—among other things. Three years ago when this started I wrote to you. Now it is second nature to follow the diet. I find rye flour my greatest aid, even though it has a distinct flavor, and a heavier result. I can make a very good cake using an angel cake recipe and 1 teaspoon cinnamon—the result is not as light but it is a very good cake. I have made successful doughnuts, waffles and pancakes, baking powder biscuits too by using more baking powder —1 teaspoon. The flavor is not very pleasant but usually add spice—the flavor is fine in Johnny cake. I cannot however make a chocolate cake or plain applesauce cake. I have an applesauce cake with a lot of fruit in it that turned out well though. Does too much shortening make a cake fall? This recipe worked: 2 cups flour (rye), 1-1 cups sugar, 1 1-2 teaspoons soda, 2 tablespoons cocoa, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves, allspice, 1-2 cup shortening 1 1-2 cups applesauce, 3 unbeaten eggs, 3-4 cup each dates, raisins, nuts. Top with 1-4 cup chopped nuts and 2 teaspoons sugar. This one did not work: 2-3 cup shortening, 1 1-4 cups brown sugar, 1 unbeaten egg, 1 cup applesauce, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon each nutmeg and cloves, 2 cups rye flour. Both are put together in the one-bowl method. I have even discovered a pastry recipe that works. rye pastry is particularly fine made with dripping for a beef and kidney pie. . . the diet is very good for us. We have fruit much more often for dessert. Cookies have always turned out well. You told of apple fritters . how do you keep them hot for dessert? In the oven? Don't they get soggy? I like your economy recipes. How far ahead may vegetables be prepared without their vitamins suffering?—Enid B.

ANSWER:

I have used most of your letter because I thought other readers would find priceless tips in it. Use your angel food recipe for the chocolate cake substituting 1-4 cup best quality cocoa for 1-4 cup of the flour. The plain applesauce cake I found hopeless too. The Apple Fritters should rightly be cakes as soon as mixed. That will be hard for you with your young family. Prepare vegetables ahead—but before they are cooked and cook as short a time as possible. There is no compromise here—every minute they are pared and cut and exposed to air they are losing vitamin value. Would you mind sending me the pastry and cookies recipes?

French Singers Ribbed for Poor Gowns

CHICAGO (AP)—Singer Hildegarde, who casually wraps her shoulders in pink mink, claims that American night club audiences are being gypped by imported French songsters who sing in sweatshirts and sneakers.

She slacked her wardrobe, created by couturiers in the world's fashion centres, against those of Paris-inspired competitors who, she said, perform in bargain-basement costumes.

She said she was referring to

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

RELATIVES PAY OWN TRANSPORTATION TO FUNERAL

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

There has apparently been a difference of opinion among our out-of-town relatives, and we would like to know what's right. Is it true that the family of the deceased is expected to pay for the transportation of out-of-town relatives to the funeral? We never even considered having to do this, and really couldn't have afforded to, particularly after the long and very costly illness. — A.R.

Customarily all relatives and friends who go to the funeral pay their own traveling expenses. It is most unfortunate that you are being criticized concerning this, especially during these sorrowful and difficult days. The reply to this criticism . . . just be assured that it was not at all necessary for you to take on these expenses.

WHERE TO WEAR HER CORSAGE?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me on which side a woman is supposed to wear a corsage. — Dorothy K.

Happily and sensibly there is no rule about this. She should wear the corsage wherever it looks best and is worn by her own style-idea and by the design of the dress. If she is going to dance, she may wear the corsage on her right side.

HOW ABOUT REPLACING THAT BROKEN RECORD?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My friend and I gave a party together at my house. We wanted to have dancing at the party, and as I have a spacious game room, we decided to do it at my house. She brought quite a few of her excellent new dance records, and during the evening one of these was accidentally broken. I judge from her manner that she expected me to replace this. What would be obligation in this matter? — M.H.M.

If it was her suggestion that she bring her records, I think she should replace it. However, if I were you and thought you should replace the record, I would do just that rather than have any shadow on the friendship. That's an easy way to do.

THE WIDOW'S MOURNING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please advise me concerning correct mourning for a widow to wear for six or seven months after the death of her husband. (1) A very simple black dress is correct, isn't it? (2) With such a plain dress is it correct to wear a necklace of some kind, black jet beads, for instance? Also, is it all right to wear earrings (the small kind)? — M.

(1) A simple black dress or suit is correct for the widow to wear, but it should be relieved by white collar and cuffs.

(2) A necklace of dull jet beads may be worn, but usually, and entirely correctly, a string of pearls is worn. And it is perfectly able for a widow to wear simple

Edith Piaf, Lucienne Boyer, Patachou and Genevieve.

"Piaf appears in a black, dirty-looking old dress that looks like it cost $9.95. Boyer has a lovely gown from Paris, pearly gray which is like a uniform for her. Patachou has her blouse and skirt, and Genevieve the slacks and striped sweater."

Since the days she first began as an entertainer in Milwaukee some 30 years ago, she has spent at least $600,000 on her costumes, Hildegarde said.

"I wish some of these French singers would spend a fraction of what I've spent and stop bamboozling the American public," she said.

The other singers were not available immediately for comment on Hildegarde's remarks.

Miles of Red Tape Separate Chinese Wife from Husband

By GILLIAN PRITCHARD
Canadia Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Only 385 miles of land but what seems like a million miles of red tape separate pretty 29 - year - old Chinese Grace Li from her doctor husband, Pei-chau Li, in New York.

In a couple of days, Grace will know whether she has to start making plans to move to yet another country—she has been absurdled between six in as many years because of immigration restrictions —or whether she is to be allowed to remain a few more uncertain months in Canada.

Immigration officials in Ottawa are considering her case. If they decide not to extend her visitor's visa Grace will have to leave before April 30.

In the eight years since Grace waved goodbye to her 30-year-old husband in Shanghai when he left to study for one year in the United States, they have never seen each other just once, soon after Grace arrived here in 1953.

REFUSED VISA

So far she has been refused a visa to enter the U.S. either to join her husband or as a student.

Her husband was not allowed to enter Hong Kong where Grace fled with her parents when Shanghai was overrun by the Communists. In an effort to get to the U.S., Grace went to France, stopping over in England, and then on to Holland with friends in Holland.

She came to Montreal to be as near as possible to her husband.

"I like it here—but my husband is not allowed to live here," slight, attractive Mrs. Li said Wednesday night.

She explained that her husband never intended staying in the U.S., but was prevented from returning to China when the Reds took over. He was granted a U.S. residence permit last month.

"We would be happy to live anywhere we could be together," Mrs. Li said.

How Will It All Come Out?

By ROY L. SMITH

The plain man of the street is apt to be bored, if not actually impatient, with that one who insists that our philosophy of history is important. But whether that same plain man realizes it or not, his own philosophy determines all of his life for him.

What We Think Important

What we think about life is the most important thing in life. If we think honor, ideals, faith and God are matters that do not matter, we become one kind of a person. But if we think that we are living in a world that is under the authority of some kind of moral order, it becomes our first responsibility, even to ourselves, to discover if possible what that moral order is, and what its demands on us may be.

What we believe about the importance of things, the relative values of life, and the power that operate all around us has the effect of determining all our decisions. If we believe there is no moral order, then we become thieves, outlaws, deceivers and depredators. If, on the other hand, we believe there is a government in this world which moves according to moral principles, we become people of honor and character. What we believe about life determines our life.

History Is All of Life

We need to be reminded at times that life consists of all of life. Living did not begin with us and it will not end with us. Long before we appeared on the scene of human affairs men were wrestling with some of the selfsame problems with which we wrestle. They asked the same questions we ask: what is actually profitable in the long run, what are the moral principles to which all men are subject, what power is there in this universe that will enforce our moral judgments and justify our moral sacrifices?

That set of principles which we decide runs through all of life becomes our "philosophy of history."

Jesus Had a Philosophy

The chief characteristic of Rome, and of the Temple system in Jesus' day, was the assumption that if a policy proved profitable in that generation it was the proper one.

Jesus took the position that no matter how profitable a thing might appear at any one time, it must be judged in terms of the long look. He knew nothing about the law of gravity, for example, but had He been educated in the simple scientific principle He might have said, "The will of God in moral matters is as inflexible as the law of gravity is in material matters. You cannot break or evade one any more than you can the other."

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for March 11: "Jesus Interprets History." Luke 17: 20-21; 21: 5-38.

That is the reason He said, "Heaven and earth can pass away but My word will not." He believed the things he was saying were so eternally true that they would outlast even the planet on which He was saying them.

Things We Can Rely On

No small part of the anxiety of this generation goes back to our fears—our uncertainty as to what we can rely on. Everything seems to be in the process of changing. Jesus said there were certain moral and spiritual principles that never change. In the hour of our confusion it might be well for us to make a list of the things we believe are stable and eternal. We will be amazed to discover how long the list is apt to become, because God has not yet abdicated and never will. Nor will it ever be necessary to find a better interpreter of God and life than Jesus was.

Jackknife Artist Sends Carvings to Five Continents

Abe Patterson has been whittling with a jackknife all his life but right now he has "67,000 orders unfilled, some of them dating back to 1941." One of the top woodcarvers of the continent, he still works in his native Pembroke, Ont., and sends his carvings to England, Switzerland, South Africa, Japan, Australia, France and the U.S. Most of his clients are millionaires or institutions. His latest creation is a king-sized mining scene, over seven-by-five feet, showing forest and mountains and figures of prospectors. It was shown at the Prospectors and Developers association convention in Toronto, then placed among the exhibits in the provincial parliament buildings. (Central Press Canadian).

OTTAWA (CP)—Increased water diversion through the Chicago drainage system might be prejudicial to Canada and the United States in times of low levels on the Great Lakes, External Affairs Minister Pearson said Thursday.

He said in the Commons the added drainage flow for the Illinois waterway "might be prejudicial to Canadian and United States domestic and sanitary uses of water as well as to navigation interests and a not inconsiderable loss of electric power to both countries."

He was replying to a question by J. W. Murphy (PC—Lambton West) on the possible effect of the added diversion.

TABLES NOTE

Meanwhile, Mr. Pearson tabled a copy of a note sent Feb. 13 by A. D. P. Heeney, Canadian ambassador in Washington, to U.S. State Secretary Dulles protesting a bill now before the U.S. Senate.

The bill would provide for the experimental diversion, for a three-year period, of an additional 1,000 cubic feet a second of Lake Michigan water through the Illinois waterway. The authorized limit now is 3,200 cubic feet.

Mr. Heeney, acting on the government's instructions, said in his note that "the enactment of the proposed legislation would be prejudicial to the navigation and power interests of both countries."

The added diversion of 1,000 cubic feet would lower levels by between one-half to five-eighths of an inch at various points in the lower Great Lakes and the Lawrence river, as far as Montreal. The total diversion would lower lake levels by between seven and nine inches.

That would be of significance to navigation at times of low water level. The estimated potential of hydro power lost by the added diversion would be 310,190,000 kilowatts.

Mr. Pearson said in the House that man-made control works such as the drainage system influence levels only by a few inches and require millions of years to produce their full effect.

At times of high levels such works likely would have no great effect. The monthly average fluctuation was between four and six inches and periods of extremely high levels usually did not occur at regular intervals.

Ontario Might Fare Better If It Rejects Ottawa Plan For Sharing of Tax Fields

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario might be better off financially if it stays out of a proposed federal government tax-sharing scheme, the Ontario legislature was told Thursday.

Robert Macaulay (PC—Toronto Riverdale) told the house during debate—only 24 hours before provincial leaders were to meet with federal officials to discuss the federal offer—the proposals fell "lamentably short" of Ontario's needs.

He also suggested that Provincial Treasurer Porter should consider ending Ontario's fiscal year Nov. 31, instead of March 31. The legislature could meet in the fall to approve estimates and expenditures.

Returning to federal-provincial fiscal matters, Mr. Macaulay said Ontario's position is "does not pay to run a province well." Ontario produced 50 per cent of the national revenue, but it did not get anything like as equitable return from Ottawa.

He said J. J. Wintemeyer (L—Waterloo North), opposition financial critic who opened the budget debate Tuesday, had not been fair in his attack on the budget.

Many of his criticisms recognized only one side of the government's problems and he condemned its expenditures without offering any practical alternatives.

W. G. Nostes (PC—Rainy river) said northern Ontario is depending on an increase in immigration to further industry. Natural resources abounded in the north but there was not enough population to develop them.

Peter Manley (L—Stormont) said Ontario Treasurer Porter misled the people when he said there were no new taxes in his recently presented budget.

Mr. Manley said the government "sneaked" in sharp vehicle-licence-fee increases a few months ago and now is trying to pretend it has not got any new revenue. The vehicle-licence-fee increase will not the government an estimated $11,-500,000 this year.

12-Storey Apt. Block Planned

TORONTO (CP)—Two proposed building projects announced here Thursday would give Toronto a $6,000,000 12-storey apartment block and a $3,000,000 office building.

George Hamann, of architects Bregman and Hamann, said construction of the apartments on Jarvis street will begin late this year. The building would have 328 suites and underground parking for 264 cars. It is financed by a Toronto group.

SARNIA (CP)—Pleading guilty to assault in the slashing of her sister-in-law during a drinking party, Norma Marguerite Tatton, 18, of Owen Sound Thursday was remanded in custody to March 16 for sentence.

Complainant was Mrs. Maude Caudle of Sarnia. The court was told 19 stitches were needed to close a knife wound in her wrist.

Govt. Plans No Interference In Egypt Plane Shipment Despite Sharp Criticism

OTTAWA (CP) — Shipment of a dozen Canadian Harvard training planes to the Egyptian Air Force is going ahead over sharp opposition criticism in the Commons.

The criticism erupted swiftly Thursday after Prime Minister St. Laurent announced to the House the government's decision not to halt the shipment.

He said the cabinet decided that "under circumstances as they exist the government would not be justified in interfering" with the shipment.

The planes are the remainder of a 15-aircraft sale by Canada Car and Foundry Ltd., of Montreal. Trade Minister Howe granted their export authorization last July.

IN JANUARY

The (first three planes were shipped in January, causing heated opposition criticism. The rest were given customs clearance Feb. 20 and nine now are in Halifax awaiting a ship.

Opposition leader Drew opened Thursday's attack on the government decision. The planes "definitely could be of use" should any disturbance arise in the tense Middle East. He asked for reconsideration.

"All those factors" were considered by the government in its decision," replied Mr. St. Laurent.

Question about Israel's request to buy 1,750 shells for 25-pounder field artillery were raised by John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) and Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC (PC—Esquimalt-Saanich).

ASKS RE INTENTION

Does the government intend "to endeavor to equalize the supply of arms or does it intend to intensify the situation insofar as the Arab nations are concerned in relation to Israel?" asked Mr. Diefenbaker.

Mr. Drew asked why Egypt is getting more favorable treatment" than Israel.

Mr. St. Laurent explained that there is no outstanding permit for shipment of equipment to Israel. Application for an export permit for the artillery shells to Israel had not been acted on by the government.

He reminded his questioners that he had given a recent commitment to the Commons that no further export permits would be issued until the international situation eased.

DIFFERENT MATTER

The Harvard shipment was a different matter.

"The government had committed itself to a permit for the export of these Harvard trainers, which we did not feel were military equipment at all.

Alistair Stewart (CCF—Winnipeg North) then asked angrily in a loud voice: "Is the prime minister aware of the situation that prevails in the Middle East?"

Mr. St. Laurent replied quietly: "I think I am."

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE?

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—A Dallas department store has just completed one of the most inexpensive promotion stunts it ever staged. Some weeks ago 400 balloons, each bearing free merchandise certificates, were released, but high winds swept them away. This week the store got back its first and only response. A man living 70 miles away wrote that he found one of the balloons in his pasture. He mailed back the certificates.

Rooster Crowed As Boat Passed Over Man's Body

LINDSAY (CP) — Police chief John Hunter drew on an old wives tale with success Wednesday where patience and grapple hooks failed.

With bizarre but efficient ceremony a rooster crowed and the body of Charles Doherty, 24, was recovered from the River Scugog here.

Mr. Doherty was reported missing Monday when he did not return to his wife's grocery after delivering a parcel to a home across the river.

Police learned the river ice had begun to break up the same day and that Mr. Doherty was in the habit of crossing on the ice to save a detour.

Dragging by police, firemen and citizens Wednesday morning was unsuccessful, but late in the afternoon police chief Hunter asked for a hook, lantern and a rooster.

OLD WIVES' TALE

He said an old wives' tale held that a load of bread would sink if floated over a body in water. The test taken proved to be sliced and "no use."

The draggers took the rooster into the boat, however, because it was supposed to crow when floated over a body.

As the boat drew away from the south shore, near where Mr. Doherty was believed to have crossed the ice, the bird crowed.

No attention was paid because the spot had been thoroughly dragged earlier.

On the boat's return trip—the rooster crowed again.

The drag line was lowered at the spot and Mr. Doherty's body was hauled to the surface.

Dr. W. R. Crowe pronounced death due to accidental drowning.

Development Bank to Extend Activities into New Fields

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's Industrial Development Bank would extend its lending activities into a host of new fields, including cogging, mining and pipeline projects, through a bill introduced Thursday in the Commons.

The Commons gave second reading to the measure to extend the scope of the crown-owned Industrial Development Bank on loans over $200,000. Aggregate ceiling of such loans would be boosted to $75,000,000 from $50,000,000.

The bank was formed in 1944 to provide credit to industries which might have trouble getting loans in the normal money market.

Opposition members immediately criticized the proposed expansion of the bank's activities as either too little or too much.

The changed in its powers are unlikely to put the bank into the pipeline business in a big way. Maximum available for loans over $200,000 would be increased to only $75,000,000 from the present $50,000,000.

That wouldn't build much pipeline. Estimated cost of the proposed trans-Canada natural gas pipeline from Alberta to the East is $350,000,000.

J. M. Macdonnell, Conservative financial critic, questioned the expansion of credit at the present when the Bank of Canada is tightening up on chartered bank lendings.

Rev. Dan McIvor (L—Fort William) said he hopes the small retail merchant will be able to borrow from the bank for expansion.

John B. Hamilton (PC—York West) said nothing is being done to make available more small business loans. Companies needing more than $200,000 were big enough to be able to borrow on the money market.

Senator Croll Wants Restraint Put on Arabs

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator David Croll, only Jewish member of the Senate, said Thursday war is inevitable in the Middle East if no restraint is placed on Arab forces.

He also told a Jewish National Fund luncheon here that the fear that can be done is to equalize arms shipments to the area and give Israel a chance to fight its own battles.

Stating that an "alarm bell" has rung in the Middle East, he said the Arab forces, now known as the "Jordan army," are putting on "war paint."

"If no restraint is put on them, war is inevitable," he said.

"If anything happens within the next two or three weeks, Israel would probably emerge victorious. But it is getting late and the situation is deteriorating rapidly."

Senator Croll said Israel is not asking Britain or the United States to fight its cause. The people of Israel were willing, if necessary, to fight and die for their beliefs.

"We in Canada cannot turn our backs on our own people in Israel," he said. "We must support them as strongly as we ever have."

252,144 Pounds Surplus Butter Sold Cut Rate

OTTAWA (CP)—Hospitals operated by the veterans affairs department have bought 252,144 pounds of surplus government butter since it was offered a year ago at cut-rate prices to hospitals and other institutions.

The figure was given in a return tabled Thursday in the Commons by the agriculture department for George S. White (PC—Hastings-Frontenac).

The hospitals received a discount of 21 cents a pound under the butter sold to the government bought at 58 cents a pound under its price support program.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner has hinted that the government sales of about 6,500,000 pounds in the first year at a cost to the treasury of about $20,000,000 could be made.

In another return for Mr. White, the department said no surplus butter has been sold at the cut rate to army, navy and air force establishments.

Charge London Man with Murder In Fatal Beating

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Robert Bruce Dawdy, 21-year-old father of three children yesterday was charged with murder in the fatal beating Feb. 24 of George Bedell, a 44-year-old war pensioner.

Bedell, a bachelor, had been kicked to death, according to police, in a blood-splattered second floor corridor. His body was found by 16-year-old Alex Wilkinson, who was later charged with vagrancy and released on $50 bail.

Immediately after the murder charge was laid, county attorney Claude Savage opened his prosecution in a preliminary hearing.

4 Men, Woman Spent 90 Days Aboard Raft

BALBOA, Canal Zone (AP)—Four men and a woman who spent 90 days aboard a storm-tossed raft in the Pacific landed Thursday from a United States navy transport at Balboa in the Canal Zone—far from the South Sea islands they had hoped to reach.

The Greenville Victory, a supply ship of the Navy's Antarctic expedition, brought the crew of the raft Canuta to Balboa. It picked them up last Friday.

The leader of the ill-fated voyage, Eduardo Ingris, 48, a naturalized Peruvian, already is planning another attempt to drift across the Pacific. He said he will go alone next time.

Of the others, Mirko Gurecky, 28, a Czechoslovakian and Andy Rost, a Dutchman, want to remain in Panama if possible. The woman, Natalia Matuelos, 26, wants to go back to her home in Peru, and Joaquin Guerro, 35, an Argentine, wants to go there, too.

Ingris said the Canuta drifted in circles for six weeks, constantly fighting bad weather, before the Greenville Victory found it in a four-day search.

Financial Aid to Foreign Countries Is $4,000,000,000

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's financial aid to foreign countries since the end of the Second World War totals more than $4,000,000,000, government officials disclosed Thursday.

By the end of the next fiscal year—that is, at March 31, 1957—the total will come to at least $4,188,252,000. Some 37 per cent of the amount will have been spent in the military field under Canada's mutual aid program for European partners in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Canada's post-war financial assistance abroad at the end of this month will come to about $4,017,445,000 and of this amount $1,856,845,000 or nearly half has been given away outright.

The rest of the assistance is represented by loans. Two countries—Britain and Communist Czechoslovakia got into difficulties a couple of years ago in paying off its $16,790,000 debt but has resumed payments.

Belgium, France, The Netherlands, Norway and the United Kingdom are still making payments. The only country which has defaulted is Communist China and it hasn't made a repayment on its $65,000,000 loan since it lost mainland China to the Communists in 1950.

More than $103,000,000 was allotted to the Balkans, Belgium, Denmark, France, Italy, Luxembourg, The Netherlands and Norway for military relief.

"GOLDEN BAND"

Willie "Say-Hey" Mays, the Giants giant-killer, may have set a major baseball league precedent. A week or so prior to reporting for spring training, Willie eloped with a nice gal.

Now in spring training with the "Jints", Say-Hey is proving for the time being at least, that honeymoons do not affect the batting eye, the throwing arm, or the speed afoot.

In fact the belting bridegroom, who hit a parson's pitch the other day for what might be his longest home run, is turning in some sensational performances while the rest of the troops grind the winter wrinkles out of joints and muscles.

Willie's performances in the opening days in spring training may give managers an idea. If Say-Hey keeps sashaying in his present brilliant mid-season form, the order may go out that all players saying "I Do" prior to spring training will be bounced.

Better than that clubs may carry their own Marryin' Sams. Ole Case may take a theological degree and issue his own certificates. Loe the Lip who couldn't connect a cockroach fight in slow motion, might qualify as a pro witness. Can you imagine Camp conducting the Fitzhugh Fruitlips-Tonsil-Airing and Chord-Shattering Cherubers in "Love is a Many-Splintered Thing" with Ted Williams gallanting the bean pathe and a bridal beauty waiting for him at home plate?

Yup, Willie may be proving that benedict baseballers are the answer to a manager's prayer. He has batted two home runs in three games, one a 400-foot guided missile.

His fielding eye and speedy pinkies are sparkling. The other day, with a runner on first, the hitter smashed out a double that reamed high and dry to crash against the outfield barrier. With the crack of the bat Willie took off, noted the angle of carom off the barrier, took the ball in his stride, pivoted and threw it 350 feet to the plate to nip the runner. And the honeymoon still in the prelim stages.

And do you recall this colored ball of fire splitting sparks last fall coming down the stretch shortly after he returned following a session on the Army rifle range? He tied the seven league runs in six consecutive games, became the seventh man to hit 50 or more home runs and wound up as the league's second leading batter with .333 and was second in RBI's with 127.

You didn't hear too much about Willie's dynamic finish on account of the fireworks and furore that accompanied the Dodgers' roaring comeback to win the world series. But you'll be hearing plenty about the Giant's "honeymoon express" this season. If this present performance down among the sheltering palms is any evidence of things to come.

BADMINTON

Chris Lockyer, Picton Badminton club's organizer extraordinary, said today that the Eastern Ontario Invitation Tournament scheduled for the Picton armouries starting tonight through Saturday, looms as one of the best of its kind ever staged in this part of the badminton world.

Some 175 badminton luminaries from clubs between Toronto and Ottawa, including Cornwall, will be in the Bistic "Spanish Town" tonight, and not a few records will go by the boards. Such stars as Gerald Hurry, staples champion from Peterborough; Ken Smith, Oshawa singles champion; Dave Wardell and Ken Martindale, Ottawa doubles champion; Miss Pat Chamberlain, lady champion of Ottawa; Harold Markell and D. L. Duncan, Brockville double champs and other well known names, will be on hand.

Belleville's Garrison club will be represented by 16 players. The play starts tonight, lasts all day tomorrow, with the finals getting under way at 7 p.m. Presentation of trophies and other championship awards will be made at a gala dance following play where the visiting players will be the guests of the Picton club.

HODGE PODGE

This is Stirling's hockey night to howl and Memorial Arena will likely house the biggest crowd of the season when the village's starry team crew picks finals horns with the youngsters from Forest. These kids play outstanding hockey and with the provincial title at stake, tonight's tilt should be an eyepleaser. It rings down the hockey curtain for the season, as far as the city is concerned . . . . The senior "B" playoffs get under way tonight with Whitby at Brockville and Cornwall at Kingston . . . . There's a gremlin sitting on the shoulders of Jack Hull of the Canada Cement Major "A" Bowling team. Last night Jack rolled nine straight strikes, then "blew" the tenth. That's bad enough for anybody, but when you take into consideration the fact that Jack bowled the nine straight strikes two weeks ago, missing the tenth, it's bad luck in double doses. A fellow who can bowl 'em as good as Jack is sure to come up with a "perfect" some time . . . . Report from Guelph says Gerry Goyer will play baseball with the Guelph Plymouths entry in the senior intercounty league. 'Tis said some Black Hawk officials' faces are red after Goyer's remarkable showing with the Biltmores this season . . . . Bob Hull refereed some of the games in which the all-star "défence gal" played. Bobby was foolish, like the rest.

Beliveau Fails to Hit Target As Rocket, Pocket Net Three; Blues, Wings Remain All Even

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The 50-gal National Hockey League record must be taking on the appearance of a mirage to Jean Beliveau.

A couple of weeks ago, chances were better than average that the Montreal Canadiens' centre would break the mark held by teammate Maurice Richard. Now it's not so good.

Beliveau failed to score Thursday night as Canadiens nipped Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3 at Montreal. He has 44 goals and five games to get the seven goals needed to break the record.

When Canadiens had 12 games left to play in the schedule, Beliveau had fired 41 goals. In the next seven contests he managed only three.

Despite the loss, Toronto maintained its three-point grip on the fourth and last playoff position with some help from Detroit Red Wings. Wings dumped fifth-place Bruins 4-2. It was the 2020th straight game Bruins went without a win at Detroit.

RANGERS TRIUMPHED

New York Rangers outlasted Chicago Black Hawks to take a 6-4 win at St. Louis and keep in a second-place tie with Montreal Canadiens.

Richard, who scored his 50 goals in the 1944-45 season, scored twice Thursday night to pace Canadiens to their 42nd win, a club record. Montreal's 94 points also is a team mark. The old records of 93 points and 41 wins were set last season.

Henri Richard and Bert Olmstead scored the other Montreal goals. Rudy Migay, George Armstrong and Gerry James counted for Leafs. One of the two goals scored during the second period after the teams battled through a scoreless first session.

Richard's goals were his 37th and 38th of the season, matching his 1954-55 total. He also picked up an assist to put his point-total at 70, 12 fewer than Beliveau's pace-setting 82.

Armstrong opened the scoring at 1:44 of the second period and Henri Richard evened things at 7:27 on Dickie Moore's pass. A hooking penalty to Ron Stewart was costly to Leafs. Canadiens scored two quick goals, Olmstead on Ken Mosdell's rebound at 8:10 and Maurice Richard with a backhander off Beliveau's pass at 9:12. Migay and Richard scored after that.

ON A REBOUND

James showed in Sid Smith's rebound at 18:56 of the third period. Leafs pulled goaltender Harry Lumley from the nets in favor of a sixth attacker in the final minutes but Habs' Jacques Plante came up with some fine goaltending before the 13,538 fans.

Red Wings scored three goals in the first period against Bruins and after that had little difficulty posting their 28th win of the campaign. Wings and Rangers each have 71 points with five games to go.

Lorne Ferguson, Marcel Pronovost, Ted Lindsay and Gordie Howe got Detroit's goals. Cal Gardner fired both Boston goals.

With his goal and two assists, Howe boosted his total to 77 points, five behind Beliveau.

Ferguson, Pronovost and Lindsay gave Wings their first-period goals. Gardner scored the only counter of the second period and added the other at 7:17 of the third. Howe closed the scoring at 8:55.

REIBEL HURT

Detroit's Earl Reibel suffered a possible shoulder dislocation and Boston's Jerry Toppazzini a twisted knee in separate accidents.

The loss was Bruins' 32rd—a club record—and left them with 33 points with four games remaining. Tony Leswick was the high scorer for the night as he scored three goals and assisted on the fourth in a vain effort for Chicago. Bronco Horvath, Ed Litzenberger, Leswick and Wally Hergesheimer of the Rangers each had a goal and two assists. Defencemen Harry Howell, Pete Conacher and Guy Gendron were the other Ranger marksmen. Nick Mickoski sniped the other Chicago goal.

OHA Rejects Mercs' Protest

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association said Thursday it has turned down a protest by Owen Sound Mercurys of the OHA Senior A League against the use of Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchman forward Ron Landman during a game in Owen Sound last Saturday.

The protest was based on an OHA ruling that a player receiving a misconduct penalty must pay his $10 fine to the league before he is permitted to play another game.

Bill Hanley, OHA business manager, said Landman drew a misconduct during a game March 1 but played in last Saturday's game although the fine had not been paid. Kitchener won the game 5-1.

Hanley said the referee's report on the March 1 game did not arrive until last Saturday. League procedure said a club must receive official notification of the fine from the OHA before the fine can be paid.

Spring Training Notes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jackie Robinson, first of the regular third-base job with Brooklyn Dodgers is on in earnest and Jackie Robinson isn't today figuring Jackson will have to be a whale of a player this year to beat him out.

I'll say this much," Jackie added, "if Jackson does beat me out then Dan Dodgers will mean that we have that much stronger a team, and that's a clinch to win the pennant. I'll with him good luck and he his substitute."

"But Jackson will have to beat me at my best. My legs are strong and my wrists limber. I'm weighed out at 206 yesterday and I haven't been down to that since 1950."

Robinson, 37, is starting his 10th season with the Brooks. He batted only .256 in 105 games in 1955. He has, however, a lifetime National League mark of .314 third highest among the circuit's active players.

Jackson, who hit .263 in 138 games with Chicago Cubs, has a .288 lifetime mark in eight-league seasons. Dodgers got him in a winter trade.

KIND TO 4VALT

Openly critical of Walt Alston at times, Robinson had some kind words to say about the Brooklyn manager.

"Alston's doing things right. He has competition going at almost every position and that's good. It's not going to be easy for me, and it's not going to be easy for Pee Wee Reese at short, the way the kids are playing."

That is where there's a place for me somewhere on this club even if it's as a reserve.

Meanwhile, Dodgers' arch rivals, New York Giants, had some unhappy news.

Ramon Monzant, the Venezuelan righthander who was being counted on as a starting pitcher, notified Giants' front office he plans to play in the U.S. this year. He said in a letter that his mother is ill and "didn't have the spirit" to pitch.

Kesselring Fires Four-Under-Par 68 To Lead Pensacola Open Tournament

By STAN ATKINS

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—The spotlight swung today to the younger pros—especially Canada's Gerry Kesselring—at the start of the second round of the $12,500 Pensacola Open golf tournament.

Kesselring, a wiry 27-year-old from Kitchener, Ont., parlayed a hot putter into a two-stroke lead in Thursday's opening round. His four-under-par 68 was one of 20 sub-par or par rounds turned in the 132-man field over the 6,577-yard Pensacola Country Club course.

The field will be trimmed after today's round to the low 60 pros and 10 amateurs. Those still in the fold will play 18 holes and another 18 Sunday.

Kesselring dropped a 15-footer on the first hole and 30-footers on the third and fifth to March to a four-under-par 32 on the out-going nine. He was one under par on five of the holes on the first nine and two on the back nine, which he finished in a regulation 36.

Al Balding of Toronto was locked in an 11-way tie for 10th place with a par 72. The out him on even terms with, among others, Ed Furgol, 1954 U.S. open champion.

Most of the low 20 scores were turned in by the more youthful pros. And virtually all were accomplished by late starters. Those teeing off during the morning were harassed by cold winds up to 35 miles an hour.

The veteran Buck White of Memphis, Tenn., came home with a two - under - par 70, along with George Bigham of Kansas City, Mo., Dow Finsterwald of Bedford Heights, Ohio, Don January of Abilene, Tex., and Jay Hebert of Sanford, Fla.

Three were bracketed at 71—Dick Mayer of St. Petersburg, Fla., John Serafin of Fox Hill, Pa., and Joe Back of Abilene.

None of the winners of the eight preceding tournaments on the winter circuit entered the Pensacola Open, first here since 1946.

Kesselring's card:

Kesselring out	333	435 424—32

Ontario, Manitoba Rinks Sweep Into Championship Finals All Square

Bluenoses Hang First Setback On Starry Quartet from West; Granites Defeat Newfie, PEI

By GERRY MANTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—Gerry Glinz, a curling Mountie and a Manitoba expatriate, caught up with Manitoba's Billy Walsh Thursday night in the Canadian curling championships. The meeting likely will be remembered a long time by both parties.

Glinz, an RCMP sergeant resident in Truro, N.S., hung a 14-8 slash-round defeat on the 35-year-old Walsh, the first in eight games for the Winnipeg rink. The loss, coupled with Ontario's 10-8 victory over Newfoundland, sent Ontario and Manitoba into today's final play tied at the top of the standings with identical 7-1 won-lost records.

Tied for third were Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan with five victories and three defeats.

With two rounds remaining in the 10-game round-robin tournament, there was a possibility of sudden-death play. That would be necessary to decide the 1956 tournament winner. Ontario meets British Columbia and Nova Scotia and Manitoba has been drawn against Alberta and Saskatchewan.

WENT AFTER WALSH

Fired up after losses Thursday morning by Saskatchewan, Glinz went after Walsh almost from the start. When it was all over the poker-faced Easterner had scored a 7-1 edge on only four of the 13 ends.

Glinz, who left his home town of Oak River, Man., 15 years ago, led 6-1 after six ends and coasted up with a whopping five on the seventh to sew up the game over. The 39-year-old Walsh, 1953 Canadian winner. The big difference was in the play of the skips.

Walsh, who curled shot after shot without a miss in the early rounds, couldn't find the range against Nova Scotia. Glinz, sticking to a draw game, missed only a rare shot.

Newfoundland's rink lost all three games Thursday's play but it was touch and go against Ontario. The quartet from St. John's, skipped by Bob Coudey, chased Phillips down to the 11th end before bowing out 10-8.

Saskatchewan stayed in the running with a sixth-round 12-8 victory over Quebec. The Delisle rink opened play Thursday with a 12-4 decision over Alberta in the seventh round and drew a bye in the eighth.

N. ONT. FINE SHOOTING

Steve Kuzmanski, a Copper Cliff miner who skips the Northern Ontario rink, sent the fans home talking to themselves with his last shot in his eighth round 8-6 win over Nova Scotia. It happened this way:

Tied 6-6 after 11 ends, Glinz got past two guards to take out a Northern Ontario rock. Kuzmanski's first shot fell short, sading up as a guard for the Nova Scotia rock, and Glinz played his last shot just over the hog line for what appeared to be a perfect guard.

Kuzmanski conferred with his team-mates for five minutes. He finally tossed a medium-speed rock that raised one of the guards and knocked out the Nova Scotia shot rock. Kuzmanski had two biting on the outside circle and both counted to give him the 8-6 victory.

An unusual number of dead ends showed up in the eighth round. Northern Ontario and Nova Scotia blanked the second and third ends and Newfoundland and New Brunswick had no-counts in the 11th and 12th. Ontario and Prince Edward Island had a dead end on the second.

Dafoe, Bowden To Defend Title

TORONTO (CP)—Frances Dafoe and Norris Bowden of Toronto will defend their senior pairs title in the Canadian figure-skating championships this month, it was reported today.

The championships are scheduled at Ottawa March 22 to 24. Miss Dafoe and Bowden were not immediately available for comment.

They indicated after the world figure skating championships in Germany last month that they would retire. The Canadians lost their world title to Austria.

It was also reported that Miss Dafoe and Bowden were thinking about re - entering international competition. They still hold the North American pairs title.

Miss Dafoe's father, Dr. William Dafoe, said Thursday night: "I feel they've had enough, but any decision is up to the skaters themselves, not to me."

The finely-trained Basilio complained of the 20-degree weather here. He had tried for two days to fly here from Syracuse, N.Y., but was grounded by fog.

Court Decides Santee Entry In Milwaukee

NEW YORK (AP) — The West Santee case gets another turn in the courts today with the state supreme court scheduled to rule on the validity of the Amateur Athletic Union's lifetime suspension of the fastest U.S. miler.

Santee's lawyer, Charles P. Grimes, will ask the court to strengthen the temporary injunction he obtained last week against the ban. If Grimes is successful, Santee likely will run in the mile in Milwaukee Saturday night.

The AAU, on the other hand, will request to have the restraining order lifted, thereby enforcing the suspension of Santee on charges of "flagrant violations" of the amateur code.

Whatever decision the court hands down, the battle still will have several laps to go.

Grimes has promised to take the case to the highest courts, challenging the AAU authority. He also has threatened to try to force a congressional hearing. The AAU, arguing that action taken within the framework of its constitution is not subject to court action, also has announced that it intends to fight to the finish.

"It would be a rather sad situation," said Dan Ferris, AAU secretary-treasurer, "if we had to go through a court procedure every time we wanted to take action against an athlete. And that's what this situation could lead to unless the AAU has proper right to control amateur sports in this country."

Santee, who won the Columbian mile, was taken opposition in last Saturday's Knights of Columbus meet in New York, planned to fly to Milwaukee early today. Whether he runs depends on the court's decision.

Announce Senior Playoffs Dates

TORONTO (CP)—Dates for the best-of-seven playoffs finals between Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen and Chatham Maroons in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League were announced Thursday.

Bill Hanley, OHA business manager, said the first game will be in Kitchener Saturday. The second will be in Chatham, March 12; the third in Kitchener, March 14, and the fourth in Chatham, March 16.

The fifth game will be in Kitchener March 17 and the sixth in Chatham, March 19. If a seventh game is necessary it will be in Kitchener, March 21.

Winners from the northern Ontario senior champion for the provincial title.

Batchmen reached the finals Wednesday night by beating the Owen Sound Mercurys 3-1 to take the best-of-seven semi-finals four games to two. Chatham beat Stratford Indians 3-0 Wednesday night to win their semi-final four games to three.

TO MEET HOAD

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Fred Kovaleski of Detroit and Australia's Jack Arkinstall will meet Lewis Hoad of Australia and Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt in the final round of the men's doubles in the Egyptian international tennis tourney.

Kovaleski and Arkinstall defeated Sven Davidson and Torsten Johansson of Sweden 6-2, 1-6, 7-5, 7-5.

Will Play With All-Stars

'Rough, Tough' Defence Gal To Have Own Dressing Room

TORONTO (CP)—A nine-year-old girl hockey defenceman has jolted her way into an all-star berth in the Little Toronto Hockey League. Red-faced league officials made the discovery only Wednesday night.

For three months Abigail Golda Hoffman has played for a Toronto boy's hockey team without her team-mates knowing "Ab" or "Abi" was really a girl.

Abi's sparkling defensive play for St. Catharines Teepees of the Little THL's Junior A series led to her choice for the all-star team out of 400 eligible boys.

The selection led to the unmasking of the pert, 75-pound brunette. A check of her birth certificate Wednesday night to establish eligibility for the all-star team turned up "are-female," which had goes unnoticed when she registered.

HE IS AMAZED

Earl Graham, chairman of the little THL, said he is amazed.

"It completely knocked the wind out of me. No one noticed her birth certificate earlier because it was the last thing we expected. It was just in with about 400 other certificates."

Ralph Barker, executive member of the league, said Abi will definitely play in the all-star game March 31.

"We hope she will continue playing and are making plans to have a special dressing room for her at all future games."

At Grosst, team manager who selected Abi for the all-star team, said she always was already dressed in her equipment when she appeared at the rink to play.

"We thought she was a boy because she looked like a boy. She had short hair and with the hockey equipment we couldn't see any difference," Grossi said.

"We switched her from forward to defence because she was a good back checker. I taught her how to body-check and take a man out on the boards."

Russel Turnbull, 10, centre on Abi's team commented:

"I sure was fooled. I don't know what to say but we sure want Ab to play with the team."

Her father Samuel, a chemist, said he and his wife did not give their daughter away because she was no keen to play hockey. He said it's a passing phase and she'll probably got over it.

She follows her two older brothers, who both play in city leagues, and has played with a hockey stick since she was old enough to stand up. Abi learned to skate at 2½ years.

The Big Seven

Gordie Howe, striving to overtake Montreal's Jean Beliveau for the scoring honors of the National Hockey League, picked up three points—a goal and two assists—in Thursday night's action to narrow the gap to five points.

Beliveau managed an assist—his 38th—and with his league-leading 44 goals tops the individual race with 82 points.

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Sir Laurence Olivier's three-hour British film production of Shakespeare's "Richard III" has its American premiere on NBC-TV Sunday. It is the most significant single television programming event of the last year.

The general facts about the presentation have been well publicized. It is the longest single program ever shown on the home screen. It's the most costly—$500,000 is reported to have been the price NBC paid Sir Laurence. It unquestionably has the most impressive cast of British actors ever assembled. And British critics say it is Olivier's best film work.

But most significant is the fact that for the first time television has entered into competition with motion picture houses by offering a major film to a potential audience of many millions before it is available in a theatre. In fact, the film will make its theatre debut in New York a few hours after it sends on the TV home screen.

Many movie distributors are crying over this one, and the movie industry is watching its results keenly. The most significant result will not be apparent for some time —until figures are available on its movie-house attendance.

Then it will be possible to determine, some film producers will continue to flirt with the idea of TV premieres of their works. And if, of course, it should be a box-office hit, the TV audience in time unquestionably will see many new films before theatre distribution.

Gary Crosby Enjoys Singing With Band, Getting Experience

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Like his father before him, Gary Crosby has gone out singing with a band. And the lad has returned with more enthusiasm than ever about his career.

Gary, 22-year-old eldest sprout of the great Bing, recently hit the road with Les Brown's band. He had the blessings of his father, who was touring the country with Paul Whiteman's band some 25 years ago.

"It's the best experience in the world for Gary," said Bing. "He gets to sing all kinds of songs before all kinds of audiences."

Gary agrees.

ONE-NIGHT STANDS

"It was rugged but very worth while," he said. "We did 16 one-nighters all the way up into Canada. What a routine! We'd finish a show, then hop on a bus and ride all night to the next date. Then we'd grab four or five hours sleep and get ready for the show.

"I sang 10 songs a night, and I really got to see what the audiences liked. Working with Les Brown was terrific; he's got the best dance band in the business.

The band tour was part of Gary's plan to establish his career on a firm foundation. He has resisted efforts to rush him into stardom.

MOVIE OFFERS

"I've had offers to do pictures," he remarked between radio shows. "But mostly they were from guys who just want to cash in on the name. I'd rather wait and do small parts to get the experience.

"I'm in no hurry. I love show business—it's a laugh a minute. I want to be in it for a long time."

So far he has spaced his appearances out carefully. He has made a few records, often accompanied by such pros as his old man and Louis Armstrong. He played a Chicago nitery date with Satchmo last year and is leaving on an Australian tour with him April 1.

Does Bing ever help with his career?

"Oh, sure," Gary replied. "He always gives me advice—when I ask for it. He's a little more cautious than I am. I might plan to sing a couple of new songs, but he'll say 'No—that's safe with at least one oldie or a currently popular one they'll recognize.'"

AT THE ELLIS — Debbie Reynolds is the girl who makes Frank Sinatra in the tender trap of romance in M-G-M's sparkling comedy "The Tender Trap". David Wayne and Celeste Holm co-star in the new Cinema-Scope hit, based on the Broadway stage hit.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

No-trump is a bid that depends mostly on the biggest cards for the taking of tricks. With sufficient timing some of the small cards may turn into trick takers with the help of its big cards.

As a basis for no-trump, the player who opens the bidding with one in a suit promises four high cards. Any voluntary no-trump bid shows a high card in addition to the minimum of four highs.

Responder to an opening one bidder is assumed to have two such cards. Each voluntary no-trump bid by such partner shows a high card in addition to the minimum of two highs.

Of course, a player will stretch his values and imagination on many occasions. In doing so he is usually flirting with danger. But no bridge player worthy of the name is free from such occasionals.

There was the deal shown here:

NORTH
♠5 7 3
♥A 7 3 2
♦K 5 4
♣K J 8

WEST
♠9 4 2
♣Q 7 6 5 3

EAST
♠K Q 10 6 5
♥Q J 9 5 4
♦Q J 8 2

SOUTH
♥K 9 5 4
♦A 6
♣K 10 9 8 4

The bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♣
4 No-T.	Pass	3 No-T.

After the north assist of his suit the second bid by south was not correct. It should have been three clubs to show his sixth suit trick. Whereupon, he lacked a fifth high card for his no-trump bid.

However, this south player decided to promote his spade pack to the value of a queen. This false substitution eased his conscience into using it for the purpose of sticking in the no-trump.

Although this is a frequent formenter of tough spots it has its sweet moments. The occasional reward lulls a player into more and more stretching until it becomes a bad habit.

Instead of a spade he should have led, with the led a diamond. You are to decide what south should do to this first trick.

At The McCarthy

YOUNG SCENE STEALER

Tom Ewell is used to having children steal scenes from him in the movies and on the stage, but in "The Lieutenant Wore Skirts," the CinemaScope-Color Fox's hilarious CinemaScope comedy in De Luxe color now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, he had a scene purloined by his own son. Tom (short for Tayloe) Ewell, 10 months old, makes his screen debut with his father and mother and chortles so effectively from his high-chair vantage point that Tom and Sheree North, who were also in the scene, didn't have a chance.

"In the twenty-five years I have been knocking around Broadway and Hollywood, I've been outmugged and outhammed by dozens of little darlings," Ewell explained, "but this is definitely the first time and last time for my son, at least until he has finished college. Then, if he wants to be an actor, he can take his changes with the rest of us adults."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

For Saturday, March 10, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Splendid influences for unusual (if sound) undertakings, for unusual routine, familiar matters, for new, worthwhile enterprises. You can make progress; enjoy leisure time, too.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — This should be a very interesting, full day, one aspects favoring a great variety of endeavors — the artistic professions, mechanical and industrial trades, study, science and medicine. Rest some.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Though this day especially favors work, study and getting ahead with various matters, you should also make some time for diversion, a hobby, music, reading, etc.

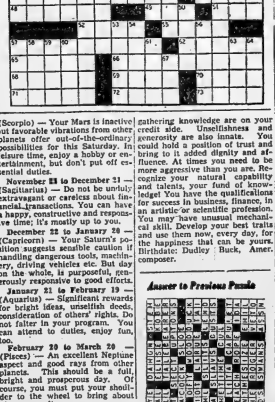
June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — One of your most encouraging, enlivening days this month. Your special interests, family matters, personal achievements and unexpected gains favored. Withal, indulge some healthy relaxation.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — This day is filled with promise. Even irritating details should not disturb your genial disposition and true desire to assist. Don't falter in well made plans but do give attention to health, family pleasures, too.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Heed advice to Gemini, and make time for neglected companionships. You studious, active folks need more pleasant diversion than you often get. Healthy digression from the usual urged.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Similar to Taurus in tendencies and benefits. Do get the most good out of this beneficial day. And don't forget rest and relaxation are necessary to good living.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Your Mars is inactive but favorable vibrations from other planets offer out-of-the-ordinary possibilities for this Saturday. In leisure time, enjoy a hobby or entertainment, but don't put off essential duties.



November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Do not be unduly extravagant or careless about financial transactions. You can have a happy, constructive and responsive time; it's mostly up to you.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Your Saturn's position suggests sensible caution if handling dangerous tools, machinery, driving vehicles etc. But day on the whole, is purposeful, generously responsive to good efforts.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Significant rewards for bright ideas, unselfish deeds, consideration of others' rights. Do not falter in your program. You can attend to duties, enjoy fun, too.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — An excellent Neptune aspect and good rays from other planets. This should be a full, bright and prosperous day. Of course, you must put your shoulder to the wheel to bring about happy results.

You born today: Sympathy, kindliness and a great talent for gathering knowledge are on your credit side. Unselfishness and generosity are also innate. You could hold a position of trust and bring to it added dignity and affluence. At times you need to be more aggressive than you are. Recognize your natural capability and talents, your fund of knowledge! You have the qualifications for success in business, finance, in an artistic or scientific profession. You may have unusual mechanical skill. Develop your best traits and use them now, every day, for the happiness that can be yours. Birthdate: Dudley Buck, Amer. composer.

Canadian Youth Is Under Fire Of Legislators

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian youth was the subject of critical attention Thursday in two provincial legislatures.

In B. Brandon, an Independent Progressive Conservative, said it's time children started to take care of elderly parents.

Manitoba Attorney-General, M. N. Hrynchuk announced his department will start a campaign to cut down juvenile delinquency.

Mr. Brandon said the problem of juvenile delinquency could be solved in a generation if the supply of delinquents was cut off at source. He said:

"Delinquency may be a cure, and I think perhaps it is, but it does not touch the root of the problem."

WANTS CO-ORDINATION

He said he would like to see the work of home, school, church and state co-ordinated in this field, "with the state as an assistant, which is as far as it should go."

Saskatchewan's telephones minister, Alex Kuziak, said phone installations might be read as a harmonizer of provincial industrialization. Saskatchewan Government Telephones earlier made a net profit of $2,500,000, compared with a $212,000 loss shown by the Manitoba system despite increased rates.

Winnipeg Faces Threat of Flood This Spring

WINNIPEG (CP)—A more serious flood threat to greater Winnipeg and southern Manitoba than previously predicted was reported today following a Thursday meeting of the provincial flood forecasting committee.

The committee said in a statement the Red river is expected to rise to "above average winter ice level, or six inches higher than was the case two weeks ago.

The rise would place the river level six inches above the top of the secondary dike protecting hundreds of homes in the residential area of Elmwood in suburban St. Vital. Also threatened are many homes outside the main dikes.

Elm Park, a narrow, low peninsula formed by a bend of the river was submerged in the 1950 flood disaster.

The committee said the flood threat along the Assiniboine running from eastern Saskatchewan into southern Manitoba will be "slightly worse" than previously predicted.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was watching ma packing pills, and I said, "Ma, what do you do when are you going to make a special chocolate cake for me and Sonny for Sunday, ma? I said.

This is only Friday for last saturday, ma, I said, I know ma, but G, will you, ma?

It's positively last week, and I said. Sure it's possible, ma, but will you, ma? I said. Well, I don't know I say for sure when I dont really know?

Well heck, ma, if you promise you will, then you'll really know for sure so will you, ma? I said, and she said, I may.

Aw gosh, ma, cant you give me a positive answer for a change? I said. Yes,

Boy oh boy, do you mean you'll positively make it? I said, and she said, No, I mean I positively wont make it. I said, Gosh ma, you're once from now till Sunday.

Well heck-ma, I mean yeah, G roozalem, how am I going to know you haven't forgot all about it, if I don't even remember? I said, and she said, That's the chance you'll have to take.

But jiminnies, ma, how do you expect me to live from now till Sunday without knowing if you even remember? I said, and ma said, Well, has problems for everybody, and that's one for you.

Well okay, ma, but if you happen to look at me sometimes and see a certain expression on my face, it wont be my fault if you guess what I'm thinking about, will it, ma? I said, and she said, No, I suppose not, now do you think you'll live till Sunday?

Yes ma'am, I said.

Which I will.

Not Doing Bad Says Mantle, Could Do Better

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Want to draw a little fire from Mickey Mantle? Ask him if he thinks he has lived up to his "potential."

The New York centrefielder, 24, is willing to accept his 1955 average of .306 and his league-leading total of 27 home runs as "not a bad year."

Naturally, he hopes to do better. Like all batters he wants to lead the league in hitting and runs batted in, but he isn't impatient.

"Everybody always is asking me if I think I can do better," he said while waiting his turn at bat at Miller Huggins Field. "Sure I think I can do better. Nobody ever learns all there is to know about this game, and I'm not one of them. But I don't think I have been doing bad.

"Last year I drove in 99 runs and missed the last two weeks after I pulled a muscle in my leg. Who knows? If I had been able to play those final games I might have topped my own RBI high of 102.

"It was rough missing those games and sitting out most of the world series."

Mantle's trouble has been that he shows occasional signs of greatness, then slips back to the status of just another good ball player. Ever since his sensational year at Joplin, Mo., in 1950, he has been groomed for Joe DiMaggio's old job. He never has come up to the Yankee Clipper's level.

Manager Casey Stengel always has insisted Mantle could add 15 or 20 points to his average if he could learn to bunt.

One Upset Marks Badminton Tourney Champions Favored to Retain Titles

By DAVID OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY (CP) — There was only one upset as Canadian badminton championship play moved to the semi-finals Thursday.

In the junior men's event, Marj. times junior champ John MacDougall, a Sussex, N.B., high school student, sidelined favorite Ken MacMillan of Calgary 15-4, 7-15, 15-11 in three bitterly-fought contests. MacDougall has been playing in tournaments since he was 11.

In all other events the champs and favorites advanced as predicted.

Jean Waring, 17-year-old Calgary shuttle artist defending both the women's and junior women's crowns, received a bye in the junior event and moved easily to the semi-finals in senior play.

EASY WIN

Miss Waring defeated Victoria singles champ Maureen Bray 11-1, 11-4 in night play. In tonight's play she meets fourth-seeded Jean Miller of Montreal, who defeated her in Manitoba play last week.

Miss Waring plays her first junior game tonight when she meets Manitoba junior champion Donna Stewart of Winnipeg.

Dave McTaggart of Vancouver, star of last year's Canadian Thomas Cup team, sidelined Martin Semple of Toronto 15-7, 15-9 to advance to the two.

In semi - final play McTaggart meets Ontario singles champion Peter Ferguson of Toronto, ranked fourth in the event. Ferguson is a former Canadian junior title holder.

MOVE INTO FINALS

Marj Shedd and Joan Hennessy of Toronto, defending the women's doubles crown they won two years running, moved into semi-final play with little difficulty when they trimmed Jocelyn Pease of Vancouver and Pauline Ingall of Edmonton 15-2, 15-7. They now battle Claire Lovett of Vancouver and Miss Bray for the finals slot.

In mixed doubles play Daryl Thompson and Jean Bardsley of Vancouver, winners of the title four times in the last seven years, downed Peter Ferguson and Marj Fisk of Winnipeg 15-8, 15-8. Tonight they meet Miss Shedd and Bill Purcell of Toronto, ranked fourth in the event.

Defending champs Bert Ferguson and Thompson had little trouble moving to the semi-finals of the men's doubles event when they met Ken Larsen and Hans Paulsen of Calgary. They rimmed the Calgary pair 15-2, 15-5. Their next game is with Peter Ferguson and Jim Carnwath of Toronto.

Finals in all events are scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Big Three May Scrap Night Games

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders, Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats may have to scrap plans for night grid battles next season, a Rough Rider official said Thursday night.

The official said the clubs have learned from the CBC that time will not be available on TV for night games. The clubs had wanted to play on Wednesday, Friday or Saturday nights, but all are booked.

Rough Rider president Sam Berger, chairman of the Big Four TV committee, has called a meeting of the committee here Monday to discuss the problem.

Ottawa, Hamilton and Toronto each had tentatively scheduled three night at-home games. The stadium used by the Montreal Alouettes is not equipped with lights.

Riders Square With Caldwell

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders have settled their contract differences with former coach Chan Caldwell, it was announced Thursday. Terms were not revealed.

Ralph Sweet, Caldwell's lawyer, said the dispute "was settled to the satisfaction of all parties."

Caldwell filed suit against Riders last fall for breach of contract and wrongful dismissal after he was cut loose with 13 months of a two - year contract uncompleted. The contract called for $10,000 a year. Riders finished last in the Big Four Football Union.

Caldwell, 35, former assistant coach at University of Tennessee, asked $4,000 to settle. He turned down Riders offer of a $6,000-a-year job as public relations officer in lieu of the unfulfilled portion of his contract. He returned to Knoxville, Tenn., earlier.

Quebec League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The powerful Shawinigan Falls Cataracts are the Quebec Hockey League champions for the second straight season, clinching the title Thursday night with a 6-3 triumph over Quebec Aces.

Their victory, coupled with Trois-Rivieres' 1-0 shutout win over Montreal Royals in overtime, narrowed the battle for playoff positions to a fight for the fourth and last spot.

The Lions' win, at Trois-Rivieres, came on a goal by Marius Groleau and wiped out the last chance the second-place Royals had of overtaking the Cataracts. The Montrealers are 10 points behind the champs and have only four games left.

Chicoutimi Saguenens, idle on Thursday night, are third and will meet Shawinigan Falls in the semi-finals—dates of which are yet to be announced. The Saguenens, with four games remaining, are 11 points behind the Royals.

French In Tunis, Africans In Paris Stage Wild Riots

French Sack U.S. Consulate; Algerian Riflemen Desert

CYPRUS ARCHBISHOP DEPORTED BY BRITAIN

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS (AP)—Violence spilled over from North Africa into the streets of Paris jolted French officials today to stern new measures for protecting lives and property in seething Tunisia and Algeria.

Heavily armed detachments of riot police and mobile gendarmes stood ready to prevent further demonstrations in the capital.

In Tunis, where a French mob sacked the U.S. consulate Friday and attacked offices of two French-language newspapers, police took strong protective measures.

In Algiers, terrorized by fresh attacks on French settlements, government sources disclosed a new division of French troops is being brought in.

WANTS MARTIAL LAW

Against this backdrop, French Premier Guy Mollet faced the National Assembly with demands for emergency powers, including the right to impose martial law in Algeria. The government has called a vote of confidence on the issue Monday. Support was seen mounting for Mollet's special powers bill, but many deputies feel it is fairly worded.

Mollet was debating the question when some 10,000 Algerian workers emerged from the Paris metro Friday and began marching on the Assembly itself.

Police ordered off the assembly building and arrested almost 3,000 persons for questioning after the swirling mob had fought with French truck drivers and smashed store windows.

In Tunis, an angry mob of French residents stormed the U.S. consulate and information office and attempted to wreck the offices of two Tunisian papers.

ON UNFOUNDED RUMOR

An American embassy source in Paris said the mobs acted on "on an unfounded rumor that the United States is encouraging North African terrorists."

Two Tunisians in the offices of the paper Tunisie Action fled the mob killing one French youth and wounding two. The mob then broke into the building and beat up the two Tunisians. They were taken to a hospital in seriously injured.

Demonstrators burst into the American consulate, smashed furniture and office equipment and tore up records and documents.

Leaders in the crowd seized the American flag and hurled it into the street. One member of the consulate staff, Georges Mailloux, was in the consulate with his wife and child when the mob broke in. They were not molested.

U.S. PROTESTS

American Consul-General Morris Hughes registered an immediate protest with French authorities. A French high commissioner Roger Seydoux expressed regret over the incident.

Hughes estimated damage to American property at $30,000.

In Algeria, terror gripped the French community in the wake of fresh attacks on French settlements and another mass desertion of Algerian riflemen to the rebels.

At one spot, 78 Algerians suddenly turned on the French officers, slew most of them and went over to the rebel forces.

Officials said some 100 persons had been slain in the previous 48 hours in clashes between French troops and nationalists.

CYPRIOTS PROTEST BRITISH ACTION WITH BIG STRIKE

Troops Face Shotgun And Bomb Attacks

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Thousands of Cypriotes walked off their jobs in a paralyzing general strike today in protest against Britain's deportation of Archbishop Makarios III as a dangerous rebel.

Tough British paratroopers patrolled the streets of the Nicosia capital and other centres. They already had faced shotgun and bomb attacks in the night.

The government said the strike hit the entire island. Almost all shops and firms in the capital were closed.

Labourers, clerks, printers and shopkeepers joined in the walk-out. Business was at a standstill.

JAM ATHENS RADIO

Official sources said the British were jamming the Athens radio. The British government banned all political and cable communications with Athens. It also barred long-distance phone calls on Cyprus itself.

In Athens, demonstrators shelled the British consulate and overturned trolley buses today. Athens University students sprinkled a United Jack with gasoline and burned it. Then they moved on the British embassy, but police scattered them.

Many deputies in the Chamber of Deputies joined in the shouting: "Long live Makarios," defied the official ban on public demonstrations and marched with the crowds. They were out in strength to prevent crowds from reaching foreign embassies.

Newspapers went to press on Cyprus under censorship. Editors were ordered to withhold news of inflammatory, alarming or despairing tone or face fines and prison sentences up to one year. With journalists joining in the strike, it was doubtful that newspapers would be on the streets Sunday.

In the first stirrings of violent reaction, terrorists fired shotguns at one patrol and hurled bombs at two others. Three men were wounded.

The British refused to say immediately where Makarios was taken.

LED THE DRIVE

The Greek Orthodox primate on the British colony in the eastern Mediterranean was the leader of the Cyprus drive for self-government and eventual union with Greece.

Reserve Army Sergeant Falls 12 Feet to Death

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—A reserve army sergeant fell to his death from a third-floor spiral stairway in the Canadian armory early today.

Dead is Joseph F. Beauchamp, 36, of Fort Erie.

It is believed Beauchamp lost his footing while carrying several rifles down the staircase. He fell to the concrete floor in the armory and died within minutes.

Beauchamp had attended a Lincoln and Welland regimental parade. He leaves his wife, Bertha and three children, two sons and a girl. During the war, he served with the Royal Canadian Air Force and Canadian Army Service Corps. He had been a customs examining officer in Fort Erie during the past seven years.

Expect Higher Speed Limit Will Be in Effect by June

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is hoping to be able to increase speed limits on some provincial highways by June 30, but the convenience of an anticipated record number of tourists this summer, it was reported Friday at Queen's Park.

Government sources said after a bill was introduced in the legislature to allow the cabinet to revise the present 50 mile-an-hour limit on Ontario highways that it is felt a speed increase on some major highways is long overdue.

In introducing the bill, Highways Minister Allan said it recognizes that various driving conditions throughout the province cannot be met by only one regulation.

The bill if approved by the legislature would allow the cabinet to increase or decrease the present limit, set different limits for trucks and buses than for cars, and to reduce the limit at night.

Any changes made by the cabinet would be recommended first by highway engineers after extensive studies of traffic conditions on the highway affected.

It was reported the first revisions the cabinet would make would be to increase the limit on superhighways 400 and 401 to 60 miles an hour in at least some sections. The highways were designed for safe driving as fast as 75 miles an hour.

On some high rays, where engineers felt 50 miles an hour was too fast for safe driving, the limit could be lowered to 40 or 35 miles an hour.

Engineers would have to report a large majority of drivers—Mr. Allan has suggested 85 per cent—travelling faster or slower than the set limit before the cabinet would act, government sources said.

Mr. Allan said the bill, an amendment to the Highways Act, is based on recommendations made last year by a legislature committee studying highway safety.

Friday's session saw two other members talk about highway problems.

Wentworth said the government should make it compulsory to install certain safety features on all vehicles. If person were not ready to drive safely and safely, they should be protected as much as possible by legislation.

E. P. Morningstar (PC—Welland) said several bridges or tunnels to clear little bottlenecks caused by the Welland canal are needed. The bridge at Allanburg, and highways 2, 8 and 58 were all badly crowded as they crossed the canal.

Faced with increasing traffic in the next few years, the government should press for increased federal financial aid to speed construction of new facilities.

The proposed amendment to the Highways Act also would provide that persons convicted of reckless driving would not necessarily be suspended as is mandatory.

Diefenbaker Says Filibuster On Pipeline Bill Is Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence production filibuster, highlight of the 1955 session of Parliament, will look like a "skirmish" alongside retaliatory Progressive Conservative opposition to the trans-Canada gas pipeline bill at this session, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Friday night.

The Conservative member of the Commons for Prince Albert was speaking on the CBC's free-time political broadcast. He said Walter Gordon Reid, "strongly criticized proposed legislation by which the federal and Ontario governments would become part of the pipeline.

Mr. Diefenbaker objected to Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., being permitted to build the profitable section of the $330,000,000 pipeline from Alberta to the East. The $118,000,000 section from Winnipeg and thinly-populated northern Ontario would be built and operated by the federal and Ontario governments, with Trans-Canada having an option to buy it at a 3½-percent interest rate.

The government was "permitting the company to take for itself the profitable end of the project but pilling the unprofitable on the tib-backs of Canadian taxpayers."

He found it hard to understand why the Liberals "forced western farmers to pay five-per-cent interest on a government-guaranteed bank "loans on farm-stored grain and, "with touching solicitude, will not charge Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., the finances it requires at 3½ per cent."

Mr. Diefenbaker indicated he thought the pipeline should be built with private Canadian capital. A crown company would build and operate the pipeline, Prime Minister Saint Laurent has said, "because of the necessity for public backing

LONDON (AP)—Queen Elizabeth set off today for a sunshine cruise in the Mediterranean wearing a gay red coat and a happy holiday smile.

The young Queen was in a radiant carefree mood as she boarded the plane for the flight to join the Duke of Edinburgh, waiting aboard the royal yacht Britannia off Corsica.

Away from the cares of official duties, she looked forward to a carefree relaxing week cruising in the Mediterranean.

Their holiday has been stripped of all the pomp and ceremony that usually mark royal journeys abroad.

The Queen's plane took off from London airport in bright spring sunshine. Traveling with her was her pretty cousin, 19-year-old Princess Alexandra.

Details of the royal cruise have been kept a close secret. But it is believed the Queen and her husband may go ashore at playground resorts in France or Italy.

Prince Charles and Princess Anne stayed home. They did not even go to the airport to see their mother off. Their grandmother, Queen Elizabeth, will keep an eye on them while the Queen is away.

Corsicans had a warm welcome ready for the royal arrival this afternoon. Last - minute preparations for the short visit—the first time a reigning sovereign has been in Corsica since the time of Napoleon—went on Friday night and today.

Corsicans were proud that the Queen's first visit to French territory since she came to the throne should be to their island.

Vice-President Narrowly Saves Administration

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tie-breaking vote by Vice-President Richard Nixon Friday night narrowly saved the administration's flexible farm price support program on wheat.

The 46-to-45 vote rejecting the highest support level ever contested sharply with the 54-to-41 tally the day before rejecting rigid supports for cotton, corn and peanuts.

In addition to Nixon, 34 Republicans and 11 Democrats supported the administration, while 11 Republicans and 34 Democrats voted against it.

The Nixon tally knocked out a special system of rigid price supports geared to "ustily middling" wheat" and set off an angry parliamentary dispute that lasted for hours.

The Senate uproar over the wheat vote came as Senate clerks made a mistake and announced defeat of the higher supports by a 46-to-45 margin.

Majority leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem., Texas) shouted at Senator Theodore F. Green (Dem., R.I.), who had argued against the wheat supports, to switch his vote.

But a recheck showed only 90 votes cast with the actual tally being a 45-to-45 tie. Nixon broke it by voting to block out the higher supports. The action, if sustained by the House of Representatives, would leave the support price on wheat at the $1.81 a bushel fixed for this year's crop instead of raising it to about $2.26.

Expect Higher Speed Limit Will Be in Effect by June

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is hoping to be able to increase speed limits on some provincial highways by June for the convenience of an anticipated record number of tourists this summer, it was reported Friday at Queen's Park.

Faced with increasing traffic in the next few years, the government should press for increased federal financial aid to speed construction of new facilities.

The proposed amendment to the Highways Act also would provide that registered owners of vehicles driven by persons convicted of reckless driving or careless driving not necessarily be suspended as is mandatory.

Diefenbaker Says Filibuster On Pipeline Bill Is Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence production filibuster, highlight of the 1955 session of Parliament, will look like a "skirmish" alongside planned Progressive Conservative opposition to the trans-Canada gas pipeline bill at this session, John Diefenbaker said Friday night.

The Conservative member of the commons for Prince Albert, speaking on the CBC's free-time political broadcast" time, said Opposition MPs already criticized proposed legislation by which the federal and Ontario governments would finance part of the pipeline.

He said Diefenbaker objected to Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., being permitted to build the profitable section of the $350,000,000 pipeline from Alberta to the East. The $118,000,000 section from Winnipeg and thinly-populated northern Ontario would be built and operated by the federal and Ontario governments, with Trans-Canada having an option to buy at a 3½-per-cent interest rate.

The government was "permitting the company to take for itself the profitable end of the project but piling the unprofitable on the backs of Canadian taxpayers."

He found it hard to understand why the government wanted farmers to pay five-per-cent interest on government-guaranteed bank loans on farm-stored grain and, "with touching solicitude, will loan Trans-Canada at 3½ per cent, the finances it requires at 3½ per cent."

Mr. Diefenbaker indicated he thought the pipeline should be built by a regulated public utility, or a crown company would build and lease the line, Trans-Canada to station, but "the Progressive Conservative party believes that we have had enough of federal crown corporations now."

The line had come to "demobilize" these war-born corporations, which in the main operated independent of Parliament and free from its control.

The comments were included in the text of a speech issued to the press before delivery.

Sixty Injured in Wild Riots By Athens, Salonika Students

ATHENS (Reuters)—Sixty people were injured today in serious riots in Athens and Salonika over British policy.

Athens' Deputy Premier Stephanopoulos and Foreign Minister Averoff were attacked and seriously damaged by demonstrators outside the Parliament building.

The British consulate there was ringed by police who guarded armored cars. There also were army guards at the British and United States information offices in Athens.

Thousands of demonstrators broke through police cordons and attacked and seriously damaged the British consulate in Salonika, the British Council and the Greek, according to reports reaching the ministry of public order today. The consul was reported safe under police protection.

In Athens, the chief of police called for army reinforcements as demonstrations continued. Students clashed with police in the main street and British bank crowds stoned work and gathered outside with banners denouncing Britain. The government also drew a "strong hand."

In Salonika 2,000 rioting students set wooden barricades and made attempts to stop armored cars breaking through. They also attacked the cars with clubs and stones, injuring officers and soldiers.

Priests appealed in vain for calm.

Student agitation also continued in the provinces, though demonstrations were banned.

As unrest prevailed throughout Greece, Premier Constine Karamanlis and his foreign minister, Spiros Theodokis, conferred on the implementation of measures adopted by the cabinet council in Athens on Thursday night and the Greek ambassador to Britain and stops in the United Nations.

Rioters broke all the windows in the Athens office of British European Airways. Signs bearing British names outside hotels owned by British companies were torn down.

Diplomatic sources expected the recall of Ambassador Basil Mostrat from London would precede the recall to London of Britain's ambassador here, Sir Charles Peake, but it does not constitute a severance of diplomatic relations.

The British cabinet's decision came at the end of a day of protest riots in Athens, Salonika and Salonika. In Salonika anti-British demonstrators fought police for hours in the streets of the northern port city, and unofficial reports said that at least two persons were killed.

In Athens large crowds, shouting "Down with Britain" and "Long live Makarios," defied the official ban on public demonstrations and clashed with the police who were out in strength to prevent crowds from reaching foreign embassies.

The visitors made no forecasts in contests but U.S. goalie Cadet Sgt. Don Leuders said his team is confident to avenge a 3-2 defeat suffered at Canadian hands last year.

PEARSON HOPEFUL THERE WILL BE NO WAR IN EAST

Appeal to Suspend Shipment Rejected

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson believes neither Israel nor the Arab states is willing to allow the current tension in the Middle East to erupt into conflict.

"War would be disastrous to all the countries," he said in the Commons Friday. "It would result in the mobilization of world opinion, in the United Nations and elsewhere, in condemnation of the aggressor and in support for the victim of the aggression."

Mr. Pearson spoke after government rejection of "a final appeal" by the Progressive Conservatives for suspension of the remaining 12 Harvard trainers of a 15-plane shipment Sarey placed with Canadian Car and Foundry Ltd. of Montreal.

RELUCTOUSLY APPROVED

The government approved the export permit last July and Trade Minister Howe reiterated Friday a previous announcement by Prime Minister St. Laurent that there would be no interference with the shipment. Nine of the Harvards were scheduled to be flipped out of Halifax today and the other three have already been cleared by customs.

The Middle East arms issue was the subject of a Commons debate late last January when the first nine Harvards were announced. Mr. Pearson said relations between Israel and Egypt have been worse at that time than they are now.

"And we must hope that not only will conflict be avoided now, but — more important—that the cause of conflict will be removed," he said. Canada's relations had been a source of potential conflict since the establishment of the state of Israel May 3, 1948.

"There had been ups and downs in the position, but the situation had eased in the last few days since the agreement of Lt.-Gen. Sir John Glubb, British commander of Jordan's potent Arab Legion.

SEES NO GAIN

"Neither Israel nor any of the Arab governments concerned can hope to gain anything from a resumption of hostilities on a different scale," Mr. Pearson said.

He gave his statement in reply to questions from Gordon Churchill (PC—Prince Albert) who asked: "Does the government propose to apply different principles in connection with the sale of a private contractor of the type of aircraft with the Egyptian Air Force than it does in the case of a government dealing with Israel?"

Mr. Churchill referred to Israel's application for 1,750 shells for 25-pound field artillery. The government refused to grant the export, placed with the Crown Assets Corporation.

Mr. Pearson said he rejects "the assumption that there is an application of different principles in this matter."

REDUCE WORK WEEK

BIRMINGHAM, England (Reuters)—Hercules, one of the biggest bicycle manufacturers, announced Friday night it will put its 1,900 production workers on a four-day week next week. A company official said: "We have decided that it is not necessary to carry on this short-time working for too long. It has been caused by the cancellation of orders in the export market generally and the fact that the home market has not opened up yet with the usual spring trade."

Cypriot Archbishop Being Banished To Lonely Islands in Indian Ocean

MAHE, Seychelles Islands (Reuters) — Archbishop Makarios, deported from Cyprus Friday by British colonial authorities, is being sent to these remote islands in the Indian ocean, a British spokesman announced.

The archbishop was detained by British authorities in Cyprus with three other Greek Orthodox churchmen and flown to Mahe as the anti-British campaign to unite the island with Greece.

They were taken off the island by plane Friday but officials would not say at the time where they were being sent.

The British announcement, made by British colonial authorities here, said the archbishop will be brought here by ship from Mombasa, Indian ocean port in British East Africa.

The archbishop was flown to Mombasa from Cyprus Friday night.

A spokesman said the colonial government in the country house, Sans Souci, was being prepared for the archbishop.

The government spokesman said attendants and allowances according to his rank and station will be accorded him.

The legislative council will hold a special meeting Monday to put legislation enabling the detention of political prisoners.

The Seychelles, a group of islands in the Indian ocean 600 miles north of Madagascar, have been a British colony since 1903. Total area is about 150 square miles.

The principal island is Mahe, about 15 miles long and four miles wide, which includes the town of Victoria, the seat of government.

Tax-Sharing Offer To Provinces By Govt. To Stand

Frost Calls View Archaic After Meeting Concluded

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's tax-sharing offer to the provinces stands today as taken-it-or-leave-it.

Premiers at Friday's one-day federal-provincial conference were hit bluntly with this information after they had spent most of the day outlining a miscellany of proposals changes favorable to the provinces from the federal offer.

Finance Minister Harris said flatly that the central government's plan goes "as far as we can go at this time" in money terms.

His statement, given at a closed meeting and made public later, means the premiers are going away empty-handed from a conference from which several had hoped to get a better split on taxes with the central government.

PREMIERS GRUMBLE

Mr. Harris' statement did not rule out individual negotiations with the provinces on relatively minor parts of the federal plan, but it left none of the premiers grumbling.

Ontario's Premier Frost said after how a long day of talks and views is "archaic" and the government is "going back in the dark ages."

For the most-populated province, he had proposed the most sweeping changes in the federal offer. He asked that Ontario be given more leeway in tax collection, to help service its growing population and industry.

Mr. Frost said the federal proposal won't give Ontario enough money for its needs.

He could not say whether Ontario would go in for double taxation, but told the conference all Canada would suffer if Ontario had to impose "regressive" taxes to pay her bills.

B.C. NON-COMMITTAL

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia—the second - wealthiest province next to Ontario—was noncommittal on the federal turndown after he had suggested broad changes in the offer.

"I'll be talking to the prime minister tomorrow," he said following the conference.

Premier Hicks of Nova Scotia, who suggested a little larger changes in the federal formula but Friday concentrated on the Maritime Provinces' case, said the offer is "not adequate."

Premier Duplessis of Quebec, who suggested the signing of a Sodoleski, 35, and his wife, age 30, was apparently murder and suicide.

Mrs. Florence Neimanis, another tenant in the west-end building, called police when she saw blood running beneath the apartment door.

Mrs. Sodoleski's head had been crushed and her throat slit.

The child, Veriania, suffering from a severe head cold and inflamed throat, was unharmed. He was placed in the care of The Children's Aid Society.

Neighbors said there was no indication of trouble in the Sodoleski apartment and they could offer no reason for the murders. The couple, they said, was quiet and likable. Mr. Sodoleski, who lost his job last week, had needed many hours each day with his son.

Bruce Perry, 38, will buy his own books from now on and will not patronize the public libraries. He had been arrested on Friday by a friend after he was sentenced to ten days in the boosegow by a Hamilton, Ont., judge who fined him $25 or jail for non-return of books borrowed from the public library a year ago. Perry, an unemployed engineer, living in a trailer with his wife and two children, said he did not receive the letters sent out by the library and did not have enough money to pay the fine. Trail of Blood Leads Neighbors To Slam Couple

TORONTO (CP)—Neighbors following a trail of blood Friday night found tragedy in a two-room apartment. A jobless European immigrant, his throat slashed, lay by the crib of his 18-month-old son; his wife was sprawled nearby.

Police said the slaying of Jadwis Sobolesski, 35, and his wife, Anna, 30, was apparently murder and suicide.

Mrs. Florence Neimanis, another tenant in the west-end building, called police when she saw blood running beneath the apartment door.

Mrs. Sobolesski's head had been crushed and her throat slit.

The child, Veriania, suffering from a severe head cold and inflamed throat, was unharmed. He was placed in the care of The Children's Aid Society.

Neighbors said there was no indication of trouble in the Sobolesski apartment and they could offer no reason for the murders. The couple, they said, was quiet and likable. Mr. Sobolesski, who lost his job last week, had needed many hours each day with his son.

Napanee Jail Inmate Flees From Work Gang

Police road blocks on highways leading from Napanee were set up early today following the escape of an inmate from the Napanee county jail who walked away from a work gang shortly after nine o'clock.

Police said that Franklin Bowers, age 31, walked away from the morning work party. The escaped was described as being 5 feet, 9 inches in height and weighing about 150 pounds. He was wearing the convict uniform of grey of blue denim overalls and jacket, and was wearing no hat, did not feet he would cause any trouble.

Acting on the presumption that Bowers would in all probability attempt to hitch a ride, police have set up road blocks at Marysville east on the four lane highway east of Belleville, while Kingston police were asked to check at the traffic circle in that city.

Police said Bowers was not dangerous and they did not feel he would cause any trouble.

Y's Men's Club Hears Address On Post Office

Thursday evening the Y's Men's Club heard a talk by Mr. Maurice Desrochers, Belleville, Postmaster of the Canadian Post Office.

Mr. Desrochers spoke on the organization of the Canadian Post Office in Canada and illustrated his presentation with two films made by the National Film Board.

There are 10,000 post office branches in Canada and 10,000 postmasters, "employing 47,000 men and women," he said. During the 1954-55 the postal revenue was $134 million of which 80 percent was spent on salaries and transportation. The speaker recounted a number of interesting stories of events during his term at criminal investigation and pointed out a number of post office problems such as chain letters and mailers in the dark.

Mr. Desrochers urged a more careful addressing of mail and pointed out that due to careless mailing habits many thousands pieces of undeliverable mail reached the dead letter office in the 1954 - 55 fiscal year. He also urged citizens to use money orders in place of coins or currency because of reduced risk and because coins can damage cancellation machines. A question period followed the showing of the films and Mr. Desrochers very ably answered dozens of questions regarding the post office and postal regulations.

The speaker was introduced by Harold Bankier and thanked by Scott Denton.

Gambling House Is No Place For Those Allergic to Green

By ELMER BONTER

NASSAU, Bahamas (Special) — One night a silverware salesman from a place near Boston, Mass., came to the government controlled gambling house on Hibiscus Island and threw the dice. "I'm lucky every time I shoot those galloping dominoes," he asserted, adding in his usual confident tone, "I feel like cleaning up tonight." He attitude convinced me it would be wise to follow along to get a front row look at "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Nassau."

Sorry to say there was no "happy ending" to this story. The official records would show that the luck of the dice never even came close. He told me he had his hands on the dice only twice before the sum he allocated for losing that night was tucked away deep in the operator's safe.

Early in the evening I noticed this was no place for anyone allergic to green. I saw so many $50 bills pass hands I thought they would run out of their denominations. Five dollars was the least bet the house would accept.

The pretty looking woman standing at the end of one of the roulette tables was the center of attraction as far as I was concerned. She was dressed in an expensive evening gown and must have had the Bank of England backing her. Time and again I watched her stack tall piles of different colored chips on a single turn of the wheel. I wondered if she was the English lady I heard had 4 (100,000 chips (the equivalent Canadian dollars) transferred to a Nassau bank a few days earlier. The expression on her face never changed, though she appeared to lose most of the time.

BLACK JACK PREFERRED

I may never be rich but I can always say I brushed shoulders with some of the wealthiest.

Once when the excitement waned at the craps table I strolled across the thick carpeted floor to a table where a man attired in a tuxedo was dealing cards to six men sitting in front of-him. I recognized the game was "Black Jack" or "21." I'd paid a high price to learn in the army. I found great pleasure here mixing with players on the receiving end as the dealer looked to be having little luck.

Glass doors separated the games room from the huge dining room. As we passed through, my friend, quieter now, obviously for the moment mood, came out with the remark I was expecting. "I couldn't have been my night to win," he said, but the bolder note in his voice told me he was at the first part of the evening was gone. I agreed although I don't think my self-control was the center of attraction as far as I was concerned. She was dressed in an expensive evening gown and must have had the Bank of England backing her. Time and again I watched her stack tall piles of different colored chips on a single turn of the wheel. I wondered if she was the English lady I heard had 4 (100,000 chips (the equivalent Canadian dollars) transferred

Sudbury Student 'Outdoors Girl Of Canada'

TORONTO (CP)—Helen Kupari, 16-year-old Sudbury high school girl, was the belle of the ball Friday night when acclaimed "Outdoors Girl of Canada." Her attendants: 35, 25, 23, 35.

Crowned at the opening of the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show, the Grade 11 student was chosen by five judges from seven others. She was sponsored by the Sudbury Junior Game and Fish Protective Association.

Among the prizes won by the shapely five-foot-five blond were a $500 Canada savings bond, an engraved wrist watch and a sporting course.

"But I don't think I want to be a model," she said, "I don't know what I want to do after high school but perhaps I'll participate in sports."

MANY SPORTS

Miss Kupari's athletic activities include fishing, baseball, basketball, skating, badminton, skiing, volleyball and swimming.

Judges included Betty Goulais and Marcelle LaFleche of Sturgeon Falls, Ont., Betty Boles of Bainsville; Jacqueline Bouchard, Bay; Isabella Tenna and Ruth Price, Toronto, and Mrs. Gerald Tatan of Moosetown, Ont.

The girls were judged on poise, personality, naturalness and wholesomeness.

Miss Kupari smiled radiantly as a glittering crown was placed on her long fair curls and a sporting robe draped over her black sweater and white shorts.

"I'm deeply honored and very thrilled," she said.

Like all contestants, she wasn't chosen only because of appearance. She had to be good at sports, too. Read Clarke and Elvin Scott of fishing.

"I once caught a small-mouth bass that weighed four pounds, two ounces."

Gordon Probe Ends Hearings

OTTAWA (CP)—The royal commission on Canada's 1956-81 economic prospects soon will begin sifting through some 2,000 pages of evidence in preparing its report for the government.

The five man commission headed by Walter Gordon of Toronto Friday concluded its public sessions by hearing brief No. 268. Another 39 submissions were also made but not heard.

The commission is expected to make its report before the end of this year. It travelled some 21,000 miles, visited the Yukon and Northwest Territories and heard a total of 50 sittings in every provincial capital except Quebec City, Montreal, Calgary and Vancouver. It began its work last August.

WON'T BE SHOWN

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—NBC said Friday night a birth by caesarean section will not be shown as scheduled Monday on the "Medic" television program. The film is not for family viewing as it is now put together, the network said. After further editing, NBC said, they will consider showing it.

Guardian Says Deportation Just Another Blunder

LONDON (Reuters)—The Manchester Guardian today said Britain's deportation Friday of Archbishop Makarios as "another the blunder."

But right-wing newspapers back the government's decision in Cyprus, and The Daily Telegraph declares: "It is good to know that the last ditch will not be fought obstinately surrendered."

The Guardian editorial says bitterness is sure to mount on the island colony, "and with it the risk that innocent people will be killed or injured inadvertently by British troops forced to take hard and curfew operations."

The Liberal newspaper adds: "In the end the government may stamp out terrorism, but if it wants to recover good relations with the fifths of the Cypriot people, it will eventually have to bring Archbishop Makarios back."

The News was flashed in banner type on its front pages. The Daily Mail's headline said: "The Guilty Man of Cyprus" with the sub-headline: "He backed murder and talked peace."

Grocers Want To Sell Beer

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Retail Merchants Association has told members of the Bracken liquor inquiry commission had favored sale of beer and wine through grocery stores.

The only reason advanced in the commission report for not allowing such sales was adequate alternative outlets.

The brief said there is a general and overwhelming demand on the part of the public for sales through grocery stores. Such sales would prevent excessive profits in the hands of a relatively small number of sellers.

Leonard Trotter, Madoc, Named New President

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Sowing operations in the Peterborough Ontario counties Friday prevented one half of the expected 150 breeders from attending the annual meeting of the Canadian Dual Purpose Shorthorn Association.

Fifteen Quebec delegates were grounded at Montreal airport, association officials reported.

Leonard Trotter, Madoc, Ont., was re-elected president of the association. Other officers: R. R. White, Guelph, secretary - treasurer; R. Oliver, Brantford; A. Wallace, Courtland, Ont., Dorian Cawthorn, Bowmanville, and Sullivan, Peterborough, William Smith, Hespeler, Ont., directors.

Two Film Censor Boards Enough For All Nation

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A Saskatchewan cabinet minister says Canada should have only two censor boards and believes should tolerate "nonsense" from film companies.

Charles Williams Labor minister in the CCF government, told the Provincial Film Board could serve the East, the other the West. Each province now has its own board.

The boards should comprise "outstanding, fair and reasonable persons who will stand for no nonsense on the part of film owners and will not be subject to political pressures," he said.

"Provincial censors are played off against each other by representatives of the film companies to prevent the amount of money they will lose, and that censors of good pictures are not swayed by same pictures, and so on . . .

CLAIMS SOCIALIST SLIGHT

And to prove his point Clif Dunfield, a Liberal, claim "socialism fell like a blight across the north country" after the CCF government was elected in 1944.

He said the fishing, trapping and lumber industries of northern Saskatchewan were stifled by government policies.

Charge Police Did Not Attempt To Control Mob

TUNIS (AP)—The Tunisian government today accused the French-controlled police force of civil liberties measures to stop the demonstrations by pro-Arab nationalists that sacked the United States consulate Friday night.

A government spokesman told a press conference one Frenchman was killed and three Tunisians wounded in the demonstration by some 2,500 people.

The spokesman said police on the spot seemed unwilling to stop the demonstrators. Forces of Legally used were insufficient, and Tunisian members of the police forces were not used at all.

Under the recent agreements with France under which Tunisia won a large measure of autonomy, police matters remained largely under French officers.

Jack Miner Paid High Tribute

WINDSOR—Little did the late Jack Miner, Canadian naturalist, author and humanitarian realize some fifty years ago when he put his philosophy of conservation into action that it would be accepted throughout the civilized world and today eight pages in the U.S. school books of poetry and prose would be devoted to his life story.

This means that every school child in the public and high schools of the forty-eight states in U.S.A. and Alaska will read the biography of Jack Miner.

To the admirers and friends of Miner there is no surprise or resentment in which the lesson of kindness and conservatism is being taught to the generations of the United States.

Jack Miner put into action his philosophy in the form of the Jack Miner Bird Sanctuary.

Jack Miner's principles are copied more and more each year throughout the civilized world.

Before Jack Miner died his name was included in the Book of Knowledge among fifteen great men of the world who included Edison, Pasteur, Lincoln, Churchill and Aristotle, a place of honor which could never be bought with dollars and cents.

IN MEMORIAM

DENIKE. — In memory of George H. Denike, who passed away March 10th, 1951.

Sadly the leaves of memory fall,
Tenderly we gather them all.
Just as he was, he always will be,
A beautiful thought in our memory.
— Ever remembered by wife Susan and son Harold.

CASSIDY. — In loving memory of our dear son, who passed away March 11th, 1954.

Sweet memories linger always Spreading sunshine wherever he went
Gentle and loving, kind and true
What a beautiful memory he left behind.
— Mother and Father.

Father in Thy gracious keeping
Leave now Thy servant sleeping.
— Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by mother and sister Ruth.

THRASHER. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Harry B. Thrasher, who passed away one year ago, March 11th, 1955.

Dad to your memory smiling face,
Your many virtues we can trace
The smile that won so many friends,
The cheery word that always came.
One of the best the world could hold
Your cherished smile, your heart of gold.
— Sadly missed, unselfish and kind
What a beautiful memory you left behind.
— Sadly missed and ever remembered by wife Emma and family.

STRIBE. — In loving memory of Nellie Marie Stribe, who passed away March 11th, 1952.

In Father's house are many mansions
The Blessed Master said;
And to prepare that home I plead place,
He travelled on ahead.
Dear Lord, I know I have journeyed far
And, free from every care,
Within God's many mansions
Are awaiting us up there.
— Ever remembered by Vernon, June, Phyllis and Betty.

BURFORD. — In loving memory of Nellie Marie Burford, who passed away March 11th, 1954.

What would we give her hand to clasp
Her patient face to see;
To hear her voice, to look upon
Life's days the same as we.
But God has said we'll meet again
And in that land of love
And clasp each other's hand once more
In heaven, that happy life.
— Sadly missed by her sister Eileen and brother-in-law, Harold Scott, Wilfred and Mother-in-law Marguerite.

NICKLE. — In loving memory of a dear husband, Fred Nickle, who passed away on March 11th, 1952.

Dad, how my soul aches for you
A life lived with my own
But I'll see you, dad, once more
When I walk Heaven's shore.
— Sadly missed by wife Grace.

NICKLE. — In loving memory of a dear father, Fred Nickle, who passed away March 11th, 1952.

Dad, how great, the shock severe
Little thought we'd lose you here
And only those who have lost can tell
The heartache and pain farewell
More each day we miss you, father,
Words may think — words may tell
Sealed
But in our hearts you know we carry
That love which is never concealed.
— Ever remembered by sons, daughters and grandchildren.

TREVERTON. — In loving memory of a dear wife, Viola May Treverton, who passed away March 11th, 1955.

God gave me a wonderful wife,
Many blessings will never give;
He fashioned her smile out of sunshine
He moulded her heart of pure gold
She was lovely to look upon
So out of this old world of sorrow
God took that fair wife of mine.
— Ever remembered by husband Fred.

IRWIN. — In loving memory of a dear son, Ronald Irwin, of Irwin, who passed away March 11th 1955.

Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind;
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they left behind.
God loved him and took him home
Upright and just to the end of her journey here.

Sincere and true in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.
— Fondly remembered by husband and children.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

HE'S A WONDERFUL SAVIOR TO ME

I was lost in sin, but Jesus rescued me;
He's a wonderful Savior to me;
I was bound by fear, but Jesus set me free,
He's a wonderful Savior to me.

He's a Friend so true, so patient and so kind,
He's a wonderful Savior to me;
Everything I need in Him I always find,
He's a wonderful Savior to me.

He is always near to comfort and to cheer,
He's a wonderful Savior to me;
He forgives my sins, He dries my every tear,
He's a wonderful Savior to me.

Dearer grows the love of Jesus day by day,
He's a wonderful Savior to me;
Sweeter is His grace while pressing on my way,
He's a wonderful Savior to me.

Christian business men who are members of the Gideons' organization make it a rule of their lives to give public testimony of the blessings which fellowship with Christ has brought into their own lives and into the lives of others.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil P. Brock, who were partners in evangelism as well as in marriage, heard an impressive Gideon testimony one night during a revival service they were conducting in 1918. The speaker told of how he had persuaded a friend to become a Christian and of how, later, the friend's entire family joined him in his new-found faith. During the testimony he told the congregation-at-meeting audience again and again: "He's a wonderful Saviour to me!"

When he had finished, Mr. and Mrs. Brock knew they had found the title for a new hymn. Next morning, Mr. Brock began work on the words and verses and his wife later set them to music.

A Life for Living

Getting Right With-the Life

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

On a certain sunny day in the city of Jerusalem a considerable commotion was caused by a company of men.

A short time before they had been refugees seeking to escape from the city because their Leader had been crucified and their enterprise had apparently collapsed. But something happened on the first Easter morning which transformed them from frightened fugitives into bold confident heralds of the Risen Christ.

They had proclaimed their Christ openly on the streets. They were drawing large crowds. Converts were bringing their money to cast into a common fund.

And the record in the fifth chapter of Acts is that the sick were brought and laid on couches in the street that "at least the shadow of Peter passing by might overshadow some one of them."

It may be a bit hard for us to think our way back to a time when men imagined that there was healing power in the mere shadow of a person. But we can understand how primitive minds were impressed by their bodily shadows when seemed so integral a part of them, going where they went, doing what they did. And when we lift the thought of Peter's shadow from the merely physical to the sphere of his whole personality, the scene and that Jerusalem street has a point for us now.

TWO DIRECTIONS

On that day in Jerusalem Peter's personality was supposedly extending its force in two directions: first, toward those whom he was trying to reach; and second, toward those whom his shadow was touching without his intention. That is, Peter was exerting two kinds of influences: a planned influence and an unplanned influence. And that same double extension of personality persists in all of us.

This relationship between our conscious and our unconscious influence is an old idea, but certain situations give it new warrant to arrest our attention.

Our unplanned influence is increasingly important because among thoughtful people there is a growing resistance to planned influence.

Whenever we think someone is deliberately trying to influence us, we tend to steel ourselves against it. We can see it in the home. When a father pompously shouts at his son, "I'll show you how to behave," he is likely to show how not to behave.

A good home is not a paternalism in which parents dominate the minds of the children, but rather a partnership of free minds in which the experience of the elders guides and supplement the experiments of the youngsters.

Yet while efforts of planned influence meet growing resistance, what we call "fashion" and "atmosphere" are increasingly pervasive.

POORS ATTITUDES

In every one of us is a living example of the force of unconscious influence. In the hazy period of our infancy we were absorbing the attitudes, the likes and dislikes of parents, nurses, companions. Then in our childhood we became copyists of the gestures, the tones the tastes of our parents.

When we went to school, we came under the influence of teachers who seldom receive pay commensurate with those of equal ability in the business and industrial world. But teachers exert an influence far beyond any market price of measurement. Almost more than anyone else they set the styles of behavior in a community.

"Yes," you may say, "if I have position of importance I can cast a long shadow of influence. But I'm just a nobody." There is no person so humble or seemingly insignificant that he is not influencing somebody.

Recently I received a radio letter telling of a young woman stricken with polio. She is in helpless that she cannot move her arms or legs. With a wooden pen in her mouth she can type some words on a typewriter. Yet that woman, seemingly out of commission, is seemingly tremendous influence in her community by her spirit of cheer.

LOOK AT THE LIGHT

Now let me ask, how can we control our influence without being so self-conscious that we spoil it?

If we go around always thinking how we are affecting people, we shall become affected or afraid of our shadow. That's bad.

Here is a simple rule to think about during Lent. Look at the light, for our relation to the light determines our shadow. Therefore get right with the light.

And in Lent we are thinking about Him who was called the Light of the World.

MADE UP STORY

INDEPENDENCE, Kan. (AP)—Four Iowa high school girls tearfully admitted Thursday night they drove away from home Wednesday on a lark, lost their nerve and made up a story about being kidnapped. Their admission ended a large scale manhunt in southeast Kansas and northeast Oklahoma for the fictitious kidnappers, described by the girls as two armed men.

Who Was This?

By A.A.M.

Who were the people who watched Jesus and His followers plucking ears of grain to eat as they walked through a wheat field on the Sabbath, and they objected to this?

These critics said to the Master, "Look, your disciples are doing what is not allowed on the Sabbath!" Jesus answered them with this question, "Have you not read what David did long years ago when he was hungry? Do you not know that he and his companions entered the House of God and ate the sacred bread of the Presence which only the priests were supposed to use? Do you not recall that the priests in the temple profane the Sabbath because there is certain work they must do, and thus they are guiltless. Do you not believe that God desires mercy and not sacrifice. I tell you the Son of man is Lord of the Sabbath. You will find the name of Jesus' critics and you can read this incident in Matthew 12:1-8.

PAKISTAN'S NEW CONSTITUTION

The Republic of Pakistan now has a new constitution. It came into effect on March 2. Broadcasting to the nation on that day, Prime Minister Mohamad Ali said: "Today we open a new and glorious chapter in our history; for today we have given ourselves a constitution that embodies our aspirations. Today we possess a visible living symbol of the unity of our nation—a symbol that gives sanctity to our democratic urges and ensures their realization."

There are a lot of catch-words and phrases in that announcement—"glorious chapter in our history," "aspirations," "living symbol of the unity of our nation," "sanctity," "democratic." Unfortunately the use of these words does not provide a guarantee of glory, unity, sanctity or democracy, as the world has learned to its sorrow.

However, in enunciating the basic principles of the constitution, the Prime Minister could not fail to impress any believer in liberty and democracy. These principles, he said, are: "Supremacy of the will of the people as embodied in a parliament of their chosen representatives; secondly, religious freedom, namely freedom of faith and worship; thirdly, individual liberty which includes equality before the law, freedom of speech and protection against unlawful arrest; and finally, security of property rights. These fundamental democratic elements, effectively secured in the constitution, are enforced by the supervision for an independent judiciary." A little later he added that "the freedom which Muslims (the religious majority in Pakistan) find for themselves is fully assured to their compatriots from other (religious) communities."

If Pakistan lives up to the true meaning of these high ideals, then the free world will have reason to share Prime Minister Mohamad Ali's enthusiasm for its new constitution.

FOR BUTTER, NOT WORSE

Out of the West, where men are men and problems of all kinds are a little inflated as well, has come a suggestion that the Canadian butter content

Jack McDowell, Independent Conservative for Iberville in the Manitoba legislature, proposes to reduce the butter content by increasing the size of pats of butter served in Canadian restaurants.

Hooray!

Mr. McDowell, in making his suggestion, said that many restaurants are still operating under old Wartime Prices and Trade Board regulations requiring them to cut 54 pats from every pound of butter. He quoted a restaurateur as saying that if restaurant pats of butter were twice as large the country's butter supply would all but disappear.

Increasing the size of pats would reduce the number cut from a pound which would be a safety factor for restaurant workers as well. Mr. McDowell says that cutting 54 pats from a pound of butter can be done with a sharp knife as long as one has control of his fingers. Reducing the likelihood of adding artificial coloring in the form of blood to restaurant butter servings should be in the best interests of restaurants as well.

The ability of food handlers to work to close tolerances was proven during World War II when ham slicers on the CNR were discovered to be exceptionally skillful machinists.

There is only one trouble with Mr. McDowell's suggestion about butter. It will not work unless restaurateurs approve a lowering of the standards required of butter slicers by increasing the size of the pats and the margin for error.

The suggestion to double the size of the butter pat is akin to Caddy's suggestion to the local tavern keeper to help him double gallonage. All Paddy said before he hit the street was, "Fill 'er up."

STUDENTS ASK AID

The National Federation of Canadian University Students wants the Federal Government, in co-operation with the provinces, to provide bursaries for 10,000 university students a year.

This may sound like a big program. Its cost, estimated at about a half million annually, may also seem big. But this is not a large sum by comparison with the amounts spent in many other fields; it is not large by comparison with the potential benefits.

Universities are facing a coming period of pressure for their services which will tax their facilities. The nation needs university-trained men and women in larger numbers. It is in the national interest, as well as that of the individual, that the facilities available be put to the best possible use. This means that those students who are admitted to the universities should be selected for one reason and for one reason only—that they are Canada's brightest young men and women, those most likely to benefit from university training and to contribute to their country's growth and prosperity by the effective application of the knowledge they acquire at university. It is imperative, if this goal is to be achieved, that no student should be admitted merely because he is financially able to attend, and that none should be excluded solely because of inability to pay.

WARNINGS

Two bits of warnings to beware
My friends toss off in manner breezy:
And one, at parting is: "Take care."
The other, like it: "Take it easy."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 10th., 1936

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Miles, Strachan Street, had as week-end guests Miss Margaret Moore of Peterborough and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Grant of Toronto.

Mr. Jack Empey has returned from Queen's Medical College, Kingston, to spend the weekend.

Mrs. O. H. Scott and Mrs. R. J. E. Graham left yesterday on a motor car trip to Florida.

Miss Betty Faulkner has returned home after a delightful New York city around the Panama Canal and also a visit with friends in Pasadena, California.

Mrs. George Maybee, organist and choirmaster at Christ church entertained choristers of his choir at a dinner party at his home on Highland Avenue last evening.

This City Once Had Horse Drawn Street Cars. From our file copy at this time in 1886: "The horse drawn street cars commence to run this morning." (Note 1956: Mr. Jason Tice, father of ex-Mayor Geo. F. Tice, was superintendent of the street car company for some time.

Mr. Eugene Garbutt has accepted a position in Cobourg and has left to reside in that city.

In the Sunday School hockey league a game was played at Simpson's rink on Station St., between the St. Michael's and the Tabernacle teams; the final score was 2 to 1 in favor of St. Michael's. The following composed the teams: St. Michael's, — Goal, Bailey; point, Taylor, J. Truaisch, V. Naphin, T. Black and E. Peck. Tabernacle, — Goal, W. Latchford, J. Duff, R. Darrah, E. Dickey and B. The Belleville and Sarnia Hockey Match. Sarnia defeated Belleville in a hockey match by a score of 14 to 4 at Sarnia's last night thus giving the International championship to Sarnia by the narrow margin of one goal after a wonderful game. Each goal tied of Belleville. When Sarnia scored here a few nights ago the Belleville boys defeated Sarnia by a score of 14 to 0.

It is a sad story but it is in no way a discredit to our boys. The hockey team that went around Belleville right from the start and the Sarnia boys secured all the breaks. The game was fact throughout and Sarnia secured nine of their goals while Belleville men were in the penalty box. Belleville men rested fourteen minutes and the Sarnia men rested twelve minutes. Simmons played a whale of a game but was checked very closely and could not get away. Finks was the most effective man for Belleville and Hillman and Grannary were the pick of the Sarnia team. Every man on the Belleville team played a good game. Whalen up to the time he was hurt in the last period, with ten minutes to go, was a star and Sarnia secured their last four goals when he was off. Finch of Sarnia was dropped to make things even. Sarney Symons had it over his check. Hillman shot in the winning goal when lying on the ice. Belleville claimed that the crowd interfered, but referee Barnhardt would not allow the protest. Sarnia played by far the better combination throughout. Belleville could not get used to the small rink which is a box compared with practically any other rink in the O.H.A. Needless to say Sarnia went wild with delight and the band paraded the streets after the game. All our boys, though disheartened at the result took their defeat like the sports they are. The following composed the Belleville team: goal, Conroy; defence, Wyatt and Simmons; rover, Finkle; centre, Whalen; right wing, Symmons; left wing, Mitchell; Penalties: Whalen 2; Symons 2; Wyatt 2; Wright 2. Sarnia penalties: Hillman 2, Heipin 2; Grannary 1; Dore 1. On the round the score was 10 to 18.

There is talk of the Methodist parsonage in Ameliasburg being sold and a new one built at Mountain View, which is a more central point in the circuit.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SECURITY AND PROTECTION

words that challenge us through-out life are these—Security and Protection. Governments these days have learned that it is an investment in general health and happiness to do all it can to give security and protection to all its citizens. This assures growth and greatness to any government.

The great English statesman, William E. Gladstone, once said: "It is the duty of government to make it easy for the people to do right, and difficult to do wrong." Here are the principles of free people, and, if respected, no one need fear them. There is freedom of thought and action. The law is a protector as well.

If we are thrifty and, as Robert Louis Stevenson has said, "earn a little—and spend a little less," we can start a personal security that will abide with us all our later years. Here it is that the Government steps in to help through Social Security, to which we all contribute.

We need security for ourselves and family, and we need protection, too. We need protection from ourselves, for how often we make bad moves and get into trouble. It has been said that we do our best friend at the same time. Bear in mind that a friend lasts longer than an enemy!

Security and protection are in every friend that we have, and we get the same thing from helpful habits, habits of reading and a love of art, music and Nature. A love of books alone has helped to give much security to thousands, and a protection from ignorance and loneliness. Books are silent friends—and they live forever!

Feathers Preferred

(Peterborough Examiner)

Science has now produced a type of hen which has no feathers. Having surprised some hens in a state of undress, we are still strongly in favor of the feathered kind.

Two of the most important goals of the United Nations are the equality and dignity of all men. Both of these principles are violated by the existence of racial discrimination. Yet, as a recent UNESCO publication points out, racial discrimination is widespread in the world today. Even in countries where it is not openly practised, it exists in the form of social discrimination against minorities.

The UNESCO publication, which is entitled "Race and Science," was prepared by a group of scientists from various countries. It is a valuable contribution to the literature of racial discrimination. It is also a timely publication, for the United Nations is now considering a draft convention on the prevention of discrimination.

The publication points out that the idea of racial superiority is a myth. Scientists have found that there is no such thing as a pure race. Even the Jews, who have been subjected to persecution for centuries because they were considered a race apart, are not a race in the scientific sense of the word. They are a people, a religious group, but not a race.

The publication also points out that there is no scientific basis for the belief that the white race is superior to the coloured races. Intelligence tests have shown that there is no difference between the average intelligence of white people and that of coloured people. Where differences have been found, they have been due to environmental factors, not to racial factors.

The publication also points out that there is no scientific basis for the belief that mixed marriages are undesirable. Such marriages do not produce inferior children. Nor do they produce children who are more likely to be sterile than children of marriages between persons of the same race.

The publication is a valuable contribution to the literature of racial discrimination. It is to be hoped that it will be widely read and that it will help to destroy the myths on which racial discrimination is based.

Sacred Writings of Sikhs

(By Kushwant Singh in UNESCO Features)

People have the habit of labelling everything these days. When Adam is said to be attacked by newspeoples, instead of being a convenient means of identification, they often give a very one-sided and inaccurate description.

One of the victims of this label hazard are the Sikhs, who are known only as a martial race. People get a mild surprise when they hear of an eminent Sikh scientist, surgeon or engineer, or that the Sikhs have produced a body of religious literature which is amongst the best in India.

The world knows something of the Sanskrit classics because it was ready to believe that the Hindus were capable of doing something in the realm of literature and philosophy. But Sikh prowess on the field of battle prejudiced all chances of their being taken seriously in the field of learning.

It was not, therefore, surprising until 1954 when Unesco undertook to translate selections from the Sikh sacred writings, the Granth, for the benefit of the English-speaking world that the decision came as the culmination of a long period of agitation and pressure on the Government of India by organizations representing six million Sikhs.

The compilation of the Granth was largely the work of Arjun (1563-1606), the fifth of the ten Sikh Gurus or religious preceptors. He collected the writings of the four preceding Gurus and the writings of Hindu and Muslim divines from all over India. A few additions were made to these by Guru Arjun's successors and finally, the tenth Guru, Gobind Singh (1708) pronounced that after him there might be no more Gurus, and that the Granth was to be considered as the living symbol of all ten Prophets. Today the Granth is the Book of Books of worship in all Sikh homes and temples. It is usually draped in costly coverings and the devout worshippers have to approach it barefooted and with the head covered. They make obeisance by rubbing their foreheads on the ground before it and place offerings of money, flowers or food on the cloth covering it.

The Granth forms an integral part of Sikh life. Passages from it are read every day, and on special occasions, it is read non-stop from cover to cover by relays of worshippers, (it takes two days and nights to recite the 1,500 pages). It is used in naming children, for baptisms, for weddings and funerals. At the end of every prayer of the Sikh creed which involves an affirmation of belief in the ten Gurus and the Granth.

Apart from the sanctity accorded to it by more than six million Sikhs, the Granth is a unique thing which make the Granth a very remarkable piece of work. It is perhaps the only scripture in the world which could be described as truly non-sectarian in that it does not propagate the tenets of any one creed. It contains the writings of all religious saints of India at the time and of all castes including the so-called "untouchables". It is in the nature of anthology of religious poetry representing the blending of Hinduism and Islam. This makes it a unique history of religious poetry. It has preserved the writings of mediaeval Sikhs and Hindu saints and the events of the time, conquests, social conditions, religious controversies.

The Granth has also saved the Punjabi language from the ravages of form corruption. Its 5,000 verses are set to measure — according to 31 ragas or modes of Indian music, for all the hymns of the Granth are sung. It is the task of professional singers render them today as they were rendered 300 years ago. It is also the first big poetry of the Granth which has survived in its "original" form, amongst the Sikhs and millions of others in Northern India.

Poetry loses much of its charm in translation. The use of so much oriental where alliteration and onomatopoeia are liberally employed to create a music by the jingling of words. Besides, oriental symbolism is so different that those not familiar with it rarely get the point in passages in which one grins with appreciation. A few samples, however, may give a glimpse of the beauty.

Nanak (1469-1539) was not only a religious leader and thinker, he was also a prolific versifier. Amongst popular pieces of his is the following in which Hindu temples when a saiver full of small oil lamps representing the sun, the sky, stars and winds) was being waved in front of an idol being worshipped in the temple at Puri.

"The firmament is Thy salver
The sun and moon Thy lamps,
The galaxy of stars
Are as pearls scattered.
The wind waves and all are Thine
Incense,
The forest Thy flowers,
But what worship is this
O Destroyer of dark fear!"

This was most celebrated composition is Japji now the morning prayer of the Sikhs. In this he has also propounded his philosophy of life. Here we see him at his simplest twenty-fold.

A hundred thousand times write
Say, and say again,
The Lord of all the world is one,
That is the path that leads.
There is no end to what more,
Ascend thus to the Lord's mansion.

And with Him be joined in unison.

The mind of the songs of him were thrills
The ills of all who crawl, but desire to fly,
O Nanak, His grace alone is it that fulfills.

The rest mere prattle, and a lie.
We have no power to speak or in silence listen,
To grant or take away.
We have no power to live or die,
We have no power to acquire
Fame or wealth.
To compel the mind to thought
Divine,
To escape the world and fly.
He who hath the pride of power,
let him cry aloud,
O Nanak, before the Lord there is no low or high degree".

Nanak was a staunch believer in the "middle path" and severely criticized extremes of asceticism practised by ascetics.

"Smearing the body in the patched coat the yogi wears,
Not in the smearing the body,
Religion lieth not in rings in the ears,
Nor in a shaven head,
Not in the blowing of the conch shell.
If thou must path of true salvation find,
Amongst the world's impurities,
Be pure in duties true."

Guru Govind, who turned the Sikhs from a pacifist to militarist religious sect, added three more languages, Punjabi, Sanskrit and Persian. His writings are more sectarate collection by themselves. His militant conception of God is brought out in his Chandi Charitar in Sanskrit:

"Eternal God, Thou art our shield.
The dagger, knife, the sword we wield.
To us protector there is given
Thou Death, deathless, Lord of Heaven,
To us all-steel's unvanquished might,
To us all-time's restless flight.
But chiefly Thou, protector brave,
All-steel, wilt Thine own servant save".

The translation of the Granth is in the monosyllabic Punjabi language in which it is written is mostly old Punjabi which is not readily understood by the now arranged in chronological or alphabetical order. Each hymn is signed as a book propounding a thesis. The division, as already explained, is according to the ragas of Indian music. Moreover, in the old, authentic copies of the Granth, no line are strung together as beads in a rosary, and it is frequently difficult to whether there is one word or two. There are consequently many different translations have already been made to translate the Granth, but they have been hitherto succeeded in combining accuracy with poetic excellence. It is the task which has been given Unesco to accomplish and the translation project, which is under the Indian Academy of Letters, at the Organization's behest, includes scholars of high repute who have agreed to work without remuneration. Dr. Mohan Singh, an outstanding figure in the translation committee is the 94-year-old Sikh poet and divine Bhai Vir Singh who lives a life of scholarly asceticism in the foothills of the Himalayas. Working with him are three well-known theologians, Giani Singh and Harkishan Singh, and a younger man, Dr. Trilochan Singh, who is editing the work and writing an introduction.

The first partial translation is completed it will be submitted for English stylistic revision to the scholars, including poet G. S. Fraser and to the author of the present article. It is publication will make it possible for English-speaking readers to know something of the real musical genius of the world's religious literature.

Earth Has Metal Core

(Fort William Times-Journal)

At some time or other most of us have paused to wonder what the inside of the earth is like and, if we believe Prof. Matt Walton of Toronto, we will be more intelligently put away any ideas of boring from this side of the world to China. Prof. Walton concludes that the earth consists essentially of four parts each of which is in well measured radius.

The first is a solid core about 800 miles in radius and very dense, which, according to Nobel prize-winner Bridgman, is made up mostly of nearly pure iron, of nearly pure nickel, and of some of the two. Around this is an outer core 1,165 miles thick, and then a "mantle" 1,800 miles thick. Around this mantle is a relatively thin skin or crust of rock.

According to another scientist the thickness of the crust under continents is close to 21 miles, but the crust is much thinner under the deep oceans, only about 6.5 miles below sea level.

Knucklehead, Stupid, and Geek

How tell me, confidentially, if in a place of public use driving the author referred, as any good driver might, to the stupidity of turning short left corners or passing at an intersection, would you become indignant and maybe cancel your subscription or demand punishment of the offending author if you realized that you fit the description?

Well, when I set up a row of straw men to knock about when in the mood—characters named Knucklehead, Yankee Wissacre, Poor Geek, Stupid, Ninnyhammer—we have you any other nominations—you will please remember these are my property and you have no right to claim damages to your peculiar sensitivities. Do you get mad at Charlie Mc-Carthy and Mortimer Snerd?

My teaching that as a general rule the disability which the trick specialists and "clinic" racketeers call "arthritis" is not what it is hacked up the corned makes little impression on the mind of the victim, especially if he or she is toasting on the "promise" that the latest wonder drug will fulfill the promise.

Mind, now, Mortimer, I do not mean to imply that your joint trouble is not arthritis (joint inflammation). Chronic arthritis is unquestionably the correct diagnosis in some cases of progressive joint disability. What is to say the condition is inflammation produced by infection—invasion of joint tissues by germs.

But in 97 cases out of a hundred chronic joint disability is not inflammation and should not be called "arthritis." It is physical degeneration of joint tissues, and since there is no simple cure for physical degeneration of joint or joints I call it Rheumatiz — not rheumatism.

WHAT'S THE FULPIT FOR?

Many people today complain that they receive little or no moral support from their church. Although everybody has a personal attitude toward the clergymen of all faiths, it cannot be denied that much of the preaching we hear today does not touch the problems which ordinary people confront.

There are many sermons being preached on the necessity for more equitable social conditions, right international peace, proper distribution of money and property, world peace. All these are magnificent ideals. But they are not the stuff of religion—not religion itself. Furthermore people are struggling with other problems also—sorrow, temptation, and a sense of guilt because of sin. Besides, Ministers need to reveal to people the resources of power by which they can be comforted in the midst of their sorrows. They need to explain what to do with others about right and wrong and how people can be denied that much of the preaching we hear today does not touch the problems which ordinary people confront.

There are many sermons being preached on the necessity for more equitable social conditions, right international peace, proper distribution of money and property, world peace. All these are magnificent ideals. But they are not the stuff of religion—not religion itself. Furthermore people are struggling

By GREGORY CLARK

In Philadelphia recently I attended a meeting of field workers at which a speaker continued to refer to the starling as the European starling.

In the course of the discussion he referred to it as the United States starling.

Finally I asked that sort of shocked silence in the meeting which greets any affront to nationality, whether American or Canadian, as to whether I had finished my comments on the enormous economic damage the starling in Canada, right up to the farthest fringes of settlement in the Yukon, was directly attributable to the fact that the bird was originally introduced into North America after several earlier attempts had failed, by a Mr. Eugene Schieffin who liberated eighty birds in Central Park, New York City, on March 6, 1890. Forty more were liberated on April 25, 1891. They were imported from Europe. The purpose in liberating them was that they would control a pest of caterpillars that was then threatening the trees. Those 120 birds are descended all the millions upon millions of starlings that now inhabit the American continent from Mexico to the Yukon.

"But," said the objector, "it is the European starling!"

"We did not get it from Europe," I explained. "We got it from the United States."

"But—"

"Order!" cried the chairman.

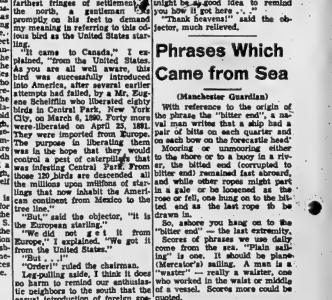
Leg-pulling aside, I think it does no harm to remind our cousins to the north to the south that the casual introduction of foreign species for a very local and particular purpose is an extremely dangerous undertaking.

When the meeting broke up, the speaker sought me out. Anxiously. "Look here," he said, "I'm a bird-watcher myself and hate to think of that bird being called the United States starling. Couldn't you Canadians call it the New York starling, or maybe the Central Park starling?"

"Well, as a matter of fact," I admitted, "I never heard Canadians America call the United States starling. I heard you gentlemen referring to the European starling that I thought it might be as good idea to remind you how it got here . . ."

"Thank heavens!" said the objector, much relieved.

Phrases Which Came from Sea



(Manchester Guardian)

With reference to the origin of the phrase "bitter end", a reader has written that it had a pair of bitts on each quarter and that cables were fastened aft.

Mooring or unmooring either to the bows or to a buoy in a river, the bitted end (corrupted to bitter end) remained last aboard, and when other ropes were cast part in a gale or be loosened at the bitts the bitter hung on to the bitted end as the last rope to be drawn in.

So, ashore you hang on to the "bitter end" — the last extremity, however serious or grave it may still come from the sea. "Plain sailing" is one. It should be plane (Mercator's) sailing. A man is a "waster" — really a waister, one who worked in the waist or middle of a vessel. Scores more could be quoted.

Stories from Life of Jesus

By April Oursler Armstrong

JESUS COMES HOME

The whole town of Nazareth was talking about Jesus. Now that He was famous everybody liked to boast that Jesus had been his closest friend — even people who had never bothered to speak to Him. Grown men remembered wrestling with Jesus long ago when they were boys together in school. People bragged about their table or wagon that Jesus had made in His carpenter shop. Old men liked to tell of the days when Jesus had been little, and they had given Him an orange or a fig as a treat.

Naturally, Jesus had many relatives in Nazareth, cousins, uncles and aunts, and even more distant relatives, all of them known in the language of the day as His "brethren." Some of His cousins — James, Jude and Simon — had become His apostles. But the others had paid no attention to Jesus until He became famous for His preaching and miracles. Then they began to be a little jealous, and to say:

"Wouldn't you think Jesus would be proud of his relatives?"

And "He hasn't paid any attention to us at all!"

So some of His brethren went to see Mary, His mother, in the little white house in Nazareth.

"Mary, we want to go down to Capernaum to see Jesus. He has been away about a year, and He seems to have forgotten all about us. Will you come with us?"

REMEMBERED

Mary smiled. She knew what they were thinking. She did not mind that Jesus seemed to ignore her. She knew He had not forgotten, and she remembered the words He had spoken so many years before:

"Do you not know I must be about My Father's business?"

He was about His father's business, now, and Mary had no intention of interfering. Still, she would enjoy a chance to see Him again, even from a distance.

With these relatives Mary walked from Nazareth down to the town of Capernaum where Jesus was preaching.

In the house where Jesus was staying, crowds were overpowering. Sick and well, everyone wanted to see Jesus, touch Him, talk to Him. Mary stood on the fringe of the crowd, watching. But some of her big-shouldered relatives shoved forward until they got through the door of the house right in the sight of Jesus.

"Look!" they cried out. "Your mother and your brethren are waiting for You outside!"

And they grinned, sure that He would rush through the crowd to greet the family from Nazareth.

WEARY JOURNEY

Jesus, looking over their heads, saw Mary waiting beyond. Their eyes met in loving greeting. He knew she had walked a weary journey to see Him, and He longed to comfort her. And she knew that He must still be about God's business. They smiled in perfect, silent understanding.

His eyes still smiling His love for Mary, Jesus spoke to the crowd:

"Who is My mother? And My brethren?"

He flung His arms wide to bless them all.

"Whoever shall do the will of God, He is My brother and My sister and mother!"

Mary smiled, because she understood. But His relatives were disgusted, and they hurried away from Jesus in anger.

Back in Nazareth they told everyone that Jesus had become too famous to bother speaking to His own mother and family. And no matter how Mary tried to explain, people listened to them and believed them.

Even on street corners people were arguing about Jesus.

"Why does He stay in Capernaum? He doesn't come back here!" complained a shopkeeper with a crooked chin.

"If he came to Nazareth the crowds would fill my rooms!" said a red-faced innkeeper.

ASHAMED OR AFRAID?

"Is He ashamed of Nazareth?" Or is He afraid that here people will find out that He's just a plain carpenter? I bet He couldn't work a single miracle here," said a paunchy little man who had never liked the clear-eyed Boy Jesus when they had gone to school together.

Without warning, Jesus suddenly returned to Nazareth. Mary's home was surrounded with people, some poking fun, others shouting friendly greetings. After their meal, Jesus went to the synagogue where He had promised to preach.

Everyone was there, waiting to see what this Man Who had been their neighbor would do and say.

Jesus stood before them, in the same synagogue where He had prayed and studied as a child. And because it was the Sabbath they gave Him the Scriptures to read aloud. And He chose the part of where words of Isaias' the prophet are written, and He read:

"The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me. He has appointed Me to preach the gospel to the poor. He has sent Me to heal those who are sorry for their sins. And to preach freedom to those who are not free, and sight to the blind, to free those that are brulsed. And to preach the acceptable year of the Lord, and the day of reward."

When Jesus had folded up the scroll of Scripture, He gave it back to the head of the synagogue, and the eyes of everyone were watching Him.

And He said to them:

"Today the Scripture you have heard, is fulfilled."

"What does He mean?" they whispered. "Does He dare to say that He is the Saviour the Scriptures tell of?"

"Imagine saying such a thing! Isn't this the Carpenter? He's just a plain Man from this very town. He's no Saviour!"

"If He's all He says He is — why doesn't He show us a miracle or two?"

KNEW THOUGHTS

Jesus knew what they were thinking, and He said:

"Doubtless you will say to Me... As great things as You have done in Capernaum, do here in Your own country also."

And then He reminded them of the stories in their holy books about the prophets of old. He reminded them that when the famous Elias was on earth, God sent him not to the people of Israel who did not really believe in Him, but to the faraff people of Sidon. The same was true of other holy men. Those close to them who should have believed, only laughed —and God sent the prophets to other countries and other people who did believe.

"A prophet is not without honor," said Jesus, "except in his own country."

Grumbling filled the synagogue. He called Himself a prophet, did He? He had grown up in these very streets and prayed before this very altar, hadn't He? How could He be a prophet or a Saviour?

And they began to mock and stamp their feet. He had not done a single miracle. He had not cured anyone in Nazareth. Yet He pretended to be close to God? Bah!

With anger they rushed upon Him, these unbelieving men of Nazareth. They dragged Him out into the narrow street, and up to the edge of the hill on which the town was built. They hated Him, these old neighbors of His. They wanted to destroy Him.

"Throw Him over the cliff!! Let Him work a miracle then — this Carpenter with a swelled head!"

They dragged Him closer and closer to the edge, high above the jagged rocks.

And then suddenly — Jesus was gone.

No one in the crowd could tell where He had gone or how. A moment He was there, the next instant gone.

And even to this day, those who are closest and nearest to Jesus, and who have every reason to believe Him, are the ones who mock Him, and would destroy Him. But no one can destroy the Son of God.

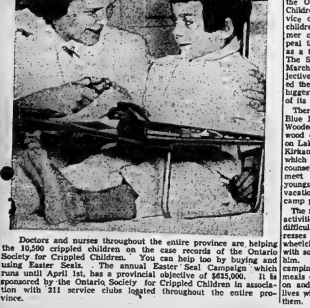
Easter Seals Mean Joy for Crippled Kiddies



Every Easter Seal bought during the month of March will mean additional minutes of play this summer for a crippled youngster who would not be able to have a summer camp vacation except for that purchase.

These minutes, multiplied by the thousands, become three weeks of planned pleasure for more than 1,200 little boys and girls in wheelchairs, on crutches or in braces, in camps where there are no stairs or high doorsteps, where a crippled child can even earn a Red Cross Swimmer's certificate, and where a youngster in a wheelchair can be a ball-player.

Entirely apart from the treatment and training programs which the Ontario Society for Crippled Children and over 200 Ontario service clubs provide for the 10,500 children on their rolls, the summer camp program holds an appeal that commends Easter Seals as a top investment in happiness. The Seals, on sale all through March this year, and with an objective of $625,000 have established the vacation program as the biggest summer camping project of its kind in the world.

There are five summer camps: Blue Mountain on Georgian Bay, Woodeden near London, Merrywood on Muskoka Lake, Lakewood on Lake Erie and Northwood near Kirkland Lake. At the camp, which is staffed with nurses and counsellors specially trained to meet the problems of crippled youngsters, the theme for the little vacationers is participation - in camp programs.

The result is a constant round of activities. Children with speech difficulties become actors or actresses in plays. When a lad in a wheelchair bats the ball, a buddy with sound legs runs the bases for him. Groups go on overnight camping trips, and cook their meals over an open fire. And so on and on. The children find lives which once seemed forbidden them.

Doctors and nurses throughout the entire province are helping the 10,500 crippled children on the case records of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. You can help too by buying and using Easter Seals. The annual Easter Seal Campaign which runs until April 1st, has a provincial objective of $625,000. It is sponsored by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children in association with 211 service clubs located throughout the entire province.

Education Week

Ten Years of Frantic Growth Double Size of School System; Greater Increases Forecast

(Editor's Note — Miss Somerville is a teacher at the Quinte Secondary School and chairman of the press section of the Education Week committee.)

By ANNE SOMERVILLE

In the last few years the stork has been an almost daily visitor to Belleville. Do you realize that since 1940 the annual number of babies born in Belleville has risen from 175 to 350?

This is hardly a disturbing fact to most people, but in five years time it is a major headache to teachers and schoolboards. Many of these children are now in your public schools but they will soon be crowding the high schools. Furthermore, most of these children, unlike their parents or even their older brothers and sisters, will be staying at school for an increasingly longer period.

And to this that the people of Belleville want and expect good schools, offering many types of education in uncrowded classrooms. When Belleville citizens think about the education of their children, they are faced with a challenging and challenging situation. What is the background of these changes and what can we expect in the future?

First of all, it is important to remember that much more is demanded of the schools today than ever before. Not so many years ago, education beyond the elementary grades was reserved for the few who were planning university education to become doctors, lawyers, teachers or other professionals. The schools could safely offer one course of studies and still do a good job.

EXPECT MORE STUDENTS

Nowadays, we rightly expect that many more children would be allowed to profit from a longer school career. Grade eight graduation is no longer considered the end of schooling. Students, more specifically their parents, want the training and development that is part of high school education.

The provincial government agreed with the parents in this matter and raised the legal minimum age for leaving school sixteen years. Consequently, the schools were faced with two problems — expanding school buildings and staffs to accommodate new students, and devising courses of study that would be a profitable education for those who would end their schooling in high school and who would be working in the widest variety of jobs.

The schools responded with technical, agricultural, home economics, commercial, and guidance courses to meet the new and expensive demands.

This was a natural development in a new and prosperous country such as Canada which could afford to postpone the wage-earning days of her children. However, the problems it created were aggravated by a tremendous increase of population at the end of the second World War. This was partly because new industries attracted a larger adult population and partly because the good times enabled young people to establish new and larger families.

NEW SCHOOLS

In 1940, 1,160 students attended four Belleville public schools. In 1956, 2900 students are attending seven public schools. Three large new schools have been built: the first Charles, Queen Elizabeth, and Sir Winston Churchill.

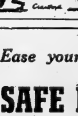
In the last 10 years the Catholic schools had a similar increase, from 485 to 1,000 pupils. St. Michael's is planning an eight - room addition for next September. The grade schools of Belleville have met the new population, solved the problems they brought with them, and are now busily passing them on to the high schools.

High school teachers, I suppose, would be glad to see new students but they didn't come in such quantities. Unfortunately, high schools are not elasticized for further expansion. The high school teachers are barely supplied along with the pupils. A class of 30 shining faces is pleasant and even inspiring — to a teacher. A class of 40 shining faces tends to be rather hectic. A class of 50 shining faces would retire any but the hardiest teacher, and any larger class would lose any connection with education.

Yet, that is the situation with which we are faced if the number of teachers available does not increase. This is partly due to the fact that the teachers will come from the babies born in the 20's and 30's — when the birth rate was abnormally low. In addition, teaching as a career has not kept pace with the prosperity of other careers in Canada. Even though this situation is being remedied, education will be hampered by a lack of teachers until a far greater proportion of university graduates make teaching their career.

HIGH SCHOOL GROWTH

In 1941, Belleville had about 800 high school students. In 1951, 1,150 students were enrolled, but in 1961 the high schools can expect 2,500 students. The two present schools, B.C.I.V.S. and Q.S.S. are at full attendance with 1330 students and a teaching staff of 85.



The Belleville District High School Board constructed Quinte Secondary school in 1954 to meet the first increase in school population. Next year, an addition to Quinte will begin to look after the continued increase. However, to meet the situation forecast in 1961 when there will be 2,300 high school students in Belleville, a third high school will be necessary. If it is no task for a city to double its school facilities in less than 10 years. In these days of high prices it is no easy task even to run the existing schools—$345,700 for the high school in 1955, and $605,400 for the high schools in 1956.

It is a truism to say that the type of education is an investment that pays immense dividends in the future. In every field, economic, political and moral, Canada needs a trained and educated population. Everyone in Belleville benefits from her school system, and it is clear that "Education is Everybody's Business."

ASKED TO HELP

LONDON (CP) — Canada has been asked to help draft a new constitution for Britain's rubber-rich Malayan Federation. The colonial office announced Thursday that Canada, Australia, India and Pakistan have been informally approached to provide representatives for an "independent" commission on the future constitution for the Southeast Asia peninsula.

The Face on The Stamp

HE FOUNDED THE RED CROSS

(Article 22)

In the summer of 1859 a wealthy Swiss banker travelled to Italy. But he never reached his destination. Not far from Solferino the outbreak of a battle blocked his way. Unwillingly, he witnessed a combat that only lasted a few hours, but during which more than 40,000 soldiers were slaughtered and countless others wounded.

It was not only the multitude of dying men that shocked him, but the fact that the bleeding enemies were left to themselves on the battlefield. Helping a wounded prisoner in those days was something unheard of. Nobody took care of them, neither the commanding general nor the civilians.

He rushed to the nearest town and with the money he had in his pocket he bought bandages and medicine. In the church of Castiglione he improvised a hospital. It was the first time in history that one man dared to protest against the cruel unwritten laws of war. He forgot the purpose of his journey and from a businessman he turned overnight into a world Samaritan.

BATTLES AGAINST DEATH

His well-tailored clothes were torn and soiled with the blood of the wounded. For three days he worked without sleep. His call "We are all brothers!" did not go unheard and others followed his example. The soldiers forgot who was friend and foe. It was like a second battle, not to destroy, but to conquer death.

When the worst was over, he returned to Geneva. But the memory of what he had seen haunted him day and night. He found no rest, neither in his luxurious home, among his friends nor in the office. Sometimes he would awake in the night and it was as if he heard someone pleading for mercy.

Then one day he grasped his pen and began to write a book about the battle of Sulferino. It was a flaming appeal to a crusade against inhumanity. The idea of caring for the wounded regardless of race and country, of enemy or friend, took more and more shape in him.

ASKED FOR AID

For more than five years he travelled through Europe. He knocked at the doors of the mighty asking for aid and understanding. He dined with kings and emperors and his name made headlines in the papers. Finally his tremendous efforts brought fruit.

But when the first official conference in Geneva was held, he was given the least important task, that of entertaining the foreign guests. Others in his position would have been insulted, but he was too unselfish to expect honors as long as his goal was reached — to bring the men of all the world together under the sign of the Red Cross. In making his dream come true, his fortune and his possessions were cost too high a price. While his organization of the Red Cross was beginning to grow, he was left penniless in the slums of Paris.

For many years he was forgotten. When the world again heard from him, he was living in the poorhouse of a little Swiss village. When he was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for peace, he passed the prize money on to be used in his work of mercy.

The Red Cross shines over the world today as a symbol of love and brotherly help. The man who erected it and gave his all, was Henry Dunant.

ENTERTAINS CUBS

On Thursday, Mrs. T. F. Townsend entertained the Redneresville CGIT group at her home, 19 Hillside Avenue.

After an hour on the gym floor and a game of darts in the tank at the "Y" the girls and their leader, Miss Van Velsen, enjoyed the tea hour and a brief period at the home of the hostess.

A pleasant feature of the evening was the presentation of a cup and saucer to Mrs. Townsend by Audrey Redmond, president, on behalf of the group.

GAMMA MU

The director of the Gamma Mu Chapter of Eta Sigma Phi Sorority was the Tuesday evening's speaker. Mrs. D. MacKinnon, director, capably conducted the ritual "You and Your Audience".

Several features were emphasized by Mrs. MacKinnon in regard to stance, voice, clothes and gestures as used by a speaker.

Sincerity members concluded the cultural program by each delivering a two-minute impromptu speech.

Mrs. C. James, 250 MacDonald Avenue, was hostess for the evening assisted by Mrs. D. Fink of Trenton.

EUCHRE PARTY

Quite a number of folks braved the weather Thursday evening, to attend the social gathering held in Marysville Hall, under the auspices of Local 181 of the Ontario Farmers' Union. Seven tables participated in the euchre game.

Prizes were won by ladies' high, Mrs. Harold Murphy; Miss Helen McGuinness; men's high, Bernard O'Sullivan; Fred McCullough.

There was one table of forty-five.

The ladies served refreshments after the games.

Legal Talk Heard by Grade Ten Students

The student and teachers of the Grade Ten classes, St. Michael's Academy, were privileged to have as guest speaker at a Friday afternoon in Education Week, Mr. B. Robertson Collins, local barrister.

In the course of this talk, Mr. Collins dealt with the legal documents with which the average citizen has experience. Using them as samples, he explained "Contract of Purchase and Sale" to "Last Will and Testament", Mr. Collins traced out in sequence the experiences of a man and his wife, starting with the purchase of a home, and going on through various ventures such as setting up in business, borrowing money, laying off debts, and ending with the important matter of making a will.

The girls felt that this was a most instructive talk. For the commercial students in particular, who now have the set of legal forms usually before them, as a practice reference material, it was especially valuable.

Sacraments Discussed at Contact Club

On Monday evening, a study group meeting was held by the Contact Club of Holloway Street United church.

After opening the meeting, president Catherine Roulet, warmly welcomed Reverend Bannerman Weatherall, to the club.

A short business period followed which plans were made for the balance of the March meetings.

Catherine presented Archdeacon E. F. Bannerman, who delivered a most interesting film "What is a Sacrament"? It dealt with the Holy Sacraments of Baptism and Holy Communion and questions were answered. Then a little hazy, were soon cleared up by the Archdeacon's enlightening comments.

A short question and answer period followed.

Alice Wonnacott extended the thanks of the club to Archdeacon Evergan.

Refreshments served by the hostesses, Mrs. Lloyd Rogers and Alice Wonnacott, pleasantly ended the evening.

This and That Spring?

Why should the sight of a crow in a field or the caw of a crow unseen a train of thought? We do not know, yet this has been the case this week. We heard the first crow call for the 1956 spring migration by the first of March, and have since seen the crow. The crow may not be the messenger of love but is a forerunner of spring. Anyhow Mr. and Mrs. Crow are here.

How fascinating it would be to be a linguist and understand birdtalk. The wonder of the birds have weather on and, if so, imagine the names the crow is calling them today. And when when it comes to acid comment, what could be more devilish than a crow's raucous caw.

Then other questions crept in. Where have the crows been since all the rain, sleet, snow, ice and zero weather have we not heard the disgusted remarks of one who has just returned to Belleville from say, Miami. But the crow has no shelter with automatic heating.

Maybe we say "Fi on the cruel black crow who cares"; but we have been seeing these birds of other feathered friends whom we did not recognize more than knowing they were not winter birds.

"The fact that the weather man cannot control the fickleness of the elements may give some kind of affinity to all living creatures. But maybe it is the life in the character whom Huxley was prompted to accuse of being so prone to let little things get him wondering that even a naughty parish day could scrub up Canada badge draws like a magnet and many Canadians is always pleased to pass the time of day with a fellow Canadian, and this is likely to be all well.

Tehuantepec is a small town of perhaps 10,000 people. It is the largest town between Tapachula and Salina Cruz, a distance of 150 miles. It is the most comfortable hotels I have ever found. I have a double room for ten pesos which are three dollars. Meals are served, and what meals; They are the best I have yet eaten in Mexico, including Mexico City. The rate is ten pesos per meal, which I shall leave for Guatemala maybe tomorrow, or the next day. I like Guatemala even though it is very hot; people here seem friendly and helpful.

At one time I thought that I might have a ride part way through Mexico with an American, a writer, but it fell through because he was unable to himself forced to reconsider his time table because he was so busy writing for his newspaper.

ROOM OVERCHARGE

Remember the party with which I went to Tapachula? We were nearly arrested at Coatzalcoalcos over room rent. I met him again in Tehuantepec where she told me that next morning-in Tapachula-a car was to be arrived at the Palacio Hotel from crossing over the Guatemalan border on the ferry, from Allende, the end of the railroad line, they were driving to Mexico City and which stated that the regulated price of room was ten pesos whereas they were being charged 20 pesos! "Well," said the hus-band, "We simply won't pay it." "The room is not worth it," and indeed, it was not worth it, it was mine, for that matter; but it was the only hotel we could find at that hour with room, as it was Saturday night, you know.

The manager was declared to the manager that he was being unlawfully overcharged, the latter stormed and blustered but prevented them from getting into their car. It all ended in the manager calling a policeman and they were all taken down to the police station. Here they spent an unenviable hour or two trying to explain to the police officer what the trouble was.

"Finally" said the wife, "I" managed to convince him through my broken-down Spanish that he should call the Chief of Police in Turismo. When he did this, the fact of overcharging was admitted and the Turismo agents said "We are so very sorry, Madam, that this unfortunate thing happened. That hotel manager is crazy in the head." What a joke. I am glad I got out of there when I did.

THE RIO CHAMPOTON EXPEDITION /

"Among the ambitions of travel there always has been the desire to journey up a tropical river; but little did I realize the consequences of my meeting Mr. Dick one day in the Palacio Hotel, when I planned to leave Merida in two days, that would be on the following Monday. Mr. Dick had some surprise, that on answering a knock at my door on Saturday night, Mr. Dick and my old friend Mr. Baker, walked in.

My new acquaintance was a big fellow of considerable proportions, but possessed of a pleasing manner and, judging from his remarks, a person of no little intelligence. I was to be highly elated with the exuberance of his spirits, which he had displayed in the almost youthful glee with which he broached his ambitious plan.

"They tell me you have been around quite a bit down here. Tell me where there are cenotes, lakes or rivers where I can catch some samples of fish. You see I operate a tropical fish business in Chicago, and I am looking for that I hadn't been around much, really, but I knew of a few cenotes because I had been on them.

After a brief discussion of the cenote angle, he suddenly burst out with "Why don't you come to that lake. ... over here beyond Peto!" as he ran his fingers over the map which I had spread on upon the bed.

"Yes get there you would have to practically organize a tropical expedition. The country here is hilly and heavily forested." We dropped the subject of 'Peto'.

"Oh, it's only a few days or so I'll take a run down to Champoton. There are crocodiles in many fish there," he said. After a few pleasantries, the two amigos departed for the night.

"I saw Mr. Dick again the following morning. He would you like to look me up in Campeche!" I asked. "I'll be staying at the Hotel Colonial." "Fine thing," he replied and then we parted.

The trip to Campeche contained little of interest, save for a ruger region stretching for some miles beyond Kabah. We passed little tumey which leads into the ruins of Labna and Sayil, further ruins. I reflected, must be over there among those hills. How I regretted not being able to get there! It was a long, tedious ride, made more so by the many corduroy roads on the road which, though paved, was full of pot-holes. Consequently the bus had to slow down to a crawl. We would meet a road gang filling up the holes but it looked to me like an all year job—by the time they get it finished it will be time to start all over again. The dust was choking and will have holes of all of the time.

My first two days in Campeche were spent in the hotel waiting for another. Aside, from that, I watched along the water front and in the park, but to come back to that first day. . . On arrival at my destination, I was met and siged by myriads of taxi and boys who insisted that I should patronize in particular. I knew nothing about Campeche. I had only been told that an only four blocks but it turned out to be more like eight. Finally I found a taxi and all that stuff for six or eight blocks. Never believe what they tell you a distance! .

A BAD NIGHT

The hotel Campeche had been recommended to me by a friend can. I checked in. Obtained a smallish room at 12 pesos. I had my own bathroom. I had a bath and hoped for a comfortable night. Barely had my head upon the pillow, when I became aware that I stunk like a Limburger cheese. Hitherto odor I never had the displeasure to encounter. There were two floor in digut I attempted to sleep without me but the smell's memories of vagaries had not yet ended, for as soon as I switched off the light, I became pressing desire to scratch. Were they fleas? No, I had not detected the bed over carefully when taking the room, but there was only one bed.

But oh, that pillow! It smelt as if it had been reposing there for years. Needless to say, I spent an absolutely sleepless night. Next morning I went to the desk, paying my bill and then finding another hotel. This was the Hotel Castelmar a fine little hotel which I have no hesitation in recommending to anyone. The surprising part of it is that although my room was only half twice the size of the old, it cost only nine pesos.

That night I received a telephone call informing me that my friend Mr. Dick was in Campeche so I went over to see them. Thus it was that Mr. Dick invited me to join them on the motor launch expedition up the Rio Champoton.

Next morning after breakfasting together at the Hotel Colonial we left by car at 7.00 a.m. The shrimp boats of Lerma lay upon the water to our left as we made way in and out of the dusty streets of that city, on to the long stretch of road overlooking the harbor.

To the right and left of the road stood native huts with sides of palm leaves and roofs of the tic scene. Beyond Lerma the hilly country beckoned as we approached it. Limestone limestone outcrops dotted the landscape cuts along the sinuously winding road. In the distance, the many caves made by the natives in their search for plaster, pigments and for building stone, scending a gracefully curved incline, we found ourselves confronting along the cliffs by the sea, the terrain becoming more and more rugged.

Seybalpaya, is very old and weather-beaten village. Beyond the hilly country beckoned as we approached it. Limestone outcrops dotted the landscape cuts along the sinuously winding road. In the distance, the many caves made by the natives in their search for plaster, pigments and for building stone, scending a gracefully curved incline, we found ourselves confronting along the cliffs by the sea, the terrain becoming more and more rugged.

Seybalpaya, is very old and weather-beaten village. Beyond the building in particular which is of interest: there is a huge limestone cliff of curiously intricate design, the whole building being encased by the limestone formation.

Leaving Seyba the road takes to the seashore once more where we see many pelicans, herons, and storks in the sea. This, Mr. Dick informed me, is the home by the ocean of fish. When the fishermen see these areas they immediately look for good fishing.

FISH EXPEDITION

The basic purpose of our expedition, Mr. Dick remembered was to investigate any likely fishes which he might be interested in. The first stream we came to at sight, Mr. Dick signaled to stop, the tide was out enabling one to see to the bottom, where there was a considerable pool. Mr. Dick darted hither and thither. These fish were about two inches long, and bodies shaped exactly like a narrow pipe.

As the stream was much too muddy along the banks to allow for any seining, we left it and went for a stroll along the shore. We were rewarded by a close-up look at the Mayan ruins of Seybalpaya or 10 inches from up to tip. The crustacean had been isolated in low tide in a shallow pool and had died. Its entire being was of an orangy-yellow color.

Barely had I finished photographing the crustacean when the others called my attention to a monstrous crab with a hard shell on top, with undertparts of orange and brown, while the upper shell was of a nondescript gray. Nearby in a pool was a number of the ray family, one of those triangular-shaped creatures with a tail out the back. Besides these oddities we noticed many strange shells, all very beautiful and intricate. But the journey must go on.

Halitunchen is an Indian pueblo even more quaint than the others. At such we saw a number of the ray family, one of those triangular-shaped creatures with a tail out the back. Besides these oddities we noticed many strange shells, all very beautiful and intricate. But the journey must go on.

A comparatively small hotel in New York has created a comparatively large stir in recent months by the installation of a series of guest conveniences you've probably wished someone would think of long ago.

It was the first, and still the only, hotel in New York to be completely air conditioned, and it even lopped itself by installing thermostats outside the guest rooms so you'll appreciate how much more comfortable you are inside than you'd be outside.

Then came such strokes of brilliance as the installation of tele-phone extensions and scales in bathrooms and radio-talk contact between telephone -operators and all service employees such as maids, valets, bellboys and room service waiters.

The manager of this hotel is a Swiss who probably thought he was doing nothing more than applying some of the principles of innkeeping long known and applied in his native country, where innkeeping has been an art and a major industry for a long, long time.

Over there it is ordinary routine for guests to be waited on and even entertained, listing such intimate but usual matters as your kind of wine bi drinks, whether like most Americans he prefers a glass of beer or ale with his meal, or lie likes a heavy or light pillow and how many and what kind of (not that) and one or two blankets.

FANTASTIC FADS

These are but a few of the details, and the most fantastic pains are taken to accumulate them without bothering you with a request to forget anything about your guest, including your name, which is a desirable one and will be able to get a room there again.

A few Americans hotels keep a record of what kind of room a guest likes, but they don't go as to accommodate him similarly on future reservations, but that's usually as far as they go.

No one expects all American hotel owners to go in for such bathroom scales and air conditioners for every guest, but it is to be hoped that many American commercial hotels, even the finest, will catch a new spirit of service, and break away from the lack of imagination.

Not the least expensive innovation would be a separate house dressed up by the Swiss in New York. Some would be totally inexpensive and others would pay handsomely for the service, but the undying gratitude of most guests instead of the feeling of resentment too many travelers have for too many hotels. For instance:

SUGGESTED SERVICES

It's almost impossible to get a suit cleaned or laundry done after 9 or 10 a.m. except on the days Saturdays and Sundays. Yet even-

Then all clambered into the large Indian canoa.

It was time to eat so something, although we had been so much excitement that we almost forgot eating.

No doubt the Indian paddlers thought us quite mad when they saw us fishing for them fishing is either for eating or for bait. That any one would want one for merely to look at, was quite beyond them. Finally we were all by the mouth in fish catching by simply holding an empty bottle in the water and then shaking the several little fish swam right in. There was one fish of a greenish color with a yellow tinge. Mr. Dick decided to get out his big net, which would be about six feet high at the length of the boat, and about three feet wide. This was held by Mr. Dick, the other by Charlie.

AT FISHING

At a signal both men would pull up together to see what had been ennesheed. In this way Mr. Dick met with not successful because it would always get snagged under the canoe or against the rocks on the shore.

Then we moved on to the mouth of the river, where there were no submerged branches. Each time the net was lifted, it had a mass of half-rotted leaves, little twigs and other debris, and beneath all this, were the fish, and practically a large jar was filled. Then the bottles of dish soap and helpers had climbed out into the water where they stood up to above the middle, and by so doing were able to accomplish more than we could in the canoe. Then me his two cameras, instructing him to make certain notes of our activities —I had taken notes all along the way, as well. The sun was hot, and at 1 o'clock we decided he had enough fish for this trip, so we headed for Champoton.

BEAUTIFUL SCENERY

The scenery on the way back was even more beautiful than before as the afternoon sun lit up the hills and the mountains making it profitable to photograph the orchid clusters as well as the fine lacy outlines of the jungle trees against the background of noble cloud formations.

It was a lovely feeling just sitting there in the foremost of the launch, leaning back in comfort against the seat, my companion beside me, his feet sprawled across the bow, and

Suggestions for Better Service

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

Weekends are the only times most guests can spare their clothes long enough to get them cleaned.

The average person checks in during the early evening and is ready to leave for work by the next afternoon or evening, if he has to lay over a weekend to do his business, he still can't get his laundry done because the valet service closes on Saturday.

The same traveller who arrives early in the evening may have skipped his dinner on the road, train or plane, looking forward to it in the relaxed and pleasant surroundings of the hotel dining room. He may not be ready for dinner before 8:30 or 9 but, alas, by then the hotel dining room invariably is closed.

He must then turn to room service for a meal, which may soon has been closed, everyone else has finished their meals, and by the time the overworked waiter arrives with his dinner, it is cold.

The chief function of room service traditionally has been to provide late snacks, and in most hotels, room service may be closed down as early as 10 or 11 o'clock—rather than midnight, which is just about when you start thinking about eating particularly if you've been travelling late.

There are a few other little things that cost hotels so much more in good will than the cash it would take to correct them, the predominance of perfumed lady's bath towels, for instance, is a substantial majority of hotel guests are men; the general scarcity of ashtrays in rooms, considering any kind of hangers), making it necessary to hang clothes in a manner that may put them out of press; the usual absence of full length mirrors installed by sandpaper-like toilet tissue and the lack of a shelf in the wall so that they come out in great bunches, shreds, and bits. Then someone once suggested that hotels could solve all their problems by installing a considerately courteous and friendly room clerk, but I suppose nobody would make the dissatisfied guest overlook most inadequacies. Still, a considerate clerk is a most considerate, or both. And telephone operators have helped the tired guest's mood a lot, are likely to be harried and inattentive to a degree that all hotel guests sound like crabs, well, most of them are. It is not funny for tired travellers and hotelmen except the fact that tired travellers are inclined to be crabby. It's their difficult but challenging task to change the climate of the clerks.

They may not be equipped to put your name on a list and ask whether you prefer a hard or soft pillow, but most of us on this side of the border would be grateful for smaller favors.

The water was so still that a strange aura of unreality seemed to hang over the scene, and even the sounds were incapable of breaking the stillness—as though they were left numb and only later through memory and the imagination will they play by the picture records or a revisit to the scene bring the realization of it come over one.

This article is being finished in Tapachula, where I arrived this morning, (Thursday, February 9, 1956) at 11.35 a.m. after one of the most tiring and boring trips of my entire career. We left Merida at ten on the train from Juchiten for a distance of only 400 kilometers! I arose at 4.30 Wednesday to catch the Tehuantepec bus to Juchiten. There I was to board the train for Tapachula, but the train did not arrive until 11.30; so I had to kill time there for five hours and a half. Trains are not at old time they feel like it in Mexico.

Beauty Is Contentment

Would you like to be a princess like England's Margaret? It wouldn't solve a thing for even princesses have problems!

By JEANNE D'ARCY

Everything's relative! Now, with the news that a American girl's going to marry a royal Prince, there's many a castle being built in the air. How many fair beauties see themselves in such Cinderella slippers? The number must be legion!

But what does being a princess solve? Not a thing! Even they have problems—and all you have to do is refer to the back-number of newspaper file on England's Princess Margaret, even though a history book to see it's so.

SEE HAS EVERYTHING

What got us started on this topic was an article about the first Queen Elizabeth, the one after whom they named the Elizabethan age. There was a damsel in position, person—in fact just about everything. Was she happy? According to all accounts, No!

She wasn't so beauty, although, heavens knows, she tried. What she wouldn't have given to have just a fraction of today's beauty aids at her disposal!

In those good old days, when ladies fair were smothered in purple and ermine, they would gladly have traded in a castle for such mundane articles as toothpaste, permanent waves, nail polish, deodorant, scented soap and such. And they're all items that we take for granted.

What a waste of time it is to daydream about being a very important someone. It accomplishes nothing. It would be far wiser for the would-be Princess Royal to spend their spare time making the most of the good looks they have, and the opportunities that come their way, than to dream of the impossible.

As that Hit Parade favorite says, "Count Your Blessings". Be realistic and practical.

SOMETHING TO LEARN

Thanks to modern discoveries, almost every girl can be queen when it comes to good looks. What she has to learn, however, is to be happy in her own kingdom, whether it's a cold-water walk up or a duplex apartment on Park Avenue.

Being beautiful isn't enough. Being contented is what counts. This doesn't mean lack of ambition, it merely means an outlook that enables you to appreciate your life as it is and as it's likely to be.

Envying others doesn't bring happiness and certainly detracts from charm. You can't be a successful anything if all your spare time is spent figuring out ways to keep up with the Joneses!

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I enjoy your column so much and turn to it first thing. . . I have been saving up my questions: (1) How stiff should the egg whites be for folding into a chiffon cake? (2) When there are little balls of egg white that cannot be folded in, what should I do?—sometimes I sift them up? (3) Should the altitude here—3,200 feet—make any difference when baking a cake? (4) When I make a chocolate chiffon layer cake, 9-inch, one side of the layer raises high and the other half hardly at all. (5) You gave a recipe for De Luxe Chocolate Squares last Fall. The recipe was a "brownie recipe and the top was coconut and egg whites. The middle part of the Brownies did not cook and I wondered if it should be cooked first before the top part was spread on. The top was hard and seemed to be cooked too much. (6) I have a white cake recipe which is split when cool and a filling put between. . . . What's the reason the amount of flour isn't on the recipe. The following is it. Could you help me as to the amount of flour? Butter Cake: 1 cup sugar, 1-2 cup butter, 2 eggs, separated, 1 cup milk, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Add egg whites beaten last. (7) Have you any casserole dishes for a main course that may be made beforehand and can serve from 10 to 20 people . . . something that could be served with a salad and rolls . . . do you remember me?—L. McP.

ANSWER:

I will never forget your charm and thoughtfulness to my daughter and to me. Thank you for numbering your questions. We will tackle them in order (1) the egg whites in chiffon cake should be extremely stiff—10 minutes at high speed in electric beater is not too much. (2) Break up the little "balls" of egg white. (3) At 3,500 feet altitude the rule is to increase baking temperature by 25 deg. over temperature given in recipe. Since you are having baking trouble at 3,200 feet try increasing baking temperatures given in recipes by 20 degrees and decreasing amount of baking powder by 1 teaspoon. (4)* Would you take a careful look at the bottom burner in your oven to make sure it is functioning perfectly all over. Cakes should not just rise on one side if oven is evenly heated. Next time you bake a cake notice if it is on the same side of the oven that cake does not rise. (5) At any altitude those Brownies should be baked at 375. Your idea of baking the bottom layer a short time before applying topping is good—try 10 minutes. (6) The exact amount of flour for the 2-egg cake is 1 1-8 cup sifted. (7) I can give your recipe of cause. . . as to serve 10 to 20. The following was a prize-winner in a recipe contest:

CASSEROLE DELIGHT:

(Serves ten.)

Grind together through coarse knife of food chopper 1 lb. boiled ham, 1 medium onion and 1-2 green pepper. Gently saute in 2 tablespoons butter three minutes. Add 1 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 20-oz. tin cream-style corn, 1 10-oz. tin undiluted mushroom soup, 1-2 cup milk, 1 8-oz. package noodles cooked till tender. Bake in casserole topped with buttered cornflakes 45 minutes at 300 deg. Fahr. Let me know whenever I may help again.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOUR PARENTS HAVE TOLD YOU THE TRUTH

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

There is a boy I have been dating steadily off and on for five years, that is, ever since I was 14. I love this boy and he says he loves me, but we are always quitting and then making up again. Recently he told me that if we ever broke up again, it was final.

The trouble is that he lies to me; and he drinks, and he won't work. He is almost 20 years old and he has never worked in his whole life.

About a month ago he asked me to marry him, and I told him he would have to prove to me first that he would work. He says that he goes around looking for jobs, but I know he doesn't.

He runs around with a boy who drinks and lies and won't work, either. I told my boy friend that if he would quit running around with this boy he would be a lot better off. So he told me he would quit him, but at night he will slip away and go to meet him and not tell me anything about it.

Three weeks ago, when we broke up again, he told me he had better not see me with any other boys. After that, I was with a boy in the movies when he came in and sat down in front of us. He was going to beat up this boy I was with, so he got to drinking and jumped on another boy who beat him up. Now he won't even speak to me when he sees me. Yet when he saw me at the movies again and the boy I was with went out for a few minutes, he came over and sat right beside me.

My family don't want me to date this boy. They tell me that if he won't work before he is married, he won't work afterward.

What is your opinion about this? —M. C.

Dear M.C.:

If you started going with this chap when you were 14, and have dated him for five years, then you must be nearly 20 years old yourself. At that age, you should certainly have some sense of what you would be crazy to marry him. In fact, I think you do know it perfectly well, but want someone to tell you of some miracle that will turn him from an irresponsible scamp into good husband material.

This, you should also know at your age, can't be done. The only way it could ever come about would be for your boy friend to have a change of heart and want more than anything else to make a worthwhile character of himself. At this point, he certainly shows no such desire.

Your family have already told you the exact truth—that if this 20-year-old young man has never, up to now, shown any interest in going to work and behaving like a sober, responsible citizen, marriage is not going to change him into one overnight. I am very glad you have such sensible parents, and I hope you will pay attention to what they tell you.

My advice to you is that instead of letting him be the one to say your break-up is "final," you be the one to do it and mean it enough to make it so. There are plenty of reliable and worthwhile young men in the world and you had better wait until one of this type comes along.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

SPRING ACCESSORIES

There's drama in simplicity and accessories should be chosen with this fact in mind.

Whether you have already bought, or are only planning to buy your new spring outfit, you probably have plans, or are giving the matter a great deal of thought. Is it to be a smartly tailored suit, or perhaps a sheath dress which you'll combine with the latest in coats? And that! It will probably take you hours of shopping to find just the right one for the Easter parade.

But what about your accessories? Do you give as much thought to them as you do to the larger purchases? You should, you know, since just one accessory can keyed to your ensemble can destroy the whole effect. To prevent this catastrophe and to help you make a selection which will not be costly in the long run, here are a few suggestions:

If you're buying a handbag, take two things into consideration: Is it right for my size? And will it harmonize with other suits and frocks which are in my wardrobe? Where size is concerned, keep your proportions in mind. If you're a tall girl, don't settle for a skimpy little bag just because it's "pretty" and if you're a "shorty" don't even look at the outsize numbers" which will only help to dwarf your appearance. Then consideration of other garments in your wardrobe will help you decide if it won't a bright red bag will look stunning with your Easter outfit, what good is it going to be if it won't go with another thing you own? Plan it safe. Buy a bag that will not only accent your new costume but will be a practical complement to other outfits.

The matter of size is as important in the choice of all accessories as it is in the selection of a handbag. They look, dinky scarves and invisible bits of costume jewelry are "lost" on the tall girl, and cartwheel shimmers, chunky necklaces, bracelets and earrings overpower the petite type.

Be careful, too, in the matching and mating of your accessories. Don't buy too many in the same color. A red hat, red bag, red shoes, red gloves and, perhaps, a red scarf or lapel flower, will do absolutely nothing for a navy suit. But take that same navy suit and "dress it up" with just a red hat and red bag and keep the balance of the accessories in navy—or perhaps with one or two in white—and you're on the beam.

In selecting accessories, consider fabrics, too. They don't always have to match. Even in spring there's no law that says you have to wear a straw hat if you happen to have a smart little velvet number that will set off your cloth coat to perfection. And there's no law, either, that requires that you purchase all new accessories just because you're buying a new outfit. That string of cultured pearls is timeless where beauty is concerned, and you can wear it with practically anything. The pretty jeweled lapel pin that Aunt Mamie gave you for Christmas may look just the right touch on a severely tailored hat and, if the outfit is exceptionally becoming to you, there's no reason at all why the matching scarf and gloves which accompanied your winter suit won't be equally becoming with your spring outfit.

In the choice of accessories it's good taste that counts—and that means a happy coordination of color, line and fabric. Accessories are designed to accent a costume. Don't minimize their importance, but, on the other hand, don't overplay them.

WRITING NAMES OF CHILDREN TO BE INVITED TO WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

On my list for my wedding invitations I have several families who have two or three children I would like to have come to my wedding (these early-teen-age children are of approximately the same age as my younger sister and brother. We very much want these friends of theirs to come to the wedding). There are several younger children in these families who I think are too young to be invited. I have a limited number of engraved invitations, and can't figure out how if I address these family - invitations to "Mr. and Mrs.—and family" (as has been suggested), the mother and father would know which children we want to have come to the wedding. How can I do this? — S.

There is a very simple and sensible and definite way to do this. Address the outside envelope to Mr. and Mrs. John Page. Then on the inside envelope write, under the names of the parents, the names of the children you wish to include in the invitation. Like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Page
Marie and Janet
Arthur and George

(Please don't ever use "and family"—this is definitely taboo on invitations and invitation-envelopes, and isn't at all necessary. Be it always in some way to list the names, thus giving personal compliment to those being invited.)

HOSTESS TELLS WEDDING GUEST DEFINITE DEPARTURE-TIME

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just received an invitation to spend a week-end with some friends who have a lovely house in the country. I have not known these friends very long, but I did think that I would get very well. Their letter of invitation to me seemed very gracious and hospitable until I came to the part that suggested just the train which I am to take back on Sunday evening. (I am to come on a train that arrives early-afternoon on Friday.) I can understand, of course, mentioning the train I am to take there, for there is the question of being met, and so forth. But don't you agree that directing me about the train I am to take back is not very hospitable or really in good taste? — Lucy

No, I don't at all agree with you. And please don't think that my attitude is out-of-order in her suggestion. It is an entirely mistaken point of view that it is rude for a hostess to tell a guest the exact length of time for which she or he is invited. It is indeed far from rude . . . it is the essence of polite consideration, for with this definite information, both hostess and guest make plans according to the time set, and so there need be no awkwardness or misunderstanding.

A "week-end" is a variable period, and the practical hostess has to explain what she means by this period of time. Today's busy hostess has to schedule her hospitality and her plans wisely, to fit in with her obligations and her service. Naturally she expects her guests to understand and graciously cooperate . . . and this, dear reader, please do.

HOSTESS MAY DIRECT GUESTS TO THEIR PLACES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The other evening I went to a large dinner party in a home, a dinner somewhat on the formal side. Although there were place cards, the hostess, standing at her place at table, did some "directing" of the guests, telling them where their place cards were. Was this correct, since there were the place cards for them to see? — Reader

Not a bit of impropriety in this. As a matter of fact, I've seen many hostesses do this with such grace that they add a definite charm to the hospitality - procedure. For example, if Mrs. Horless notices that Mrs. A. (Lecocra) is searching for her place card, the hostess may say, "Leonora, your place is there, at Bill's right." Or, "Mrs. Thompson, your seat is here, next to Walter Davis . . . for I knew you two would want to talk about Spain!"

Economic Probe Will Soon Start Drafting Report

By HAROLD MORRISON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA (CP) — A new $30,000,000 paper mill may spring up in northwestern Quebec in the next few years, along with an $8,000,000 zinc refinery and a $1,000,000 meat distribution centre.

And to the east, in the hinterland of Quebec's Bala Comeau region on the northeastern shores of the St. Lawrence, there may be huge power and aluminum developments and in adjoining Labrador processing of rich beds of iron sands.

These prospects of great new expansion of Quebec's resources were outlined by directors of Chambers of Commerce before the Gordon economic commission which today winds up some six months of cross country hearings.

The nine-member crew, established to forecast the shape of Canadian's economy over stages of Canada's economic growth the next quarter-century, will soon begin drafting its report expected to be in the government's hands by the end of this year.

It will try to project Canada's population, resources and economic trends over the next 25 years and possibly couple this with suggestions of what course it would be best for Canada to follow in such controversial fields as tariffs, federal aid for education and taxes.

To help in its work, the commission has gathered submissions from more than 300 organizations and has fired questions at scores of various experts. Testimony is estimated at more than 5,000,000 words.

Virtually every segment of the country has predicted economic expansion, though the Maritimes have figured they may lag behind. Quebec's Bale Comeau and Abitibi regions predict they will surge ahead.

But the Bale Comeau Chamber of Commerce, in its brief today, said it is difficult for the $1,000,000,000 industrial region to operate efficiently without year-round shipping facilities.

It maintained winter navigation in the lower St. Lawrence and the gulf is feasible if one or two $2,500,000 ice-breakers could be provided by the federal government.

In the Abitibi area of northwestern Quebec, the Chamber of Commerce there believed a $30,000,000 paper mill may be established in a few years and along with it a $18,000,000 power station. The mill would be located on the north shore of Lake Matagami, some 325 miles north of Ottawa.

If the zinc industry would allow it newcomer, the Abitibi area may give birth to a $2,000,000 mill with a capacity of 21,000 tons of zinc a year.

Bulletins From Birdland

THE SANCTUARY QUESTION

Someone has said that if an epidemic wiped out all birds, within a year North America would be blanketed with insects to a depth of five inches. Perhaps he exaggerated; nevertheless, man must cannot control insects.

Without a doubt, DDT used in check budworms in New Brunswick's forests last summer did kill such insects; but a controversy arose. Was this the chief cause of the subsequent deaths? What became of insectivorous birds? We cannot afford to simply let the birds eat their own weight of insecticide insects, in a day.

Fortunately, however, in the last 50 years public opinion throughout the American has been aroused in favor of bird protection. Sanctuaries by the dozen, both government owned and privately owned, are springing up. There are now over 70 in Ontario by the Ontario government; Canadian Wildlife Service is under federal authority; the R.C.M.P. arrest poachers brought to their attention; hunting laws are tightened; and Ducks Unlimited is an organization devoted to conservation, with feelers stretching the continent.

To the long list of birds protected by federal law, the individual provinces have added others. Now Saskatchewan is far ahead in bird conservation, while Newfoundland and Nova Scotia lead, with only five or six species still unprotected.

FAMOUS GANNETS

Quebec's gannets have become famous. Thousands of visitors are attracted to Bonaventure Island and Perce Rock, where a sanctuary established in 1919. In 1943 birds nested only at the edge of the 230-foot cliffs, now nests take up all available space. The edge of the rock is crumbling, but the Province Government has offered to help preserve it.

Manitoba has become decidedly bird conscious. The Delta waterfowl research station in Manitoba is supported by money contributed by individuals, although research is carried on by Canadian and United States governments, universities, and sportsmen. In the summer of '55, a group of Toronto residents approached the provincial government, seeking the creation of a bird bird sanctuary at the south end of Lake Dauphin.

A storm of protest arose when the U.S. Air Force proposed using Manitoba marshes for whooping cranes as a bombing range. Even the Canadian government, on Feb. 14, October the idea was abandoned.

In the same month, British conservationists induced the R.A.F. authorities to give up plans for a heavy-bomber range where white-footed geese winter. And so you see, often with the help provided by governments, bird watchers are winning out in bird preservation.

Would Give Odds In Forecasts Of Weather

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — If Fresno meteorologists have their way, you soon may be able to get a "morning line" on the weather.

Chief forecaster R. O. Lothman has proposed that the weather bureau be permitted to use bookmakers' terminology in making predictions.

Lothman's forecasts would go something like this: "There is a 50-50 chance of light showers today," or "It's 6 to 5 there'll be rain before nightfall."

The odds would replace such familiar — and indefinite — terms as "probable, possible and likely."

Facts every Canadian family should know about instalment buying

BAC

Are you embarrassed about buying "on time"?

Don't be. The pay-as-you-go plan is almost exclusively Canadian. Sixty-five percent of our families use it, and it is a big factor in our high standard of living and our high rate of employment. Not only is it as sound as a dollar, it's one of the reasons the dollar is so sound.

As you drive down the streets of your town, check off two houses and skip one — check two, and skip one — two out of every three houses are buying something on time. Look at the television aerials — thousands of them — two out of every three were bought on time. Economists recognize this instalment buying as a powerful force in our economy. We feel that the general public should understand it too. Since the odds are two-to-one that you will buy something on time this year, perhaps you'll want all the facts—

Why do 65% of Canadian families use instalment buying?

Who are these people that buy on time? Are they poor families with very limited incomes? Are they irresponsible people living beyond their means?

Not at all.

They are simply growing families, already in the middle and upper-middle income groups — $3,000 - $8,000 per year. Families with promising futures, where the head of the family feels his family should enjoy some of the nicer things as they go along. They buy their TV sets, furniture and appliances ON TIME but not at the SAME TIME. Contrary to tight-lipped warnings we used to hear, they don't, as a rule, overdo. The fact is Canadian families in general handle their fabulous credit opportunity with real maturity — to them it is a way to "Use-As-You-Pay" for things they CAN afford, not a way to get what is beyond their means.

For example, when a family buys a TV set, they are buying, in one package hundreds of hours of enjoyment — to be used over several years. Financing the purchase permits them to tie its cost to the useful life of the set—and to family income. Well, one might say, that's O.K. for the people who use instalment buying, but what about the big picture? What about our national economy?

What would happen to prices without Instalment buying?

Take television — you can buy a bright new one for around $300. If there were no instalment buying, the price could easily be $500 or $600 for the same set.

You see, about two-thirds of T.V. sets are bought on time. Elimination of instalment buying would cut deeply into television sales — and production. The price per unit would soar. And it doesn't take too much imagination to see how JOBS would soon melt away . . .

First at T.V. factories and dealers, then at their many suppliers too. The same is true of washing machines and furniture and dozens of other everyday items. Our high standard of living is based on mass production AND MASS SALES. Mass time-credit is one of the key lubricants that keeps this great economic machine moving.

Instalment purchases are actually automatic savings.

When you buy durable goods such as appliances on time, you make regular payments out of earnings. These actually amount to savings. The items that you accumulate through the years have cash value. You are building up your net worth. And the truth is, you probably wouldn't have gained this increased worth if you hadn't committed yourself to an instalment purchase. It is just human nature — we all perform better when we impose a discipline upon ourselves. When we promise to pay $20 a month for a T.V. set, we manage to pay for it. Without such commitments, we seldom discipline ourselves so well and much of our earnings just seems to slip through our fingers. Economists have long recognized this feature in instalment buying. They even have an economic term for it — "forced savings." But few of us have ever stopped to count the value that we have accumulated in this way. Take a quick look at the things around your house bought on time — you'll be surprised at the value you have built up.

Are today's financing charges fair?

As in any other highly competitive free enterprise, charges and profits get cut almost unbelievably thin.

The Canadian supermarket is famed as an institution that operates on an extremely low profit; yet the SALES-FINANCE INDUSTRY NETS LESS ON ITS VOLUME THAN SUPERMARKETS DO.

The current rate on a new appliance loan is usually less than $10 per $100 per year. That is, if you borrow $500 to be returned in 12 monthly payments, you pay $47 charges.

These charges are not to be thought of as interest. Include interest — yes — but they must also cover the cost of credit reports, executing the lien, setting up an account on the books, receiving and crediting each payment to the proper account, and finally releasing the lien and returning the note.

Our business, like the retail store, involves many individual transactions and services. When a business firm goes to the bank for a loan, they borrow a large sum — say $10,000 — payable in full in 90 days. They get it all at one time . . . they pay it back at one time . . . the operation is as simple as that. With a finance company, that $10,000 is divided into perhaps 35 new appliance loans. And each of these borrowers will make from 12 to 24 payments in returning the money.

THE TRANSACTION IS NO LONGER A SIMPLE ONE! One typical sales-finance company reports that there are over 25 separate office operations in handling their average loan! And so, we find sales-finance companies are able to make less than 2% profit on the dollar volume of their loans — less than the famously economical supermarkets. Now, let's see what kind of service the finance companies perform — what does the customer get out of the deal?

How Life Protection guarantees your contract.

Even when families budget themselves properly, there is of course still the possibility that their income will be cut by sickness, accident or death.

Fortunately, there is a plan — now in general use — to protect families against the occurrence of death.

Today, life insurance policies are available to cover almost every kind of debt from the mortgage on your house, debt arising from a disastrous automobile accident, or from any number of unexpected emergencies. For loans of only a few months duration, such as those used to buy furniture or appliances, there is a special type of short term policy called "Credit Life Insurance." These policies are written by a large number of substantial life insurance companies. And most well run finance companies make this protection available to their customers. Protection of this kind relieves the unfortunate widow of making any further payments on the account. It certainly adds to a sense of security to know that you and your family are fully covered in the event of an untimely demise.

Economists and others familiar with the country's consumer finance business highly recommend the use of this protection.

Here's a typical case.

Sam Roe wants to buy a combination washer and dryer for his wife. He picks one out that might cost $600. He only has $100 and $500 is needed to complete the deal.

The conversation between Sam and the dealer might go something like this:

"Mr. Roe, we have a connection with a finance company and can arrange to finance the balance right now."

"Fine, let's figure on making the payments just as small as possible. How long can I take to pay?"

"Well. with your down payment you CAN take up to 24 months but it's best NOT to. If you return $500 in 12 months your charges on the loan will be $47. But if you take 24 months, you'll end up paying a great deal more. The old law of mathematics sets the rules—pay as much DOWN as you can; pay the balance as QUICK as you can; and you'll get your loan as CHEAP as you can."

So that's the way they arranged it. For charges of less than 10% Sam gets the immediate use of a washer-dryer . . . gets it a year sooner than he could without financing . . . and his wife is more than happy.

Is there risk of overdoing instalment buying?

ANY DEVICE EMPLOYED BY HUMAN BEINGS CAN BE USED TO PROMOTE WELFARE OR LOWER IT. Yes, like eating or working or playing, instalment buying can be overdone.

We have two rules that we always suggest to keep a family's instalment buying sound. (1) Pay as much down as possible, pay out as quickly as is possible, and you save money. (2) Keep your total payments within proven limits.

A family should normally devote not more than 10% to 20% of their income to the purchase of durable goods such as appliances, furniture and T.V. sets. Generally, families stay well within these limits. When a new time-purchase will take a prospective borrower beyond this limit, we advise him to wait. And unless there are special circumstances, we have to refuse the loan until other things are paid out.

We do this for several reasons: first, we want our national economy to be sound, but it won't be if people over-extend. Second, we want our industry to be sound, and it won't be if our service isn't properly used. Thirdly, we don't like to repossess goods. It's unpleasant. We both lose money. And besides, we're in the finance business; we don't want to be put in the merchandise business by having to take back goods.

BELLVUE ACCEPTANCE'S PLACE IN INSTALMENT BUYING

A Note from Bellvue's President:

Our company was organized in Belleville in 1945. The head office is still in Belleville, though branch offices are now operated in many cities and towns throughout Ontario.

From the beginning, we have SPECIALIZED in time-sales-financing of furniture, appliances, television, and also in making direct loans secured by household furnishings. Remember, we have in the past, and will continue in the future to SPECIALIZE in appliance financing. Through the years, we have grown to be a fairly sizeable company; as of December 31, 1955, we have paid out more than a total of $20,000,000. to dealers and borrowers.

We are particularly proud of the fact that people who have done business with us like to come back.

We feel that in any business, the leading companies have a duty to explain to the public just how the business functions. This advertisement is a start. But it can't of course, answer specific questions. So I would like you to consider this your personal invitation to stop in at any of our branches for a talk with our manager. He'll be happy to see you.

SINCERELY,

C. M. Cawker

WAYS AND MEANS!

Bob Service once wrote: "There are strange things done 'neath the midnight sun . . ." The famous author of "Sam McGee" and "Dangerous Dan McGrew" would perhaps extend his territory if he knew of the strange goings-on taking place along conservation lines.

Out California way wide-eyed native sons and daughters, not to mention the visitors from the effete east, will again go ga-ga looking at smog speckled with moving colored spots.

Feathered actors will move across this heavenly television screen in blobs of pink, green and yellow. The show is continuous and the week-day spectacular will be shown only during the migration season of the geese.

It seems the California Fish and Game Department has a yen for knowledge. It wants to know "where the wild goose goes," probably thinking any bird is crazy to leave California. They net the geese in various gadgets, gaudy them in colors of pink, blue and yellow and send 'em on their way.

The scheme worked fine last season. Observers along the northern route of flight plotted their movements. The idea had other results, too. A convention on the loose spotted a flock of nine "Pinks," one "green" and eight "yellow" models pumping their way to the cool spots of the Arctic regions. The next day fifty members of the fraternity joined the pilgrim. Local No. 2163433 Flat Elephants and Field Snakes Brotherhood, is lodging a protest.

In other parts of Washington and New Jersey, deer have declared open season on humans. Without bothering to procure a licence, herds of the venison dinners driven from the high levels by heavy mountain snow, are invading orchards, and ruining fruit trees.

Desperate farmers are arming themselves as protection against these ferocious horned threats. After all who wants to be spitted and roasted merely by a butting of hungry bucks. They are even knocking down the deer in droves, in some places merely for target practice, conservation people think. Authorities state 111—count 'em—111—were shot in one orchard alone.

New Jersey conservationists have other ideas of getting rid of the surplus deer population. Next to the mosquitoes, the wandering bucks are the largest thing to seek human companionship the state has known in years.

But, it seems that in other parts of Jersey there are spots that are devoid of the horned clowns. So the conservation boys same up with an unique, if fanciful remedy.

In one part of the state the deer are so thick farmers can no longer plant unfenced crops. The government's fish and game department plans to shoot the surplus deer with tranquilized bullets. Orders have been placed for strychnine arsenate.

Dope peddlers need not build up any hopes for an increased market. The "shots" given the deer are merely sleep producers and the flesh after taking the dope will be lyebye quickly and wake up in a brand new feeding ground.

The "dope" is loaded into the jackets of .22 cartridges from which the lead core has been removed and the powder charge reduced fifty per cent. The deer are shot in some fashion parts of Jersey and as soon as they topple over in a drug-induced stupor field men pick them up and transport them to the selected areas.

According to a state official the bucks are quickly brought back to consciousness with an injection of phenobarbital.

While the scheme is said to be successful in the case of deer, it might work on medium-in-law and other surplus population. However, potential get-ridders are warned not to try out the idea. They are liable to forget the shot of phenobarbital.

1400 SAW IT!

Stirling's hard-fighting bantam puckists ran into a well-coached, well-balanced team in their final barrier to the OMHA bantam "C" title last night.

The heavier, trickier Rotary kids from Foxest had a little too much on the hockey hall for Pete Utman's proteges, who battled gamely in a lost cause until the final whistle blew.

The Stirling defence looked weak at times, and they were slow in clearing the puck. Their first line of Smith, Mayhew and Palmer was by far the most effective, scoring all the team's goals.

Frank Dalton, starry centre for the Foxest team, was a standout. The tall, rangy youngster, definitely a star in the making, was a thorn in Stirling's side all night. He scored five goals and assisted in another.

Poker-Faced Winnipeg Skip Fires Once-in-Lifetime Shot To Snatch Cup from Ontario

By GERRY MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Billy Walsh clicked a curve and won the Canadian curling championship for Manitoba.

He did it Friday night to snatch a sensational 8-7 extra-end victory over Ontario. It was one of the most stirring finishes in the Canadian classic and the 3,200 fans packed in Moncton Stadium rose to their feet in salute to the poker-faced Walsh.

Walsh, a scholarly-looking gent who captured the crown once before, broke up an Ontario two house with a shot that curled around guards and on to the blue. It was one of those shots that happen once in a lifetime.

"Never made a shot like it," said the 39-year-old civil servant skip from the Winnipeg Fort Rouge club.

CONVENT AMAZED

And Alfie Phillips, 46-year-old skip of Toronto's Granite Club who took up the game nine years ago as a hobby after a star-studded career as a diver, agreed all the way with Walsh. "Bill's shot was fantastic—beautiful. A game I will always remember."

Art Condie of Montreal, director of the 11-rink tournament that draws the best from across the country including two from Ontario—Northern Ontario and Ontario—summed up the champion-ship-winning shot this way:

"You'll never see one better."

It was the first extra-end play-off in the 27-year history of the championship and the 15th time Manitoba has won the title. Altogether, the West has taken the crown 22 times.

Not since 1935 when Bert Hall stopped his Kitchener Granites to the title has Ontario come so close to capturing the Macdonald's Brier Trophy. A victory would have been one of the biggest upsets in this year's five-day competition.

NEEDED& WIZARDRY

Walsh, who won the 1952 title on his first challenge for Canadian honors, needed all the wizardry of his favorite style of game to beat Ontario. Both ended the 11-round contest with identical 8-2 won-lost records.

After a blanket first end the rinks settled into a set pattern of play. The leads and seconds played a running-knockout game and the thirds and skips finished off with the tantalizing draw style. And it was anybody's game to the final rock.

Ontario pulled out in front 2-0 on the second end and Walsh promptly tied it on the third. It was 4-3 in Ontario's favor after the sixth, 5-5 after nine and Manitoba made it 7-5, and almost certain victory, after 11. Phillips evened the count with a two on the 12th, setting the stage for Walsh's spectacular extra-end shot.

FORCED THE PLAYOFF

Phillips, a rookie in big-time competition, forced the playoff when he came from far behind in the 11th round to defeat Nova Scotia 15-9 with a big five on the 11th end and a three on the 12th. A loss would automatically have given the Manitoba rink the title.

The western rink had clinched at least a playoff berth in the final round, although it dropped a 12-10 decision to the Saskatchewan foursome skipped by Jimmy Hill of Delisle.

Saskatchewan finished the tournament with a 7-3 won-lost record and Nova Scotia had 6-4. Alberta and Quebec each had five wins and five losses.

Three rinks, Northern Ontario, British Columbia and Prince Edward Island, won four and lost six. New Brunswick was 3-7, and Newfoundland 1-9.

In the 10th round Friday Manitoba defeated Alberta 11-5 and Ontario lost 11-9 to British Columbia.

Irish Oust Biltmores 3-1

The Ontario Hockey Association's plan to avoid having a team waiting in the Junior A playoffs has backfired.

Toronto St. Michael's Majors eliminated Guelph Biltmores from the quarter-finals by trimming Biltmores 3-1 at Guelph Friday night.

Majors will now have to rest up until a winner is decided between Kitchener - Waterloo and Barrie Flyers. Flyers evened their best-of-seven quarter-final at two games each with one tie by defeating Greens 3-2 at Kitchener.

The Barrie - Kitchener - Waterloo series was extended from a best-of-five affair when it was thought the other quarter-final would last a while because of the scarcity of ice at Toronto.

Majors duplicated their feats of the first two games in the series by taking a 2-0 lead in the first period. With five seconds remaining in the second, Biltmores' Gerry Goyer fired their lone goal. Frank Howarth, Pat Hanniga and Pat Cushing were the winners' marksmen.

A crowd of 4,000 fans watched as Majors displayed a wide-open style in the first 20 minutes, then settled back to play defensive hockey the rest of the way.

At Kitchener, before 2,715 fans, Flyers recorded their first win in seven starts there this season. The teams were tied 1-1 after the first period and completed the scoring in the second.

Three Favorites Beaten in Badminton Round

By DAVID OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY (CP) — Upsets were the rule, rather than the exception, Friday in the semi-finals of the Canadian badminton championships.

Jean Waring of Calgary, who won the women's and junior women's singles laurels last year went to the sidelines in the senior event after a hard-fought encounter with Jean Miller of Montreal. Miss Miller advanced to the finals with 6-11, 11-7 and 11-8 wins.

Jack Kwbank and John Carter of Winnipeg polled the second big upset of semi-finals play when they disposed of defending men's doubles champs Bert Gregg and Daryl Thompson of Vancouver 7-15, 15-6, 15-4.

IN STRAIGHT GAMES

Jean Bardsley and Thompson, winners of the mixed doubles honors in four of the last seven tournaments, bowed out of play when they were beaten by Martin Semple of Toronto and Miss Miller 15-8, 15-11 in two straight games.

Miss Waring moved ahead in the junior women's event when she downed easy 11-10, 11-3 wins over Donna Stewart of Winnipeg, Manitoba junior singles champion.

The men's and junior men's singles followed predictions pretty well. Vancouver's Dave McVeigart, star of last year's Canadian Thomas Cup team, dropped one match before he sidelined Pete Ferguson of Toronto 8-15, 15-14, 15-9.

In the final today he will meet Bev Wetcott of Toronto, who defeated John Bouck of Vancouver, B.C. singles champion, 15-10, 9-15, 15-9.

In junior men's play defending champion Harold Moody of Montreal will meet Ed Hrejlac of Sudbury in the final. Moody downed Larry Beemer of Niagara Falls, 15-6, 15-8 and Hrejlac sidelined John Macdougall, a Sussex, N.B., high school student 15-3, 15-13.

Forest Takes Stranglehold On Bantam C Championship With 12-3 Win Over Stirling

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Eastern Ontario's last hope for an Ontario Minor Hockey Association championship received a severe jolt here last night when the powerful Forest Rotary youngsters defeated Stirling 12-3 in the first game of the goals-to-count finals for the bantam "C" title.

The second game is scheduled for Forest next Friday night.

Nearly 1400 fans, most of them front Stirling, saw their hard-fighting youngsters go down before the bigger well-coached Foresters. A better-than-average defence, well organized attacks and individual stardom proved the margin of difference.

The Forest youngsters overcame an early 2-1 Stirling lead to rap in four goals in a row and grab a first-period 5-2 lead. They outscored Pete Usman's charges 3-1 in the second, and Forest gave four without a reply in the third period.

Referees Jim Williams and Bill Post of Peterborough handled the game in excellent fashion in some of the best clashing and hard play this season. Fourteen penalties, all minors were handed out, nine of them to Forest. Strangely enough three of the Forest goals were scored with the team a man short.

Tall rangy Frank Dalton, Forest centre was the best man on the ice. Dalton scored five of his team's goals, assisting on another. Linemate Bruce Douglas was good for one and two with Mel Matthews scoring three. Mellick, Alpaugh and Patterson got the others.

Roger Smith stood out for the Stirling club with an all-round brilliant performance. He scored two of the Stirling goals and assisted Eddie Mayhew with the other. Both players drew assists.

One feature of the game was the fine effort of Paul Jeffs, Stirling goalie when he outguessed the clever Dalton on a penalty shot.

The Stirling youngsters appeared slow in clearing the puck from their own net while they seemed inffective at times in front of the Forest goal. They had not a few chances to score but the Forest defence threw up a stubborn goalmouth barrier in front of Matthews.

The visitors appeared to have a margin individually over Stirling, and they seldom missed an opportunity to break into the clear. They shot well and gave Paul Jeffs a busy time. And at that the youngster did a fine job despite the score charged against him.

Smith got Stirling away to a good start scoring after 57 seconds of play in the first period. Dalton got that one back and Mayhew again gave Stirling the lead. Forest, led by Dalton, caught fire and slammed home four goals in seconds less than three minutes to back the game away there and then.

Smith again fired home the puck in the opening seconds of the second period and again Dalton raced through to retrieve the counter. Douglas and Matthews scored before period end.

The Stirling crew battled hard in the third frame and hemmed Forest in their own end in the opening minutes. They failed to capitalize on Forest penalties and after Dalton gave the visitors a 9-3 lead in four minutes, Alpaugh and Patterson scored on breakaways. Matthews finished the scoring midway through the period.

The teams:

Forest — Goal, Mathews; defence, Mellick, Patterson, McKellar; forwards, M. Mathews, Alpaugh, Miller, Usman, Dumford, Douglas, Stewart, Cameron, Douglas, Scott.

Stirling — Goal, Jeffs; defence, Faires, Green, Potts, Morgan; forwards, Smith, Mayhew, Palmer, Reid, Noble, Scott, McConnell, Bell, Nicholson.

Santee Gets Week Extension Runs Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—Wes Santee had his amateur life extended at least another week in another legal skirmish Friday and will run in the Milwaukee Journal Games tonight.

Justice Irving L. Levey of the New York state Supreme Court continued an injunction obtained by the most controversial miler in history and set next Thursday for trial of the injunction proceedings.

It marked the third legal victory in eight days for Santee's attorney, Charles F. Grimes, over the Amateur Athletic Union. On Feb. 19, the AAU suspended Santee, for life on charges of taking excessive expenses in meets last year. Santee now is a marine corps lieutenant.

Last Thursday, Grimes was granted a preliminary injunction by Justice James B. M. McNally barring the AAU from carrying out its suspension. On Saturday, Justice Charles D. Breitel of the Appellate division turned down an AAU plea to set the injunction aside.

"I can't any more than my associates pass final judgment," said Justice Levey in granting the stay Friday. "Surely, the AAU must subscribe to a full hearing.

"Even a hardened criminal—which Mr. Santee is not—is entitled to apply for a certificate of reasonable doubt giving him freedom pending appeal."

REIBEL OUT

DETROIT (AP) — Earl (Dutch) Reibel, Detroit Red Wing centre, will be out of action for the weekend hockey series with Chicago, officials said Friday.

Reibel suffered a shoulder separation in the second period of Thursday night's 4-2 victory over Boston.

Landy Stops to Help Pal Then Gallops Mile in 4:04.2

MELBOURNE (AP) — John Landy, world's championship miler won the Australian mile championship today in 4:04.2 after he pulled up and stepped off the track to see if his teammate, Ron Clarke who had tripped and fell after 1,100 yards, was hurt.

After Landy spoke to Clarke, he started running again to beat Alec Henderson, of New South Wales. Merv Lincoln, of Victoria, finished third.

Landy holds the world's fastest time for the mile—3:58.

Landy lost about 30 yards during the time he stopped to help Clarke, but put on a sizzling 57.8 last quarter to beat Henderson by 15 yards.

The capacity crowd roared as Landy overtook, one by one, the four runners who had passed him while he helped Clarke to his feet. He passed Henderson about 220 yards from the finish and pulled away.

Henderson was timed in 4:05.8 and Lincoln in 4:08.8.

Dat Beeg Vezina Trophy, B'Gar She's Headed for Bon Jacques

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For a goaltender who was supposed to be just so-so, Jacques Plante is going great in the National Hockey League.

The Montreal Canadiens' goaltender is cruising along with a 1.81 goals-against average. It's almost certain he'll crack the four-year monopoly Terry Sawchuk, then of Detroit Red Wings, and Harry Lumley of Toronto Maple Leafs have held on the Vezina Trophy, the NHL goaltenders' award.

When Plante, 27-year-old native of Shawinigan Falls, Que., broke into regular duty in the big league, his critics scoffed that he wouldn't last long. They said he'd be caught out of position too often.

But Plante fooled them, despite his acrobatic style. It's nothing to see Plante leave his cage and go around the back of it to smother a puck. But he hasn't been trapped yet.

Three years ago, Plante was on the verge of quitting hockey. A wrist injury in childhood deprived him of the full use of his left hand. He couldn't turn the palm outward.

"I knew I couldn't be a goalie," Plante said. "I couldn't catch the puck with my left hand or knock it down. I used my thigh but that meant a rebound and too often the puck would get into the net between my body and hand."

A doctor operated on the wrist after the 1952-53 season. Since then it hasn't bothered Plante.

Last season was Plante's first regular one with Canadiens. He had played three games in 1952-53 as an injury replacement for Gerry McNeil and another 17 the next season for the same reason.

Last campaign, after a successful start, Plante suffered a fractured cheek-bone when hit by a teammate's shot during a warmup before a game. He sat out 18 games and found it tough to return to his early-season form but still managed to finish with a respectable 2.11 average.

Fate dealt him a similar blow again this season. While practising, he was hit on the nose by a teammate's shot and had to sit out six games. But this time he doesn't appear to have suffered any after-effects.

Kingston Edges Cornwall 6-5 In 'B' Thriller

George Samolenko's goal with ten seconds to go climaxed a seven-"B" overtime-thriller in Kingston last night, and gave the Goodies years a 6-5 victory over Cornwall in their first game of the best-of-seven semi-finals.

Upwards of 3,000 fans were thrill-ahivered as the spine-tingling battle roared to a sensational close.

Trailing 5-4 with two minutes to go, Cornwall coach Frank Marin pulled his goalie. The Colts surged around the Goodies goal and Olekiuk drove the puck past Johnson to knot the count with only 29 seconds remaining.

With the clock ten seconds off game-time Bob Loudry sifted down the right boards. He shot over the blueline close to the packed Colts defence and tobbed a pass to Samolenko. The winger's hard low shot picked the corner, and the Goodies tucked the first one away.

Marcy and MacGregor gave Kingston a 2-0 lead early in the first period with Batten cutting the margin in half early in the second Bellringer upped the count to 3-1 in the second then the Colts came to fire with Batten and Payette fitting rapidly to tie the score.

While scored what seemed the winner early in the third heat and made it 5-3 midway through the period. Joannette ripped home a shot that put the Colts within striking distance then Coach Marin pulled his goalie.

Leacock drew misconduct penalty following a heated argument over White's second goal. Cornwall claimed the drifting puck had stopped on the goal line but the goal judge said it was over. Leacock apparently aired his opinion of the judge in uncertain terms and got the heave-ho.

Referees Jim Crombie and Andy Bellemer issued four other penalties with the teams splitting the sentences. The teams meet again in Cornwall on Sunday.

Dutchies Player To Continue In Playoffs

TORONTO (CP)—Jack McKenzie of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen will be allowed to continue to play in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior League finals against Chatham Maroons, the OHA subcommittee ruled Friday night.

However, McKenzie's registration and that of John Lumley of Owen Sound Mercurys for next season were ordered withheld until the players appeal before the OHA executive.

McKenzie and Lumley received match penalties, which carry automatic suspensions, for a stick-swinging episode last Wednesday at Owen Sound.

McKenzie and referee Jack Shropshire appeared at Friday night's meeting but Lumley could not attend for business reasons.

The subcommittee also suspended Bill Williams of the Lindsay intermediate A team for the first three scheduled games of the club for which he is registered in the 1956-57 season. In the last Lindsay-Lakefield game, Williams was given a match penalty for cross-checking a Lakefield player.

Another decision reached by the committee was a ruling brought about by charges that Charlie Burns of Toronto Marlboros in the OHA Junior A League, who suffered a serious head injury last year and wears a plate in his head, shouldn't be playing hockey.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Only palookas always grab what tricks they can as fast as they can. Good bridge players willingly give up tricks early if it may help them in the future of their goal.

However the decision to hold up is influenced by numerous and sundry factors. Not the least of these is the fear that opponents may discover a good reason to switch to some other suit.

Take the deal shown here:

South was declarer at a contract of three no-trump after east had struck in a defensive bid of spades. So, the opening lead from west should have been a spade.

But when south bid no-trump over the east spade call, west took it upon himself to decide that south was not afraid of spades. So, west fooled and started out with a diamond lead.

The question before the house is what the declarer should do to this first lead. Should he hold up and wait with his toppers by the diamond suit? Or should he take the first diamond trick.

It is not the result in this one particular hand that makes our point important. The general volley in such a situation is what we should be interested in for all future cases like it.

Having been offered a lead that was not immediately dangerous, declarer should take advantage of it. If he refuses to take it at once the opponents might switch to the feared spade suit.

To prevent any possibility of this, south should win at once and start his club suit going. When he is sure of at least four club tricks he can see his needed nine tricks without danger.

What if he refused to take the first trick and continued with spades next? The spade stopper is gone before declarer has his club tricks established and opponents could defeat him. Play safe.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Sunday, March 11, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Generally suspicious aspects, yet the Sun sets against confidence, lack of sufficient facts and not giving others their due. Avoid the pitfalls.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — "Where there's a will there's a way" never applied more than now. Many evil things oppose progress, economy, relief, so we must courageously guard our national heritage.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Do the things you know to be right and just, and fear not criticism. Yet be sure you have gotten facts and are not overruling others' wise judgment needlessly.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Many favorable conditions and offerings today, but through all you must be wary of the pitfalls and your own possible carelessness. Take someone to church with you.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — If you are going to start with misgivings and doubts, you will unconsciously put those hindering factors into other people's hearts and reactions will not be good as they could be. Pray.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Less thought of whether other items are going according to your calculations and more consideration of the general picture for the future, your stars hint.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Be sure you have all facts and are not overruling others' wise judgment needlessly. Take someone to church with you.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Don't plan more than reasonable, but do accept and participate in whatever will benefit you and yours. Start at church; don't hesitate about things you know should be done.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Speed can often undo good; so can carelessness. It is not like true Sagittarians to fail into these errors, but we all can at times. Mind disposition, too, today.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Have you tended those matters you had to recently? Take them up again in free hours, see if you cannot improve here and there. First things first, including church.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — On whole a propitious time for matters strictly yours, but there is a note of caution also. Get proper sleep, rest and recreation.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Take a new look at old things today, there are many advantages, but the road to them is not always easy; errors that could be easily avoided loom, if possible.

CYPRIOTS

The capital of Nicosia seemed stunned in the first hours at word that the British had whisked the spiritual leader and three of his lieutenants off the island in a giant Royal Air Force Hastings transport. Church bells tolled. Shopkeepers rolled down their shutters.

Reaction abroad was swift. Greece recalled its ambassador to London and complained to the United Nations. Political leaders in Greece called the action "astounding . . . brutal." In Athens, students stormed through the streets. Riot squads were sent to guard the British embassy.

In London, opponents of Prime Minister Eden denounced the deportation as "an act of folly . . . madness." The statements came from Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell and Clement Davies, the Liberal leader.

Taken together, the expressions of Gaitskell and Davies foreshadowed a bitter clash when the Cyprus issue is debated in the Commons on Wednesday.

The British governor of Cyprus, Field Marshal Sir John Harding, said he ordered the archbishop into exile under emergency regulations "in the interest of promoting peace, order and good government."

COMMITTED TO VIOLENCE

Harding said the archbishop "now is so far committed to use of violence for political ends that he either cannot or will not abandon it."

Police searched the homes of Makarios and his aides. "We hope to find more conclusive evidence in the archbishopric files that Makarios is the real leader of the terrorists," a British official said.

New outbreaks seemed certain to sweep Cyprus, for months an inferno of bombing, sniping and sabotage. Scores have died and hundreds have been wounded. Britain has 30,000 troops stationed on the island, its last bastion in the Middle East.

Makarios was jailed as he prepared to board a plane for Athens, where he was to confer with the Greek government. The British also seized Bishop Kyprianos of Kyrenia, Rev. Papastavros Papaioannou of Nicosia and Polycarpos Ioannaides, secretary of the Kyrenia bishopric.

The British government has called Kyriakides the head of the "most fanatical and extreme wing of the Enosis—union with Greece—movement." If identities Papaioannou as "one of the main instigators of violent demonstrations by schoolboys in Nicosia" last summer, Ioannides has been quoted in newspapers as saying "It is only by revolution that an enslaved nation begins its freedom . . . political assassination is not murder."

TAX-SHARING

Mr. Hicks and Progressive Conservative Premier Flemming of New Brunswick and Liberal Premier Matthews of Prince Edward Island, it became known late Friday night, failed in their request to have a royal commission look into the fiscal relationships between the provincial governments and the federal government.

TO BE SET UP

Such a commission is to be set up next year in the case of Newfoundland, a latecomer to Confederation. The premiers of the other Atlantic provinces proposed all four be included in the commission investigation.

Premier Duplessis of Quebec, a perennial antagonist of the federal government, appeared happy enough about the federal plan. He called the Ottawa proposals "an important step" on the right direction.

Mr. Duplessis, who for many years has displayed an allergy to accepting parliamentary treasury money on the ground provincial autonomy could be compromised, said:

"The proposals are a partial restitution by the federal government of the tax fields which belong to the provinces. The provinces are getting back their property piecemeal."

But he added in talking to reporters that the road ahead—presumably the one heading towards full-around provincial amity —"still is considerable."

WITHOUT STRINGS

The Quebec premier recently stated it known his government will accept "equalization" payments, without strings attached, to be paid by the federal government to the provinces under its offer. Quebec would get over around $48,000,000 a year under this plan.

Both Premier Frost and Bennett—the major provincial figures at the conference—suggested in their statements to the meeting that Quebec seemed to have got a better break than the other provinces.

Quebec had stayed out of the current tax rental agreements under which provinces lease their personal - corporation - succession taxes to the federal government in return for flat yearly payments. The agreements expire March 31, 1957, and the federal offer is designed to replace them.

MAIN POINTS

Main points in the federal plan:

1. The central treasury would pay the provinces equalization subsidies to bring all up to the per capita level of Ontario and B. C., the two wealthiest, in the income-succession fields.

2. Provincial taxpayers would be allowed to deduct from their federal tax liability up to 10 per cent of federal personal income tax, nine per cent of taxable corporation income and 50 per cent of federal succession duties.

3. The provinces also would have the option of continuing tax rentals to the federal government or leaving the federal government collect taxes for them, at a fee, on the 10-9-50 basis.

Premier Frost wanted the federal government to get out of the succesful duties field altogether and allow the provinces 15-15 deductibility in the personal and corporation fields. Premier Bennett wanted a 20-10-50 split.

WOULD TAKE HALF

Both these views were advanced before the conference Friday, though Mr. Frost also indicated he was willing to take 50 per cent in succession duties rather than the whole field as he suggested Ontario should have.

But Finance Minister Harris stamped on these ideas—and a miscellany of others from various provinces—in giving a "this is it" statement on Prime Minister St. Laurent's January outline of federal proposals as amended last month in favor of the provinces.

The federal government, he said, could not make any further material concessions that would affect its revenues. He made it clear that there was a wanting more money for their treasuries will have to impose their own taxation in the federal deductibility levies.

Mr. Frost criticized the federal formula on other grounds, saying the proposed federal tax allowances of 10 per cent of personal income tax, nine per cent of corporation income and 50 per cent on succession duties—all of which he wanted increased—should be extended to cover provincial tax on dividends, bond interest, rents and royalties, which he now-exempted.

SUGGESTS RECONVENING

"It is my feeling the discussion on these matters should not assume at the technical level and that their final disposition should be discussed in a reconvened conference perhaps in the latter part of June," he said.

But coming back to his main theme, that the personal tax allowances do not go far enough, Mr. Frost estimated that Ontario next year, at least $100,000,000 more from the direct tax fields than would be available by the federal formula.

The "unfairness" to Ontario of the present proposal can be demonstrated by comparisons with certain other provinces, notably Quebec and Alberta, he said.

Quebec was growing fast and like Ontario had many of the concentrations of manufacturing and industry. But under the federal formula Quebec would get the standard direct tax allowances plus an annual federal equalization payment of more than $40,000,000.

SHOULD BE GREATER

"I have no doubt she needs this additional money and can put it to good use," he said. Mr. Frost. "But if this is the federal assessment of province's needs, surely a greater should it be for Ontario in the light of our larger population and industrial structure and also of the cost incidence which run with industrial development?"

Mr. Frost maintained the payments should be based on the average of the four wealthiest provinces, not the top two.

"Indeed, on realistic standard rates, the yardstick might be the national average."

ASKS REVERSAL

LUXEMBOURG (AP)—The daily newspaper Luxembourg Wort has appealed to the Luxembourg Supreme Court for reversal of a recent court decision denying newspaper men the right of professional secrecy. The director of the newspaper, Jean Schonen, and street Aidee Jean Bernhard, was recently fined 2,000 francs ($40) and two of his editors were fined 1,000 francs each for refusing to reveal to the court the source of information in a murder case.

Newfoundland Pirates' Lair

By LEONARD I. KNOTT
Illustrated by Jack Tremblay

Newfoundland, Canada's youngest province, has the longest history of any part of this country. Many years before Champlain founded Quebec City, while men were living and fighting in the fishing settlements of Newfoundland, Most of these men were really pirates.

John Cabot who sailed from Bristol, in 1497, discovered Newfoundland and claimed the island for King Henry VII of England. What he had really discovered, however, was much more important than just an Atlantic ocean island. He had discovered a base for fishermen fishing on the Grand Banks, one of the greatest fishing areas in the world.

From South America and Mexico, Spaniards in the years that followed took home to Spain great shiploads of gold. But equally important to the old world were the cargoes of codfish taken home from the Grand Banks. And England was determined to keep these fishing waters for herself.

During the first decades after Cabot first visited the island, the kings of England, Spain, Portugal and France all claimed Newfoundland as their own. The fisherman from Europe, however, paid no attention to these monarchs' claims.

Each spring, they raced across the Atlantic to the Grand Banks. Each ship headed for one of the many Newfoundland inlets or harbors. The captain of the first ship in each port proclaimed himself as Admiral of the Port, and he was the absolute ruler there for the season, no matter what his nationality.

REALLY PIRATES

Many of these so-called fishing people were really pirates, sheltering in the island between forways against ships of other countries bearing treasure back home. Sometimes they did not even bother to select foreign vessels but attacked and plundered those from their own countries. They were about as happy and carefree a crowd of cutthroats as the world has even seen.

Queen Elizabeth, impressed by the wealth of the fisheries and by her hatred of Spain, sent Sir Bernard Drake, cousin of Sir Francis, to destroy Spanish ships in Newfoundland. In his raid, which was really piracy, he captured many prizes and carried 600 prisoners back to England.

Fearing retaliation, Elizabeth decided to form a permanent colony on the island and Sir Humphrey Gilbert led an expedition to Newfoundland in 1583, officially founding the city of St. Johns' and marking the beginning of formal English rule.

That was the beginning of Canada's youngest province and Britain's oldest Dominion. A pirates' lair was gradually transformed into a peaceful colony and part of a free Dominion.

Govt. Withheld Full Text Report On Burwash Riot

Author Answers Statement Made by Dunbar in House

TORONTO (CP)—The author of a report on a riot at the Burwash reformatory Oct. 1, 1947, said today the Ontario government withheld its full text partly because parts of it were not complimentary to the reforms department.

Professor Stuart K. Jaffary of the University of Toronto was replying to a statement in the legislature by Provincial Secretary Dunbar. Mr. Dunbar said last Thursday the report had to be changed before it could be presented to the house.

Prof. Jaffary said in a statement he prepared two reports. One was a full report which included "facts about conditions existing which were important but not complimentary to the department." The conditions were only partially the department's fault.

The government was under pressure to release the report, but because of the uncomplimentary conditions and because there was information in it which hurt the department "it considered it unwise to do so publicly."

"Nothing in it was deleted," he said.

BRIEFER REPORT

"At the request of the minister I prepared a briefer, more general report containing the essential facts, findings and recommendations. This report was tabled in the legislature, released to the press, and received with general approval."

He said the full report recommended that the institution be used for the mentally ill. "Also, that a beverage-room be established for the guard."

Prof. Jaffary said it would appear from the minister's statement that he had not read both reports or that he had not understood them.

"Clearly the responsibility for tabling the full report was the minister's and not mine," he said.

He said Burwash is more suitable for the custody of mental patient than for short-term offenders.

GUARDS "ESCAPE"

A beverage room should be established there to put an end to Burwash "the guards at Sudbury 30 miles away. Guards often had to travel from Sudbury every day carrying liquor with them, and "the effect on discipline and treatment of inmates can be quite serious."

The guards would escape to Sudbury from the isolation, bleak and unattractive village of Burwash which had few amenities for social life.

Mr. Dunbar, former reforms minister, said Thursday in speaking of Prof. Jaffary's report "that it was my duty and privilege, and I hope it will be my last, with a man of that calibre."

Prof. Jaffary replied today: "The minister himself appointed me as commissioner. He had any doubts as to my title, my profession, or my competence. I presume he would have satisfied himself before requesting me to act.

"Having appointed me, I could only presume he was satisfied about these matters."

Believed Six Of Crew Killed In Plane Crash

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A United States Air Force C-54 Skymaster, Grumman trihbilian Albatross believed carrying six persons crashed in the sea a mile from the U. S. naval base at Argentia on the Newfoundland south coast today.

The aircraft exploded and sank after hitting the wind-tossed seas. It had arrived at Argentia earlier from a base in the United States and was heading for the Azores.

Navy crash boats arrived at the scene within minutes, they reported, but they bodies but reported no survivors.

SPONTANEOUS GENERAL STRIKE SWEEPS CYPRUS

Shops, Banks, Schools Are Closed in Protest

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—A spontaneous general strike spread like wildfire through Cyprus today, virtually paralyzing all business on the British colony island in the eastern Mediterranean.

Shops, banks, and schools were closed in protest against Britain's arrest of Archbishop Makarios, leader of the union-with-Greece movement.

No specific call was made by any organization for the general strike. Many of the shops had been closed since Saturday.

British troops wielding batons dispersed a crowd of rioters outside the Phaenomeni church in Nicosia after the crowd had stoned a patrol car. A cordon of soldiers was thrown around the church.

Another group of 200 demonstrators was dispersed without incident near Kokkinotrimithia. British troops patrolled the streets of that tense region of Cyprus.

DEPT. WARNINGS

Today's strike was in defiance of radio warnings by the government that the colony's emergency regulations make it an offence to declare a public holiday other than a trade dispute.

The arrest Sunday on British military installations near Limassol joined the protest strike, and stores to be closed.

Official reports from various parts of Cyprus indicated that today's strike had spread to most centres, including the Royal Air Force station near Famagusta and several mining concerns.

In Athens, the Greek government banned mass meetings called for today in protest against the deportation of Archbishop Makarios to a remote Indian ocean island.

Israeli Ambassador to Canada Wants Israel Fully Armed

OTTAWA (CP) — Michael S. Comay, Israeli ambassador to Canada, says only two measures can effectively deter an attack on Israel—a security pact and the arming of Israel by self defence.

He spoke Sunday at the closing of the four-day national convention of the Zionist Organization of Canada.

Mr. Comay said mediation, strengthening of the armistice machinery and an international force on the Israel frontier have proposed as measures to deter attack. "None of these ideas would even theoretically be an answer to the main problem which is not merely one of local border control."

To continue talking about those proposals was harmful. It created the illusion in the public mind that other remedies were available and Israel need not be armed for self-protection.

Only two measures "are clearly and immediately relevant," he said. "One is a security pact. The other, and more important, is to allow Israel to acquire the minimum of arms for its defence."

"The Arab states are following the Communist line and must accept responsibility for its consequences," he added. They were walking a step lightrope on the brink of war.

Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman of the trials division of the Supreme Court of Manitoba outlined the "two-point" creed for Canadian Jews.

The creed should include appreciation of and loyalty to Canada, loyalty to Judaism and devotion to Israel.

He found no inherent antagonism between loyalty to Canada and devotion to Israel. "They can and do co-exist—they do not conflict."

Canadian Jews lived in one of the freest countries in the world. There still was need for mutual tolerance and understanding but there was hope for these in the future. "The provinces are slowly but consistently enacting laws for equality of treatment."

The convention delegates Saturday adopted a resolution asking that the federal government facilitate shipment of arms to Israel.

Forbid Delay in Admitting Negroes to U.S. Universities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today declared unanimously that state universities may not delay the admission of Negro students pending a study of problems involved.

The high tribunal issued an order overturning a Florida Supreme Court decision that permitted a delay in the admission of Virgil Hawkins to the law school of the all-white University of Florida.

The highest tribunal's per curiam (for the court) order today said:

"As this case involves the admission to the state's university professional school, there is no reason for delay.

"It is entitled to prompt admission under the rules and regulations applicable to other qualified candidates."

Arab 'Big Three' Have Plan For Co-ordinating Defences

CAIRO AP) — The Arab big three meeting today agreed in principle on a plan to co-ordinate the defences of Arab countries against any possible "act of violence" by Israel.

Egypt's Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser, Syria's President Shukri Kuwatly and Saudi Arabia's King Saud ended their three-day conference here with a communique which also advocated a central body for co-ordination of the policies of their governments—a possible step intended in the future to act independently of the nine-nation Arab League.

The three governament chiefs have been conferring in Cairo for the last six days.

Their communique said they had devised a plan "insuring Arab security, preserving the structure of the Arab States and preventing the gangs of Zionist aggression and foreign domination which prevent a state of peace and stability from reigning over the area, thus providing a state of tension and threat."

The communique said agreement was reached on dealing with states which allow their subjects to be recruited by armed groups aimed towards states supplying Israel with weapons, considered this against governments and carried by foreign powers through the Baghdad Pact, which is a mutual support to Jordan, tightening unity among all Arab states, a solution of the Israel-Arab-Britain dispute over the Buraimi oasis and on the attitude to be taken by Britain in North Africa.

Egypt Sunday night released a statement saying it would halt agitation against the Western-sponsored Baghdad defence pact if that alliance ceases its efforts to enroll any more states. It also said that if pressure on Arab states to join the alliance is lifted it would cease co-operation with Iraq, the only Arab signer of the pact.

The alliance, formed to defence against Soviet penetration of the Middle East and South Asia, also includes Turkey, Iran, Britain and Pakistan. They have made overtures to Arab Jordan and Lebanon.

Israel, meanwhile, accused Egypt of massing troops along the Israeli border "far in excess of the excess of defensive requirements."

A foreign ministry statement in Jerusalem said Israel had called on the UN mixed armistice commission to investigate the Iraqi concentrations, which the spokesman described as "a serious threat to our security."

The Egyptian government spokesman denied the report of troop concentrations.

Israel also charged that patrols from Egypt, Syria and Jordan had entered Israeli border territory over the weekend, causing minor clashes.

Premier Damascus, a foreign ministry source said Syria has appealed to the UN to stop "aggressive acts" of Israel. He warned of "serious effects" on French-Arab relations if Israel attacks Syria.

In Cairo, the chiefs of state of Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Syria prepared to sign a document which Egyptian newspapers of 4 a.m. described as a new era in Arab co-operation.

Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, King Saud of Saudi Arabia and President Shukri Kuwatly of Syria have been conferring since last Wednesday in an effort to form a united front against the spreading of non-Arab ties. Presumably it would include Iraq and Jordan in the East-West struggle.

The three leaders have been trying to iron out their differences in the alignment by offering to put up the Baghdad Pact defence agreement. It now pays to maintain the Arab League. Jordan wants to accept the pact but the effort would like to hold on to the British grant as well.

Middle East violence extended Sunday to the oil-rich British protectorate of Bahrein in the Persian gulf. Reports from the island said 11 persons were killed in rioting Sunday and Monday after a British adviser to the reigning sheik. However, foreign office in London said only two persons were killed.

1,500 Ontario Drivers Carrying Red Licences

TORONTO (CP)—Highways Minister Allan said probably 1,500 drivers whose licences are suspended have been issued red cards "driving may soon be given specially-marked licences when they apply for them.

He said the special licences, if issued, will probably be similar to red ones issued since last fall to persons whose licences were suspended because they had impaired driving.

Printed across the special licence is the word "Reinstated."

Mr. Allan said 1,500 red licences have been issued since the plan was put into operation for drunken driving. Others involved a total of 6,000 persons.

"The plan seems to have worked in these cases, since there has been no repetition of the offence in the number of second convictions," he added. "But, on the hand is not yet whether the special licences were the major factor in discouraging."

"Because the red licence stamps the driver definitely as one who has committed a drinking driving offence, we have been considering giving something like the same line for other traffic convictions.

"This extension of the plan, however, has only been discussed informally so far. No definite conclusion has been reached."

Willie the Norman No Great Warman King Harold Lost Because Feet Hurt

CIRENCESTER, England (AP) Six volunteer history-starters staggered in Sunday night with the reason King Harold lost the Battle of Hastings. His men were too darned footsore to fight.

The volunteers—men helmets and 40 pounds of chain mail, and carried shields, battle axes and spears—covered the seven miles of grass-grown, rutted Fosse Way, the old Roman road between Bath and Cirencester. They finished as weary men.

The aim: To learn to see whether history could be right in saying Harold's men, after a 200-mile march and 200 miles from Stamford bridge to Hastings in 19 days back in 1066. Some modern experts claim this was impossible without a speed.

Asked whether he could have kept it up for another day, one volunteer, nursing a blistered foot, crisply said a reporter:

"I could have kept up the walking all right, but I wouldn't have had the feet to fight any bloody battle with William the Conqueror when I got there."

The volunteers, all members of the Surrey Walking Club, were entered by the British Broadcasting Corp. The BBC plans to stage a Battle of Hastings television program on the 900th anniversary to make sure history isn't being rewritten by modern historians.

In addition to their ancient military impediments the walkers carried provisions of black bread, bacon and cheese and mead—a potent drink made of fermented honey.

At one stage of the trip a biker accidentally plaked Stan Horton, 45, a former army sergeant, with a spear.

Norton's command of short range weapons appropriate to this incident, his admiring mates said later, would have done Harold proud.

Montreal Man Heads Zionists

OTTAWA (CP)—Michael Garber of Montreal Sunday was elected president of the Zionist Organization of Canada at the close of its national convention here. He succeeds Edward E. Gelber, formerly of Toronto and now a resident of Israel.

Dr. D. Granek, St. Catharines, was elected national vice-president.

ASSEMBLY SEEN READY TO APPROVE SPECIAL POWERS

Mollet Visits Eden To Discuss Crisis

BULLETIN

PARIS (Reuters) — Premier Guy Mollet's government today won a massive margin for the first two confidence votes on measures providing special powers to combat terrorism in Algeria.

PARIS (AP)—The National Assembly appeared certain to grant Premier Guy Mollet special emergency powers today to restore order in revolt-ravaged Algeria.

Mollet rushed to London for talks with Prime Minister Eden in London on the Mediterranean crises.

The gravity of the Algerian situation was pointed up by Arab outbreaks across a widespread area of the North African territory during the weekend. French authorities counted nearly 200 rebels killed, three fighting even spilled into a suburb of Algiers, which rarely has been hit by nationalist violence.

Assembly approval of Mollet's bill for emergency powers was expected to bring within hours a series of decrees aimed at restoring law and order.

The authorization requested by the government would be used by circumstances to re-establish order, protect persons and property, safeguard the territory."

Lacoste's first moves were expected to include:

1. Proclamation of a state of siege in many areas.

2. Formation of specially-protected areas in Algeria—where to live in constant danger of terrorist attacks.

3. Reorganization of the police and some other government services.

Outside Algiers, fighting erupted in a number of places.

French troops sweeping out after 75 Algerian infantrymen who deserted Thursday, killed 137 rebels south of Souk-Ahras, near the Tunisian border. The French said the casualties included a large number of the deserters. They reported 38 of the deserters were captured.

Rebels cut an underground cable in the Constantine area of eastern Algeria, severing all communications with Algiers. Major fighting was reported.

Mollet's talks in London with Eden were aimed at straightening out misunderstandings over British and French policy. Mollet told Eden at the airport that he was grateful for British support and understanding in the crisis we are facing" in North Africa.

A communique issued in London said the talks had "enabled the British government to confirm their wide agreement and to strengthen joint policy."

The communique said Eden and Mollet had "emphasized the necessity of giving increased importance to economic action in the Far East, Middle East and Africa."

'Droop Snoot', Supersonic Fighter, Wins Britain World's Speed Record

BY DAVID REES

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's supersonic Fairey Delta II jet fighter, the "Droop Snoot," has been clocked at 1,132 miles per hour with a new mark of 1,132 miles an hour, the Royal Aero Club announced Sunday.

The weird, needle-nosed aircraft of unique design, on official nine-mile course near Chichester, Sussex, was flown by Britain's chief test pilot L. P. L. Twiss at the controls. It averaged 1,132 miles an hour on the two test runs, the club said.

The new mark, subject to official confirmation, is 306 miles an hour faster than the world record of 826 miles an hour set in an American F-100C Super Sabre by U.S. Air Force Col. Frank K. Everest, California's Mojave desert in August, 1955.

"Droop Snoot" is the first aircraft to exceed 1,000 miles an hour over a measured course and in straight and level flight under conditions recognized by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale for a world speed record.

The remarkable-looking aircraft, the Fairey-Delta II gets its nickname from its hinged nose which is lowered into a drooping position faster for better pilot visibility while landing and taxiing.

With its usual nose, pencil-thin fuselage and triangular 60-foot wings swept back at a 60-degree angle, the aircraft caused a sensation when it was shown to the public at last year's Farnborough Air Show. Powered by a Rolls-Royce Avon engine, it looked like a futuristic naval night fighter pilot who has flown 18 times the speed of sound. Twiss made the record-breaking flight he wore no special equipment—just an oxygen mask and overalls over flannel trousers.

Twiss predicted: "From my experience I would say that it is certainly practicable for passenger aircraft and fighters to fly at these great speeds. There is no reason why human beings should not be Wild March Storm Leaves Heavy Trail Of Damage In Ont.

Snow-Drifted Roads, Fallen Power Lines Seen in Wake

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A wild March storm ripped through central Ontario and northern Quebec Sunday leaving a trail of fallen power lines, uprooted trees, crumpled roofs and snow-drifted roads.

The gale, with gusts of up to 75 miles an hour, swept northeast out of the mid-west states and today was shrieking toward the Atlantic. Weather officials in Toronto said it probably will pass north of the Maritimes.

Most damage was reported in Ontario. An 8,500-ton freighter snapped its moorings in Toronto harbor and a light aircraft was flipped upside down at the Toronto Island airport.

Traffic accidents were reported on a 20-mile stretch of highway in the Lake Simcoe district and many rural and urban communities were left without power for several hours.

COLD IN WEST

Meanwhile temperatures slowly crept in the Prairies after a bitterly cold weekend. Red Deer in Central Alberta reported a low of 30 degrees below Saturday night. Similar cold snap temperatures were reported in Ottawa and Montreal but other damage appeared light. The storm followed a record early fall in Montreal, buried under 16 inches Thursday.

Sudbury was the northernmost point touched by the howling winds of Ontario. Provincial police there reported bad road conditions with highways blocked.

Tugs and workmen battled four hours to secure the Canada Steamships freighter, SS Burlington, in Toronto harbor after she broke away from her moorings and swung wildly on a single stern mooring. The ship finally was towed to the harbor centre where she rode out the storm at anchor.

FENCES FALLS

A church steeple was toppled at Belmore, Ont., 50 miles south of Sudbury, when the church roof caved in and part of the roof were lost in the gale.

Super Aircraft Carrier Forrestal To Mediterranean

GUANTANAMO, Cuba (AP) — The United States will send the super aircraft carrier Forrestal, most powerful warship in the world to bolster U. S. naval forces in the Mediterranean next January.

This was disclosed by ship officers today as newspaper men arrived for the winging the first public demonstration of the 70,000-ton carrier's jet plane operations.

Franco-British Disarmament Plan Promised

PARIS (Reuters)—Premier Guy Mollett announced today that "in a few days" there will be a Franco-British disarmament plan."

He added that there was every reason to believe this joint plan would have the support of the United States."

Mollet was speaking at a luncheon of the Belgian Press Association less than four hours after his return from talks with the British prime minister.

Mollet explained that he and Eden had examined the disarmament plan prepared by Jules Moch, permanent French representative on the United Nations disarmament sub-committee.

The sub-committee, comprising the United States, Canada, Britain, France and Russia, begins a new round of private talks in London next Monday in a further drive to break 10 years of East-West deadlock.

France has recently taken the stand that disarmament offers the best prospect of beginning to reach agreement with Russia.

City and District News

PAIR OF ROBINS SEEN IN CITY

First sign of spring on the wing was seen in a city backyard today.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Polmanster, of south Pinnacle street, report they saw two robins in their back yard early this morning. They were the first reported spotted in city this year.

SIGNS OF SPRING

This morning, on her way to the city, Miss Anne Morrell saw two meadow larks in a plowed field in Rednersville. The male was all decked out in his Easter suit with yellow, y-shaped vest, while his consort was clad in her dull grey with v-shaped brownish v e s t. When the songsters begin to arrive, spring is not far, off, all appearances to this contrary.

Yesterday, Miss Nora Cartledge, of Bayside, saw a small flock of Canada blackbirds winging against the heavy wind. After going some distance, they decided to change their direction and right-about-wed to be borne back to their starting point. Either they decided to wait till a calmer time, or were enjoying being carried along by the gusts without undue effort of their own.

Saturday evening, too, the honking of wild geese was heard high up in the sky, as they wended their way to the northland, and this morning, "Blackie, the crow", lit down from the Cushingdale looking for his customary 'hand-out.'

JAIL ESCAPEE RETURNS TO CELLS

Police roadblocks called out Saturday morning following the escape of a jail prisoner from a work gang at Napanee turned out to be not needed. Police today reported that Franklin Bowers, 18, returned to the jail voluntarily after he disappeared from a work gang an hour or so earlier.

PERFECT CRIBBAGE HAND HELD

It took 23 games, but it was worth it. Bill Mickinson, an orderly in the Belleville General Hospital and his card-playing pal Ernest Kraft are cribbage addicts. They play nightly just for the fun of it.

Then came the perfect game. McKinnon was dealt three fives and a Jack — and the fourth five turned up for the perfect "29" hand.

Slippery Road Blamed for Crash On Station St.

Slippery streets and an unexpected stop by the motorist ahead got a charge for a three-vehicle clash on Station street Saturday morning which tied up traffic for some time before the way was cleared.

Lawrence Moore, R.R. 6 Belleville, was westbound when he applied his brakes as the car ahead suddenly slowed. His vehicle went into a skid and collided with an eastbound vehicle being driven by Edward Broad, Meyers street, whose car in turn was shoved into a parked auto.

The Broad auto had front end damage amounting to approximately $250, while Moore's car had but minor damage.

City Firemen Kept on Move During Weekend

Two chimney blazes, a burning hydro pole and three over-heated stoves kept the city fire department on the move Sunday afternoon and evening.

On one occasion during the afternoon two alarms were received by firefighters within one minute.

A chimney blaze at the home of Garnet Latchford, Herchimer Ave., caused damage to the roof before it was extinguished. Firemen said the blaze was caused from a faulty chimney.

Another faulty chimney took firemen to Shannonville to the home of Mr. Hicks where again small damage was reported as the fire caught in the roof before it was put out.

The reels were called out for a blazing hydro pole at the corner of St. Paul and Dundas streets. Three runs for over-heated stoves in different sections of the city completed the busy afternoon for firemen.

Plan Art Show Here March 23

Much interest has been shown locally in the coming Belleville and District Amateur Art Show which will be held on Friday, March 23, at the King George School. As previously announced all entries must be brought to the school on Wednesday evening, March 14th.

Each entrant may show three entirely original works not previously exhibited. In order to facilitate proper handling, all pictures must be framed and equipped ready for hanging. Labels bearing the name and address of the artist, together with the title of the picture must be attached on the back; also the price of the picture if for sale.

Entries may be in any artistic media, oils, watercolors, pastels, etc., and may include graphic arts.

West Hastings MLA Dons Mining Gear

In a recent visit of the Ontario legislative committee on mining to the 19 gold producing Timmins-Kirkland Lake areas, members donned mining gear for several underground trips. Here W. Elmer Sandercock of Belleville, MLA for Hastings West consistuency (right) is shown with Deputy Mines Minister H. C. Rickaby.

Toppled TV Antennas Result Of Heavy Winds in District

The popular belief that snow has to be dry before it will drift was dispelled Sunday afternoon as 60-miles per hour wind whipped up water soaked snow and piled it across highways.

Drifts two feet deep suddenly appeared across open sections of north and south roads and high-way snowplows were called out to clear it away.

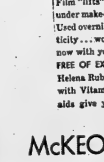
Despite the heavy wind very little major damage was reported in the city or district with toppled television antennas being the major complaint.

At least half a dozen antennas immediately north of the city were noticed twisted over, while in the city a few limbs were ripped away. Neither the Bell Telephone nor the public utilities reported any major interruption, however, although one hydro pole at the corner of St. Paul and Front street caught fire and firemen were called out.

The sidewalk barricade protecting pedestrians from the basement excavation at 375 Front street where a fire gutted building was razed, was blown away by the force of the wind early Sunday afternoon tossing plywood in every direction.

One sheet of plywood was blown completely across Front street where it crashed through a plate glass window at the Home Supermarket store. Store employees were notified and the window was boarded up.

Purebred, Grade Export Cattle In Good Demand



Increased interest on the part of American buyers for both purebred and grade export cattle is being reported by a number of Hastings county breeders.

Reports are that purebred cattle have brought from $175 to over $300 for top quality animals, while grade cattle have brought up to $250. In both instances animals have to be "tops" to bring the top quoted figures.

Mr. A. O. Dalrymple, agricultural representative for Hastings county, said he had been speaking with several farmers who felt the export cattle trade again picking up after a period of little demand.

In the Prince Edward county area there has been a heavy movement of straw and hay as requirements for flock being wintered are beginning to wane.

Considerable interest is being shown in Rodney oats with this variety having the greatest demand. There is also interest in Fortand Brant barley.

Wind Indirectly Blamed for Car Accident

Sunday afternoon's strong wind with gusts over 60 miles per hour, was blamed indirectly for a motor accident on No. 2 Highway east of the city which saw two men suffer minor injuries and their car almost completely wrecked.

Driver of the car Joseph G. Worden, 37, Toronto, suffered leg and facial cuts, while his passenger, Roy Fagan, 51, also of Toronto, suffered a broken collar bone and facial cuts. Both men were treated at Belleville General Hospital but were not admitted.

Worden told Provincial Police Constable Jerry McNutt that his eastbound car was blown to the north shoulder of the road as he struck an icy patch, then overturned and skidded 75 feet on its top and side before coming to a halt. The 1955 model car was damaged to the extent of about $2,000.

Red Cross Blitz Day Set for Next Monday

Monday, March 19th, will be Red Cross Blitz Day in Belleville and in Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

This year the Red Cross branch for the City of Belleville, the town of Trenton and the County of Hastings has a campaign objective of $230,100, a slight increase over last year.

Newspaper and radio advertising will be supplemented by direct mail, car stickers, television and sound trucks prior to the county-wide canvass.

Last year the Belleville branch of the Red Cross was one of the most active in Ontario. The number of cases handled by the local branch was exceeded only by branches in the city of London and in Etobicoke township.

Services include a loan cupboard, homemakers' service, disaster and welfare relief.

Mr. A. S. (Archie) Lewis is the newly-elected president of the Red Cross Campaign chairman is Jack Ireland.

Canvass of all county municipalities will be carried out by volunteers. Last year monies raised included: Belleville, $13,125; Trenton, $3,147; Picton, $1,233; Tweed, $1,100; Marmora, $846; Batawa, $600, and Stirling, $579.

Only expenses connected with the campaign are for postage and campaign headquarters rental.

Mr. Ireland has stated that because of low operating expense, almost all of every dollar contributed to the Red Cross campaign is directed to Red Cross service projects.

Most volunteer canvassers have been enlisted for the Belleville Blitz. Anyone wishing to assist is asked to call Red Cross headquarters at WO 2-2397.

Inco Supplies Stelco with Iron Ore Pellets

HAMILTON (CP) — The Steel Company of Canada further issued 28 car units of Canadian ore on the week-end when pelletized iron ore arrived at Hamilton works from the International Nickel refinery at Copper Cliff.

The consignment was the first shipment from Inco, but Stelco will continue to receive three pellets daily for some time to come. The pellets will be used in open hearth production of steel at Hamilton works.

Inco pellets are being produced by Inco from ore located in the Sudbury basin and actually result from a new process developed by Inco whereby that company first extracts nickel and copper from its own ore.

Inco has established a new $19,-000,000 plant at Copper Cliff which, when in full scale operation, will produce about 1,000,000 tons of iron ore pellets annually.

Stelco officials described the ore pellets as being exceptionally high grade. They are comparable to the pellets which Stelco itself receives from its Bristol property in Quebec where that mine goes into operation in 1957.

Girl Hockey Star, Abigail Hoffman, Has Big Day

TORONTO (CP)—It was a big weekend for Abigail Hoffman.

The nine-year-old girl who for three months successfully masqueraded as a boy in the Little Toronto Hockey League saw her first National Hockey League game Saturday night.

In addition she:

Was outfitted with new hockey equipment she won by selling $30 worth of tickets for the Little THL's hockey jamboree in which she'll play Friday night.

Helped her St. Catharines Tee-Pees team in the Little THL to a 3-0 win over St. Michael's by getting an assist.

Skated on the ice of Maple Leaf Gardens Sunday as mascot of the St. Catharines Tee-Pees of the OHA Junior A League.

SCHOOL FORMED

Abigail, or Ab as she is known to her fellow players, was unmasked as a girl when chosen last week for the league all-star team. Officials discovered the ox of the little defenceman when they took a second look at her birth certificate.

Abigail's enthusiasm for hockey has led to the formation of a hockey school for girls.

Earl Graham, chairman of the Little THL, announced the three-day hockey school will start March 22. An appeal for would-be girl hockey players produced 40 applicants, ranging in age from six to 15.

Abigail's mother, Mrs. Sam Hoffman, said she thinks it's time her daughter got back to normal.

"We've been glad to go along with things to help hockey and especially to publicize next Friday's jamboree. . . ."

"Now we're going to have to clamp down and get Abi back to normal life," she said.

Game, Fish Act Will Be Revised

TORONTO (CP) — A complete revision of the Game and Fish Act will be started this year, Lands Minister Maplesdram of Ontario said today.

He told the Ontario legislature's game and fish committee the revised act will probably be completed in time to be presented to the legislature next year.

The present act was so old-fashioned "the legal profession, magistrates and even officials of our own department are quite confused."

A study committee of department officials and representatives of hunting, fishing and conservation groups would be set up to plan the new act.

Boy Falls 100 Feet off Cliff, Rescued by Scoutmaster

TRENTON (Special) — Scoutmaster Jack Davis, a day foreman at the Trent Cotton mill, led a dramatic rescue halfway up the north side of Mount Pellon, Saturday afternoon.

Rescued after four unsuccessful attempts to reach his precarious perch was Benny Aandewerd, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Aandewell, of 163 King Street, who fell over the side of cliff, 300 feet high at this point when he walked too close to the edge and slipped on a piece of ice. Slimon Koets, 16, was with young Aandewell at this time and played an important role in the successful removal of his chum. Koets could feel above the base of the perpendicular height of land in the centre of the town.

From his bed in hospital, suffering a badly bruised left leg and shock the youth found difficulty in remembering what happened between the time he left the edge of the cliff until his rapid descent was halted abruptly by a small tree, about 100 feet from the top. He remembered he was falling free and then being blinded by swirling snow. "Then I felt a sharp pain in my leg as I came to a sudden stop against the trunk of an evergreen," the Dutch immigrant related, telling of his experience.

The injured boy's friend leaned over the edge and called down to Aandewell, still conscious and holding on to the tree. Then he got an answer he raced into action, descending the mountain by a footpath and returning to the cotton mill for help.

Manager Burton Baker, Public Utilities Commissioner and his two foremen, Bob Reid and Jack Davis, respectively carrying with them a stretcher and a long rope, Davis, with the knowledge of Scout training in rescue, tried to make his way up the icy wall but slipped back. Three more times he was unsuccessful, but by cutting toe holds ahead he was able to reach young Aandewell's side.

LEG BADLY SWOLLEN

The Scoutmaster told the youth was more worried what his parents were going to say rather than his own condition. "His leg was badly swollen and I figured it was broken. He was pale, but otherwise seemed in good spirits. He assured me he was able to make the trip to the bottom, the Scoutmaster related.

Now firemen and police were on the scene to give the Scoutmaster a hand. A young Scout from North Trenton, who managed to climb to the lofty point was assisting the leader. He helped tie the injured youth to the stretcher, lowered rope for a waiting ambulance team by a rope checking its descent. The Scoutmaster guided the head of the stretcher as a precaution against turning over and damaging the victim.

Rushed to hospital by Weaver's ambulance the youth was treated and X-rayed. The examination revealed he had not suffered a fracture. He may be allowed to return home today.

WIND CAUSES DAMAGE

High winds yesterday caused damage to roofs on the majority of new homes in the Champlain Heights sub-division in the direct path of the gale.

Firemen were on their toes to check a chimney blaze that caused negligible damage to Dolphin Holmes' house on John Street in the morning.

In the afternoon, while the gusts continued, a blanket, ripped from a chimney caught in the roof of D. H. Bolpit's residence on Metcalfe Street, causing $400 damage to the house and contents before the flames were brought under control.

Airplane Spots Fire Near Guelph And Gives Alarm

GUELPH (CP)—A fire alarm that was radioed from an airplane to an airport Saturday and then passed through two provincial police detachments sent the Guelph fire department to nearby Puslinch lake to fight a blaze in a summer cottage.

An aircraft from Hamilton was flying over the area when the pilot spotted the fire. He radioed his airfield, which passed on the message to the provincial police at Dundas. They then notified the Guelph detachment and the message was relayed to the Guelph fire department.

Guelph, Hespeler and Preston units responded but the cabin, owned by W. R. Butler of Hespeler, was destroyed.

BRAMPTON (CP)—Police today said they are looking for a man who outran them and ignored two warning shots Saturday during a chase over backyard fences.

Government Was Consulted On Deportation

LONDON (Reuters — Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd told the Commons today the decision of the governor of Cyprus to remove Archbishop Makarios from the island colony was taken after full consultation with the British government and had its entire approval.

The colonial secretary was greeted with loud and prolonged cheers from government supporters as he rose to make a statement on the archbishop's deportation last Friday.

In answer to a question by Liberal leader Clement Davies, Lennox-Boyd said, the governor, Field Marshal Sir John Harding, had reluctantly concluded that the archbishop, and the other three church leaders deported, had "such a close connection with violence and terrorism that their influence must be removed from the island."

Lennox-Boyd's brief statement aroused cries of "shame" from the Labor party opposition.

Davies asked whether captured documents had not shown that Archbishop Makarios was a restraining and moderating influence on the island.

HELD ESSENTIAL

Lennox - Boyd replied: "There might well be more extreme people in Cyprus but the archbishop unleashed forces he could not control. . . .

"Because of his great position and his direct incitement to violence his removal was essential."

Davies asked with whom Britain would now negotiate in the next Mediterranean colony.

The colonial secretary replied: "It is of course our hope and belief that when freedom to think and speak for themselves has been restored, through the restoration of law and order, people of Cyprus who would hesitate to come forward as leaders when they would be branded as traitors would now be prepared to do so."

Prime Minister Eden summoned military chiefs today to discuss the Cyprus situation.

CONSIDER WHERE IT IS COMING FROM

"I just consider where it is coming from."

That phrase, in answer to criticism, is familiar to us all.

It is often a good guide, though, to consider the source of criticism, or praise.

For this reason, two incidents last week, in widely separated parts of the world, on completely different subjects, appear of special significance.

In Toronto on Wednesday, Premier Leslie Frost presented to the legislature a proposed full-scale hospital-insurance plan. Donald C. MacDonald, CCF leader, praised it. As Mr. MacDonald, since his election as Ontario leader of the CCF, has been highly critical of almost everything the Frost Government has done in the past or proposed to do in the future, this endorsation of the hospital plan appears to us highly significant, to carry more weight than volumes which might be written by supporters of the government.

It may be argued that Mr. MacDonald's party has long advocated a hospital-insurance plan and could not now criticize any attempt to provide one. That argument, however, does not hold water. Mr. MacDonald could have assailed the plan, as Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver did, as inadequate. Instead he called Oliver's criticism unfair.

Premier Frost and his supporters may have been surprised by this support, but they will surely welcome it. Incidentally, it may well win Mr. MacDonald more attention when he returns, as he surely will, to the critical attitude of other elements of government policies.

Meanwhile, across the Atlantic in London, most of the mass-circulation papers were assailing Prime Minister Anthony Eden and Foreign Minister Anthony Nutting for their performance in a House of Commons debate on Wednesday on the government's Middle East policy.

Some of the criticism is to be expected. But the critics included the Daily Telegraph, a Conservative paper, which said that Nutting said "practically nothing of consequence" and that he "gallantly stuck to his unloaded guns." (It must have taken iron resolution to resist the easy pun, "Nutting said nuttin'.")

The Times, independent but by no means unfriendly to Eden, contrasted his performance with that of Hugh Gaitskell, Labor leader, to Gaitskell's benefit. Gaitskell, said the Times, "brought an impressive weight of constructive thought likely to enhance greatly his stature as a spokesman on foreign affairs." Eden did not.

Here, as in the Toronto incident, the significance of these observations is increased when we "consider where it is coming from."

THE WINDY CITY

"In this age of the airplane what city reigns as capital of the empire of the air?

Could it be New York, London, Paris, Berlin, Moscow? Boston? Montreal? "Hell," said Gander, Newfoundland, is the terminus for trans-Atlantic air traffic and handles most outbound and inbound aircraft. Is it Gander?

Well, any of these places could be the capital of the empire of the air but they aren't. The undisputed ruler, on the basis of traffic, is Chicago.

Every month for the past 10 years Chicago's Midway airport has broken its own world records for plane movements and passenger volume for a single airfield. In February, 1956, Midway handled 22,086 plane movements. In other words, every airliner landed or took off from this airport every three minutes, night and day, for the entire month. February's record this year exceeded traffic in February 1955 by 2,900 plane movements.

Passenger movements last month were 597,189 compared with 552,854 in 1955. In easier to grasp figures, Midway airport handled 20,593 persons a day, every day. Belleville's population is 20,000. Another way of looking at it is that in February Midway airport handled as many passengers as all trans-Atlantic airlines carry in both directions in six months.

Despite the increased overall totals, Midway's unscheduled traffic was down 10 per cent over a longer 1955 because another airfield in Chicago opened a longer runway and increased its traffic from 1,867 plane movements to 3,247.

Chicago, nicknamed the "Windy City" because of the gusts that blow in from Lake Michigan to cover from the prairies, could earn the title bragging about its airplane traffic.

NOT SURPRISING

In Albuquerque, New Mexico, a man jolted a queue of income tax payers.

Every time he came to the head of the line he headed for the rest room. After a couple of hours of this routine, a government worker trailed him to the wash room and discovered him taking a nip from a bottle. The man explained that he did not like to drink alone and had therefore joined the line-up for company.

We are at a loss to understand why this was considered news. There is many a man who finds himself badly in need of a drink when he faces the tax collector.

FOOLISH DREAD

I dreaded winter coming on,
Dreaded stinging sleet and snow.
Now that it will soon be gone,
I am glad to see it go.
Foolish were the fears I had.
Winter's conduct wasn't bad.

Rough at times it proved to be;
Then, just like a healthy child,
For a day or two or three

Its behavior would be mild.
So, as far as I recall
Winter wasn't bad at all.

Streets were slippery now and then,
Sometimes traffic was delayed,
Late for supper were the guests—
Little difference that made.
Winter's cold winds often blew,
But we're safely lived them through.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

MARCH 12, 1936

The worst flood since 1918 is in progress. Conditions were just right for a flood; the Moira River was frozen to the bottom and for twenty hours rain has been falling. The ice broke away at 11.30 o'clock and, today at Cannifton and in roaring torrent unleased its fury on the city. It was reported checked at Lasier's dam. There it gathered its momentum and soon the ice floe was roaring through the river bed taking everything in its path. At Front Street flood was checked at the remnants of Letts and Cooper's dams but it broke its bounds and rushed on its way at a terrific rate. Damage to property will be the heaviest in the city's history; the foothills and buildings along the river bank were carried away. Cellars along the river front were flooded, especially on the west side of the bridge and many were flooded with complete ruin to stored merchandise. Residents on the east side of the river are flooded by those living south on Coleman Street. At the foot of Murney's Hill, are flooded out, many of them having to leave their houses in the early hours as water to the depth of three feet had entered their homes.

The area of lower Front St. from the four corners to the bay is impassable for pedestrians, while the area from Coleman St. to the foot of Murney's Hill and from the bay to West Moira Street is under water three feet deep in places and more and is still rising. Firemen under the direction of Fire Chief William Lynch and the police department are using the detection of Chief Constable Kidd have been active in alleviating sufferings of residents in the flood.

In the downtown hotels, especially the Quinte Hotel, the water ran amuck over the main floors and The Ontario Intelligence office was flooded to a depth of five inches; entrance could be gained only by row boat, mobile and in this way some members of the staff were carried to gain entry so that they could reach the upper parts of the building and assist in getting out the paper went on. Some members of the staff made their way to the office by the press room was flooded, but fortunately the linotype machines were on the upper floor and copy could be set and mats of the forms were made and rushed by car to Kingston where the Whig-Standard kindly made the castings from the mats furnished and the paper was printed on that paper. The delivery of the paper was made by automobile early in the evening and not an edition was missed during the flood owing to the kindly offices of Kingston Whig Standard.

A number of stalwart young men, wearing high rubber boots, from the Bell Telephone Company once deep in water at the Queen's Hotel and by making trades with boats which they carried guests from the hotel's front door to the street. Employees at the city hall suspended business as the deep water also flooded the city building. Wreckage along the banks of the river was numerous like the debris in the breakup of 1918. Rear verandahs of houses were carried away over the ice on the edge of the river. Many boats were impressed into service and in this way many people in the lower stretches west of the river were removed from their residences. Babies were bundled up warmly and taken to warm, dry quarters. Many were housed in Murney Ward and in some places in the residences of the boat through the door into the house.

In some houses the water was six to seven inches above the window sills. Boys and girls attending the Public School vocational school from the west hill were taken by boat from the foot of Murney's Hill to the lower bridge. Firemen of the local fire department were led through the night bringing relief to flood marooned victims in lower west end of the city. Chief Lynch reports that sixteen families were taken from their flooded houses to dry quarters.

Conditions at the lower ends of Coleman and James Streets, and vicinity were very bad as the water and ice raced madly down through the flats making the use of boats impossible. Out buildings were swept away and some houses were shifted on the foundations. Pickaback was one of the methods used by some pedestrians to cross flooded Front Street this morning. In one case a stout passenger on the back of an obliging friend was unceremoniously dumped into the water when the carrier slipped on a piece of ice. Rubber boots were at a premium, stocks were sold out before noon. One shoe dealer said that he could have sold ten dozen more pairs of rubber boots if he had them. Following the movement of the ice shortly after ten o'clock this morning huge cakes of ice were moved onto Front Street below the intersection at Bridge St., one of the cakes would weigh a ton and water was flowing freely down Front Street from the four corners and all traffic over the main intersection was halted with a police cordon set up at the lower bridge to keep back too eager spectators. A batch of newly born kittens and the mother cat were rescued from the basement of the city hall by members of the public works department just as the water threatened to call curtains for them. A well known young man secured a boat and gallantly rescued his girl friend from the upper window of her home on the flats south of Bridge St. West.

McFee House Burned. The fine and commodious residence of Mr. John McFee on Foster Ave., near Dundas St., was destroyed by fire yesterday (Sunday) morning. Jack McFee and Allen McFee, sons of the owner, were sleeping in the house. OFF THE RECORD By Ed. Reed

Johnny Ray Very Candid

(Owen Bound Sun-Times)

One of the most startling singers on today's musical scene, Johnny Ray, has proved himself to be a startling in another way, as with a refreshing burst of honesty and modesty. A short time ago, while he was appearing at a Buffalo night club, Ray was guest on a television program there.

During an interview, the dialogue went like this in part:

Q—What do you think of the popular trend in music?

Ray—Mostly tripe.

Q—What do you think of your own voice?

Ray—I don't like it. I never listen to my own voice. You see, I really enjoy entertaining people . . . I love working with a live audience. I have to sing what I feel, and I try to sing the things that have the widest mass appeal in the area. And it is no way true in my personal thinking on the matter. I don't like most of the stuff that I sing. I don't like the sound of my own voice.

Q—What do you, as a singer, think of television as a medium for your art?

Ray—What one to be honest with you? I don't particularly like TV, for I impossible to communicate with your audience. You're surrounded by a crew . . . producers, directors, cameramen, people telling you were to stand, what to do. You never know if you're reaching the audience. I'd like to see more programs dealing with good music.

At first look, one might think that Ray's appeal as an entertainer might wane after such forthright statements. We cannot subscribe to that thought. We have no great admiration for Ray's technique, if it might be called that, but we do admire his honesty. If Diogenes were alive today, he would be able to blow out his lamp and go home after talking with Ray.

Simplicity Desirable

(Brantford Expositor)

There is good precedent for simplicity in writings. The Bible says, "Heal the sick." Rehabilitate those who are suffering from psychophysical maladjustment!"

When the industrial Robert Robertson as this year's president of the British Association, Sir Henry Mond Priestly suggested that speakers to be at the service of the public at the association, to be held in Sheffield in the autumn, should try to make their contributions intelligible to ordinary people . . . including himself! Even the busy his advice will be heeded. In this amazingly complex world a great deal of scientific terminology is necessary, but a lot of what passes for such is pedantic pomposity, tending to conceal and confuse rather than instruct and enlighten.

About Time Among Stars

(Christian Science Monitor)

"Today," says a news dispatch from London, an enormous explosion took place on the sun — as gigantic as that of a million hydrogen bombs would be.

Today! This dating of what takes place in outer space must be approached with caution. "Did it was "today." For light from the sun — which is a mere 93,000,000 miles away — from this explosion reached the astronomers in London only eight minutes after it occurred on Old Sol.

Had this Gargantuan event taken place on some other stars it would have been different. A report on one of the stars of the Centaur in late 1951 might have been seen on earth "1948 years" after the time of the 1948 accidental election would have its effect. Or Sirius, the brightest of all stars, would the time of the 1948 presidential election would have its effect on

Stories from Life of Jesus

By April Oursler Armstrong

THE BOY WITH THE LOAVES

Jesus and His disciples had gone away.

They had preached, and healed the sick, without stopping even to eat. At last they could give no more. In Peter's boat they sailed across Galilee to a deserted part of the shore, hoping to find silence for prayer.

But some in the crowd had overheard their plans, and they told others. They started down the beach on foot, determined to meet Jesus on the other side. They forgot He needed rest. They knew only that they needed Him.

They grabbed handfuls of fruit and nuts to munch. They called to people on the streets to join them.

"Drop what you're going," they called. "Come quickly, before it is too late!"

A little boy heard that call. Quicker than a field mouse he darted home. His mother was pulling loaves of new-baked bread from the oven.

"Can I go too, Mother? Huh?"

"Well, Seth, you are a big boy. Eleven, now. Yes, you may go. But you must take food."

"Oh, Mother! No; I'll be too late." But his mother placed two freshly baked fish in a basket.

"No one else is taking food," he thought as his mother wrapped five loaves.

FIVE LOAVES

His mother wrapped five loaves of her barley bread in the basket.

"You will take more than you need, Seth, to share if others bring none." She kissed him. "You will be glad you took this," she said. "Have a good time! And Seth — don't lose that basket!"

Seth ran as fast as his sandals could carry him. But the crowds were almost out of sight around the lake.

"If I hadn't had to wait for this basket," grumbled Seth, "I'd be with them now."

He hurried over the sand. The basket was heavy. He switched it to the other hand.

"I could run right here," Seth said. "I don't have to go to hear Jesus. I've heard Him before."

He answered himself. "Why should I stop? Jesus won't want to go to Jesus. Wherever He is."

But the basket bumped his leg. The sun was hot. Prickles of sweat started on his neck.

BASKET GROWS HEAVY

"I could hide the basket, and pick it up on the way home." But suppose someone else found it? Seth clenched his lips and walked on.

"I could say I lost it. I could go so fast without it!" For a moment he put it down. Then he picked it up again. He had promised his mother. Besides, why bother to go to Jesus if you were already planning a lie in your heart?

His hair fell over his eyes. His feet hurt, and the basket grew heavier. He walked and walked. Noon passed, and the heat was blinding.

Seth dropped the basket, and watched it wobble against the rocks. He straightened his fingers and studied the blisters on his palm. His stomach rumbled.

"I could eat some now, and the basket would be lighter."

He shook his head. "Mother gave me the food to share, I should wait till I get there."

He squinched his eyes. Far off he could see where the crowd had stopped — and by the shore a swaying black dot that must be Peter's boat.

"If I hurry I can get there in an hour or so."

He started off again. But he could not keep his eyes on the spot where Jesus was. He must watch where he walked. His nose itched. His legs were so tired the calves twitched. His sandals rubbed his heels. And suddenly he was lonely, more lonely than in all his eleven years of life.

LOST TRACK OF TIME

He lost track of time. He simply walked. An hour passed. Another. Perspiration and tears stung his eyes. Angrily he rubbed them with his fist, and walked. . . .

The sun was low over the Sea when Seth finally saw Jesus. He saw no one else. He walked right to the very front row around the Master. He sank to his knees on the grass. Jesus' words flowed over him like a cool breeze. For once Seth did not listen to the words themselves. He heard only the love in Jesus' voice. Eyes closed, Seth listened.

The first star shone in the west. And Jesus' voice fell silent.

Seth opened his eyes. Near him the apostles huddled around the Master. Seth heard Philip say:

"Lord, this is a desert place, and the dinner hour has passed. Send these people away now, so that they can go to the villages and buy food."

But Jesus replied: "They have no need to go. Give them something to eat!"

Philip said, "Lord — two hundred pence would not buy enough food for all these!"

Taking his basket, Seth ran to the nearest apostle, the fisherman named Andrew.

"I have some food," he said. "Not much. But take it! I'm — I'm not hungry."

"Do you realize you're the only person here with any food? Wa," asked everyone."

WORKED HARD

Andrew peered at Seth's dirt-squeared face. He saw the dried sweat, the tangled hair, the blisters on his palm. "You worked hard to carry that food. Come."

Andrew led Seth to Jesus. "Lord," said the apostle, "there is a boy here who has five loaves of barley bread, and two fishes." Andrew paused. "But—what are these among so many?"

The dark eyes of the Son of God brightened the twilight with their smile. Those eyes seemed to be looking into the corners of Seth's heart, and to say a silent "Well done!"

Then Jesus said: "Make the men sit down!" For many were preparing to start the long walk home. The apostles told the crowd to stay, and counted how many must be fed.

"Lord," said Peter, "there are five thousand men—and their wives and children."

For answer Jesus unwrapped Seth's five loaves of bread. He took the bread and blessed it. Then He broke the loaves into pieces, and giving them to the apostles to feed the crowd. Then He took the two baked fish and blessed them, too, and broke them in pieces.

Seth sucked his cheeks in silent wonder.

At first the apostles took the pieces of bread and fish in their hands to give away. But their hands could not hold all the pieces!"

FOOD MULTIPLIED

At Jesus' touch the bread and fish seemed to multiply, and grow. Piece after piece the Lork broke off, and still the food was not gone. Apostles hurried off with full baskets, and when they came back Jesus filled them again. Five thousand people ate of those five loaves and two fishes. There were even second helpings!

Andrew sat beside Seth on the cool grass.

"You have helped to make a miracle," Andrew said. "Your mother and you. I do not know what it cost you in pain and weariness, but He knows. And look what He has made of the little you offered!"

Then Jesus spoke quietly: "Gather up the pieces that remain, lest they be lost!"

Seth whispered in Andrew's ear. "Why should He bother with leftovers?"

"Even God does not waste His gifts. Neither should we!" And he went with the others to gather the pieces, which filled twelve baskets. More remained than Seth had brought!

From the crowd came a murmur, which grew to a roar.

"This Jesus is the Messiah!"

And suddenly, the crowd was moving toward Jesus crying: "Long, be our King!" "A King!"

The Master stood shaking His head in sadness, as the crowd approached. Not for a crown had He come!

With outstretched arms Jesus tried to stop them, these miracles filled men who did not yet understand the Kingdom of God. He gave His apostles orders: they were to sail home without Him.

Then, leaving the puzzled crowd behind, Jesus hurried up the mountainside alone to pray.

Seth also walked alone that night. He left the people all around him, but Seth, empty basket at his side, hardly heard them.

"Why did He not want to be King?" he wondered. "I have heard Him speak of the kingdom of heaven, but I do not know what He means. All I know is that He is my King. And I shall love Him, and honor Him, and obey His word till I die."

And hugging the secret of the miracle to his heart, Seth hurried homeward to tell his mother of the wonder God had made from her five loaves of new barley bread, and her two fresh-baked fish.

Grant Licence For Lake Boat To Carry Autos

OTTAWA (CP)—The board of transport commissioners ruled today it is prepared to grant a licence to a shipping company to transport motor vehicles from Windsor, Ont., to the Lakehead in a specially-designed water carrier. In a split decision, a board panel decided 2-1 to grant a licence to Wilson Shipping Corporation of Montreal if it can have the vessel ready for operation in the 1956 navigation season.

It would be the first Canadian ship in service of its kind. The company has an arrangement with Chrysler to carry a large proportion of its Windsor output of vehicles going to western Canada.

In today's interim judgment, Hugh Wardrope, assistant chief commissioner, who was chairman of the panel which heard the Wilcan application, said his opinion is that it should be dismissed. He was outvoted by commissioners Frank MacPherson and L. J. Knowles.

Albert College Wins COSSA 'B' Title Defeats Thornhill 49-46 in Final

Albert College brought the senior "B" COSSA basketball title to Bellville, for the first time since 1953, when the black, yellow and green team defeated Thornhill H.S. in the final game Saturday night at Ryerson Institute of Technology in Toronto.

The final score found Albert on top by 3 points, 49 to 46, after a nip-and-tuck battle in which the lead switched many times. At quarter time, Thornhill were leading 15 to 12, on smart play by Stuckey and Milner, who were the outstanding players for the losers. Half time found Albert in the lead by 27 to 22 score, with Jack Taugher having hooped 10 points and John Rowe 8.

Thornhill pulled up on even terms early in the second half, when Gardner got three quick baskets, but Bob Rupert, who was Albert's high scorer for the game, got away four set-shots that found the hoop, and from this point until the end of the game, the local team was never headed, although on one or two occasions only one point separated the teams.

Thornhill H.S. had defeated Uxbridge H.S. in the afternoon semi-final by a score of 77 to 36, and were hot favorites for the title going into the final game. In the afternoon game, Stuckey scored 34 points, and with the ten he netted in the final game out high scorer for the tournament with 44 points.

Albert College licked a highly touted team from Beamsville H.S., the Niagara District title-holders, in their semi-final game by a score of 59 to 44. Ten of Albert's points coming in the last five minutes of play.

Captain Jack Taugher played fine games defensively, and finished up as Albert's high scorer for the tournament with 33 points, 19 in the first game, and 14 in the final, while Bob Rupert got 18 points in the final game and 14 in the semi-final for a total of 32. Rupert sparked the Albert team during the last half of the final with six baskets and a foul for 13 of his 18 points.

The Albert team, expect to keep in practice for the Queen's tournament which is scheduled for the Easter vacation.

Here you are eye-witnessing a method of research that has recently made medical history.

Known as "tissue culture", it is the method by which the famous Salk polio vaccine is produced. But this same technique now holds exciting promise of bringing immunity from a host of other diseases!

Meningitis, pneumonia, influenza, measles, chickenpox, mumps — these are but a few of the diseases which medical science is fighting on a world-wide front with this shining new weapon.

Like polio, all of these ills can be caused by some kind of virus. Some viruses can now be isolated and grown in tissue cultures. After being "killed", they may then be made into safe vaccines. So the laboratory technician shown here may have in her hands the key to a vaccine that will someday control a disease which now is a potential threat to you and your loved ones.

This project, conducted by the Research Institute of the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, is supported by funds contributed by the nation's life insurance companies. It is one of many similar projects supported wholly or in part in this way.

The life insurance companies in Canada are proud to be playing some part in furthering the great progress of medical science. It is our hope that these projects will result in a healthier life for all.

Active Part In Politics Is Suggested

MONTREAL (CP)—The average housewife forgets her role as an enlightened citizen of her country, Mrs. Jack Houck of Brantford, Canadian delegate to the United Nations, told the YWCA regional conference Saturday.

She said the average housewife loses vision of the world outside her home and reaches the age of 40 without knowing the issues of the day, because she does not take an active enough part in political affairs.

She urged women to become "good citizens" by keeping well-informed on public affairs. "It isn't hard to do," she said. "Join a political party, read the newspapers, listen to the radio, ask questions."

She said Canadian government is what the people make it and poor election turnouts are the fault of respectable person who think "they are too good for politics."

Pioneer Girls, Pals Enjoy Banquet Meet

A banquet dinner meeting was held on Friday evening in the Sunday School assembly room of St. Andrew's Tabernacle when 19 Pioneer Girls and their Pals met for a most enjoyable get-together.

Graceful loops of red and blue —the Pioneer colors—adorned the walls, spiralled around the pillars, and stretched their colorful lengths down the centre of each of the three long tables and bisected the large four-square table at the head, while vases of yellow daffodils and red tulips centred each, adding a pretty accent to the whole.

Upstairs in the church auditorium the Girls and their Pals met, and then, two by two marched down to the banqueting hall, to enjoy a bounteous repast, replete with cooked meats, tea buns, salads, red-fruited jellies, pickles, and hot scalloped potatoes, ending up with delicious chocolate milk for the Girls and tea for the Pals, accompanied by ice cream and delicious homemade cakes both chocolate and cocoanut.

Following the repast, Miss Dorothea Atyeo, Chief Guide, as master of ceremonies, called the meeting to order by the ringing of a melodious dinner bell sent from India by the church's missionary, Miss Ferne Gerrie, who is expected home next month on her first furlough.

Two games were enjoyed, one the formation of words from the name, "Palestine," for which the winners were awarded colorful Bible markers, and Scripture text hand-penning, the other in the form of a Bible quiz, which comprised questions on the Old and New Testaments.

Favorite choruses were also sung, as well as the theme song, with Miss Gael Smith presiding at the piano, who later favored with a solo "The Cross", rendered to her own accompaniment. Gael is a talented little girl with a most pleasing voice and a delightful touch, and her selection was greatly appreciated.

Mrs. Laura Dixon gave an explanation of the "Pals' Program".

Later, several of the Pioneer Girls took part in the program, and a brief outline of what the Pioneer Girl movement was, given by Lenore Dixon, who said in part: "that the Pioneer Girls consisted of Pilgrims and Colonists, the first of which was made up of three ranks, voyagers, settlers and townsmen. Its objective was freedom of worship; fellowship with girls of similar age groups; study of the Bible, and courteous department at home and school; to learn everyday tasks; as the making of beds, cooking, and Bible study. In the townsmen rank, the girls studied the Gospel of Mark, and memorized Scripture verses. In this rank three badges could be won, while in the settlers' rank, two badges might be won. After this the girls might become Pilots, and then Chief Guide.

Three girls received all ranks in the pilgrim division, three were: Catherine Millard, Gloria Townsend and Lenore Dixon, while Joanne Rodgers received her first Voyager's rank, (the kitchen craft badge). Joanne later, from memory, gave a Scripture acrostic from the word 'Pilgrims'.

The evening came to a close with a fine object lesson on "Dependability," given by Mrs. Emile Masse, who used as her medium three clocks, one of which was supposed to alarm at a given hour, but which failed in its requirement, and was therefore not dependable. Mrs. Masse went on by means of question and answer to impress upon her young listeners the necessity of being reliable Christians, in thought, word and deed.

Following the object talk, Miss Atyeo dismissed the meeting with appreciative thanks tendered to those who did the decorating, to those who so faithfully helped in the preparation of the food, and the arranging of the attractive tables, and in the fine program.

St. Joseph's PTA Holds Panel Discussion

St. Joseph's Parent-Teacher Association held its recent meeting in the school auditorium with Mr. W. Meagher presiding.

After opening prayer, Mr. R. Barrett, chairman of the school board, was called upon to present to Miss Maureen Kennedy, St. Joseph's Grade VII pupil, an Oxford dictionary, in recognition of her success as spelling champion for this inspectorate. Mr. F. Halloran, representing the Holy Name Society, presented a prize of $5. All congratulate Maureen on her success.

TWO-PART SONGS

The pupils of Grades VII and VIII then favored with three two-part songs under the direction of the Rev. Sister Wilhelmina.

After the business was completed, a most interesting feature followed, the topic "TV versus Homework". Mr. and Mrs. John Hanley and family portrayed the after-dinner family scene around the TV, which had been generously installed by Irelands Appliance Co., for the occasion.

A panel discussion followed with Mrs. J. Ethier and Mrs. E. H. Emerson, Mr. F. O'Connor and Mr. George Whalen; Mr. R. Chipman most capably acted as moderator. A lively discussion ensued; followed by questions written by the audience.

An entertaining and interesting evening was enjoyed by all.

The Rev. Sister M. Noreen's class was first in the attendance.

Coffee was served by Room IV.

This exciting topper follows the trend and is called a "peach-basket" because of its charming shape. The hat is made of a green, rough straw which is edged in velvet of the same color and flaunts a halo of natural leaves around the crown.

NEWSBOY RULING

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—The Florida Supreme Court has ruled a Miami Herald newsboy who struck a woman with his motorcycle was in business for himself and the newspaper is not responsible for the injuries caused. The court set aside a $31,000 damage award granted Mrs. Mary Kendall who sued The Herald after she was injured by newsboy Wayne Molesmith's motorcycle.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MAKE LIFE WORTHWHILE AND HE'S LIKELY TO COME HOME

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I have been married to my husband for eight years, and I love him very much. He says that he loves me very much, too. But about four years ago he was tempting around with another woman about six years older than myself. After that episode was over, though, he was very good and we were happy.

Up to that time we had had no children, but I became pregnant shortly after he had given up this woman. However, I lost this child at birth and we have no other children. When this baby died, I wasn't expected to live either, but I would still take the chance again. Both of us have always wanted children very badly.

Now I'm having trouble with his gambling. He plays cards every night in the week, all seven nights, and it sometimes wonder if he is really playing cards or running around again. He claims he isn't running around, and says he never uses his pay to gamble. I always get all of that and give him a certain amount out of it each time.

I work in an office, but even though I go out to work I have always kept the home neat and clean, and also took good care of my husband. His clothes were always clean and pressed and his socks never had any holes in them. I never go out anywhere except to the homes of relatives. My husband's people like me very much and can't understand him for not taking me out on weekends.

About a month ago, I had got into such a nervous state over his gambling and never being home that I told my husband to leave. In fact, I packed his clothes for him. Now he still gives me his whole pay and comes over to see me every evening for about 5 or 10 minutes and then takes off again. The other night I swallowed my pride and told him to change his way of living and come home, so that we could be happy again and have some children. But he said I threw him out, and that when he gets his bills paid he'll come home.—A.R.

Dear A.R.: Whether your husband is playing cards seven nights a week, or finding interests elsewhere, I feel sure that you would never get him back merely by asking him to come. What I think is that you will have to make coming back much more attractive than staying away. Could it be possible that the whole core of your trouble might be that he has found things too dull at home? Not that this would be any excuse for his behavior, but it might be the cause.

If the two of you were just in the habit of coming home at night, eating and then just spending every evening by yourselves, or just going to see the relatives in the family, it would be quite understandable if all this proved tiresome after a number of years.

What I would suggest to you is that instead of pleading with your husband to come home and live a better life, you start right now to reorganize your life into something he might want to share. Make up your mind that in this period of separation from him you will devote yourself to building up

TAILORED CLASSIC

Despite its trim, tailored appearance, there's quite a hint of spring in this gray sheer wool dress, good for now under a fur coat, excellent for street wear in more clement weather. The dress is buttoned from neck to hem and has detachable white collar and cuffs. It is seamed from shoulder to hem on either side of front closing. The long slim line is broken only by the pockets which stand out at the seam and terminate at side back.

VERA WINSTON

some really satisfying outside activities that will be ready for him to take part in when and if he returns.

Instead of having family visits as your sole outside interest, look around the town in which you live for some livelier activities and take whatever steps are necessary to join some of them. Then when your husband comes over to see you for that five or ten minutes in the evening, be all dressed up, ready to go to some one of these new places and, when he leaves, say something like "I'll look along downtown with you. I'm going out, too." I will practically guarantee that, after you have done this two or three times, he'll be curious enough to want to find out where you're going. And the evening will come when he'll suggest going along with you. But you'll have to be sure that you have something really interesting to offer, or the whole plan will fall flat.

All of which means just this: If you make it really worth your husband's while to come home and take up a normal life with you again, you may be surprised to find out how soon he might do it.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

HE'S A WIDOWER, WITH TWO CHILDREN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a problem, and I don't know just what to go about it. A friend of mine asked me to write to a girl friend of hers telling me that this girl would write to me. I have been corresponding with her, and it now appears that she has taken quite a liking to me. My wife died about two years ago, and I haven't yet told this girl about this, or that I have two children. I'm afraid that if I tell her now she'll stop writing to me. What should I do? I'm going to see her soon. Should I tell her then, or wait a while yet? — Worried!

As surely you must realize, you are doing the wrong thing by not telling this girl that you are a widower with two children. Don't put off any longer being honest and forthright with her . . . tell her at once, either when you go to see her, or when you next write her.

WHO HANDS IN THE TICKETS AT THE THEATRE?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I maintain that whenever there are tickets to be handed in at the door . . . for example, when a man and girl go to the theatre together or when the girl has bought tickets for a dance or dinner to which she has invited the man . . . the girl should always give the tickets to hand in. Right? — Rita K.

Right . . . the girl should give the tickets to the man to hand in at the door.

ASKING HER TO DANCE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the usual way for a man to ask for a dance? — Bill

The usual and always-correct way is "May I have this dance?" Equally correct is "Will you dance with me?"

SHE CHOOSES TO USE MIDDLE NAME, NOT MAIDEN SURNAME

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My cousin has just been married, and we are all so surprised at the form of informal name (her signature) she is using. Her maiden name, let's say, was Mary Harrison Smith. Her middle name, Harrison, was her mother's maiden surname. My cousin married (let us say) John Brown. Now, instead of using the customary informal form of Mary Smith Brown, she has dropped her maiden surname and uses her middle name, her mother's maiden surname . . . Mary Harrison Brown. I have never heard of both being done. Is it correct? I should think that there might be some difficulties connected with the use of this name. — Reader

This is a correct form of name for your cousin to use if she chooses, although it is not customary. She undoubtedly has a very definite reason for preferring to use in her name her mother's maiden surname rather than her own maiden surname. There might be some occasions when, for special identification, she might be asked to sign legal papers Mary Harrison Smith Brown or Mary Smith Brown, but this would, of course, depend on circumstances and signature-requirements.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

AHOY, LADS! BOAT NECKLINES AHEAD!

The latest neckline, inspired by the graceful contour of a luxury steamship, demands perfect skin care for neck and shoulders.

Spring fever can take many forms but, where the average girl is concerned, there are two subjects are usually dominant. One's the feverish yearning to "get away from it all"—preferably on a luxury liner where she can loll and laze to her heart's content. And the other . . . yes, you guess it . . . is a craving to throw out everything in the wardrobe and start all over again with oodles of new clothes.

We can't help you realize all your dreams, of course. And, if it's a spring cruise you have in mind, you'll just have to see your travel agent. But when it comes to your looks (and that includes clothes, naturally) we do have some "shipping news" for you. It's the arrival of the boat neckline. A variation of the "coop," it's slightly shallower, yet calls for the same skin beauty of neck and shoulders which the scoopline demanded.

You'll find the new neckline on many of the smartest spring frocks, but are you ready for such an "unveiling"? If the skin on your neck has become somewhat dingy from wearing harsh fabrics all winter, is rough and reddened from lack of proper care during the past six months, then it's time to adopt a cleansing routine which will restore a soft, velvety texture to both neck and shoulders in time for spring fashions.

As part of your daily scrub-up, load a rough-textured washcloth with thick, soapy lather. Work vigorously over the neck and shoulders as the best and quickest way to save skin beauty. When you are quite certain that your skin is as clean as it can possibly be, rinse thoroughly several times, first with warm water, then with cold. Next slather neck and shoulders with a rich, heavy cream and massage thoroughly. Massage your neck as you would your face, working from the lower throat upwards. It's good for neck lines and necklines. Leave the cream on for about half an hour, then remove with tissues. Pat briskly with a skin lotion or an astringent—and see the difference. One treatment won't do the trick if you've neglected your skin all winter, of course, but faithful daily care from now on will assure you a "swan-like" throat by the time you're ready to don your spring frocks.

Sickness in the House?

By Mary Moore

It seems that everywhere I turned up this past week there sick, folk—mostly little—to be fed by way of a tray carried upstairs; to be entertained by way of slates and coloring books; to be kept clean and fresh by way of endless large washings.

Who performs all of this magic? The never-allowed-to-be-tired mother of the household—You.

When I saw both Roddy and David sick at once, and shortly heard a cry "Mum, I spilled my milk!" I thought back twenty years ago to Marianne's and Pete's babyhood ills.

That business of spilling liquids on clean sheets and pyjamas and blankets drove me nearly frantic, so it became a habit to spread a plastic sheet under a large white Turkish towel over them all, before depositing the bed table over their little knees. It saved hours of time and energy for running upstairs often!

When your children are sick save yourself work by guarding against mealtime accidents on a spring bed with little wiggling feet under the covers. Lift the milk off the tray to a bedside table within reach.

Since mealtimes are the high points of the day on a bed pet, be sure that trays are attractive, varied; that best dishes arrive hot and covered (it's such fun to peek); that linen is clean and that an extra supply of big paper table napkins is available for potential (incipient) accidents.

I have chosen a few recipes that will fit into quite a few sickroom diets—unless the diet is extremely limited as in cases like nephritis or complications with diabetes.

CHICKEN BROTH

One 2 1-2 lb. fowl, 3 pints cold water, 1 or 2 teaspoons salt. Cut clean fowl into pieces, cover with cold water, let stand 1 hour. Cover and heat very slowly to simmering and cook three hours at simmering until meat is tender. Add salt during last 1-3 hour. Strain. Chill broth and skim off fat. Re-heat in top of double boiler. Cooked rice, pressed through sieve may be added if doctor permits it. The white and dark meat leftover may be used by the healthy members of the family.

EGG NOG

General Rule: Add 1 1-2 teaspoons sugar to 1 egg and beat 1 minute, add 3-4 cup milk and dash of nutmeg, beat to mix. Serve cold.

Variations — Beat yolk and white separately, fold in white last. (2) Use 3 egg yolks, pile beaten white of one of them on top. (3) Use pineapple juice instead of milk, reduce sugar.

APPLE CUP CUSTARD

Four tart apples, 1 tablespoon butter, 4 tablespoons sugar, 4 egg yolks beaten, 1 cup milk. Meringue—Whites of 4 eggs, 4 tablespoons sugar. Pare core and steam (or cook in top of double boiler) the apples till tender. Press through sieve, add butter, sugar, beaten yolks and milk. Pour into custard cups. Stand in pan of hot water, bake at 325 deg. 30 minutes. Pile stiff meringue on top, brown at 325 deg. Chill.

Cypriot Terrorist Chieftain Issued Orders to Archbishop

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters)—British authorities said Sunday that captured documents had disclosed that the leader of the Eoka terrorist organization visited Nicosia to prevent Archbishop Makarios from making any concessions in his negotiations with Britain.

An official statement on the documents was released two days after Britain's deportation of the union-with-Greece church leader to the Seychelles Islands on the grounds that he was guilty of complicity in Eoka's terrorist activities.

Some details of the documents were withheld for security reasons, but those revealed were said to give "a valuable insight" into the inner workings of Eoka and its mysterious leader "Dighenis." The terror group came to light in April, 1953.

The documents included orders from "Dighenis" on the work of Eoka during part of the five-month negotiations on a Cyprus settlement, which broke down earlier this month.

READY TO STRIKE

He said: "My orders regarding the cessation of hostilities during the talks must not be taken as meaning also the cessation of reorganization work and preparation for active operations against the British. We must be ready to strike hard blows."

"Tell . . . that the leader is unyielding and that no retreat is possible, not even to the smallest degree from the archbishop's proposals.

"That is why the leader is in Nicosia now, so as not to allow the archbishop any retraction whatever."

Some of the documents are believed to have been seized during a security raid on a village coffee shop in the Paphos region on March 6.

One letter, the official statement said, made "two important admissions"—that "Dighenis" was personally responsible for ordering the murder of Greek Cypriot "traitors" and that Eoka rank and file members had been murdering people on their own, without orders from above, "for personal ends or out of brutality."

"Dighenis" was said to be troubled by indiscipline and inadequate ordination among his followers. The official statement said he had written angrily: "I will not have my orders disobeyed. Report why you did not comply with my order to cease hostilities. If it is due to the indiscipline of your members they must be disarmed and discharged."

Bessborough, Governor General In Thirties, Dies

ROWLAND'S CASTLE, Hampshire, England (CP)—The Earl of Bessborough, 14th governor general of Canada, died Saturday. He had been ill for three months and members of his family said death was due to ailments usually associated with old age.

Lord Bessborough, 75, was governor-general from 1931 to 1935.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday in the chapel of his home, Stansted Park. Memorial services will be held at Chichester, West Sussex, Friday, and at St. Margaret's church, Westminster, Monday.

The Times in its obituary notice says that "although he will not rank in Canadian history among the greater holders of that office, he discharged its duties with energy and conscientiousness."

QUICK TEMPER

A "certain stiffness of demeanor," largely caused by shyness, and a "quick temper handicapped him in his intercourse with Canadians," the paper adds, noting that his "insistence upon the full rigors of ceremonial etiquette" contrasted unfavorably with the friendly, democratic ways of his previous governors-general.

The paper mentions a "particularly unfortunate" incident in 1934 when Lord Bessborough, finding nobody to receive him on a visit to Toronto, publicly reprimanded the mayor when he appeared late owing to an error.

"The incident led to his being made the target of more outspoken press criticism than any of his recent predecessors had incurred, and, since he had a high sense of his duty, he was deeply distressed by it.

"Forced, however, to realize that he had few friends in Canada who would come at need to his defence, he changed his ways, and, for the remainder of his time there did his utmost to make himself agreeable. Consequently he succeeded in retaining a considerable measure of goodwill."

HONORED BY FRANCE

Other London newspapers comment on the late earl's interest in amateur theatricals and his abiding affection for France, reflected in his work as chairman of the France-British Society. He became one of the few civilian holders of the Grand Cross of the Legion Honor, the highest honor which the president of the French Republic can confer.

Lord Bessborough's son, Viscount Duncannon, 42, who now becomes the new earl, was made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor when a first secretary of the British embassy in Paris.

Lord Bessborough spoke French well. He married in 1912 Roberte, only daughter of Baron de Neuflize of Paris, who survives. She was the first Frenchwoman to become chatelaine at Rideau Hall.

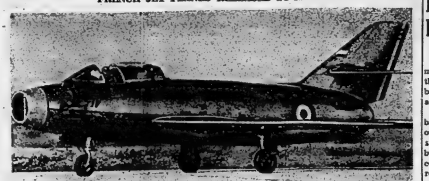
It is also noted that during his tenure of office Lord Bessborough promoted a revival of the National Drama Festival, inaugurated by Lord Grey. This later became a flourishing annual institution.

In his later years, Lord Bessborough retained his interest in Canada. He attended Dominion Day receptions at Canada House in London and was often seen at the head table at dinners of the Canada Club, which meets three or four times a year.

FAITH IN CANADA

His varied business interests included chairmanship of Rio Tinto Co. Ltd., which has extensive interests in Canada through its subsidiary, Rio Tinto (Canada) Ltd., and Rio Candian Exploration Ltd. At one time, he was director of 30 companies.

Lord Bessborough, who had held the chairmanship since 1947, visited Canada last October to inspect properties in the Blind River, Ont., uranium field, and to report on certain base metal exploration work being undertaken by the subsidiary firms.



Lord Bessborough's widow, the former Baronne Roberte de Neuflize, said her husband had been "thrilled beyond all words at the tremendous development he had noted in the Canadian scene during his visit last fall."

Lady Bessborough said her husband's firm faith in Canada had been based not only "on the country's rich resources but on the quality of the Canadian people.

Military Chiefs Are Summoned For Discussion

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Eden summoned Britain's military chiefs today to discuss the situation in Cyprus following the deportation of Archbishop Makarios.

The prime minister now intends to take a leading part in Wednesday's House of Commons debate on Cyprus, for which the opposition has announced a motion ensuring the government.

Fifty Persons Flee Building

HAMILTON (CP)—Fifty persons, many of them elderly, fled into the street Saturday night when fire broke out in the basement of an apartment and store block.

Flames were confined to the basement but firemen battled the outbreak for three hours to make sure it didn't spread through the building. Six firemen were overcome by heat and smoke and were revived at the scene.

Fire chief Reg Swanborough said the blaze may have been started by hot ashes dumped from the furnace in the building, on King street west.

Poison Stolen

LONDON (Reuters) — Twenty-four small metal cylinders containing enough poison gas to kill hundreds of persons were stolen from a car Sunday.

man, this is travelling!

You're secure in an oasis of comfort, speeding along twin ribbons of steel, yours the only car on the road!

NO STRAIN BY TRAIN—On CNR, at the miles whip smoothly by, the strains and stresses we live under ooze out of relaxing muscles and minds. The pressures of the workaday world melt away. There's nothing to disturb your peace of mind, no traffic tangles to shred your nerves. Your chauffeur has 3,500 horsepower at his command to gobble up the space between where you are and where you want to be.

LET IT RAIN, LET IT SNOW—A blanket of fog might reduce visibility to zero. Sleet might sheathe the roads in ice. But weather is something you read about in the new CNR cars, as you flip the pages of deep-upholstered comfort. You know you'll get where you want to go when you want to be there, come hail or high water.

WORK, REST OR PLAY—YOU TAKE YOUR CHOICE—You're free as a breeze when you go CNR. You're not chained to a steering wheel, or shackled in a small cubicle. You're in a modern ranch bungalow on wheels, and you're the king of the castle. Tired? Flip back your seat and let the comforting hum of steel on steel lull you til sleep. Or in something less than a jiffy a porter will set up a deck for you, and you catch up on office routine, or answer some letters. If it's entertainment you're after, your seat and those of your friends are swivelled around and there you are bidding four spades in shirt-sleeved comfort, not twenty feet from the edge of an ice-bound forest!

No other way you can travel, gives you all these comforts of home and more. The next time — stop and think — and you'll go, CNR. Every week, more and Canadians who are going places, go CNR.

STIRLING

Honorable J.R. Cooke Chapter I. O. D. E. Sponsors Fashion Show

STIRLING — On Wednesday evening the ladies of Stirling village, Rawdon and Sidney townships and visitors from multiple points filled Stirling theatre almost to capacity despite the heavy storm which visited this locality early that evening.

The Spring Fashion Show, sponsored by the Hon. J. R. Cooke Chapter I.O.D.E., was most successful.

The various articles modelled were from three Belleville stores: Carson Elliott Ladies' Wear; Georgia Salon Ltd., and Woodley Furs and Hats.

SUMMER SCENERY

The stage was set in a summer scene with white painted lawn furniture, a large floral parasol, large bird bath with baskets of spring flowers and a large window box filled with tulips, daffodils and early willows. The flowers were the gift of Harold Bird and the gauzy willows were donated by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Houchin.

Mrs. Harry Morrow provided music all through the show and also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Bruce Gledenning who rendered two vocal selections.

The commentator, Mrs. Carl Foster, welcomed the large audience and introduced the commentator, Harriet Stevens, CJBQ, of Belleville. She wore an autumn leaf mink stole from Woodley's valued at $1500 and an attractive Easter hat, on this auspicious occasion, with a lovely corsage. All of the corsages worn by the group were donated by Mrs. Charles Vance, local florist.

The show depicted sportswear, which included imported shirtu and sweaters, numerous suits, some with short jackets and Dolman sleeves. The accessories were centred around red, black and white.

The season's hats seemed to be larger than formerly and the all-weather coat and special rain accessories were most attractive. A new duster house coat completed the first half of the show.

MODELS

The costumes were modelled by IODE members: Mrs. Ralph Vandervoort, Mrs. Herb Wood, Miss Shirley Francis, Mrs. Gilbert Finkle, Mrs. Donald Rodgers, Mrs. George Noble, Mrs. Robert Leurp, Mrs. Ernest Cain, Mrs. Robert Cooke, Mrs. Donald Francis, Mrs. Jack Weatherell, Mrs. Ray Mallory, Mrs. Everett Ketcheson and Mrs. Russell West.

At the intermission the winners of the various draws were announced by the regent.

Miss Donna Carlisle won the $18 black patent bag; Mrs. Walter Warren the $20 Net Gordon skirt; Miss Ollie Davidson, six pairs of nylon hose; Mrs. Eliza Ketcheson, the beauty counsellor kit; Mrs. Roy LaChappelle and Mrs. Joe Whitehead each received a $5 hat certificate; Mrs. Douglas Bastedo, a $10 cold wave; Miss Margaret McGee, a foundation garment.

The second part of the show opened with a variety of dresses, several of which were washable. The fabrics were linen, pure silk, cotton, bengaline and taffeta. The colors predominating were shrimp, tangerine, dark brown, green, black and white and the dresses were appropriate for various occasions.

GALAXY OF FURS

A galaxy of furs in jackets and stoles as well as the three-quarter and long length fur in Persian lamb were modelled. The new, shorter jacket with a full flowing back predominated. There were seal, muskrat, Persian lamb, mole, China mink, Russian squirrel and a natural shade of blue mink.

The stylings are a bit different and some depicted pockets as a new feature.

A large variety of bathing costumes were modelled, some with matching skirts and others with white beach coats.

The flag ceremony and The Queen closed a successful evening.

Later the I.O.D.E. members entertained the models and those responsible for the show to a social tea hour in the Stirling community hall. At this gathering a gift of crystal was presented to the commentator and to the pianist. Flowers were presented to Mrs. Carson Elliott, Mrs. C. Woodley and Mrs. J. B. Cooke.

Thanks were expressed to the Belleville stores who loaned their wearing apparel for the show and to all others who had assisted, also to those who had donated prizes.

Johnstown church and Sunday school was held on Sunday afternoon, with a nice crowd. The Rev. G. A. Puttenham's text and lesson was found in Exodus 12, concerning the "Passover." How King Pharoah would not let the Israelites go, because they were being used as slaves to the Egyptians. The Lord was angered and caused one person in each family to be slain in Egypt, except those having the blood on their door, so then Pharoah was glad to let them leave the country. The Lord led His people with a pillar of fire by night and a cloud by day. How the Lord caused Moses to be brought up in a king's family so he would be better able to lead his people, Israel. They were a bewildered people because they had been slaves so long, but they won their freedom and found responsibility. They journeyed by faith.

This is the parable of every Christian life. "If we give our life to God, He will lead us and set us free from the bondage of sin. It is freedom in law. I believe that causes people to do really great things and helps us draw others near to God and witness for Him. We need the guidance of God if we go on this pilgrimage." We should read our Bible more. The church going habit is the best thing there is. It is the school of Christ and it is the means by which the "Holy Spirit" guides us. We need prayer for he who prays, gets to know God better."

Mr. and Mrs. George Warren of Admount, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Johnes.

Woman Under Hypnosis Could Recall Greek Phrases

By WATSON SIMS

NEW YORK (AP)—The woman had an emotional problem she could not explain. In the course of treatment, she was placed under hypnosis and told to go back in memory to some significant phase of her life.

"Suddenly," said Dr. Louis Wolberg, author, psychiatrist and authority on hypnosis, "she burst into what appeared to be pure gibberish."

Puzzled, Wolberg recorded the outburst and brought the patient out of her trance. Investigating further, Wolberg learned that while under hypnosis the woman had spoken Greek. Not only that, it was poetic Greek.

"The subject was not of Greek descent," says Wolberg. "She had never lived in Greek surroundings, never studied the language or, to the best of her knowledge, ever heard it spoken."

PUBLIC SENSATION

Why, then, the strange outburst under the influence of hypnosis?

Both the case and the question are typical of hypnotic "age regression"—a phenomenon which currently appears to be preoccupying the public to a degree probably unmatched since the height of the Bridey Murphy craze.

Interest started gathering momentum last month with the publication of a book entitled "The Search for Bridey Murphy."

The author, Morey Bernstein, is an amateur hypnotist. From an experience similar to that of Wolberg, Bernstein suggests that the answer to the mystery is reincarnation.

Unexplained statements made by a Colorado housewife under hypnosis, says Bernstein, point to the conclusion that she lived in Ireland during the 19th century.

THEORY REJECTED

Wolberg and other noted authorities appear unanimous in rejecting Bernstein's reincarnation theory. But they do not reject hypnosis itself as a valuable tool in psychiatry.

"Hypnosis can be a powerful tool in the hands of a competent psychiatrist," says Wolberg, "but in the hands of a quack it can be a dangerous weapon."

Wolberg and other noted authorities appear unanimous in rejecting suggestions that reincarnation might be proved through age regression. But Bernstein's book has become a sensation. It has also touched off a fever of activity among other amateur hypnotists, leading to more age regression experiments.

One of several groups watching this development with concern is the American Psychological Association, whose membership includes 15,000 psychologists and research psychiatrists.

"We have received reports that an increasing number of amateurs, for entertainment or other reasons, are experimenting with hypnosis," says Dr. Fillmore Sanford, executive secretary of the association.

"Hard scientific evidence says that hypnosis is an explosive thing to play with. Psychological research on the subject has not yet been done enough about it so that it can be used except with great care."

On one aspect of regression, all authorities agreed: When directed to relive his past, the subject will do so to the best of his ability, drawing both on memory and fabrication to please the hypnotist. Often none but the skilled practitioner can tell the difference between genuine regression and hypnotic role-playing.

RECOVERED PHRASES

Wolberg didn't stop investigating the case of the woman who burst into poetic Greek when he discovered no immediate reason for her use of the language. The psychiatrist found, through persistent investigation:

"When the girl was about two years old her mother was a housekeeper for a Greek professor. The mother would place the child on a rug in the middle of the floor and then go about her housecleaning.

"While the mother worked and the child played, the professor would often pace about the room, sometimes reciting poetry or practising his lectures.

"In the course of her prattling, the child imitated the professor, apparently repeating words and phrases in Greek."

Wolberg concluded that his experience was lost to the woman's conscious memory—but left its mark on her subconscious — and through the dissociation which hypnosis makes possible in some subjects, she was able to recover the long-forgotten phrases.

THE WINDS OF MARCH

The winds of March are calling across the frozen plain,
Awaking earth to springtime, the flowers to bloom again,
To rouse the streams from sleeping,
To set the waters leaping,
To hasten on the coming of the shining April rain.

The winds of March are calling in voices shrill and high,
We hear their ghostly clamor when midnight hours are nigh,
But though the trees are bending,
The sap is fast ascending
To paint the maple leaf - buds against the evening sky.

The winds of March are calling insistently to me
To waken all my being to Springtime ecstasy,
To rouse in new desires
That like the sunset fires
Give promise of the brightness of the days that are to be.

—Helen B. Anderson.

Although February brought us some fine bright days, even the most hardy seemed delighted to welcome March the first Spring month. And although March is noted for its wind, the sun is bright and cheering this morning, as were the faces of several callers at our door, among them being some of English birth, causing us to wonder if the English born are cheerier than the Canadians.

Thompson, the correspondence, which included cards of appreciation from Mrs. Bob Reilly and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Will Jackson, Miss Mary Lumb, Mrs. Fred Archard, Mrs. H. B. Anderson, Mrs. Tuttle and Mrs. Allison, was read by Mrs. Cronk. The collection was taken by Little Miss Nancy Foster.

THE POET'S CORNER
TIME ON THE WING

It's lovely growing old
Along life's cheery road way
To see earth's life unfold
As in a play.

A little hate, a little love,
An hour of leisure, two of care,
The earth beneath, the stars above,
And beauty everywhere.

It's lovely growing old
When mind is clear
With still a story to unfold
Year after year.

Old age can be a lovely thing
With happy memories to hold,
What matters time is on the wing?
It's lovely growing old.

Inco Metals at Work in Canada

Modern telephone cables are made up of many insulated copper wires. These cables can handle several thousand telephone calls simultaneously. Copper for nearly 75% of our telephone cables is mined, milled, smelted and refined by Inco right here in Canada. Then it goes to other Canadian companies for the manufacture of wire and cable. This cable is sold to telephone companies for installation in underground systems, like the one shown here, or in overhead telephone lines. All these operations make jobs for Canadian workmen.

Cables like this, made from INCO COPPER, handle thousands of telephone calls at once!

. . . and help provide jobs for Canadians

First, the ore from Inco's mines near Sudbury, Ontario, is processed in the Inco mill, the Inco smelter and the Inco copper refinery. It helps make jobs for about 18,000 Inco employees.

Next, the refined copper is sold to Canadian companies that manufacture copper wire and cable. There, Inco copper helps provide jobs for several thousand more employees.

Then, the cable goes to Canadian telephone companies where it helps make jobs for many thousands more Canadians.

Inco produces over 250,000,000 pounds of copper a year. And more than half of this copper goes to Canadian industries. Almost 75% of the telephone lines in Canada are made from Inco copper. From the ore to the finished cable, this Inco copper stays in Canada and helps provide employment for Canadians.

Found unharmed in the Police barn roquile's bed - sitting room was their 18-months-old son, John. By DIMITRI TRAVLOS

ATHENS (AP)—Greece clamped a ban on mass meetings called for today in protest against the brief deportation of Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus to a remote Indian ocean island. In the Cyprus capital of Nicosia, workers ran their protest strike into a third day.

The Greek ministry of interior, in banning demonstrations, reacted specific to warnings by the sponsor, Archbishop Sygrotos of Athens, that the mass meetings might degenerate into violent rioting.

Squads of police and steel-helmeted troops guarded the British, U.S. and Turkish embassies in Athens.

Fears were expressed that Communists would flock to the demonstrations and incite violence.

FEELING RUNNING HIGH

Greek feeling against Britain was running high. Archbishop Makarios was the leader of the union-with-Greece movement on Cyprus, a British colony in the eastern Mediterranean.

The decision to ban the demonstrations was made after a long conference.

Cabinet minister Constantine Tsatson said the government believed "moderate elements were preparing to cause large - scale, bloody incidents."

More than 80 persons were injured in rioting Saturday after British flags burned, British buildings stoned and the tires slashed on British-owned cars.

The chief of Athens' mechanized police was injured yesterday while attempting to quiet the mob.

The anti-British demonstrations spread out to Salonika and Crete. Rioters on Crete wrecked and looted the British consular building. The consul escaped by hiding in the basement.

BY OTHER WAYS

While the government banned mass meetings, it showed its anger at the Britons in other actions.

It suspended indefinitely the teaching of English in secondary and high schools. It closed the British Institute and four other British establishments. It canceled horse races and all athletic meetings "as a precautionary measure."

Greek trade union demonstrations against the expulsion of British Ambassador Sir Charles Peake, whose successor is Athens Enosis, called "dangerous provocation." Greece has already recalled her ambassador from London.

Greek newspapers denounced the exile of Archbishop Makarios in editorials and headlines.

British Maj. Tony Dean-Drummond, a hero-author of the Second World War, was in serious condition. A mob pelted his car Saturday night while he was driving through Kyrenia, Cyprus.

BING CROSBY OK

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Crooner Bing Crosby was reported in excellent condition today and they thought it was rather funny. . .

You can imagine my surprise when the Conservatives started saying that I was the author of the words. They conveniently forgot that I was reading from their own party newspaper and that I and not said these words."

Jean-Paul said several newspapers had said Mr. Dufresne's statements must have been true since they went unanswered in the commons.

"I did not reply to him at the time because I did not want my first speech in Parliament to deal with a controversy about myself and what I was supposed to have said."

Jean-Paul said in an interview at the beginning of the present session of Parliament he did not intend to make any speeches because his words would be interpreted as coming from his father.

Mr. Dufresne, in his Commons speech, quoted Jean-Paul as telling Temiscouata voters: "I am Papa's son. Is this a bad thing for the people of Temiscouata?

"I am not only Papa's son but Emma's little cabbage. . . .

Madame Sevigny became Minister's wife she has to attend many official functions where she needs interpreting ministers."

Prime Minister's Son Says Charges Untrue

TORONTO (CP)—Jean-Paul St. Laurent has replied to charges he won a seat in the House of Commons with "childish sayings" about his influence with his father, the prime minister.

In his first public speech since election to parliament from the Quebec riding of Temiscouata, Jean - Paul said Saturday night the suggestions were "ridiculous" and untrue.

J. Wilfred Dufresne, Progressive Conservative member for Quebec West, during debate in the Commons on Feb. 24 quoted the speech allegedly made by Jean-Paul during the by-election. He said Jean-Paul was a "spoiled child" who used his family connection with the prime minister to sway voters.

Jean-Paul spoke at a meeting of the York-Scarborough Liberal Association held for Frank Enfield, Liberal member for the riding.

"Probably you have heard some of the foolish things I am supposed to have said to the voters in my county during the by-election campaign," he said.

"I do want to set the record straight, they are not true."

The 43 - year - old Quebec City lawyer said the speeches Mr. Dufresne claimed he made to the first appeared in the Aug. 11 edition of "Le Temps," a Union-Nationale newspaper.

"I read this newspaper story to the public meetings I addressed and they thought it was rather funny. . . .

"You can imagine my surprise when the Conservatives started saying that I was the author of the words. They conveniently forgot that I was reading from their own party newspaper and that I and not said these words."

Jean-Paul said several newspapers had said Mr. Dufresne's statements must have been true since they went unanswered in the commons.

Attending a one-day Dominion-Provincial fiscal conference in Ottawa, nine premiers of Canada's ten provinces were told by Finance minister Harris that the federal government will pay $640,000,000 in taxation revenue during the fiscal year 1957-58 was the utmost it could now concede them.

The federal offer consists of granting the provinces 10 per cent of the personal income tax; 9 per cent of the corporation tax; 50 per cent of the succession duties and a 2 per cent insurance premium tax collectible or collected within their bodies. In addition an equalization payment would bring the per capita tax yield of all provinces up to Ontario's level and stabilization payments to Prince Edward Island and British Columbia would increase their shares to their current levels. Masked Gunmen Take Truckload Of Stolen Nickel

OSHAWA (CP) — Two masked gunmen crashed through the steel gate of an industrial plant with a truckload of stolen nickel early Sunday after slugging a security guard.

The truck and its $10,000 cargo was later found abandoned in a ditch near Bowmanville, eight miles to the east. The bandits disappeared.

Thomas A. Walsh, a guard at the Houdaille-Hershey of Canada Ltd., plant, said he was struck on the head with a revolver seconds before the men drove off in the company truck.

The nickel is used in the plating of automobile bumpers.

Two suspects were questioned by police and later released.

Mr. Walsh said his cap saved him from being severely hurt. He said he was doing his rounds when he heard the motor of one of the trucks running. He went to investigate and a revolver was jammed in his back.

Magnificent TV Entertainment Seen in Olivier's 'Richard III'

NEW YORK (AP)—A great motion picture created magnificent television entertainment Saturday night when Sir Laurence Olivier's "Richard III" made its debut on NBC-TV.

Shakespeare's character study of a hunch - backed villain who schemed and murdered his way to the throne of 15th century England never shone more brightly and dismaying than under Olivier's brilliant direction. The threadbare color film—NBC purchased the TV rights for a reported $500,000—was the greatest single program yet seen on the home screen.

When the audience rating report comes in today there will be some indication of American public interest in Shakespeare. For a host of luminaries of the British theatre combined with Olivier to interpret the true poetry of Shakespeare with great distinction.

In transforming the last scene of the third part of "Henry VI" into the coronation of Edward IV for his opening scene, Olivier uses an intelligent device for clearing some of the confusion that marked the beginning of "Richard III." The Elizabethan soliloquy becomes startlingly effective when Olivier as Richard, Duke of Gloucester, steps toward the camera and sardonically reveals his schemes, his hopes, his black intent.

The performances of the other actors are of a piece with Olivier's: Claire Bloom as the distracted, empty-headed Lady Anne; Sir John Gielgud as the sad Clarence; Sir Ralph Richardson as the clever Buckingham.

What theatre audiences always have had to imagine came glowingly to life in this great motion picture of the evil hunchback Duke of Gloucester who willed and murdered his way to England's throne as Richard III.

In creating Richard, Shakespeare added a new dimension to the stereotype Elizabethan villain; he made him witty, intelligent and courageous as well as ruthless. In interpreting Shakespeare's Richard, Olivier has added the dimensions of the motion picture art; he gives us the closeup of character and the broad grandeur of castle, cathedral and battlefield.

Although "Richard III" is not as great a play as "Hamlet" or "Henry V," Olivier's two previous filmed interpretations of Shakespearian work, Olivier's technical grasp is firmer in this latest production. Also, as Richard, Olivier has played his greatest role to date.

Dulles Says United States Would Support India if Victim of Pakistan Aggression

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A dozen young Communists shrilled anti-SEATO slogans to greet State Secretary Dulles when he landed here today. But most of Indonesia's 80,000,000 people appeared indifferent to the U. S. diplomat's visit.

During his 24-hour stopover Dulles planned to confer with President Soekarno. His program does not include a visit with new premier-designate Ali Sastroamidjojo.

Sastroamidjojo, former ambassador to Washington, headed a pro-Communist cabinet for two years until he was ousted last July. Soekarno called on him to form a new cabinet after last fall's first popular election in which the Communists gained considerable strength in parliament.

Dulles leaves Tuesday for Bangkok, Thailand, continuing an Asian tour he started after the recent Karachi conference of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

The secretary flew here from Ceylon, where he told reporters collective security pacts are as vital to countries as police and fire departments are to communities.

At New Delhi, India, on Saturday, Dulles said "the United States would support India if she became a victim of any Pakistani aggression."

United States military aid for Pakistan has been a major issue including Indo-American relations. India fears these arms may be used by Pakistan to bring about a settlement of their dispute over Kashmir by force.

Dulles told correspondents that the U. S. had taken every precaution to see that arms sent to Pakistan would not lead to a threat to India.

"There can be every confidence on the part of India that no use of these arms will be made for aggression," he said.

"The Pakistan government relations that there would be a quick ending to good relations with the United States, and the United States would support India if she became a victim of any Pakistani aggression."

He said "We don't feel that, because there's a dispute between India and Pakistan, that therefore Pakistan should not be armed to defend itself against Soviet Communist aggression." He added that India had been offered American arms on the same terms as Pakistan.

Violent Deaths Mostly Caused by Traffic Mishaps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Traffic caused the majority of violent deaths in Canada's eastern provinces again last weekend.

A Canadian Press survey showed six of 11 deaths through mishaps between 6 p. m. Friday and midnight Sunday occurred on roads.

Ice was in the usual runner-up spot, taking four lives.

All 11 were men, ranging in age from 16 to 86.

Ontario had the most fatalities with four persons dead in traffic accidents and two in fires. Quebec also had two fire deaths but not one traffic fatality.

MISSING AFTER FIRE

One of new Brunswick's two deaths was caused by a traffic accident.

There were no accidental deaths reported in Nova Scotia or Newfoundland, but the body of Arthur Hicken was feared dead when found missing after flames destroyed his frame dwelling near Montague, P. E. I., Saturday. No trace of a body was found.

Also not counted in the survey was Mrs. Stephanie Burchell, 35, of Toronto whose body was found in the ruins of her home in Branford Sunday. She was believed drowned.

Dead in Ontario—Erezan Pawlake, 25, when his car skidded into Toronto Eglinton Friday night; Rhodes, when his car collided with a truck on a one-lane bridge at Camp Borden near Barrie Saturday five persons in the truck were injured, two seriously; Wallace Black, 53, struck by a car near Hamilton Saturday night; William Burke, 86, an ellipetic found in his home in Ottawa Saturday. He Saturday toppled over a stove, his clothing partly burned.

Six Marimo Plants Arrive For Aquarium

VANCOUVER (CP)—Six marimo plants from northern Japan arrived here by air Saturday night from Tokyo, apparently ending a controversy sparked by the thought that they might have become a hazard to Canadian fish.

A strange, ball-like plant, the marimo is noted for bobbing to the surface of water to get air. The six plants, presented Thursday to Canada at the Tokyo home of Canadian ambassador T. C. Davis, are destined for the new Vancouver aquarium which opens in May.

Deputy Provincial Fisheries Minister George Alexander had said the plants would be held at the airport until it was confirmed they would not become a pest but a permit to bring them in was granted Saturday..

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — Fifty nations were officially represented when 80-year-old Pope Pius XII celebrated the 17th anniversary of his coronation in a grandiose ceremony in St. Peter's Basilica here Sunday.

It was the climax to 10 days of celebrations since the Pope's birthday on March 2. Fifty thousand people in the vast basilica burst into applause as the Pope, wearing his triple crown and a long white silk mantle embroidered with gold over his white cassock, was borne in shoulder-high on a crimson throne by 12 hereditary bearers in red uniforms.

In addition to an official Canadian mission, the special government of Quebec was represented.

Ousted Police Director Said Coming Back

MONTREAL (CP) — J. Albert Langlois, ousted as Montreal police director last year in the judgment of a vice inquiry, says he's coming back.

Langlois said Sunday night he's tired of waiting for his appeal against the judgment ordering his dismissal to be heard. He said he will wait for the verdict if the appeal is heard during this session of the Court of Appeals.

"But if it's postponed to the fall session of the court I am going back," he says. "I have every legal right and am entirely justified in function as director of police right now."

Langlois was fined $500 and barred from public office for a year for tolerating vice in Montreal in the 1940's. He entered an appeal and has been on leave of absence pending the hearing.

His entry into the battle for the police directorship further complicates a situation that already has an acting director and an acting mayor.

T.G. Leggett submitted his resignation earlier this month as acting police director and went on leave of absence until the retirement goes into effect May 28

Meanwhile, vice-buster Pacifique (Pax) Plante was taken over as head of the 2,500 man force. Plante was a lawyer for the petitioners in the vice inquiry that led to Langlois' dismissal order.

Plante was fired by Langlois in 1947 from his post as head of the security squad for "insubordination."

TV Cameraman Says He Was 'Kicked Around' Taking Shots

HALIFAX (CP) — A television cameraman said Saturday he was "kicked around" for taking pictures of workmen loading zinc Canadian Harvard training plane aboard the Dutch freighter Wonegiri which sailed for Egypt shortly after.

Gary Myers, free-lance photographer shooting film for the CBC, said he was pushed around by two members of the Maritime Provincial Agency and "kicked and roughed up" by an unidentified man who struck him with his head on a concrete wall, bruise his leg and tear his clothes.

A doctor who examined Myers said there was no serious injury.

The incident was the second to arise since the controversial shipment arrived at the waterfront shed a week ago. Tuesday night more than 20 Jewish university students paraded placards protesting the shipment of arms to Egypt.

H. W. Frizzell, manager of the Maritime Protective Agency, said the Canard Steamship Company, agents for the Wonegiri, asked that no pictures be taken. He said this was the reason steps were taken to prevent Myers from shooting film.

"But," the manager said, "I couldn't say whether he got roughed up."

Myers also said that a uniformed member of the ship's crew threw a four-foot hardwood roller and a steel shackle at him when he took pictures of the ship from dock side. Neither object struck him.

Frizzell said Myers drove his car through the shed where the planes were stored "and this is most dangerous." He said attempts were made to stop other photographers from taking pictures outside the building.

Because of Tuesday's demonstration Frizzell said, "we tried to keep out everyone we possibly could."

There were no other incidents as the freighter loaded the nine crates on her top deck and moved away from the pier.

The aircraft are part of a 15-plane order authorized by the federal government for shipment to Egypt. Three of the aircraft were shipped from here in January.

Dodgers Repeating 1955 'Bad Start' Red Sox Hand Them Twin Thumpings

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brooklyn Dodgers are a shoo-in to repeat as National League champions if the start of their exhibition season compared with last year's Grapefruit - League record can be taken as a criterion.

Few clubs looked worse during the 1955 exhibition season as the Dodgers won only 13 of their 27 games. But it was a different story once the regular campaign got under way. They won their first 10, dropped two of the next three, and then marched up 11 more straight victories to send the seven other clubs reeling before they knew what had hit them.

Saturday the world champions bowed 8-3 to Boston Red Sox and Sunday took a 17-5 thumping from the same club. The youthful Sox, who collected 17 hits to go with seven Brooklyn errors, did most of their damage off rookie pitchers Sunday. Only Ed Roebuck, veteran relief hurler, was effective.

The Red Sox' big blow was Ted Kapcio's grand slam home run off rookie Ralph Mauriello in a five-run fourth inning. Boston got three hit jobs from Tom Brewer and Tom Hurd and hitless ball from rookie Dave Sisler.

HOME RUNS COMMON

Although this is the time when pitchers are supposed to be ahead of the hitters, home runs were almost common Sunday.

Mickey Mantle came through with a three-run homer off rookie right hander Bob Maier to give New York Yankees a 4-3 decision over St. Louis Cardinals.

Hank Aaron hit two homers over the 433-foot centre field barrier at Bradenton, Fla., and Billy Bruton connected with one that travelled 375 feet as leading Milwaukee Braves to their second straight over Philadelphia Phillies 8-2. All three came off Jack Meyer, one of whom the Phils expect big things this season.

Willie Mays, Johnny Antonelli and Ray Katt got into the home run act as New York Giants downed Cleveland Indians 8-5 for their second straight over the Tribe. Rookie Caroll Hardy and Dick Brown homered for the Indians.

Vernon Law hit a bases-loaded homer and pitched three innings of hitless ball in Pittsburgh Pirates' 11-3 romp over Kansas City Athletics. Frank Thomas also homered for the Bucs.

Walt Moryn, obtained from Brooklyn in a winter trade, and Hoot Evers, ex-Tiger - Giant, homered for Chicago but seven Baltimore errors were the big factors in a 13-3 walloping of the Orioles by the Cubs.

Detroit Tigers made use of 10 bases on balls in edging Washington Senators 5-4. Jim Lemon of Washington and Ben Downs of Detroit walloped homers.

A pinch sacrifice fly by Bob Nieman gave Chicago White Sox the run they needed in the 10th to defeat Cincinnati 6-5.

Cornwall Whips Kingston 8-6 Series All Even

Breaking a 5-5 tie early in the final period, the Cornwall Colts handed Kingston Goodyears an 8-6 defeat yesterday afternoon in Cornwall to knot their best-of-seven Eastern Ontario OHA Senior "B" semi-final series at one game each. The third game is slated for Kingston this evening.

Cornwall led most of the way in this one. In front 3-2 at the end of the first and 5-3 entering the third. The Goodyears, led by former Belleville star Hub Macey, tied the score in 47 seconds of the final period only to have the Colts strike back for two in as many minutes to lead 7-5. Kingston narrowed the margin to 7-6 before Cornwall's final goal at 18.14 salted the decision away.

George Bougie, working with Joannette and Payette, was the big gun for the Colts. Bougie tallied four of his team's goals including two in the third after Kingston had tied the score. Joannette drew assists on four goals as did Payette while Mort Belmore scored twice. Moe Savard and Pug O'Brien also scored.

Hub Macey and Don Bellringer shared the scoring honors for last year's provincial champs. Macey accounted for four goals to equal Bougie's feat while Bellringer tallied one and assisted on all of Macey's counters. Don Senior had one and one.

Referees Stan Pratt and Ching MacDonald swinging the game with ease, assessing only four minor penalties. Cornwall drew three with the loser's taking advantage of Belmore's tripping sentence to net their final marker.

Bellringer gave Kingston a short-lived lead at 7.26 to open the scoring but goals by Belmore, Bougie and O'Brien in three minutes and 18 seconds put the Colts out front. Macey got one back for Kingston before the period's end.

Bougie made it 4-2 at 9.05 of the middle session. Macey and Savard traded goals half way through the period to set the stage for a Kingston come-back in the first minute of the third period.

Only 25 seconds had elapsed in the third when Hub Macey took Bellringer's pass to cut the margin to 5-4, his third goal of the game. The clock read 47 seconds when Macey brought the large crowd to its feet, again beating Devaney with Bellringer setting up the play.

Mort Belmore put the Colts in front 6-5 at 3.56 and Bougie tallied his third goal at 5.25 but the Goodyears were far from beaten. Don Senior worked with Goodfellow and Samolenko at 11.25 with Cornwall outnumbered. The Goodyears pressed for the equalizer but Bougie completed a passing play with Joannette and Payette at 18.14 to assure the victory.

Quebec League

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Quebec Hockey League doesn't wind up its regular schedule until next Sunday but the four playoff berths already have permanent occupants.

Left out in the cold are the Trois-Rivieres Lions, who dropped a 4-2 decision in the league-champion Shawinigan Falls Cataracts Sunday to kill their last hope of making the playoffs.

The Lions hold down the tail end of the standings with 36 points, 10 behind the fourth-place Quebec Aces. Trois-Rivieres had only four games left to play.

The runner-up Montreal Royals kept pace with the Cataracts Sunday by defeating Chicoutimi Saguenees 6-3. The win left Royals 10 points behind Shawinigan Falls, with only three games remaining.

For Chicoutimi, the loss didn't endanger its third-place standing. The Saguenees are 15 points ahead of Quebec, with both clubs having only three games left.

ANCONA, Italy (Reuters)—Seven Yugoslav refugees have been drowned while fleeing across the stormy Adriatic sea from the Communist state, police reported here Thursday night. Bodies of two of them were washed ashore here.

Short of Money?

Not Mrs. Stanley!

Mrs. Stanley* came to see us when she was still Miss Brown. She and the young man she was going with were anxious to get married but they did not feel they had sufficient savings. They were both working steadily and between them earning a fair income. Another couple told them to see us and so Miss Brown came in with her problem. Montreal, Toronto Players Take Badminton Titles

CALGARY (CP)—Players from Toronto and Montreal won five of seven Dominion badminton championships as the national tournament ended here Saturday.

The four-day tournament was marked by upsets of top-seeded Jean Wagner of Calgary and Ed Hrnjlacz of Sudbury.

Fourth-seeded Jean Miller of Montreal won the women's singles but had a tough battle in the final as she defeated Ilka Hunter of Montreal 6-11, 13-11, 12-11.

Defending junior boys' champion Harold Moody of Montreal won the title for the third time by downing Hrnjlac 15-12, 15-5.

Although she was sidelined in the senior women's singles, Miss Warning had little difficulty defeating Ann Murray of Winnipeg with scores of 11-3 and 11-2 to win her third straight junior title.

LAST JUNIOR TITLE

It was the last junior crown for her and Moody. Both will be too old for junior play next year.

The men's singles crown was won by Eavanlin Gave McTaggart of Vancouver, star of last year's Canadian Davis Cup team, as he beat Bev Westcott of Toronto 15-9, 15-10.

Toronto players won all the doubles titles, with Marj Shedd, a semi-finalist in the women's singles and Bill Purcell playing on two of the winning teams.

Miss Shedd and Joan Hennessy took the women's doubles by winning 15-3, 15-6 over Jean Bardsley and Lois Reid of Vancouver. Miss Shedd and Miss Hennessy also took the title in 1954 and 1955.

In the mixed doubles, Purcell and Shedd won 15-6, 15-6 over Martin Semple of Toronto and Jean Miller of Montreal.

Westcott made up for his loss in the men's singles by teaming up with Purcell to overpower Jack Ewbank and John Carter of Winnipeg 15-7, 15-7.

PREACHES IN PEACE

NEW YORK (AP)—Rev. William Howard Melish, storm centre of the Holy Trinity church in Brooklyn, conducted early services Sunday in peace and quiet. A state Supreme Court justice Saturday refused to stop Melish from preaching, turning down an injunction request by anti-Melish forces. Melish has been embroiled in a controversy over charges that he has left-wing interests. Accusations he has consistently denied.

Maroons Drub Dutchies 7-1 In Senior Finals

Here's a club that barely made it into the fourth and last playoff berth of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League. In the semi-finals, Maroons knocked off Stratford Indians in seven games.

Saturday at Kitchener, they continued to display their power as they drubbed Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, who finished in first place at the end of the regular season, 7-1.

That was the first game of the best-of-seven final and 4,986 fans were amazed at the ease with which Maroons handled their opponents.

Maroons jumped into a 3-1 lead in the first period and were ahead 6-1 after the second.

Ernie. Dick and Jim Connelly each scored two goals and other Dutchmen markers went to Alex Vlahalis, Lloyd Ferguson and Eric Unger. Gerry Theberge and Paul Knox scored for the losers.

Chatham players were called for five of the nine penalties.

Second game in the series is scheduled for tonight at Chatham. Sudbury Wolves, who finished last in the 1954-55 season, Saturday captured the championship of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Southern Group Senior A League. They walloped North Bay Trappers 8-3.

Wolves won the best-of-seven final 4-0 with one game tied. They now meet Abitibi Eskimos, NOHA northern group winners, for the NOHA title.

Important Points in Placing Your Lamps

by PEGGY LIDSTONE
Home Lighting Specialist

Two important factors to remember in arranging lamps are one, they need to be decoratively right with the room furnishings, and two, functionally right to allow the best possible illumination for areas of activity—reading, writing, sewing, television viewing, etc.

The average-sized living room requires at least five lamps to make it look its very best. Each of your major furniture groupings should have sufficient light for its intended activity. Therefore, the versatility of three-lite lamps (50/150 or 100/300) are very useful because they can be adjusted to suit your requirements. Then, there are places where light is wanted mostly for its decorative qualities. Foyers, hallways and dining nooks are most apt to have neglected spots which you can lift from dreariness to beauty with the addition of an attractive lamp.

If you want further information on modern lighting if you write to Peggy Lidstone c/o Lighting Institute, Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., 165 Dufferin Street, Toronto, for a FREE illustrated booklet.

Solmar Notes

Gleanings from Field, Stream

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solmar Tables.)

While it is still fairly early in the year to expect anything savoring of complete statistics, already the totals of State-by-State hunting accidents are beginning to take form. By and large, the reports are encouraging, showing, in some cases, pronounced drops from the sorry figures of the 1954 season.

For example—Utah reports only one fatality. Wyoming had one fatality, as had Missouri, its first in two years. New Hampshire had no fatalities.

Conversely, Ohio broke its eight-year string of deer season without fatal shootings and it did so in a large way—18 dead during the deer season. Idaho killed 13, Maine 9, while Texas scored a new high with 35 dead hunters.

An Associated Press report quotes Mosie County's (California) Sheriff's Deputy, Gerald Wilson, as describing one sector of his area "as only slightly less dangerous than a beach head." He reported that two volunteers went into this area to rescue a wounded man. They had to crawl to keep from being hit themselves. And this, mind you, in a State which has compulsory safety education program.

TEEN AGERS BLAMED

Admittedly, teen-agers and those in the twenties are being blamed for many things they do not deserve, but hunting accidents cannot be classed as one of these. In Texas, for example, 20 of the 35 fatalities involved the teen-age group: The American Rifleman report for 1954 showed that of 1298 cases investigated, 64-per cent were charged up to hunters between the ages of 11 and 29.

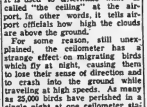
Some of States now how compulsory safety education programs and many more plan to follow suit. This is an excellent step in the right direction. In case your State is not one of these, here is a suggestion:

The National Rifle Association is sponsoring a Hunter Safety Program that is well thought out and is basically sound. Any beginner who learns his gun handling..under the direction of an instructor who qualifies in this program is bound to be a far safer man or woman in the hunting field that he or she would be without such instruction.

The program, while it is interested in marksmanship and shooting accuracy, stresses only one feature—safe gun handling. Service clubs, sportsmen's groups, Boy Scouts, 4-H Clubs, etc., are being encouraged to sponsor this program and many of them are doing so.

If you are interested, and it is to be hoped that you are, write to National Rifle Association, 1600 Rhode Island Avenue, N.W., Washington, 6, D.C. A postcard will bring you all information.

DAMS and ATOMS



During the past 40 or 50 years, big hydro - electric dams have been built all over this country of ours. A great many streams have been dammed and, in some cases, ruined. Much valuable land has been flooded, land of which a goodly part could have been developed to wiser and more profitable use.

These dams have cost billions of dollars. A great many of them have been sponsored and paid for by the government. The conservationists of the country have waged what all too often is a losing war against such construction. At long last, a new solution of the big-dam problem seems to be not too far distant.

On August 1st, 1955, Governor Langlie of the State of Washington delivered a talk over Station KTN A-TV in Tacoma, Washington. What he had to say of the future of electric power is interesting.

No need here to quote directly from that address. Suffice to say that its highlights indicate that within eight to 12 years, such rapid strides are being made in the study of atomic energy that electricity produced by nuclear fission can be so cheap that it will compete more than successfully with hydro-electric power.

May a kind Providence hasten the day. Already far too many flowing streams have been in a related fish fishing and public enjoyment have been all but completely lost. Nuclear electric power is profoundly to be desired. Here's hoping that the time is not too far distant when hydro-electric power is simply too expensive to justify big-dam construction.

LIGHT KILLS BIRDS

No doubt you have wondered about that vertical beam of light which shows itself each night in the vicinity of the airport. That beam, of several million candlepower, is known as a ceilometer. It is used to determine what is called "the ceiling" at the airport. In other words, it tells airport officials how high the clouds are above the ground.

For some reason, still unexplained, the ceilometer has a strange effect on migrating birds which fly at night, causing them to lose their sense of direction and to crash into the ground while traveling at high speed. As many as 25,000 birds have perished in a single night at one ceilometer station.

Now, through the intervention of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, mortality among the little migrants will be reduced this fall. Experiments show that by the use of filters, which retain visible light and allow only ultraviolet or "black light" to pass through, the ceilometer will continue to function but the birds are not affected.

Already two ceilometers are operated in this fashion and the results have been gratifying. Plans are being made to install more filters this year.

For some reason, also unexplained, the great majority of bird losses occur while the south-bound migrations are in progress. Given a cold front, a low ceiling and a ceilometer and the result is the death of thousands of song and insectivorous birds. Wish, a wide variety of birds have fallen victim to this combination, mainly the losses are among the warblers and tanagers.

The Air Force and the Weather Bureau have promised to cooperate this fall when the migrations are in progress. Those ceilometers that are not equipped with filters will be turned off when the flights are passing, always providing that the instruments are not needed for the safety of air travel.

BOY CONSERVATIONISTS

The Sport Fishing Institute of Washington, D.C., brings up an interesting suggestion in its bulletin for December, 1955. The editor calls attention to a species of h e l p in conservation projects which, all too often, is overlooked when there is a job to be done.

For example, consider the fish stocking program of any State. Or, for that matter, a winter game-feeding project. Usually the local sportsmen's groups are called upon to cooperate. E for one, would be most happy if there were deposited in my bank account one dollar far every bucket of fish that has been carried from truck to stream by my uncalloused hands during the 30 or 40 years.

Adults, most of them, are not used to hard labor and extra exertion. Moreover, they have rather exacting responsibilities, w h a t with maintaining homes and holding down jobs. Not too many of them are willing to take orders.

Conversely, boys have few responsibilities, plenty of time, and boundless energy. They accept orders willingly and are enthusiastic workers. It seems more than likely that State Conservation groups and Boy Scouts could work out arrangements for great mutual benefit.

Nearly all youngsters have a natural liking for the outdoors. All too few of them are learning properly in its full enjoyment. Such an arrangement would bring together men who know the outdoors intimately and willing students who would welcome the opportunity that such an association would bring about.

Moreover, it would tap an endless supply of animal energy that is noticeably lacking in a group of adults assembled for that same purpose. Why not put our boys' power to work? All of us would be the better for it.

West Point Cadets Defeat RMC 3-2 In Annual Traditional Hockey Game

KINGSTON (CP) — The Royal Military College this weekend wound up on the short end in their annual three-part competition with the United States Military Academy, West Point, N.Y.

Thirty-six West Pointers defeated the Canadians in hockey and pistol matches but slipped on the debating floor. Their 3-2 hockey victory Saturday night was the seventh in 25 meetings, all in the last 10 competitive seasons. It was a rolling match, studded with nine penalties and played on soft ice.

On the pistol range the U.S. cadets scored a 1,370-point victory over both an RCMP team with 1,329 and RMC with 1,202.

The Canadians racked up their single victory in out-talking a two-man West Point debating team which supported the resolution "that the engineer has made a more significant contribution to modern society than the arts man."

SCORED HAT TRICK

Husky Tom Harvey, a second-string centre, led the visiting cadets to their ice triumph, scoring all three West Point goals; two in the first period and one in the third. About 2,000 fans watched the match which saw a rare rash of penalties, five to the Canadians and four to the U.S. cadets.

Crowd Roars As Santee Wins Milwaukee Mile

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Miler Wes Santee, facing another legal battle Thursday against the Amateur Athletic Union, expects to run next Saturday in Cleveland's Knights of Columbus track games.

"My plans are to run in Cleveland, no matter how my trial comes out," the former Kansas star declared Saturday night after winning his section of the Milwaukee Journal feature mile in 4:10.5.

The 25-year-old marine lieutenant is under a lifetime suspension by the AAU which ruled he accepted excessive expense money in meets last year. He blocked enforcement of the suspension by securing an injunction that was twice upheld over the appeals of the AAU. Armed with the writ, he ran in the Journal mile and in the New York Knights of Columbus Games the previous Saturday.

"If my suspension sticks," he said, "we have plans. We hope to move through normal channels. I am not at liberty to divulge what those plans are." The trial on the injunction proceedings will be held by the New York Supreme Court.

EXACT INTERPRETATION

He asserted the whole question was a matter "of being exact in interpretation of the rules." He did not explain the statement.

Saturday night Santee easily defeated Ed Kirk of the air force who was second, and Bill Taylor a marine stationed with him at Quantico, Va.

The sellout crowd of 10,200 rose as Santee ran and roared approval of his every stride in the last quarter mile.

"The reaction was wonderful," he said but added the "cheers were more spontaneous in New York" where he also won his section of the race in 4:13.8.

MAGGIES QUIT!

A mythical white towel, traditional emblem of surrender, has flattered into the ring of the Eastern Senior "B" League playoffs ring.

It was figuratively tossed there by Manager Del McMullen of the Brockville Magedomas who at the moment was embroiled in a semi-finals best-of-seven struggle with the powerful loop-leading Whitby Dunlops.

The Maggiemas gave up the ghost following two one-sided thumpings at the hands of the Dunnies who ran up 15-4 and 12-3 victories, the latter in Whitby Saturday night.

Wren Blair received word of the Brockville decision to withdraw from playoff competition via telephone call from Mc-Mullen. The Maggies' manager said poor attendance by fans and failure of his club to provide the necessary competion prompted the move. The "towel-toss" has received the approval of OHA vice-president Lorne Cooke and business manager Bill Hanley.

Now the Dunnies can rest easy until the shaking semi-finals feud between Cornwall Colts and Kingston Goodyears is settled one way or t'other. The Colts kicked their heels high in their home corral Sunday afternoon to whomp the Cheedies 8-6 and square the series at one-all. The teams clash again tonight in Kingston and at Cornwall on Thursday.

The Brockville decision to withdraw is understandable and will scarcely be classified as a surprise to the rest of the group. The Maggies have not been drawing the peverbial "peanuts" and crowds of two or three hundred can scarcely be expected to pay the shot. Transportation costs were heavy in the Brockville-Whitby hassle and there is no reason to believe the Maggies' exchequer was heavily lined with customer gold.

It is no fault of the Maggies' management. Kitch Stanford lined up what he thought would be a powerful contending team at the beginning of the season. And the Maggies went fine for a while. Then they ran into a more or less lengthy losing streak and the faithful began to desert the wicket.

Then came coaching trouble. Emile Dagenais, starting coach, was relieved of his duties because of alleged favoritism shown his brother. He continued with the club in a playing role.

But spectator interest lagged, while costs maintained their level. There was a management-player row in camp and it was decided to operate on a co-operative basis with the players taking a share of whatever funds accumulated. This did not meet with the approval of Dagenais, Gordie Lomer, Marcel Learis and another player who deserted the Maggie ship and caught on with the De LaSalle club in the South Ottawa District League.

However the Maggies carried on with what was left, with the club trying out juniors and other city and district players in an effort to bolster its strength.

Coach Al Kuntz, the Duncan twins and the rest of the club battled hard in a losing cause, and brought the team into the playoffs.

There is no question of bad sportsmanship in the Brockville decision to withdraw. Any other club would have done likewise under similar circumstances, unless they had a "sugar daddy," with an old school tie who was not averse to losing an extra few thousand just for the sake of his alma mammy. And other towns not grow on apple trees in Brockville, or any other place.

Meanwhile, there is a nip-and-tuck struggle going on between Cornwall and the Kingston Goodyears in the other bracket. The Colts dropped a 6-5 heartbreaker in the opening clash, but roared back to square the series before a sell-out crowd.

And that crash you heard over the week-end was the swan-song to Swami Michael J. Rodden's crystal ball. The pesky thing did not come up with any predictions regarding the Brockville withdrawal, nor with the terrific hockey being played by these upstart Colts against the "defending champions." Remember, Miguel, "she ain't over until that final whistle blows."

"Try it once more, Henry. If you still can't slalom, I'll make the instructor refund your money!"

Schmidt Turns on Power Tap In Thrilling 4-0, 3-1 Wins; Toronto, Blues Split Triumphs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Where, oh where did Boston Bruins get all the power?

There they were in fifth place in the National Hockey League and the writing on the wall said they were just about finished as far as a Stanley Cup playoff berth was concerned.

The weekend doubleheader against the fourth Montreal Canadiens would finish the Beantowners, folks figured. But Bruins turned on the power and clobbered Canadiens 4-0 at Montreal Saturday and 3-1 Sunday at Boston. Now they're snapping at the tail of Toronto Maple Leafs for the fourth and last playoff position.

Leafs had their three-point margin over Bruins slashed to a single point as New York Rangers whipped them 4-2 at New York Sunday after Leafs took a 5-2 home victory from Rangers Saturday.

HAWKS BOW OUT

Detroit Red Wings killed any mathematical hopes Chicago Black Hawks had of getting out Boston and Toronto for a playoff spot by defeating Hawks 3-0 Saturday at Detroit. Wings took another 3-2 win from Hawks at Chicago Sunday.

Hawks are still what the Wings rough for Bruins and Leafs. They have a game left with both clubs before the season ended Sunday. Bruins' other game is with Wings at Boston while Leafs visit Detroit in their last contest.

A stunned Montreal crowd of 13,838 saw Bruins turn in a performance Saturday that stamped them as anything but dead and they're still trying desperately to make fourth place.

Goaltender Terry Sawchuk came up with the big saves in earning his eighth shutout of the season.

Don McKenney, Jerry Toppazzini, Johnny Peirson and Cal Gardner were the Boston scorers.

EARLY LEAD

Peirson, McKenney and Vic Stasiuk rolled Bruins into a 3-0 lead before the first period ended Sunday at Boston. Bernie Geoffrion scored Montreal's lone goal. A crowd of 11,833 sat in on that game.

A pair of goals by Pete Conacher powered Rangers to their 4-2 win over Leafs before 12,297 fans at Madison Square Garden Sunday.

The game was marred by an eye injury to Leafs' Fred Stanfield. He was forced to retire early in the second period after being accidentally poked in the right eye by the stick of Rangers' Wally Hergesheimer.

Hergesheimer and Andy Bathgate were the other Rangers scorers. Ron Stewart and Gerry James counted for Leafs.

LEAF COMEBACK

Saturday, before 13,302 Toronto fans, Dean Prentice and defenceman Bill Gadsby scored 15 seconds apart to give Rangers a 2-0 lead before the game was three minutes old. But Leafs took over from there and rolled into a 5-2 victory.

The Prentice-Gadsby duo was shared by Rusty Migay, Sid Smith, Brian Cullen, Ron Stewart and Ted Kennedy who fired his 37th goal of the season to tie the club mark set by Gaye Stewart in 1945-46.

The loss was costly to Rangers as Wings moved two points ahead of the third-place Blueshirts in their drive for second place. Rangers have 73 points, Detroit and New York each has three games to play.

Alex Delvecchio and Metro Prystai scored the Wings' goals at Detroit Saturday as rookie goaltender Glenn Hall racked up his 12th shutout of the season. It equalled the club record reached three times by Terry Sawchuk, now with Boston.

HOWE SCORES TWO

Two second - period goals by Gordie Howe helped Wings to their win Sunday at Chicago. Lorne Ferguson sandwiched the other Detroit goal between Howe's goals.

Defenceman Pierre Pilote and Frank Martin fired the other Hawk markers.

The Wings lost the playoff services of defenceman Warren Godfrey. He suffered a double jaw fracture in the second period when struck in the face by a puck.

Peterborough Wins Team Title In Picton Badminton Tourney; Ottawa Girl Individual Star

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

PICTON — A diminutive 130-pound lady star from the Ottawa Commerce Badminton Club powered her way through to three titles here Saturday night to win individual honors in the first Eastern Ontario Invitation Badminton Tournament.

Mrs. Edith Hayman, despite a physical handicap, almost stole the show with her sensational efforts in winning the ladies' singles and partnering clubmates in the ladies' doubles and mixed doubles.

The Peterborough Badminton Club won the team honors, grossing 30 points and the handsome Picton Chamber of Commerce trophy, from a field of ten district clubs.

The order of finish was Peterborough 30; Ottawa Commerce 16; Oshawa 13½; Ottawa Fisher Park 12; Kingston 10½; Bowmanville 7½; Belleville Y 7; Trenton RCAF 4½ and Picton 4. Brockville did not score a point.

Peterborough won the men's and mixed doubles and were runners-up in the ladies' singles and men's senior doubles. Ottawa Commerce won the ladies' singles and were runners-up in the mixed doubles. Ottawa Fisher Park won the men's singles and reached the finals in the men's doubles. Kingston won the senior men's doubles with Oshawa winning both the ladies' and men's consolation events.

Mrs. Hayman, born with no fingers on her right hand, is a badminton star of the first magnitude in eastern and central Ontario circles. Her singles triumph here Saturday gave her a monopoly of the title in the three eastern districts, Central, St. Lawrence and Ottawa. She also holds the counties in the St. Lawrence District mixed doubles and the Ottawa district ladies' double and mixed doubles.

Mrs. Hayman's brilliant crosscourt shots sparked her more or less easy victory in the ladies' singles over the veteran Peterborough champion Mrs. Maurice Charlton. She fairly scintillated with team-mate Mrs. Lorna Rice in the ladies' doubles to turn back the bid of Nan Stevenson and Mrs. Audrey O'Donohue in the ladies' doubles and her sparkling play on the small factor in the mixed doubles when she partnered Dave Waddell to defeat Grant Henry and Marge Baker of Peterborough.

Ralph Wintle, alien player of the Ottawa Fisher Park club was not extended in his men's singles finals with Ken Smith of Ottawa. The other finals play was excellent with the men's doubles match between Grant Henry and Ken Crowe of Peterborough and Dave Waddell and Wintle of Ottawa producing the keenest competitive play of the tournament. The match was a thriller from start to finish going three matches before the Peterborough pair squeezed out the victory.

BELLEVILLE TAKES TWO

Members of the Belleville Garrison Club while eliminated in titular play provided an all-club furore in the consolations doubles events with Madge Cowley and Marion Salisbury defeating Peter Callaghan and W. Waldron in the ladies' match and Bill McBride and John MacDonald ".

and John MacDonald disposing of Dan Cowley and Reed Clarke in the men's event.

Visiting players were loud in their praise of the fine hospitality of the host club. The armouries here are specially adapted to badminton play and the five courts in play were in excellent condition. The lighting is excellent and it was the consensus that the Picton courts rank among the best east of Toronto.

Dr. Dick Evans, president of the Picton Chamber of Commerce, extended the civic welcome in place of Mayor H. J. Ketcheson unavoidably absent and presented the Chamber trophy to the victorious Peterborough club. Chris Lockyer made a colorful emcee in the presentation of prizes and trophies following the tournament. George Publow, hard-working secretary, received a tangible tribute to his services. Appreciative tribute was also paid to Major John Pearce and Captain John Graydon of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment for their outstanding co-operation in helping make the tournament the success it was.

Club president, Chris Lockyer, and his hard-working committee also received accolades for a job well done. Members include Betty Brown, secretary; Thera Falconer, publicity; George Publow, Rod Dulmage, Howard Seeley, Grace Lockyer and Sherman Bowers. Creighton Lockyer also did a fine job.

Roy Johnson, Peterborough Central Ontario Badminton Association president, expressed his appreciation of the Picton club effort and hoped it would be an annual affair. A suggestion that an invitation tournament be held to comprise clubs of the three eastern and central associations met with general approval.

The results:

MEN'S SINGLES

Ralph Wintle, Ottawa Commerce defeated Ken Smith, Oshawa, 15-4, 15-6.

Ladies Singles—Edith Hayman, Ottawa Commerce, defeated Mrs. Maurice Charlton, Peterborough, 11-8, 11-2.

Vejar Favored Over Arthur King; Fight Tonight

TORONTO (CP) — Welterweight Chico Vejar, making one of his rare appearances away from the television cameras, seeks his 64th victory in 71 professional fights tonight when he meets Toronto's Lyl Arthur King in a 10-rounder.

Vejar, from Stamford, Conn., is an 8-to-5 favorite to accomplish the feat. King, former Canadian and British Empire lightweight champion, will be campaigning for the first time as a welter. It will be the first night he has stepped into the ring in 27 months.

The 29-year-old King won 58 of his 69 pro scraps until a hand injury received in his last bout against Eddie Chaves in San Francisco put him on the sidelines for more than two years. The long layoff made King the underdog in the main event of the professional boxing card tonight.

CAPTURES DERBY

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — T. A. Grayson's Hesping Night, a three-year-old who was changed from a pacemaker to a strong stretch runner, stamped himself as a Kentucky Derby type when he won the $50,350 Louisiana Derby.

The big chestnut with the stretch-running talent of his sire, Reaping Reward, took the lead as the 11 horse field entered the stretch in the 1¼-mile race and fought off a late challenge by Mr. Rob W. to win by a length. Third was Frost Mr.

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—The touring golf professionals try again today to wind up the rain-disrupted Pensacola Open.

Calvert helps build a living Canadian theatre

Each year, all across Canada, theatre groups compete for Calvert Regional Trophies and cash awards in thirteen Regional Drama Festivals. From all these groups, chosen by adjudication, eight are then selected to compete in the Dominion Drama Festival Finals for the main Calvert Trophy and the Calvert $1,000 Cash Award. The Dominion Drama Festival, founded in 1932, has been hailed by the Massey Commission Report as "an important national movement and a unifying force in our cultural life."

Reprints of this illustration, suitable for framing, are available free on request.

The stars of the play have made their final bow. The last applause has died out . . . and someone who, a moment before, was a member of the audience, steps onto the spotlighted stage in the now tensely silent theatre.

The adjudicator is about to give his decision.

The effort and anxiety of rehearsal . . . the excitement of performance . . . even the enthusiastic applause of a friendly audience . . . fade in importance. Now the adjudicator—selected for his training and knowledge of theatre—is about to pass judgment and award the Calvert Trophy to the cast of the play he has selected as prize winner in the Dominion Drama Festival.

Calvert Distillers are proud that, through sponsorship of the Dominion Drama Festival—the only national dramatic movement of its kind in the world —they are able to encourage and to reward this uniquely Canadian enterprise by presentation of the Calvert Trophies—symbols, indeed, of a living, Canadian theatre.

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Always turn the other cheek, I was told as a boy. But members of the gashouse gang in our vicinity did not subscribe to this rule. And until it dawned on me, brother did I get pasted right and left.

From the standpoint of rule, it is poor policy to lead away from a king against a suit contract. But when your opponent does not know this, no telling when he is going to pull it on you.

There's bobbed up the deal you see here:

NORTH
♠Q 9 7
♥A
♦A J 10 8 5 3
♣Q 10-7

WEST
♠K J 3 2
♥J 9 7 5 4
♣K 8 6 4

EAST
♠A 6
♥10 8 3 2
♦K 7
♣A J 9 5 3 2

SOUTH
♠10 8 5 4
♥K Q 5
♦Q 9 7 6 4

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 Diamond	2 Diamonds
4 Diamonds	5 Diamonds

Although each was able to read 12 tricks or more in the pair, neither partner had the stuff for slam taking. A preponderance in trick count loses timing without slam probe ingredients.

Correct opening lead from west is heart five; fourth from his highest in a suit that lacks ace or king. And with such a lead the declarer could have taken 12 tricks without much effort.

However, west was a beginner and did not know a bad lead if it came up and talked to him in his native tongue. So, he started out with the opening lead of a small spade.

East took it with the ace. Having once heard someone say "always return your partner's lead," east did and west won with the king. A return spade from west was ruffed by east. Down one.

After some 400 years of whist and bridge, the rules for leads are pretty well established. They are what players should learn and what players should apply for best results.

Then some palooka comes along and does latter by doing wrong. It is enough to make teacher throw up his job.

Manchester Clings To League Lead

LONDON (CP) — Manchester United, after five straight victories, was held to a 1-1 tie by Cardiff Saturday but maintained its six-point lead in English League first division soccer.

Blackpool also played to a draw, 3-3 at Preston, and remains six points behind in second place.

Manchester United has eight games to play and Blackpool nine. The season ends late next month and United is favored to win its second league title in four years and fourth of all time.

A crowd of 50,000 turned up at London's Valley Parade Stadium for the Charlton-Arsenal game—the farewell league match of 41-year-old Charlton goalkeeper Sam Bartram. He is moving to York as manager after spending all his 22 years as a professional with Charlton marked the occasion with a 2-0 victory.

Arsenal now is sixth from the foot of division 1 with 31 points from 33 matches. Bottom club Aston Villa, 3-2 winners Saturday over Huddersfield has 24. Sheffield Newcastle United, has 25 points, United 25, Tottenham 27 and Preston 28 points.

Barrie Takes 3-2 Lead Over Canucks While Teepees Trail Marlies by 2-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The teams that finished in the first three places are finding things rough in the playoffs of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League.

Guelph Biltmores, who ended in a second-place tie with Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks, have already been knocked from the playoffs by Toronto St. Michael's Majors. Canucks have their backs to the wall in their quarter-final series with Barrie Flyers. Flyers edged Canucks 4-0 at Barrie Saturday to take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven set. The game was tied. All Flyers need to advance into the semi-finals against Majors is a tie.

BEHIND MARLBOROS

St. Catharines Teepees, who finished on top of the league, went a game behind Toronto Marlboros in the best-of-seven semi-final. Marlboros whipped Teepees 6-1 at Toronto Sunday.

That gave the defending Canadian Junior champions a 2-1 edge with one game tied.

Goaltender Bob Senior kicked out 20 Kitchener-Waterloo drives as he recorded his first shutout of the season for Flyers.

Bob Beckett gave Flyers a 1-0 lead when he scored at 18:37 of the first period while Canucks were a man short. That was enough. However, John Chasczwski added two more and Jack Kane another to complete the rout.

Chaszewski's first goal was at 14:21 of the second period and his other at 1:57 of the third. Kane closed the scoring at 12:37.

Bobby Pulford paced Marlboros to their win over Teepees. He picked corners for two goals. Ken Girard and rookie defenceman Tom Brewer were the other Marlboros' scorers.

FIRST-PERIOD SCORE

Ed Hoekstra gave Teepees a 1-0 lead with the only goal of the first period. Pulford tied the score in the second with his first goal and scored the winner at 3:09 of the third.

Defenceman Tom Casey picked up assists on the three third-period goals by Marlboros. Pulford, the top marksman in the series, has five goals and three assists in the four games.

Roy Edwards, Teepees goaltender, made 30 saves, 13 of them in the last period when Marlboros pressed. Len Broderick made 20 saves in the Toronto net. A crowd of 10,114 fans watched the contest.

AT THE BELLE — Hugh and Kissen — Frank Sinatra and Debbie Reynolds are the cuddlesome couple of "The Tender Trap", M-G-M's aviarking comedy showing now a determined girl can catch an elusive bachelor. David Wayne and Celeste Holm co-star in the CinemaScope picture, in color, based on the Broadway hit, showing today and Tuesday at the Belle Theatre.

Little Benny's Notebook

Us fellows were on our way to school talking and argewing about diffrent subjects sutch as which lives the longest, an elefant or a tyrranosarius, and which is strongest rather be if We had to choose, and whether terties feel as tired as they act, and Skinny Martin said, Oh boy, was I lucky this morning?

Why, how? I said, and he said, My tooth started to hert like the mischiff and I thought sure I'd have to go to the dentist and just when I was reddy for the worst, my tooth stopped all by itself like magic.

If you call that lucky, how about me yesterday I said. I lost a dime through a sudish hole in my pants pocket, and I didn't even hunt for it because I wouldn't of knew where to start, so I just got up hope, and last night while I was getting undressed where did I find it but in my shoe where it had dropped strate down like a shooting star through the hole in my pocket. I'd like to see anybody luckier than that, I said.

Okay, look at me and you'll see them, Lucky Leroy Shooster said. If there's one thing I dont like it's fish, and my mother made some Friday, and some lady came to see her and wouldn't go home, so my mother had to invite her for dinner, and there wasn't enough enter fish so they'let me go around to the hamberger place and eat as many hambergers as I wanted, and I ate 4. Oh boy, what a lucky dinner instead of fish, he said.

Proving some people are born lucky, and Shorty Judge said. Hay, if we dont want to be late for school we better hurry.

Which we did, feeling unluckier every minute.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, March 13, 1958

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Vigorous application to your occupation will bring fresh rewards. Mars' position stresses a need for patience, consideration of others' opinions. Tricky days yield to good efforts.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Venus and Saturn, well aspected, favor best efforts in all sound undertakings; also domestic and realistic interests. Don't falter where careful judgment is essential. Avoid irritability.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Be your usual bright, creative self. Maintain calm, be reasonable and you can have a productive (though maybe not spectacular) day. Be moderate in spending, attentive to your interests.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Dealing in products of the earth, metals, tools, machinery, mining highly encouraged by Saturn. Surgeons, dentists, physicians, religious among honored. Taboo worry, ill temper.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Handling, manufacturing, plumbing materials, leather goods, tool, building supplies; tilling the soil sponsored by friendly aspects. Home, personal needs strongly fa

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Conservative interests favored. Give close attention to day's schedule in order to make gains. Domestic matters, tasks connected with church, schools, home have fine rays.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Excellent Venus rays will be extremely generous to your special interests and activities. Be mindful of health, diet; don't strain. A genial disposition important to gains.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Mars' position does not sanction irritation or lack of consideration for others now. The more amiable you are, the more you can capitalize on your fine ability.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — You can gain more by kindly persuasion than you can by forcing your ideas or theories. Rays benefic for sound enterprises and consistent action.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Saturn and Venus, in grand array, should aid and encourage personal interests, domesticity, artistic matters, all constructive and productive action. Do not dawdle.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Curtail haste in activities; take things in order. You can have a fruitful (if not stupendous) day on the whole. New gains promised in worthwhile activities.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — An in-between sort of day. Be discriminating, and allocate tasks so as to get essentials out of the way before handling less important matters.

You born today are a happy, constructive combination of all-round ability and artistic appreciation. You are original in thought and your actions are tempered with calmness. You are cautious, seldom yield to reckless emotions. Self-restraint is one of your valuable assets. You don't hesitate to better your status through hard work and gathering knowledge. Do not be foolishly generous nor overly conservative, for thus you could lose good opportunities and consequent advancement. Birthdate of: Jack Lait, writer, newspaper editor.

Men Who Run Heavy Equipment Fail to Report

MASSENA, N. Y. (AP)—A wage strike has halted construction of the St. Lawrence seaway and power projects on the United States' side of the border.

About 450 members of the International Union of Operating Engineers—the men who run the heavy equipment—failed to report on a night shift Saturday.

A total of about 1,400 operators are employed by private contractors building the waterway and hydro-electric plant for the federal government and New York state.

James Coville, business manager of Local 545, operating engineers, said Sunday that three or four pickets would be posted today at each work-site along a 40-mile stretch of the St. Lawrence river.

FIVE-CENT DIFFERENCE

The union says a wage agreement has been reached on a 20-cent-an-hour boost over a two-year period. However, the union wants 10 cents retroactive to last Jan. 1, and 20 cents effective Jan. 1, 1957. The union says contractors have offered five cents this year and 25 cents next Jan. 1.

The top wage now is $3.10 an hour.

The stoppage does not affect work on the Canadian half of the project.

24 Persons Left Homeless by Toronto Fire

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty-four persons, including 13 children, were left homeless Sunday when flames swept through a block of old semi-detached houses in east-central Toronto.

Two firemen were injured. None of the occupants was hurt as the fire destroyed five homes and damaged nine others. There was no estimate of loss. Capt. Claire Nichols slashed a wrist artery on a broken window pane. Another fireman was treated for hand cuts at the scene, on Carlton street near Parliament street.

The floors of the five houses collapsed. Residents, clad in pajamas, poured into the street to help evacuate the homes.

CARRIED OUT FURNITURE

Members of neighboring families carried refrigerators, television sets and ground-floor furniture on to the front lawns of their homes as smoke began pouring from the roofs. Parents made trip after trip into the burning homes to bring out sleepy-eyed children.

"Smoke came pouring up out of the basement and we got out as quickly as we could," said Albert Scammih, 65, living with Fred Woodard, both their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Woodard, occupied the house in their night clothes. Mrs. Stoddard carried her four-month baby to a neighbor's house.

Firemen burst into one house to help Mrs. Rosario Drouliet from her bed to the street.

Little Benny's Notebook

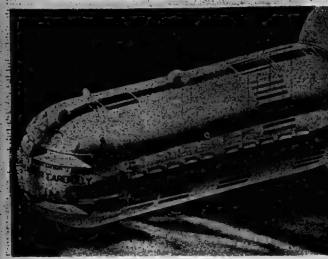
Pop started to lite his first cigar after dinnge, saying to me, You may not realize it, my dear, but there is nothing so highly respected or richly rewarded as humor.

But of course I realize it, ma said everybody loves a good laff, she said, and pop said, Many people are even fond of a bad one. The richest men, aside from the doctors, are the comedians. If you ask 9 people out of 10 to name the president of France, they will just give you a blank stare, but 19 people out of 20 will give you a hearty guffaw at the very mention of Hootin Goofus the red nosed Sweedish clown, he said.

You can blame everybody for wanting to be amused, ma said. Goodness, the most welcome guest in any social gathering is the one who can keep the rest in uncomfortable stitches, she said, and pop said, Then why is it?

Why is what? ma said, and pop said, Why is it that a gyasly mor-bid sob story appears on the screen every time you turn on the television? By golles you're going to turn it on right now, I reckonine that glisl in your eyes. But dont mind me, I'll look for a funny book to read. Do you know where I can find a bound volume of your old checkbook stubs? he said.

Being a joke about ma always having trubble keeping her bank balleels from coming out uneven, and she turned the television to a play about a lady waiting for her son to get out of prison so she could prove her husband robbed a bank, and pop got so intrieed in it himself he forgot all about reading.



PLAYER CONVICTED

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A jury Thursday night convicted Glenn Chernick, former Marquette University football player, of bank robbery and set his punishment at 20 years in prison. Chernick and other defence witnesses had testified he was at home in Chicago the day of the attempted holdup of the bank here April 24, 1953. He was accused of driving the getaway car for the unsuccessful holdup in which two bandits died.

SATELLITE CITY — AN ENGINEERING FEAT OF THE FUTURE

Here's an American artist's conception of Satellite City, one of the future engineering feats brought to light by noted aerophysicists speaking at the U.S. Institute of Aeronautical Sciences at the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago. They say that Satellite City would circle the earth at about 500 miles in outer space and would be about 1,000 feet in diameter. The gigantic wheel at the rear would rotate to produce a synthetic gravity. (Central Press Canadian).

Once-Strong Merchant Marine Said Going Down

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Hees, former president of the national Progressive Conservative Association, said Saturday a "do-nothing" policy by the federal government is destroying Canada's once-strong merchant marine.

Mr. Hees said lack of government - fostered shipping development has reduced Canadian-registered shipping in the last 10 years to 15 dry-cargo, deep-sea vessels from 145.

He told a meeting of the Primrose Women's Conservative Club and Young Conservatives that the number of Canadian seamen has dropped to 300 from 5,000 and Canada, fourth maritime nation in the world during the Second World War, now is 21st.

Lack of Canadian-registered deep sea vessels has increased shipping shortages of west coast pulp, hurt foreign trade and will give benefits from the St. Lawrence seaway to foreign nations, Mr. Hees said.

The government should adopt a policy of developing and maintaining a strong nucleus of at least 30 ocean-going ships for foreign trade and to protect the country's supply lines in the event of war.

Uranium Waste Worries Farmers Near Port Hope

PORT HOPE (CP) — District farmers have asked the federal government for impartial tests on waste products dumped in the area by a Port Hope uranium refinery.

Alarmed over possible dangers to cattle and wildlife from a second waste dump established in the area by Eldorado Mining and Refining Company Ltd., farmers Saturday met to draw up a protest.

Although no ill-effects have been reported from the new dump, established by the crown-owned company a year ago, farmers said an old one at nearby Port Britain spilled waste into Brands creek, sterilizing cattle herds and killing fish and wildlife.

John James, Liberal member of Parliament for Durham, which includes the Wesleyville district, 25 miles east of Oshawa, attended Saturday's meeting.

CLAIMS NO DANGER

He said no waste detrimental to life is placed in either dump. Farmers agreed to have Mr. James take their protest to Ottawa officials.

In Ottawa, W. J. Bennett, president of Atomic Energy of Canada, the government's atomic agency, said there is no danger from either radiation or arsenical poisoning from the new dump near Wesleyville.

The new dump has been set up on the shore of Lake Ontario at the same time as a new refining process was put into use at the refinery.

Arsenic, under the new process, would not go into solution.

There was absolutely no danger from radiation in the waste.

The old dump, in use about nine years, contained a small amount of arsenic, some of which leaked through to an underground stream and threatened wells with contamination.

SETTLEMENTS MADE

Mr. Bennett said his department works closely with the Ontario health department on the problem. Last summer settlements were made with several farmers whose cattle had suffered from something in the water.

Harold Barrowclough of Wesleyville said the new dump is right on the edge of the lake and farmers fear what might happen in the spring run-off.

The 20 farmers attending the meeting decided to send a list of questions to Ottawa along with the request for a test of the waste.

OUTVOTED IN SOUTH VIETNAM ELECTION

The pro-Western regime of President Ngo Dinh Deim recently won a solid victory in first national assembly election to be held in the young republic of South Vietnam, Indo-China. All candidates, closely associated with the administration, were swept into office by wide margins in the March 4 elections. Among those opposing the administration was the Nationalist Coalition whose leaders pictured here in Saigon are: President Phan Quang Dan at left; Vice-president Nguyen Thanh Danh and Le Phung Thien. The Nationalist Coalition claimed that the electoral law was unfair and that the national assembly will serve only as a puppet of the president. (Central Press Canadian).

First Italian 'Eye Bank' Has Been Formed

ROME (Reuters) — Don Carlo Gnocchi, "The Guardian Angel" of war - maimed children, accomplished in death what influential doctors and lawyers could not do in five years of campaigning.

The first Italian "eye bank" has been formed here, though it is still illegal in Italy to remove the eyes of a dead person. A law is to be rushed through Parliament shortly to legalize surgical use of a dead person's eyes to give sight to the blind.

The law is being changed because Gnocchi, an Italian priest, bequeathed his eyes to two blind children shortly before he died two weeks ago.

All Italy followed the delicate operation of grafting cornea tissues from Gnocci's eyes to one blind eye each of 12-year-old Silvio Colagrande and 17-year-old Amabile Battistella.

Four days ago Silvio cried out: "I can see, I can see," as his mother wept at his bedside in a Milan hospital. The following day, Amabile could see the movement of a surgeon's hands.

The doctors and lawyers who fought the law for so long organized the bank at Rome University Saturday. A thousand Italians, including parliamentary deputies and film stars, have pledged their eyes to the bank after death.

Landy Wins Australian 3-Mile Title Foot Injured But Finished in 13:42.5

MELBOURNE (AP) — John Landy, the world's fastest miler, ran on an injured foot to win the Australian three-mile championship race at Melbourne's Olympic Park today.

At the start of the race he appeared to be limping slightly from an injury suffered in a fall Saturday. But he soon strode away to finish in 13 minutes, 42.4 seconds.

Afterwards, Landy said he would make the 5,000 metres his "main mission" at the Olympic Games here in November, but would also run in the 1,500 metres as well. He is holder of the world record mile with a clocking of 3:58.

Landy earned a special spot in Australian sport Saturday — by gaining up the chance of another record to help a fallen teammate.

The Australian star was on his way to another under-four-minute mile in the Australian championships at Olympic Park arena. Then another runner tripped and fell 880 yards from the finish. Landy stopped, turned to help, but was urged on by the fallen runner, Ron Clarke, who said: "Get going, John. See you later. Don't worry about me."

MOST GALLANT ACTION

And Landy got going. He made up 30 lost yards, overtook the leaders, and won in 4 minutes 4.2 seconds. That stop lost him the chance of bettering his own time of three minutes 58 seconds.

Franz Stampfl, the Austrian coach who trained Roger Bannister to the world's first four-minute mile, said "It was the most gallant action I have seen in a lifetime of athletics.

"Landy is the sort of man who would do that. An Olympic Games berth was at stake but that did not matter to Landy. All that worried him was the man on the ground."

And the 30,000 fans who crowded the stadium openly agreed with Stampfl. They roared their appreciation as Landy stepped on to the winner's rostrum after taking the championship by 15 yards from his nearest rival.

The 30 yards that Landy lost by stopping to help Clarke probably cost him five or six seconds.

"When the accident happened I thought I was responsible for it," Landy explained later. "That is why I turned and stopped."

Landy said he covered the last lap in 57.6 seconds—his fastest ever. He did not take the lead until the last 220 yards.

Frost Says Ontario To Be Forced Back Into Taxation Field

Hopes Federal Attitude Still Might Change

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost Monday answered a federal government taken-it-or-leave-it tax-sharing offer by announcing Ontario will move back, if necessary, into the field of direct corporation taxation.

He told the Ontario legislature during a report on last Friday's Dominion-provincial fiscal conference the move is the only way Ontario can get more of the money it vitally needs.

The provincial tax would not cost corporations more—it could be deducted from taxes paid to the federal treasury.

He said that Friday's meeting was not big enough to be called a conference. "It was more of a time and place to announce that further discussions would be of no avail."

However, the premier expressed hope that Ottawa's attitude might change, if not, he said Ontario would start April 1, 1957—the beginning of a fiscal year—to collect the corporation tax of nine per cent which the federal government offered in let provinces deduct from the federal total.

WILLING TO COLLECT

Ottawa was willing to collect the nine per cent and then hand it over to the provinces, but it would charge two per cent for this service, Ontario, he said, can collect its own for only one-half of one per cent. This would give the province $40,000,000 extra the first year.

The province would continue to collect the same succession duties, but probably would rent out personal income tax rights.

The premier said the newest federal offer is "wrong and unjust" and will lead Canada "to the brink of economic disaster" within five years. The federal government's tax-rental in 1945 and 1947 were insufficient, and would be proved wrong again.

Opposition leader Oliver, provincial Liberal leader, said the premier's statements are "political tweedle."

TO UP THE ANTE

Ontario was asking the federal government to up the ante for all provincial services to which Ottawa would have to be increased substantially.

"We all want Ontario to get its just rights, but we have to consider that Ottawa is not flush. It has huge financial commitments now it did not face a few years ago."

Premier Frost was "picking figures from the air" to try to support his claim for more money.

The premier replied he is seeking only a fair share of taxes which have belonged to the provinces since Confederation.

"The federal government has deplorably failed to assess the needs of the provinces and their municipalities. . . . The unfortunate part is that this matter is applied to our tax-payers are being overwhelmed because they are the deprived of their fair share of the revenues."

Mr. Oliver criticized the premier for having suggested that Ottawa's budget would be a disaster to the brink of economic disaster.

Mr. Frost defended his statement and said the treasurer was wrong.

Ontario's industrial production was the greatest source of wealth collected by Canada's provincial and federal governments. Canada's economic stability, therefore, would be weakened and jeopardized if Ontario's industry was threatened by a failure of services.

Today's Chuckle

Nothing is impossible to the man who doesn't have to do it himself.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: The area of snow which covered southern Ontario Monday afternoon and evening has moved eastward out of the province. There is to be fair Ontario will have a mixture of cloud and sunshine with occasional light snow or flurry in northern sections today. Cold air from the Northwest Territories is entering northern Ontario, and by Wednesday morning it will spread all of western Ontario. A disturbance over New Mexico is showing some signs of development. As it begins to move northeastward, it presents the possibility of some snow in southwestern Ontario Wednesday night.

Belleville Man Wins Acquittal In Combines Case

COCHRANE (CP)—Fuel dealer Charles C. Taylor of Belleville, was acquitted Monday of charges he conspired to combines investigation.

Mr. Taylor, of W. J. Taylor and Son, fuel suppliers, was one of nine persons charged. He and Albert J. R. Challoux and Timmins, were the only two who pleaded not guilty. The others were remanded for sentence.

The Supreme Court jury is special returns a verdict on Challoux's case later today.

Taylor's acquittal followed an application for a directed verdict by defense counsel Malcolm Robb of Toronto. No defence was offered for Challoux, who also was defended by Mr. Robb.

The crown evidence in the case was completed Monday. Addresses to the jury started today.

CHARGE COMBINE

The nine accused were indicted by a grand jury Sept. 12 in Cochrane. The indictment reads that the dealers and suppliers conspired, combined, or agreed, or arranged together, between April 1, 1947 and July 31, 1953, with other dealers to prevent or lessen unduly competition in the purchase, barter, sale, transportation or supply in Timmins and the township of Mountjoy. Thetford and Whitney in coal. The charge was laid under the Criminal Code of Canada.

The premier added that if the province, in seeking aid in its industrial, was unable to give financial assistance to struggling municipal governments, they, too, would suffer.

"How can this government aid municipalities, which are now struggling with educational and welfare costs, to extend their roads and maintain the services required by industries which assure the general financial position of the federal government?" he asked.

The premier challenged Mr. Oliver to "go to the municipalities in your own riding of Grey South and find out about the facts."

"Go up to Owen Sound. Ask Mayor Sargent there what his position is."

Mr. Frost expressed hope that Prime Minister St. Laurent, "who has always been a champion of federalism by finally adopting the formula for fiscal arrangements recommended eight years ago" will "continue to be fair and reasonable."

Guided Missile Program Closely Guarded Secret

Canadian Station Was Opened in 1954

COLD LAKE, Alta. (CP) — A $20,000 machine—the combination of a comic book item and a science fiction thriller—is the star performer here for 17 scientists and a party of newspaper men.

The visitors, from the University of British Columbia and western newspapers, were taken on a guided tour of the RCAF's 7,000-acre guided missile firing range during the weekend.

Highlight of the tour 20 are taught to fly the 17-ton CF-100 all-weather fighting officer at this huge RCAF station 140 miles north of Edmonton.

The guided-missile program is Cold Lake's most closely-guarded secret.

Opened in 1954, the station is the RCAF's only one planned completely for guided missiles.

The scientists came to inspect the electronic "brain" of Ralph James, head of the UBC mathematics department, says:

"It's not as bad as it sounds, but nothing compared to the intelligence I've seen here."

The computer, the size of a large filing cabinet, can solve in minutes problems it would take up to two years to complete by human manual procedures.

There are smaller versions of the computer installed in the rear cockpit of each of the more than 50 CF-100s. They take over the piloting and fighting of an aircraft from the moment a target is sighted.

Air force training officers also described the exact moment "wedding" ceremony—selection of two - man fighting-plane teams—is performed.

The RCAF takes no part in the training — up. The incoming class holds an "engagement night" in the officers' mess. Then the students make their own selection of partners.

Once the teams are formed, they are separated only by death or serious accident.

Snow and Cold Spoil Queen's Vacation Trip

LA MADDALENA, Sardinia (AP) Snow and cold spoiled Queen Elizabeth's vacation today, as she and the Duke of Edinburgh heard news broadcasts from London that the sun was shining there over Buckingham Palace most of Monday.

Indications were that the royal yacht, Britannia, would leave here some time today in search of a warmer clime for the queen's last holiday the Queen is taking.

It is "quite possible" aboard the yacht since its arrival Sunday night off this tiny Mediterranean island—the first visit by a reigning British monarch since 1906.

Trapped in Smoky Basement, Haliburton Fire Chief Dies

HALIBURTON (CP)—Fire chief Thomas Chambers died early today while fighting an all - night blaze that destroyed a bank and a dime store in this village, 80 miles north of Peterborough.

Mr. Chambers, 52, was believed to have been suffocated when trapped in the basement of the Bank of Montreal building. No other deaths or injured were reported.

Ontario Provincial Police reported the fire broke out about 10:30 p.m. Monday but was not under control until daylight.

Firefighters from Haliburton and Minden, 15 miles southwest, had difficulty locating the source of the fire because of heavy smoke. They finally traced it to the bank basement.

The bank and the dime store were in the same building, a concrete block structure, in Haliburton's business block. A nearby hotel, closed for the winter for years, also was threatened for a time.

The fire was believed caused by an over-heated coal-stove in the bank basement.

Damage was estimated at $150,000 but it is not known whether any money, bonds or securities were destroyed. Many bank records were believed lost.

Provincial police were set up to guard against looting.

Crown attorney Lorne Jordan of Lindsay, 20 miles south, ordered an inquest into Mr. Chambers' death.

Surviving are Mrs. Chambers, in hospital suffering from shock, a son and a daughter.

The chief was wearing a gas mask when collapsed. Firemen, trying to rescue him, repeatedly were forced back by dense smoke. Mr. Chambers was finally found the chief's unconscious body but died shortly after.

Efforts to lift Mr. Chambers through a window by rope were unsuccessful.

Hoses froze in the zero weather. The Minden fire squad helped pump water from the Drag river, one-quarter of a mile away.

When the fire threatened to spread, neighboring storekeepers moved goods into the street.

Firemen used a bull-dozer to break down one of the bank's blazing walls to reach the seat of the fire.

Assembly Votes Bonds To Quell Revolt in Algeria

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS (AP) — Premier Guy Mollet's bill for sweeping emergency powers to quell the Algerian rebellion went to the French Senate today, backed by overwhelming approval in the National Assembly.

The Senate is expected to act either Wednesday or Thursday on the measure. It authorizes broad powers to impose martial law, shake up the Algerian administration and break up the big landed estates for the benefit of Moslem tenant farmers.

The Paris government's action to smother the nationalist rebellion came as a wave of Moslem troop desertions plagued the French Army in the North African territory.

In a session that went on past midnight, the National Assembly adopted Mollet's bill by a vote of 455 to 76. Earlier it had approved the three main articles by votes ranging of 463 to 62, 451 to 72 and 465 to 49. The largest government vote came on the section empowering Mollet's resident minister in Algeria, Robert Lacoste, to invoke any military measure including the invocation of martial law.

Only the followers of Pierre Poujade, the anti-tax leader, voted against Mollet as a group. Communist leader Jacques Duclos surprised most political observers when he threw his bloc of 150 votes to support the bill.

Just back from Moscow and the Soviet Communist party congress, Duclos made it clear that his votes were going to Mollet in an effort to bolster the Reds' current campaign for a "popular front" with the Socialists.

In a statement to the assembly, Mollet made it equally clear that he would avoid any entanglement with Communists.

Duclos said the Communists favor "permanent political, economic and cultural links" between France and Algeria. But he added that France must "recognize the Algerian national fact" as a nationality status which most Frenchmen already have as part of France itself.

Lacoste, waiting in Paris for the grant of power, is expected to rush back to Algeria as soon as the Senate acts and then to launch an all-out effort to end the rebellion.

He is expected to proclaim a state of siege over much of the Algerian countryside, and set up centres of protection for isolated French farmers living in terror of revolt.

The bill also gives Lacoste the right to censor the Algerian press and radio. Mollet announced aim is to restore order as a prelude to Algerian self-rule. He would designate a leadership empowered to negotiate an improved status for Algeria.

Mr. Lodge is returning from an inspection trip of UN technical assistance missions in Africa.

He said the Russians are trying to get establishment of diplomatic ties here and there are signs there of Soviet economic pressure.

"It's a new twist in Soviet tactics, but one we can and will meet," he said. He had some ideas on this matter to recommend to Washington.

General Gruenther will confer with Prime Minister St. Laurent, Defence Minister Campney and External Affairs Minister Pearson, address a Canadian Club luncheon, hold a press conference and brief members of Parliament on the NATO situation.

Opposition Asks Parity Prices For Agriculture

Predicts Issue Will Be Major One in Election

OTTAWA (CP)—A united opposition demand for parity prices for agriculture has been put before the government.

John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member for Prince Albert, Sask., opened a two-day Commons debate Monday with a want-of-confidence motion asking the government for legislation on parity prices during this session.

CCF and Social Credit parties lined up in support, with Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) adding an amendment to stipulate that the system should provide farmers with a fair share of national income.

No government member spoke on the issue which Fred S. Zaplitny (CCF—Dauphin) predicted will be a major one in the next federal election. The debate continues today.

SAME PURCHASING POWER

Mr. Diefenbaker described parity prices as those which would give farm products the same purchasing power as they had in a certain base period when farmers' prices and incomes were regarded as in good balance.

At present, he said, there is a "disastrous and unending squeeze" between falling farm prices and rising production costs. This has come was half that of 1951. Unless action was taken, Canadian agriculture would be headed for bankruptcy.

Operation of the existing Agricultural Prices Support Act has been piecemeal and inconsistent. One example of "calamity in the government's ramshackle policy" was disposal of surplus butter to Communist countries at 21 cents less than the 58-cent-a-pound federal support.

Mr. Diefenbaker said a federal-provincial conference with farm representatives should be called to work out a general farm policy.

The present cost-price disparity should be studied by the Commons agricultural committee or, failing that, by a royal commission.

QUOTES FIGURES

John A. Charlton (PC—Brant) quoted production figures and indices at length to show that farmers' income has been falling since. Wheat now was selling at prices with a lower purchasing power than in the 1930s.

Other industries received subsidies. It was only just and reasonable that agriculture should get them also. Only 78 per cent of all Canadian farmers have a gross farm income of less than $2,700 a year.

Mr. Charlton said corporations and bankers are getting the lion's profits from their dealings with agriculture, but farmers were not enjoying a fair share. Packers were buying livestock as cheaply as possible, and selling meat as dearly as possible.

Gage W. Montgomery (PC—Victoria-Carleton) said a parity program would halt the drift of young people from the farms and urged that the government will ensure farmers, as a fair share of the national income.

It would cost the federal government 20 cents for each dollar increase per cent of its annual budget—to meet Ontario's demands for a larger of taxes.

But Ottawa had refused to give the provinces this new grip on economic security.

If the Liberals are successful in obtaining a majority in the election, they will check the high school Helen attends.

200 Still Hunting Missing Million Costing U.S. Bank $4,000 Overtime

NEW YORK (CP)—A painstaking search by 200 employees of a big New York bank for an elusive million dollars in currency ranged among rows and rows of file drawers extending three floors below and above.

But beyond the embarrassment of the apparent disappearance of the United States Treasury note for the seven-figure amount, officials of the Chase Manhattan Bank aren't too worried. For one thing, the $1,000 bill is virtually as useless as a badly-done counterfeit dollar bill to any casual looker.

The disappearance was discovered last Wednesday when another bank which had turned a million over to Chase Manhattan for safekeeping asked for it back. Officials in charge of checking every one of some 4,500 file drawers, found only another 100 bills put on the job.

Even if the note is not recovered, bank officials say insurance would cover such a loss, and in any case the surety company could eventually recover the value of the note from the U.S. Treasury, since the law in existence of that amount are all on record.

The million-note search now has cost the bank $4,000 in overtime—or $1,000 apiece for the time the hunt has been on.

British Troops, Swinging Clubs, Battle Cypriots

Ban on Strikes Is Defied, Stores, Schools Stay Closed

NICOSIA (CP) — British troops today went into action with clubs swinging against Cyprus demonstrators as strikes spread through the Mediterranean island in protest against the banishment of Archbishop Makarios.

Troops cleared Metaxas square, where one of the demonstrations took place. Two other charges were made outside the Phaidhonian Cathedral, where youths were stoning army vehicles, and near the Olympiakos Greek Club, where demonstrators gathered.

Several arrests were made.

Greek Cypriot workers were idle again today for the third time since the deportation Friday of the Greek Orthodox churchman, leader of the movement for union with Greece.

Stores remained closed despite government warnings that strikes with penalties of illegal under new existing emergency regulations, and that it is an offence to take part in them.

PHONE BAN LIFTED

Life appeared to be going on normally only in the British quarter of the capital.

Schools remained closed. There was a shortage of newspapers, and only food stores stayed open.

The British colonial governor, Sir John Harding, today lifted a ban on long-distance telephone calls inside Cyprus and with Greece. It was imposed just before Archbishop Makarios' deportation.

Censorship on telegrams to Greece, imposed at the same time, was also lifted today.

With the ban raised, calls came through to Nicosia reporting that strike spreading to other towns. Correspondents reported: "Nobody knows here how the word gets around. Shops are closing one after another on whisper d instructions."

MESSAGE RECEIVED

In two towns youths stepped into shops remaining open and told the owners to close down—and the owners did.

Bishop Yennadios, senior Greek Orthodox priest attached to the archbishopric, today made public a message from Archbishop Makarios, presumably scribbled just before his deportation from Nicosia airport Friday.

The message, dated March 9, said: "The Bishop Yennadios by the government, church sources said. It read: "Please broker with the Almighty has reserved for me even this trial. I am now walking in the footsteps of my Lord."

"May God give us help and protection."

Court records disclosed that a 76-year-old nearly-blind priest of the Greek Orthodox archbishopric has been arrested and faces a possible death sentence for carrying a revolver. Emergency measures now in effect provide the death penalty for such offences. However, the priest was released on bail for a fortnight March 9.

A 17-year-old boy was sentenced today to five years in prison for carrying a grenade.

Arab Leaders Reach Several Secret Accords

CAIRO (CP)—The "big -three" Arab leaders took several secret decisions during their five-day Cairo conference which were not mentioned in their closing joint-communique Monday night, press reports said Tuesday.

The reports said each of the decisions was accompanied by a detailed plan drawn up by experts for its implementatio.

The heads of state of Egypt, Syria and Saudi Arabia announced in their communique that they had agreed on a comprehensive plan to insure Arab security against the dangers of "Zionist aggression and foreign domination."

In the troubled area, meanwhile, Jordan accused Israeli forces today of attacking a Jordanian border village in a 70-year-old woman and injuring three members of the Jordan national guard.

Lt.-Col. Mahmud Ismail, Jordan delegate to the United Nations truce supervisory organization, claimed the attack was made Monday on the village of Sarrha, which straddles the demilitarized between Jordan and Israel.

SERIOUS INCIDENT

The Israelis claimed that Jordan troops fired earlier Monday across the border at Sarrha, killing a gendarme and injuring two others in the Israeli portion of the "demilitarized."

It was the first serious incident reported by the Israeli-Jordan frontier in four months.

Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada, chief of the UN truce commission, has suggested that his group be given plane surprise visits in border areas to investigate reports of violations in the area. Both Arabs and Israelis have claimed the other side is concentrating forces along the frontiers, where under the UN armistice agreements only defensive forces are permitted.

Britain's Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd arrived in Israel by air today for talks with Israeli leaders. Minister for the Israeli leaders are expected to put forward any concrete plans for easing Israeli-Arab tensions. The Israelis are expected to give him their views on the Arab-Israeli and Western "appeasement" of the Arabs.

Bus Service Curtailed Under New Agreement With Company

Sunday bus service in the city will be discontinued by the Rawson Bus Company Ltd. some time during the latter part of March, it was agreed by members of city council Monday evening.

In addition bus service on public holidays will also be discontinued, while service on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings will be curtailed to the extent that trips will be made every one hour instead of the present 18 minutes.

The request for the above noted curtailment of service was made by the bus company as the firm's agreement with the city came up for renewal.

In placing the recommendation before council Alderman Gerald Hyde as chairman of the finance committee said his committee had wanted service to continue as it was with the bus firms' annual fee to the city to be increased by $1,800 from the present $1,500.

However, he said that the bus company had shown it was losing money on the Sunday and holiday service and the committee was prepared to agree to the service curtailment. The $1,800 annual fee would then be retained.

He pointed out that Belleville was the only municipality which received a franchise fee from a bus company. Usually it is the other way around." he said.

Fred Rawson, president of Rawson Bus Company, said his original agreement with the city had not called for Sunday service. However, this had been operated for 20 years, but always at a loss.

LITTLE PATRONAGE CLAIM

He said that Sunday habits were changed with the result there was little bus patronage on Sundays. People were staying home to watch TV instead of coming to town in their cars.

"We are willing to run any service which is paid for," he said, "but we cannot continue to give service on a very few people."

Alderman Temple was the only member of council to strenuously object to the service curtailment, although Alderman Stock felt lack of Sunday afternoon service would deprive many of visits to the hospital.

In reply Mr. Rawson stated his company had paid no Sunday afternoon bus service in the 20 years which it had operated.

An amendment to the original motion calling for Sunday service to be continued was defeated with only Aldermen Temple and Stock supporting the motion. On the original motion appearing on the curtailed bus service only Alderman Temple voted against the recommendation carried 13-1.

As a result the bus service which Mr. Rawson said he was prepared to contact all churches in the city with the proposal of a charter service taking people to church on Sunday at a straight fare of ten cents per person.

Flooding in Southview Ave. Area Causes Lengthy Debate

Drainage problems in the Southview Avenue district of Parkwood Heights were up for discussion in city council with the public works department being authorized to investigate possible remedies and report to council.

Preparing for action on the matter was a delegation of Southview Ave residents who asked that immediate steps be taken to rectify flooding conditions.

Alderman Frank Grandame initiated council action by introduction of the recommendation calling for investigation by the public works department.

He noted that the sub-division had been developed apparently with not too much thought of drainage and suggested that the council was "scared" to face the problem. Cost estimates for a storm sewer system to serve the Parkwood Heights district had been in the neighborhood of $300,000.

Alderman Grandame said he had been told by the city engineer that one phase of the storm sewer program could be carried out for about $100,000 and this would remedy the flooding situation in the Southview area.

Alderman Safe as chairman of public works declared, however, that the problem was not confined to the Southview Avenue area. "The trouble is we are trying to drain all of Thurlow township," he said.

"Before he would sanction any large scale expenditure for storm sewers in this area some agreement would have to be arrived at with Thurlow," he said.

REFERS TO COLLECTION

"Eventually something will have to be done, but I don't see why residents of Belleville should pay to drain Thurlow township."

Alderman Safe said he was ungrateful that Southview Ave. residents had met with difficulty, but pointed out that it would not legislate against would-be home owners building in a low lying area. He felt that flooding conditions would rectify themselves in time as home construction and lawns built side-walks.

Also referred to Alderman Grandame's objection to paving Front Street under the general rate with the local improvement charged to be borne by Parkwood residents. Now he was asking the city assessment for a half-million dollar storm sewer expenditure.

"Not a half-million dollar job, but a $100,000 job," returned Alderman Grandame.

Alderman Safe assured he was not interested in favoritism for any part of the city, but he just could not have any part of the city sanctioning a $300,000 expenditure at this time. In the meantime he felt that the public works department would do all it could.

MAYOR NOT IN FAVOR

Mayor Jane Forrester said also that she could not vote for a $400,000 sewer job, "and neither would you after the $100,000 fiasco."

She admitted there was a problem and it would have to be solved, but in the meantime asked if sewers would be considered when constructing sidewalks and other work on lawns.

Alderman Grandame said it had been his understanding that the $100,000 expenditure would be close to the overall plan for storm sewers in the area.

In reply City Engineer Mott said the suggested work would relieve the situation on Southview and put the water onto MacDonald Ave. A 54-inch main was required from MacDonald on to complete the job. The complete job might cost upwards of half-a-million, he said.

The engineer said he would have plans for several different proposals ready for the next council meeting.

Dogs Must Be Vaccinated Before Licence Is Granted

Prompted by the threat of rabies which according to officials of the Health of Animals Division of the Canada Department of Agriculture is lurking in the Tweed area southward, Belleville city council will put teeth into its dog by-law.

By-law requirements call for all dogs running at large to be picked up and placed in pound and last night acting on a recommendation from Medical Officer of Health Dr. McColl Metcalfe, council voted that the by-law be rigidly enforced.

A free vaccination clinic for dogs and cats will be held in the city next week and council made it virtually compulsory for dogs to be vaccinated by passing a recommendation calling for a certificate of vaccination without which to be presented by all dog owners when applying for a dog licence.

The free vaccination clinic will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, March 20 and 21. Tuesday the clinic will be at the Dundas street firehall, and Wednesday at the Moira St. firehall. Hours both days will be from 9 to 12 in the morning, 2 to 5 in the afternoon, and 7 to 9 in the evening.

This week vaccination clinics are being held in South Hastings, the clinic yesterday at Stirling and Foxboro bringing out the largest number of pets seen at any clinic in the county.

Today the clinic is being held at Frankford; Wednesday it will be at Trenton at the public works building; Thursday at the Melrose township hall and at Ken Vivian's showroom at Shannonville and Friday at the Desoronto firehall.

Council Will Discuss Issue At Next Meeting

Rush hour 'no parking' on Bridge street from Front to Pinnacle street will come up again for consideration by council at their next meeting.

A recommendation calling for no parking from 4:30 to 6 p.m. in the afternoon, Sunday excepted, was introduced Monday night by the traffic committee but in the absence of committee chairman, Alderman Ralph Temple the matter was referred back for two weeks.

There was evidence, however, that merchants in the Bridge street area will oppose the 'no parking' ban when it finally reaches the discussion stage.

Last night Clarence Thompson as spokesman for Bridge street merchants charged that the traffic committee with diverting traffic along Pinnacle street with result that Pinnacle is a bottleneck on Bridge street.

Alderman Safe said that no parking was not the solution, Mr. Thompson said he was wondering if merchants along Bridge street were not more to be considered than the highway transports.

NO POLITICAL HOPES

OTTAWA (CP) — Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, retired chief of the army general staff, said Monday night he has "no political ambitions of any kind whatsoever." He was addressing the Ottawa branch of the Canadian Legion in one of a recent series of speeches advocating strengthening the Canadian regional and national selective service. He plans to make more speeches on the same subject in western Canada next month.

Council Meetings To Be Broadcast Decision Reached

Commencing some time next summer a broadcast of regular and special meetings of city council will be carried by Belleville radio station CJBQ.

Authorization for the radio station to broadcast meetings was given last night by council by a count a two to one majority, although there was some opposition to the possibility that the broadcasts may be sponsored.

Alderman Gerald Hyde said his committee favored the idea, while Mayor Jane Forrester said she thought it was a move in the right direction and would serve to keep the people better informed of the council business.

She said she was not particularly alarmed about the possibility of sponsorship and pointed out broadcasts of council meetings were being carried out in certain other centres.

Alderman Argue felt the broadcasts might lower the dignity of council, especially if the proprietors were interrupists to air "hurp and belch" ads. He said the matter needed careful consideration.

Alderman Tice felt the newspapers had been given fair and unslanted accounts of council meetings, but at the same time' said he had no objection to radio broadcasts of public service. He was opposed to the broadcasts being sponsored.

The same attitude was taken by Alderman Temple.

Alderman Safe, on the other hand, felt it might add dignity to council as members then would have to be on guard.

A motion to defer action on the matter for two weeks was defeated, and the original motion was carried by a 9-4 vote. Opposing the broadcasts were Aldermen Argue, Stock, Temple and Tice.

Waste Cans Will Not Be Put On City Streets

Belleville city council wants nothing to do with the offer of a Toronto advertising company to provide 25 waste cans for downtown Belleville without cost to the city.

The disapproval arose from the fact that certain advertising would appear on the cans, and also because it would cost money to have the trash cans emptied.

Alderman Gerald Hyde said the firm had offered to place the 25 cans free of charge to the city and would even pay $5 per can to place them. He felt that the convenience would more than offset the fact that local and other advertising would appear on the cans.

Alderman Ben Safe led the opposition to the cans, claiming it would take $1,000 a year to empty them.

It would cost the city considerable money to allow someone to make money through advertising, he said.

Alderman Stock felt the medical officer of health should be consulted in the matter, while Ald. Temple pointed out that the Chamber of Commerce already had trash cans on Front St.

Mighty Progress Made by Hydro In 50 Years

Ontario Hydro, now celebrating its golden anniversary, today has a total peak capacity of over 4,500,000 kilowatts — an increase of one thousand per cent in fifty years.

These figures yesterday was given as an illustration of the mighty progress of the province during the past half-century, to Belleville's Rotary Club by J. R. Montague, director of engineering for Ontario Hydro.

Mr. Montague gave the figures during a progress report on the present power development on the St. Lawrence.

Since 1945 the capital construction of the commission has been in the region of one billion and one-quarter dollars, he said. This has resulted in an increase during this period of 119 per cent in power capacity. With the development of the Niagara and St. Lawrence projects, however, the commission now is working on plans for 6 major power sites in the province. "But," he said, "taking a first glimpse at the future while Ontario may be approaching the end of the road as far as large hydro-electric power sites are concerned, its large uranium resources now are reserved to hold out new prospects. These now hold out a new alternative source of power in Ontario," he said. But Mr. Montague warned "there is a lot of spadework to be done" on the possibilities held out by atomic power.

Reporting on the St. Lawrence project, he said work will centre in 1956 on the powerhouse. Long Sault dam and the Iroquois dam. Simultaneously, work will proceed on channel improvements, dyking, the new St. Lawrence transformer station and rehabilitation of home sites dislocated by the project.

From August 1954, when the joint Canada-U.S. project was given the green light, Ontario Hydro has awarded contracts totalling millions of dollars for construction of materials and equipment for the Canadian powerhouse. Other contracts are due to be awarded shortly as both the Hydro commission and its partner, the Power Authority of the State of New York, work toward their goal of meeting the first generating units in service by mid 1958.

Mr. Montague highlighted his talk with the use of colored slides and charts, outlining power sites and future projects of the work.

Baby Wellman's Tired Heart Stops Month Before Operation

MRS. WELLMAN and KRISANDRA

TRENTON (Special) — Baby Krisandra Lee Wellman's tired heart stopped yesterday a month before famous surgeon Dr. W. E. Gustavson of the Hospital for Sick Children was to operate in an attempt to correct her rare ailment. The 13-month-old infant took a turn for the worse three days ago and had been in an oxygen tent at the Trenton Memorial Hospital undergoing treatment. She is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. William Wellman, Jr., 90 Wragg Street.

Last month Dr. Edith Peterkin of Belleville, in conjunction with Dr. W. S. Bailey of Trenton, made arrangements to admit the baby to hospital in Toronto March 15. These plans were postponed until April, at which time an artificial heart, which was to have been used during the operation, would be adjusted. Krisandra Lee's parents' financial condition since birth.

Several months ago the infant became alarmed at her slow progress although she was mentally normal. Without an operation she was not expected to survive more than six months, the doctors said.

At the first of the year Krisandra underwent surgery at the Hospital for Sick Children, in order that a picture taking tube could be passed through her body into her heart. On February 3 she celebrated her first birthday. A few days later the parents received confirmation of the operation. At the time, six airmen from R.C.A.F. Station Trenton volunteered to donate a fresh blood the morning of the operation or when it was needed.

The Crippled Children Committee of the Trenton Rotary Club established a fund to help the family.

The funeral for Krisandra will be held from the Weaver Funeral Home Thursday at 3.30 p.m.

Entertainers Deliver Goods In 'Hot Spots' on Islands

By ELMER BONTER

NASSAU, Bahamas. (Special)— The tourist, I found, gets the best value for his money in the local night clubs more appropriately defined hot spots. One thing he can be sure the entertainers will deliver the goods.

And if you care to stay around after the show you are a cinch to draw handsome dividends on your investment in the form of a jam session or unscheduled performance that may last until eight o'clock in the morning and finally end in any one of five other spots with musicians and visitors joining in one big party touring from place to place for a long procession of cars and taxis. And long as there is anybody left standing the Bahamian musician seems happy to play regardless of the pay for services rendered.

Basically the Bahamian is a slow-moving type who could care less about the hustle and bustle the outside world. But Joyce, the deep brown 110-pound "Rhumba Queen of the Bahamas", is the exception breaking all the tropical habits of her people in nightly performances. at the "Silver Slipper" where she gets top billing. This dusky maiden with more movements than an IBM adding machine leaves little for the imagination. If you have trouble keeping your eyes from closing due to lateness of the hour they are bound to pop wide open when she exhibits the most primitive native dancing to the wildest of jungle rhythm. Mary Clark, Joyce's only rival on the island headlines the show with "Calypso and Fiddle" and "Confidential". In these three places the visiting Bahamian doing most the things they like to do best.

ALIVE AT MIDNIGHT

Nassau suddenly comes alive at midnight. Celebrants head out for excitement and atmosphere that mysteriously disappears each morning with the rising of the sun.

In the daytime visitors are beautiful beaches for those who refer fresh air, sea and sky. Sun bathing is the favorite pastime closely followed by swimming, boating, golf and water-skiing in that order.

One afternoon was spent visiting points of interest in a covered horse-drawn cart with colored driver. It was on this unique excursion that a colored construction engineer named Sammy Smith became friendly with the island's guests. He pointed out that where taxes were concerned there was not much. Although there are no income or succession duty taxes, he explained, the local food has created a situation whereby a man with a $50,000 a year income contributes little more than the laborer. He claims the rich man gets richer and the poor man poorer under these regulations. He looks for the natives to give their answer to the segregation question a big issue in the forthcoming general election for New Providence people this year.

Grace Kelly Films Will Not Be Shown in Monaco

MONTE CARLO (AP)—It seems that Monacans aren't going to be able to see Grace Kelly, soon to be the Princess of Monaco, at their movie house any more. Word got around Sunday that Prince Rainier had forbidden any future local showings of films in which she appears.

A palace spokesman Monday denied that any such order had been issued. But he added that Monte Carlo theatre operators knowing the prince would prefer that none of his pictures be shown certainly would not want to do anything counter to the prince's wishes.

The spokesman did not explain why the prince would object to showings of films in which his future wife appears.

Recover $53,000 In Securities Taken from Banks

MONTREAL (CP)—Police said Monday night they have recovered $23,000 in negotiable securities and $30,000 worth of non-negotiable bonds and stocks believed stolen in two bank break-ins—one at Sorel, Que., last year and the other at Warwick, Que., two months ago.

Following up a joint raid by provincial city police on an alleged headquarters of a major safe-cracking ring last week, city police moved down on a vacant northend apartment and recovered the loot hidden in the walls of the dwelling.

Provincial police, meanwhile, arrested two men in a raid on a house in the north end of the city and charged them with three counts of theft and with over the minimum requirement of 4,000 square feet in each lot, Alderman C. D.

Tenders Called For $170,000 Community Centre

TRENTON (Special)—A spokesman for the Community Centre Building Committee has announced that tenders have been called for the construction of the building expected to cost in the neighborhood of $170,000.

The general committee pledge to raise $70,000 by public subscription and the town council will then provide $100,000 by a debenture issue.

The campaign is in full swing now with the sum of $50,000 actually collected.

Council's Objection to Station Will Be Conveyed to Company

AGREE TO PAYMENTS

TOKYO (AP)—Japan agreed today to pay the equivalent of $10,000,000 for the hardships of Dutch civilians interned during the war. Netherlands Ambassador Louis Beelaerts van Blokland and Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu signed a protocol providing for payment in sterling in five annual instalments.

Mayor Jane Forrester will write to the Imperial Oil Company notifying them of council's objection to the proposed erection of a gasoline service station at the intersection of Bridge Street and Herchimer Ave.

The matter was brought up under inquiries at last night's council meeting with Alderman Ben Safe asking about the present status of the matter.

He was told by Alderman Art Keegan as chairman of the city planning committee, that Thurlow township had already issued a building permit for the service station, but in all probability if a serious petition was taken up by residents in the area the company may not go ahead with the construction.

"The point is the permit has been issued by the township and there is not much we can do about it," he said.

But Alderman Safe wanted to know why the matter had not been dealt with by the suburban planning board. He said the city had played ball with Thurlow and it was only reasonable to expect consideration from the township in return.

Council approved of a property committee recommendation to provide an office for the welfare department administrator in a portion of the butter market at a cost of $400.

Also approved by council was the hiring of detectives for $300-1,000 as the city's portion of the cost of constructing the new wing at the hospital. The subscription would run for 20 years with an interest rate of 4½ per cent.

APPROVE REQUEST

Council also approved for E. B. Airhart, local builder, to construct four houses on three lots in the Southview Ave. district. City covenants originally called for three houses on those three lots. Division of the lots into four units will still give the required 40-foot frontage with over the minimum requirement of 4,000 square feet in each lot, Alderman C. D.

WORKING MOTHERS

The United Church of Canada, in a brief submitted to the Gordon economic commission, has urged that the Federal Government increase the amount of family allowances—or "baby bonuses" as they are more familiarly known. The objective—to re-unite working mothers with their children.

The objective, with certain reservations, is worthy. The means suggested are inappropriate and inadequate.

The proposed increase in allowances appears to take it for granted that most, or at least many, mothers who are working are doing so of necessity. This is an assumption which is open to grave doubt.

Secondly, even in those cases in which the mother is obliged to work, it would appear a most expensive remedy to increase the family allowances for all Canadian children.

There are three common attitudes towards family allowances.

A small group—but probably a larger one than many imagine—is opposed to these allowances on principle. Members of this group would certainly not welcome any increase in the amounts paid.

A larger group enthusiastically supports the family allowances on principle. Practically all the members of this group, though, also vigorously support all other forms of "cradle-to-grave" social security legislation. It is self-evident that there is a much more urgent need for increases in the amounts of some other payments of this type—old age pensions for example—than for family allowances. We might reasonably expect this group, therefore, to be lukewarm about diverting additional funds to family allowances, until better provision had been made for the security of other classes needing state aid.

A still larger group of Canadians, probably a substantial majority, support the present system of family allowance not so much as a matter of principle as from the standpoint of proven, practical benefits. It must be that a number of these children would favor increasing the present amounts of the allowances because of the declining in the purchasing power of the dollar since the amounts were first fixed. But to urge an increase for this reason is quite different from using such an increase to "re-unite working mothers with their children."

There is no question but that many married women who are working would be happier serving their country—and their families—if they remained at home and gave their children, and their husbands, the care and attention they need and deserve.

At the same time, those who believe that the home is the place for every mother are almost certainly overlooking, or else deliberately ignoring, important changes in our way of life.

For one thing, our educational system has lifted a considerable burden from the shoulders of mothers. Many children travel considerable distances to school and eat their lunches there, perhaps having them provided in a school cafeteria.

Then, too, for one reason or another, Dad has assumed a larger role in the duties of homemaking. There used to be a day when a man looked sheepish if caught helping with the dishes. Today the husband who never handles a dish-cloth is probably the exception, rather than the rule.

Most important, though, in providing women with more leisure are the many labor-saving devices with which the modern home is equipped. The oil furnace never demands a quick trip to the cellar to shovel coal or, if this trip has been postponed too long, to relight the fire. The electric washer churns its way through a chore which once involved hours of back-breaking rubbing on a washboard. Perhaps a dryer has even released the housewife from the task of carrying clothes outdoors and pinning them on a line. A vacuum cleaner whisks up dust from a house which, in any event, escapes from the ever-while shower of ashes seeping up from the basement. A dishwasher rinses away all but the post-meal task.

What is the woman whose home is well-equipped in this manner supposed to do with her spare time? Must she sit around idly, pretty-nearly bored?

Should we, in an age where the complaint is so often heard that people are losing the love to work, raise our eyebrows in scorn at those women who have retained this love?

Perhaps it may be argued that, while it would be permissible for wives to work, mothers should not do so.

There is some, though, certain jobs for which a woman with children is particularly well equipped? School-teaching for example. We have heard it suggested that a mother is much more likely to understand children than is a woman without children of her own. That sounds sensible.

something kind I meant to do,
Thought of it, but didn't do it.
There was a good friend who Mislaid my flowers but never

Could have stopped, but kept

What I had in mind to say
He can have, no way of Thought a letter I would write,

Wish today that I had penned it.

Didn't do the things I should.
Gifts and notes I never sent to Friends to cheer them when I

Now his soul has taken flight
Never knew I meant to send it.

The Flood Situation. A sudden drop in the temperature during the early part of today relieved considerably the flood situation here, but city officials are still far from being satisfactory. There is considerable water in the basements of the Front Street south of the four corners, and West Bridge Street from the lower bridge to the foot of Murney Hill is also blocked in traffic. The water at the lower end of Front Street still rises to a depth of three to four feet. Victoria Park is inundated. People rescued from their dwellings are still unable to return to their water-logged houses as the water has not receded to any amount.

Heating has been a problem as practically all the furnaces in the stores along front of and especially the west side, are under water. Heating of houses on the west side where water has put out furnaces but has not reached the first floor of the houses, is also a hardship, those with oil burning heated furnaces are fortunate; those without stoves have resorted to the old fashioned heater and coal oil stoves. Milkmen, who reside outside the city limits were unable to make deliveries on Thursday, were able to reach the city limits on Saturday and are able to reach their customers where they could not yesterday. So a milk and bread shortage has been averted.

In the heart of the section on the flats, south of Bridge Street, many residents were forced to leave their homes and were huddled together before small fires in the open. Some have had no heat and a short supply of provisions. They hope for a look after them. One woman refused to leave until her cow was taken to safety. She secured it took time to find the cat, but eventually got away from hiding upstairs. Cats, dogs, and other small animals are numerous in the flats, being carried by the water down streets to the lowest level. On Bridge Street, all day yesterday, workers said that it was useless trying to save them.

The Citizens Dairy on Coleman Street is flooded and business there was impossible. The water reached the top of the motor in the basement of the Belle Theatre. All along the river front, on the west side, rear verandahs, small buildings and garages have become rowboats and shifted a considerable distance. Furniture was seen floating about. Coleman Street, which had been swept away by the flood, and the 100 block of Brock Street water rose to a depth of three feet in the lower end. Residents there left as five o'clock yesterday afternoon rescue parties were seen in boats moving along Coleman, Sandford and James Streets removing occupants.

James Peoples of this city, was among those who were stranded people in the Capitol lunch room, when he lost his automobile and left when the water that was surging down Front Street, was up to the floor level. He was unable to regain his balance and was swept in the direction of the Bridge and was unable to help himself until he reached the corner of the Victoria Park where he was able to get a hold of a tree and climb to the bridge. Firemen and police hurried to the scene with ropes, but the city fire department and two citizens went in a boat to the rescue and was unable to get into the boat owing to the swiftly moving current, by the time the boat and stern of the boat and was brought to safety.

Right in the path of the flood water was the Capitol Theatre, and it was soon filled with water. The basement filled and the first floor partly inundated. The water went over the tops of the seats and at the front of the house to within a foot of the level. Streets in the flooded area on the west side will not be passable for some time owing to the great tonnages of ice which blocks them. Men are engaged in clearing the ice blocks from Bridge, Dundas and Coleman Street. On Bridge Street West men are breaking up the huge ice blocks although there is yet a considerable depth of water. Manager Oswald C. Scott of the Belleville Hydro Commission, has been a very busy man since the first break of the flood and much praise is due him and his staff for keeping the electric power in operation. If there had been no lights or electric power in the houses the situation would have been much worse. People who refused to leave their homes in the flooded area on the flats, patronized by relatives in the upstairs of the houses, are now being fed and heating material by boat. In the first instance the firemen looked after the people. The people who were removed from their homes are being looked citizens on the west side and elsewhere in the city.

The local firemen have been on the job night and day since the flood broke early Thursday morning and had it not been for Fire Chief William Lynch and Assistant Chief Garnet Vance and all the members of the fire department distress in the flooded area would have been much greater. Maurice Callaghan is deserving of praise as he labored without rest in assisting those in trouble. Jimmie McGuire and his brother Fred McGuire, owned a boat for many hours without rest they too come in for deserving praise as does also Ray Pryce, not who manned a boat alone and was responsible for bringing eighteen persons to safety during the height of the flood. The members of the police department under Chief Alex. Kidd did all they possibly could to help in addition to discharging their regular duties and keeping things in order. In fact many other citizens have rendered assistance when an opportunity came for them to be helpful.

Ball Lightning

(By Walter Theimer in the Bulletin).

The spherical phenomenon known as ball lightning has often invited mythological explanation. Even today, when it is no longer interpreted as a ghost or as a token of the gods, reports of such witnesses tend to have legendary features.

At Munich's Technical University a comprehensive scientific study of the phenomenon was recently undertaken by a research worker, the late Dr. Naur, and his assistant. Until the discovery of ball lightning is now explained, after having baffled generations of physicists.

If ball lightning is a ghost it is certainly not a wicked one, but rather a harmless Poltergeist which rarely if ever causes any damage or injury.

It indulges in strange caperings, though. Sometimes it is merely the size of an egg, but sometimes it forms a brilliant ball of fire 6 feet in diameter. Even a larger ball lightning may contract in front of a keyhole, shrink to a fraction of its former volume and seem its very heart, only to grow to its former size again on the other side and to continue its journey as a fat ball.

Lightning-conductors are of no avail against it. It goes where it is not attracted by earthed metal. If it bumps against a wall, it rebounds like a rubber-ball. Sometimes it exists only for a second or less, but sometimes it may bounce or roll around for minutes.

This freak of nature has produced curious incidents.

Dr. Naur investigated the case of a woman at Augsburg who had the shock of her life when suddenly a ball lightning 20 inches in diameter rolled over her feet, then over that a playing ball. The strange thing exploded shortly afterwards, leaving behind a pile of colours of fire. The woman was not injured, nor was any damage done. The story had to be "hearsay" warm; this curiously low temperature has been observed in most other cases also.

Electrical tension accompanying the phenomenon is normally very low. High-tension wires, however, have occasionally been the cause of lightnings which fairly often appear in the neighbourhood of the power worker told Dr. Naur of this experience during a sudden thunderstorm, when a ball of fire rolled slowly to and fro under the top of a telephone pole. He watched it beautiful ball lightning rolling slowly to and fro under, neath the nearly high-tension wires. After a minute or so the apparition vanished.

In Berlin a ball lightning rolling peacefully along a road was passed over by two persons on a motor-cycle, neither the ball lightning nor the cars suffering from any damage. Nor did anything happen to the people in the cars. The brilliant ball kept rolling on without

There's One in Every Family

Why should I dress my new baby in wool undershirts etc., so I can keep her smothered in clothes, while my two older ones (3½ and 5) were never treated that way—wear—and they have baby sitters with their abundance of energy! As you may infer, I have a relative who possesses not a mother-in-law problem, but a big sister problem. My elder sister (10 years) is divorced, childless and constantly in business. She dotes on the children, but she regards me as a . . . writes Mrs. E. W.

Incidentally, Mrs. E. W. says her mother-in-law is a sweet, understanding person and when things get out of hand mother-in-law gives her a wink which restores her sense of humor. Come to think of it, real live mothers-in-law are generally like that and not the almanac and low comedy characters.

Little older sister's periodic "clean-ups" are a striking instance of physiology and hygiene. The elementary physiology and hygiene that I, you and I learned in school, if any, left everything beyond the skin to the almanacs. Today almanacs having gone out of fashion, and T.V. by means of ingenious circumlocutions respect the taboo and have begun to regulate your liver and bowels.

"Worming" is something that shouldn't happen in a dog, unless infestation is positively the answer to (a) finding adult worms or (b) their eggs by microscopic examination.

Before lying on the label because illegal, there was a widely used nostrum that purported to "worm" children. I forget whether it contained wormseed. If it did, there was not enough to annoy mother nature. The children had nate youngster really had worms. The concoction was virtually a mixture of salts and rhubarb and other laxatives. But the label warned the person who inflicted the medicine on the child not to expect to see any worms in a respectable condition. No, No, knucklehead, the medicine sort of dislodged the worms, so you must believe shreds or strings of worms in the stool were the remains of worms.

There are no symptoms which would justify the assumption that a child has worms.

It is malpractice or mitrestment to give child or adult a real vermifuge (medicine that expels worms) unless infestation is diagnosed by finding adult worms or by detecting their eggs by microscope.

There is no good vermifuge that can be safely taken without medical supervision.

TRIUMPH REQUIRES DISCIPLINE

St. Paul, in his first Epistle to the Corinthians, declares that he buffets his body to bring it under subjection.

The Greek word here translated "buffet" really means "to strike under the eye." Boxing matches in ancient days were tragic affairs. The fighters were given no weapons of defense other than their fists and hence knuckles between.

Jesus tells His followers that if an eye offends them, they are to pluck it out; and if a hand offends them, they are to cut it off. Both Paul and Jesus are here setting forth the tremendous discipline required in order that one may achieve eternal life.

We are not saved by good works but by faith, but good works are involved in our salvation, nevertheless. It takes a tremendous effort sometimes for us to get to the place where we are willing to admit that God is offering us. We have some indulgence which we feel we cannot give up. We have built our bodies until we compel ourselves to give it up. It may be something toward which we look with yearning eyes. We may have been knuckled between, but we can deal with the desire. It may be some prize in life's fair, which our hand eagerly reaches. We may have to cut off the hand before we can have it.

We are saved by faith and by faith alone, but faith means a willingness to account what God has to offer, and this may mean the sacrifice of what we now hold to be more precious.

THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

About 90.45 per cent of us chew on either one side or the other. Many of us are willing to chew part of the time with our right-hand molars, and then, half way through the meal, shift over to our left-hand cheek. But very, very few of us ever get beyond chewing on both sides at once.

This fact is typical of the waste of human energy I imagine the vast majority of us have chewed on the one side of our mouth or the other. It seems to me from casual observation, that we prefer to chew on our left side. In the dining car, the other night, where I was making a casual study of about seven people, five of them were chewing on the left, their left cheeks bulging with each mouthful. One of the two remaining chewed on the right side; and the other was finishing a cigarette. The five patiently chewed only with their nibblers, or immediate front teeth. But the two who brought on this amateur survey of the chewing habits of the race, were in a great big young husky in his mid twenties, with stiff vertical blond hair about the color and consistency of Manilla rope frayed out, a pair of horn-rimmed spectacles, shiny bright blue eyes and magnificent blocky jaw bulls head which he turned, in ardent appreciation, between each large bite which he shovelled into his mouth.

He chewed on both sides at the same time. Both his cheeks bulged out from the size of his mouthful. There was no waste motion, no lost motion in him. He knew that every time he chewed, the molars on the right side and the molars on the left side of his jaw together in perfect unison. I got the idea that he must be an engineer on some big construction job in the north, where they employed giant steam shovels, and other massive engines that chomp and bite and chew through hundred percent efficiency. He looked to me like a human machine, with every muscle thought to the higher mechanics of engineering, and then applied with all the force that his jaws were the machine. And the food that he was shovelling into it is processed with maximum efficiency in the machine.

There was a slab of roast beef, browned potatoes, green peas, celery hearts, celery relishes, deep apple pie, cheese and tea. With expert and quite stylish nonchalance he cut and plowed on his fork the man-sized scoops of food. In four minutes his plate is filled out. And down in rhythmic, deliberate chomps went the molars on the left side of his mouth, not a fraction of their tasmanian power lost.

To clinch it, when he helped himself to the olives, he put two at a time in his mouth.

DUTCH TREAT CLUB

Since mentioning the name of the Dutch Treat Club recently many have written me wanting to know what kind of a club this is. Well, it's a gathering of men who meet each Tuesday for luncheon at the Hotel Commodore in New York. The members comprise many whose names are household words all over the nation.

There are probably more famous artists, writers and actors in the group gathered in this one place than any in America on the same day! Guests from scores of newspapers from all over the United States and Canada are present for the luncheon and then 15 minutes or so of entertainment by prominent members of the Grand Opera or current shows, and a talk of general interest by some outstanding public figure. A recent speaker was ex-President Herbert Hoover who is also a member.

All sides of public questions are discussed by the speakers—and it is off the record—a thing that is highly advocated. This gives the speaker the opportunity to say what he pleases without being quoted. Time limit—2 P.M. I have been honored by being a member for many years. The club has been in existence for some thirty years. A more friendly and inspiring group of men you would be difficult to find. I meet more of my friends at any Dutch luncheon that I would otherwise meet in an entire year!

The presiding officer of Dutch Treat at the present time is John Chapman, the able columnist for the New York Daily News. Contact with such a wonderful body of men who are doing big things in the world of writers, editors, artists and leaders in many professions is enough to inspire any man!

Stories from Life of Jesus

By April Oursler Armstrong

HE WALKED ON THE WATERS

At Jesus' command, the twelve apostles started home alone.

After the miracle of the loaves and the fishes, when He had fed the five thousand, His apostles had been filled with wonder to speak. But the crowd by the shore, fed by this miracle, had swarmed over Jesus and begged Him to be their King. It was then that He had ordered the twelve to set sail for home without Him. And He had gone alone to the mountain - top to pray.

The crowds still roared for the Master as the twelve went quietly down to Peter's boat in the darkness.

"He must be our King!" they cried. "We will make Him King!"

"A Man who can work miracles like this can make our country free. He can drive out the Romans and free us! Jesus the King, save us!"

Silently the apostles waded out through the little waters and climbed into the boat. With long practice they took their places. One hauled up the anchor. Two manned the sails. Others stood ready with the oars. And Peter took charge of the helm. The staunch old boat creaked complainingly as it slipped obediently off into the night.

BEYOND UNDERSTANDING

As the wind took hold of the sails, Nathanael Bartholomew broke the silence.

"Twelve baskets of food left over! And only five loaves and two fishes to start with. Who can understand that!"

Thomas, in his deep voice answered: "No one can say they do not believe it. We saw it. Every one saw it. Five thousand men — and their wives and children."

"Who can understand what Jesus does?" asked Peter. "I wish I understood Him! So often I wonder who He is, really."

"No mere man can do what He does," said his brother, Andrew. "He is more than a great teacher, more than a prophet. I do not dare say what I think He is!"

"The people really wanted to make Him a king, and He refused. That I shall never understand," said the lofty voice of Judas Iscariot. "Isn't it peculiar, not to want to be King!"

Simon, one of Jesus' cousins, snorted at Judas. "I don't pretend to understand Him — but this I know. He does not need to be a king on this earth. He is more than that."

"For our sakes, He could have become King," said Judas Iscariot stubbornly. "We have followed Him, without a penny of money. If He were King we could be pretty important people. Why should He refuse?"

GLAD OF DARKNESS

No one answered. Secretly they were all glad that the darkness kept them from even looking Judas in the face, so shocked were they by what he had said. Of all of them Judas was the one furthest from understanding the Master. They felt uneasy with him, without knowing why.

The night was black, blacker than usual. They realized it in the silence. No stars hung in the sky. And while they had been talking a wind had risen. No idle breeze this, but a gale! The ship was making little headway. The great timbers groaned as she battled the storm. So dark was it that they could see only the angry white crests of the waves swelling around them. Spray dashed over the boat, and spindrift clung to their beards.

"All 'All" Judas cried, "We shall die in such a storm. So suddenly it came! The work of devils or evil spirits it must be. And no one can save us!"

And John, shouting over the wind, answered, "Have you forgotten the tempest we were in before, when Jesus was sleeping in the boat? And how He awoke and ordered the wind and the sea to be still? That was no worse than this!"

"I wish He were here now," said James. "Without Him we are helpless!"

The wind blew harder, and the waves grew higher. The boat rocked till the mast itself nearly touched the water, and even Peter, the best sailor of them all, clung to the sides in alarm.

CALM IN THE STORM

The boat righted itself again, and Peter raised his hand to his eyes, peering through the storm.

"Look!" he cried hoarsely, his voice choked with fear.

The others followed his pointing arm, and gasped.

They saw the figure of Jesus, calm and serene, walking across the waves!

"It is a ghost," said Philip, his face white.

"That can't really be Jesus," said Simon.

"We're all seeing things that aren't there," said Jude Thaddeus, his brother, and his voice shook with fear.

Terror gripped them all, and grown men though they were, they cried out in fear till their voices were louder than wind or sea.

Across the waves came the voice of Jesus:

"Be of good heart!! It is I—have no fear!"

The apostles, gripping the sides of the boat with tight-corded fists, stared at each other wild-eyed, wondering if the darkness and the tempest could have made them all mad. And yet, there was Jesus, they dared not dismiss what they saw.

Peter alone found his voice. "Lord!" he called, "If it is really You, tell me to come to You and walk on the waters too!"

ANSWERED PLAINLY

Over the crash of the waves and the roar of the gale all twelve heard the answer plain:

"Come!" said Jesus, in that strong and loving voice they knew so well!

Peter looked at the others, and even in the storm they could see him smile with faith. Wrapping his long robe around his waist, Peter crawled over the side of the boat. For an instant his feet hung over the sea. Then he pushed himself off — and landed on top of the waves as firmly as if they were solid ground!

Head high, arms outstretched, Peter walked over the waters to Jesus.

But the wind was strong, and the storm still raged. White foam from the waves splattered on Peter's face, and on his hair, wind-tossed beard. He took his eyes from Jesus, and looked at the waters, and he grew afraid. It is impossible! he thought to himself. I can't really be walking on the water, I shall drown, I know!

And the moment Peter grew afraid, he began to sink. The waves lost their firmness, and the water swallowed him up. Down he went into the black sea, and the waves closed over him. Struggling and battling he brought his head above water, thrashing wildly against the storm.

"Lord!" he screamed. "Save me!"

And immediately Jesus was beside him. His voice, strident and moderation are required on both sides — much in the way it is in Alabama.

"The white supremacists are doomed; and their doom will come about with greater speed if the extremists on the other side learn to curb themselves. . . ."

Leadership Need In Racial Issue Seen Imperative

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times says a survey of Negro-white school integration in the southern United States "shows the need for leadership at every level from Washington to main street."

The newspaper adds that key Negro leaders "believe that in the end any regional reconstruction of race relations will have to be hammered out across the table in thousands of scattered school districts."

Results of The Times survey are published in a special eight-page section under the heading "Report on the south: the integration issue."

The newspaper says 10 of its staff correspondents travelled thousands of miles and talked to hundreds of persons during its five-week survey.

VARIED REACTIONS

In its summary, The Times says:

"As the south considers entering a new era of race relations, the reaction of almost all of the white population is against any change.

"The reactions range from religious defiance, to delicacy, to consequence, the cause of racial understanding has suffered a setback in the deep south—Georgia, South Carolina, Mississippi and Alabama —where the Negro population is the highest."

The Times says in its lead editorial that its reporters in the survey "were not sent out to pass judgment on the merits of the case."

"They were sent out to find and report the facts. They were not send out to produce sensational reading, or horror; they were sent out to observe, and learn and describe as they saw."

SUPREMACISTS DOOMED

The editorial concludes:

Provincial Houses Talk About Crime

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two provincial legislatures Monday discussed crime and punishment along the more general lines of last week's federal-provincial tax talks.

Saskatchewan Welfare Minister J. H. Sturdy said he is hopeful Canada soon will abolish the death penalty. Opposition members of the Manitoba legislature launched an attack on the Liberal-Progressive government's prison policies. Opposition leader Lloyd Stinson said only a new government could produce a new deal in the prisons.

Mr. Sturdy said he wrote to Justice Minister Garson in January and told Saskatchewan "he relieved of carrying out the death penalty." Mr. Garson had replied, he said, that "equally strong reasons could be set forward against hangings at federal penitentiaries.

"In view of this answer and in view of Britain's action abandoning capital punishment, I am hopeful that the death penalty will be done away with in Canada," Mr. Sturdy said.

STATEMENT NEEDED

Duff Roblin, leader of Manitoba's Progressive Conservative Opposition, said a "clear, coherent, practical statement of jail policy," is required in the province. He said:

"Instead we have received a monthly ramble through textbook-reading with, to me, a frank confession that the Attorney-General (M. N. Hrychorczuk) did not know what to do."

Mr. Stinson charged Mr. Hrychorczuk "has no conception of what is involved in prison reform."

The attorney-general had come to the conclusion rehabilitation and reclamation of prisoners was hopeless and "the only hope is to be found in the home, the school and the church."

"This," said Mr. Stinson, "leaves back 50 years, prior to the age of modern social science."

5,500,000 Bushels of Canadian Wheat Sold to Red Hungary

OTTAWA (CP)—Sale of 5,500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat to Hungary, latest in a series of big grain deals with Communist countries, was announced Monday by Trade Minister Howe.

He disclosed of the sale, giving no further details, was made in a Commons reply to Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia).

Negotiations with Hungary were completed "some days ago," Mr. Howe said.

He did not state the price or when the wheat is to be shipped. At current prices the deal would be worth, roughly, $8,800,000.

The sale was a further indication that Europe's severe winter storms, which caused widespread losses to that continent's grain crops, are producing big new orders for Canada's wheat.

Customarily the government follows a policy of silence about wheat sales, on the ground that information about current deals hurts Canada's competitive position on the world market.

However recent seals to Communist countries—Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia — have been made public.

BIGGEST DEAL

The biggest deal was with Russia, part of a formal trade agreement under which the Soviet Union agreed to buy a minimum 44,000,000 bushels of wheat in the next three years. At current prices it would be worth some $60,000,000.

Ten days ago Mr. Howe said he understood negotiations were in progress with Soviet agents for 16,687,000 bushels of wheat and said he expected sales would be completed soon. That amount is the annual minimum Russia agreed to purchase under the three-year pact.

Five days ago the trade minister announced completion of a contract with Czechoslovakia for the credit sale of between 85,000,000 and 917,000,000 worth of wheat—between 3,200,000 and 11,840,000 bushels. Czechoslovakia would pay 25 per cent cash and the remainder in one year under a loan guaranteed by the crown - owned Export Credits Insurance Corporation.

Czechoslovakia also has purchased about 1,866,000 bushels of barley, worth some $2,052,000.

About six weeks ago Poland closed a deal for 2,700,000 bushels of wheat at about $4,500,000, paying 15 per cent cash and the remainder under a one-year bank loan guaranteed by the Canadian government. That purchase was on top of 9,250,000 bushels of low-grade wheat bought on credit last year by Poland.

NO B.C. ELECTION

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia hinted Monday he doesn't want a provincial election this year. Unless a severe political storm blows up, there won't be one, he indicated.

Vote on Tuesday In First Primary Election in U.S.

BY RELMAN MORIN

MANCHESTER, N. H. (AP)—The first primary election in the 1956 United States political campaign — and the first test of strength between two Democratic presidential contenders—began today in the Granite State of New Hampshire.

Two like - party primaries—Millfield and Ellsworth—completed their votes only minutes after midnight.

Millfield split its four votes evenly between Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson. Ellsworth, where six ballots were cast, gave five votes for President Eisenhower. The sixth was a blank.

Only the names of Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem., Tenn.) and President Eisenhower were listed on the presidential preference portion of the ballot. The names of Stevenson for president and Governor Averell Harriman of New York for vice-president were written on the ballot by two voters in Millfield.

(Such "write-in" votes are legal in the United States primary elections, which are held to choose candidates from each party who will run finally in the November general elections. Voters register as either Republican or Democrat, and vote for the candidates they want to represent their party in the general election. This is part of the Canadian system of party meetings to choose candidates.

(However, the presidential and vice-presidential candidates are selected at the U. S. party conventions to be held this summer. The voting in the primaries depends on foreigners only the party candidates for the Senate and House of Representatives. But the ballots cast for the presidential contenders are taken as an indication of how any given state may support a candidate at the summer conventions.)

New Hampshire is predominantly Republican, but nevertheless the Democratic contest today pits Kefauver and Stevenson, who are both seeking the Democratic presidential nomination. They clash again next week in the Minnesota primary.

Wants Limits Raised

TORONTO (CP)—A city traffic engineer Monday recommended speed limits be raised in Toronto's metropolitan area should have speed limits raised from 30 to 35 or 40 m.p.h.

H. R. Burton, chairman of a committee of sub-committees, recommended three routes for a 40 m.p.h. limit and four for a 35 m.p.h. limit.

Mr. Burton told only one-half of Toronto's drivers observe 30 m.p.h.-limit.

DRIVER WAS A MIRACLE

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A 70-car Rock Island freight train and a pickup truck collided 25 miles east of here Sunday night. Troopers said the driver of the truck was not seriously injured. They said it was a miracle. It was the driver's wife, 34, who was driving to University Hospital where she is a nurse. That's where they took her.

Bill to End Death Penalty Wins Approval in Principle

LONDON (Reuters)—Supporters of a bill to suspend and ultimately abolish the death penalty for murder in Britain were confident today that it will get final approval in the House of Commons, despite reduced support shown in the House Monday night.

Backers of the "no hanging" bill are further confident that the bill will ultimately become law, although they fear determined opposition in the House of Lords.

The House of Commons Monday night gave approval in principle to a bill providing for the suspension of the death penalty, and for its complete abolition unless reintroduced within 10 years at the desire of both Houses of Parliament.

This qualification is designed as an escape clause should abolition bring about an increase in murders during the 10 years. In addition, wartime executions for spying or treason are not covered by the bill.

LOWER MAJORITY

The House gave the bill its second reading after an unprecedented move to reject it had been defeated by 286 votes to 244.

A tense, packed House received quietly the news that the margin against the death penalty had dropped to 24 from majorities of 98 and 143 recently, when members voted to change the law on capital punishment.

Sydney Silverman, the Labor member who introduced the bill privately expressed pleasure at the result "having regard to all the pressures that have been brought to bear during the past week."

Sir Anthony Eden's government has opposed the suspension or abolition of the death penalty, but has allowed its votes in the "free" open party—and more than 40 Conservatives have voted with the almost solid "abolitionist" Laborites.

As the government has promised a free vote at every stage of the bill, its supporters...are confident that it will get through the Commons substantially unchanged.

DELAY EXPECTED

In the Lords, however, there is known to be a considerable majority in favor of retaining the death penalty. But the Lords now cannot stop the bill from becoming law...though they could delay it by a year.

Beverley Baxter, Canadian-born Conservative MP, spoke for the bill, saying "we want to do away with the sordid glamor of the murder trial and the medieval horror of the gallows."

The current bill is the second launched against executions. A similar one was passed by the Commons in 1953, but the Lords rejected it, and before the House could press for it again at the end of the year a wave of violent crimes caused the matter to drop.

Home Secretary Gwilym Lloyd George said he had yet to learn how the abolitionists would deter the criminal who, if caught, would get a life sentence (which in practice means 14 years) from killing to avoid capture.

"What is to deter the man who has nothing to lose by committing murder to seize the chance to get away altogether?" he asked.

Many of those who favored abolition did so because reprieved murderers today were released after nine, eight or seven years. They thought such early reprieve would apply generally if hanging was done away with, he said.

"I can assure you that is not so," he said. All reprieved murderers had been reprieved because of extenuating circumstances—youth, provocation or pathetic circumstances.

He pictured the gradual deterioration of a man who knew he would be kept in strict confinement for the rest of his days without hope of being released. "It is inevitable that mentally and spiritually he will rot," he said.

Silverman said if the Commons changed its mind about the death penalty within a period of three weeks it would not heighten the prestige on a democratic parliament.

The home secretary was "probably the only man in the House" who really believed, as he said in the last debate, that no innocent man had been hanged in Britain in recent years, he said.

Marg Truman To Have Small, Quiet Wedding

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Displaying proudly a modest diamond solitaire, Margaret Truman said Monday that she and newspaper man Clifton Daniel will be married some time in April.

Two hours after former president Harry S. Truman had announced his only child's engagement, Margaret and her fiance met the press here in a public room of the Hotel Carlyle, where she lives.

Miss Truman, 32, said there will be a small, quiet wedding with the two families" at Trinity Episcopal church in Independence, Mo. Miss Truman answering a few questions, Son of a Zebulon, N.C., druggist, Daniel is a slender, handsome, brown-eyed man of medium height with greying hair. Like Margaret, he has not been married before.

TELL OF ROMANCE

Sometimes with reluctance, they patched together the story of their romance which started in early November when they met at the home of George Backer, former New York Post publisher.

Daniel proposed late in January and he met his prospective father-in-law, Harry S. Truman, for the first time when the former president came to New York last month to speak at a Democratic dinner.

"Mother and dad were delighted," added Margaret, "but I can't remember what he said when we told him we were going to be married."

Will she continue her career?

"Well," said Margaret, "I still have to finish up my contract with NBC, and as for later, Mr. Daniel hasn't put his foot down."

"Mr. Daniel," put in Daniel, "hasn't put his foot down and won't."

But, of course, his career comes first," she added.

Nova Scotia Newspaper Woman Edits Greenwich Village Weekly

By JACK REST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — Greenwich Village, home of long-haired, arty types, has a reputation for loose living and shabby living.

A sliver - haired newspaper woman from Nova Scotia, Miss Ennice Paige, makes it her business to present a more balanced picture of the storied community which lies toward the lower end of Manhattan island.

There is a particular misconception that this place is thoroughly Bohemian," says the 51-year-old editor of the weekly newspaper, The Villager.

"It is not so by any means. This is just a great big, overgrown small town. A great deal of gracious living goes on here."

Miss Paige, born in Truro, N.S., knew her parental ancestry back to the Scottish settlers who landed at Pictou from the ship Hector 183 years ago.

Her father, the late James Fraser Paige, was a naval architect and marine engineer who built ships for Canada's Royal Navy in Kure, Japan. A cousin, George Murray, is publisher of the Pictou Advocate.

UNIQUE NEWSPAPER

She sat at her desk in The Villager's editorial offices on the basement floor of a building on the west Ninth street, and described the function of her "country" newspaper.

"It is completely unique in the whole United States," said the short, pleasant-faced woman, who got her backed into newspaper work by doing music reviews and publicity work. "There are no murder stories and no gossip. As one lady put it, 'you haven't got to worry about your name in your name in The Villager.'"

Next to her desk stands a mantel from the Greenwich Village home of Edgar Allan Poe. In the attic above, Mark Twain once lived.

The newspaper has a circulation of 27,000. Eight thousand copies are sold on the newsstands and 2,000 go to subscribers throughout the world. The rest are distributed free to homes in the village, which has a population of 160,000. "The increased circulation comes it worthwhile for advertising," she explained.

The newspaper goes heavy on items with a community flavor, and gives good play to church news. Like any country weekly, it has a personality column about individuals, called "The Town Crier."

WRITES COLUMN

Miss Paige herself ghost-writes a column called "Gossipy Memoirs." Scoopy being a cat whose grandmother was brought into the Village office 20 years ago to catch mice but instead became a front for current commentary and has bequeathed this literary vocation to her offspring.

The newspaper has a staff of 17, including three full-time reporters — "but like every weekly," said Miss Paige, "everybody can do everything when the need arises."

In advertising rates, however, The Villager is far removed from its rural counterparts. It gets 50 cents a line for classified ads.

Miss Paige became editor of The Villager last June after working for most of 26 years. as a publicity agent.

Because her father moved around so much, her education was obtained in different places. She attended public school in Fort Arthur, Dalhousie University in Halifax, a college for women in New Orleans, and finally the Washington school of music, where she received her B. Mus. in 1927.

She met the publishers of The Villager, Miss Isabel Bryan and her late brother Walter, when the Paiges moved to New York 29 years ago. Three times between then and last year she worked stretches as a full-time reporter for the newspaper.

FOXBORO W.I.

The regular monthly meeting of the Foxboro Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. M. J. Waller.

Mrs. Hubble was in charge of the meeting which opened in the usual manner.

Correspondence was read also thank-you letters from Mrs. Ash, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Elder, Mrs. H. Ashton and Mrs. Bamber, family, and an invitation which was accepted from the Three Grove Institute to attend a meeting with them in April.

Mrs. Churchill as a member of the committee gave a full report of the euchre party and dance, with $37.50 being realized. It was decided to have another party on April 3rd. Mrs. Bamber, Mrs. Churchill and B. Denill are to be the committee in charge of arrangements.

The program under Community Activities was in charge of Mrs. R. W. Skinner, who dealt with the motto "Invest Your Time Instead of Spending it", stating that rather than do nothing with any leisure time a person may have, one should take up a hobby of some kind. This hobby might in time become more profitable than just to fill in leisure time.

Mrs. Shorey read "Keep Learning," and Mrs. Ewing read "The Children."

The short film "Community Activities" was most timely and completed the program. A good and interesting discussion followed.

Following the singing of "The Queen", refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

The League of Red Cross Societies affiliates the world's 74 National Red Cross Societies with a membership of 105 millions.

DRAMATIZING YOUR BEAUTY ASSETS

If eyes are an outstanding feature they can be further dramatized with the proper make-up.

Many women who have the reputation of being great beauties are not beautiful at all when measured by so-called "scientific standards." Figure proportions, for instance, are not necessarily those used by judges at internationally famous beauty contests. And, where facial features are concerned, there isn't one in a thousand who measures up to the calipertrue proportions which the classic artists have portrayed for centuries. Modern beauties, however, have learned the art of dramatizing their best points in such a way as to render almost invisible whatever imperfections are to be found in face or figure. And such is their flair for dramatization that the beholder takes pne look at the emphasized feature and exclaims, "How beautiful"—without further analysis.

So why not take a leaf or two from the books of these smart girls?

Let's consider your eyes, for instance. are they beautiful or not? they at least have the potentiality of beauty? You should know the answer yourself. If people frequently comment on their coloring, or mention your nice long lashes or or of a dress or hat," it brings out the color of your eyes so beautifully," you can be pretty sure that here you've "got something," as the saying goes. And, if you have, for heaven's sake, make the most of it. Dramatize those eyes to a dare-devil-ness. Experiment with different tones of make-up, concentrate on clothes colors which deepen the eye-shading. Do everything possible to emphasize this wonderful beauty asset.

If your hair is truly a "crowning glory," don't treat it lightly. Select a style of culture which dramatizes it's color, its texture and its natural wave. Don't adopt a mousey hair-do just because it's "easier to take care of." And vary the coiffure at times. Truly beautiful hair can be worn in a variety of styles and the variety itself will call attention to your lovely asset.

Maybe your hands are something to be proud of. Well, why not show them off to their best advantage? Wear your dresses just a bit shorter than the fashion calls for, if necessary. Wear the sheerest nylons and select the prettiest shoes you can find. slim trim ankles and perfect leg proportions are something every girl yearns for. So, if you already have them, why not let the world know? The same goes for your waistline. If the modern version of a "wasp waist" is yours, don't cover it up with a baggy dress. Get frocks that call attention to your midsection. Make it look even smaller by wearing bouffant skirts and do splurge on pretty belts. They're eye-catchers with which to reckon. Beautiful hands? Dramatize them, too. Keep them velvety soft and smooth and keep yourself in the most beautiful manicures possible. Learn how to use them gracefully, though not ostentatiously. They'll be noticed, you can be sure.

Look in the mirror now. Study yourself carefully. Decide which are your best features—and play them up, girl!

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHY LIVE WITH FEAR AND FRUSTRATION?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Five years ago I married a man the day before he was to have a very serious operation. Following this, he was confined to a hospital for a year and a half.

He had three children from a previous marrage who were in a church home, and I immediately took a job in order to save enough money to make a home for them. These children have caused me many hardships and even at times, have got into pretty serious troubles. I have gone without things because of them, and when they got into trouble I have gotten them out, even moving from the old environment to try and help them live better.

After my husband was out of the hospital, I gave up my job at his request, as he wanted to try and run a farm. Now he is forever saying that I should go out to work, and he calls me filthy names in front of the children. He also drinks. If I try to leave, he smashes things, saying I can't have any things he paid for. He forgets about the past years when I worked and spent every dime I earned to make a home and clothes for him and his children.

I try so hard to be a good wife and step-mother. People tell me, though, that I'm a fool to take all this. My mother won't tell me what to do as she doesn't want any family trouble, but she says what I am going through turns her cold.

I am now 36 years old. — E.A.B.

Dear E.A.B.:

Unless you are actually fond of this man's children—and you certainly don't sound as though you were—I can see no possible reason why you should go on living with him. For you don't give me the impression, either, that you have any love for your husband. Altogether it appears that it is either a rigid sense of duty, or else a great reluctance to do anything so drastic as to break up your marriage, that makes you stay with the situation.

In my opinion, a sense of duty can be carried to abnormal lengths, and I think it is also abnormal to keep on living in fear and loneliness frustration for no better reason than that you are too timid, or too afraid of what people will say and think,-if you were to split out.

The latter is just what I would advise you to do, and leave this abusive and ungrateful man with the responsibility of his own children. Before you walk out for ever, you should have advice from a lawyer in order to avoid possible trouble by having your husband bring an action against you for desertion.

If there were any hope that you could improve matters by remaining where you are, a psychiatrist with the responsibility and burden you have been carrying all this time, or if there were any normal marital relationship between you and your husband, I might think it might be that some plan could be worked out which might lead to better things. But you have told me nothing that makes me even at all optimistic about the outlook for the future.

You could, of course, discuss the whole problem with the pastor of your church, a marriage counsellor, or your local family welfare organization before making a final decision. You can decide for yourself whether or not you want to do this. But a decision is definitely urgently needed here, and I think you should take steps to make it immediately. To be placed indefinitely under such circumstances as you describe seems to me the height of folly. You still have many years ahead of you to live a happy, useful life if you were free to do so.

CANNIFTON WMS

The March meeting of Cannifton WMS met at the home of Mrs. Donald Williams with a good attendance.

The president, Mrs. R. Pound, opened the meeting.

Business followed. A letter from Mrs. Harford Twiddy and a donation were much appreciated. Several other "thank-you" notes were read. A welcome was extended to all, especially the visitors, one being Mrs. A. Maguire Belleville, a former member of the society.

Belleville Presbyterial is to be held on Wednesday, March 14, at King Street United church. Trenton, Mrs. W. Brenton to bring back the report of the morning session. Mrs. G. Brenton, the afternoon and Mrs. J. Williams, the evening.

Mrs. R. Pound related something about the history of WMS. Cannifton WMS was organized in August 1895.

Mrs. C. Callery was made an life member in 1910. Mrs. T. Farnham in 1911 and Mrs. Kerr and Mrs. Dunning in 1912.

In 1915 Mission Band was formed with Miss Grace Brenton and Miss Jamieson as leaders.

In 1920 Mrs. H. Empson became treasurer, an office she has held ever since.

Mrs. J. Williams was appointed as WMS representative to the committee for the kitchen project.

A special collected to buy needed supplies for supply work was taken.

A letter from Miss Luella Rourke, missionary in Japan, was read by Mrs. R. Philp and Mrs. G. Brenton gave an interesting reading on "Temperance".

Mrs. J. Williams read a letter from Presbyterial Christian Stewardship secretary, stating the allocation for 1956 is $400.

The finance committee with Miss M. Hoyle and Mrs. G. Brenton met on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. R. Pound with Mrs. C. Bird leading in prayer.

Mrs. D. Williams rendered a solo.

Some interesting stories were read from one of the study books "Home Mission Digest". "Laughing Sally" was an Indian girl who attended the Oxford House United church mission in far northern Manitoba. She went to school and learned to sew, to knit and help at the mission. Also learned to be clean with herself with clean clothes, and clean clothes led to a clean home. "Laughing Sally" found Jesus and suddenly when the dread disease of tuberculosis struck her, she said "I am not afraid, I will be with Jesus."

Miss Meribeth Holgate read a poem by a well known Indian princess, Pauline Johnson.

The April meeting is to be held in the home of Mrs. J. Williams in the form of an Easter meeting.

After the meeting closed a cup of tea was served and a social half hour spent

QUESTION OF TABLE-SETTING

Our group of housewives is very interested in table-setting, and we all thank you for the several questions you have answered for us in your column. Now we have another. Some of us think that when either a luncheon or dinner menu does not require a knife, knives should be put on the table anyway. I personally approve of this way of setting a table, in order to give a balanced appearance to the individual settings. However, when you are serving only the simplest of refreshments . . . cake and tea or coffee, for example . . . it is quite correct to place only those silverpieces which will be used, probably fork and spoon.(

HER FIANCE SHOULD EXPLAIN TO GROOM-TO-BE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am engaged and I have just received an invitation to the wedding of a man was a fraternity brother of mine several years ago when we were in college. The invitation is for my church service only and for the reception following. My fiancee is very disappointed that she too was not invited to this wedding, and thinks I should do something about it. Bob M.

I agree with your fiancee that you should "do something about it." If your friend, the groom to be, doesn't know you are engaged, (as I judge he may not), you should telephone or write him that you are engaged, tell him your fiancee's name and address, and then I am sure he will assume that he will ask his bride or her mother to send your fiancee an invitation. This solution of this situation is taken for granted.

SHOULD SHE ENCLOSE ROAD MAP WITH WEDDING INVITATIONS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am being married in my home town this summer, and our reception and wedding dinner will be at the Country Club, which is about an hour's drive from the church where we are to be married. Since many of our friends and relatives are from out-of-state, and since I would very much like to have our guests be as prompt as possible for the wedding dinner, I would like to know if it would be possible to send each guest a small map with directions for how to get there. This map I would mimeograph on paper of fine quality, and would draw it very carefully and give it an added touch of nicety.

If you think such a map would be correct to send, (a) should the map be sent in a—separate envelope rather than with the wedding invitation, or (b) should the maps be given out after the wedding ceremony when the guests are leaving the church? Bride-to-be Rich fabrics, simply handled, is the favorite formula for top-flight designers. Much use is made of lace over such fabrics as taffeta or satin, and for smart casual wear, lace over and with linen. Jane Derby does things this way, designing a dance dress of fine blue chantilly lace over black horsehair. The youthfully charming and curvaceous silhouette has a halter neckline and the bodice flows naturally into the stiff, standout skirt in a new above-the-ankle evening length that is winning so many plaudits this season.

Wedding Reception 1956

By Mary Moore

6TH INSTALMENT — SALADS

Here we go again on Wedding Plans. This time it's Salads for 50. To recapitulate briefly to date we have had coffee and reception punch for 50; two instalments on sandwiches for a crowd. Again I suggest you clip this as it will have a wedding reception this season.

POTATO SALAD (For 50)

Twenty cups diced potatoes (warm) 6 cups finely diced celery 1-3 cup minced onion (preferably green) 4 to 8 hard-cooked eggs chopped 1 cup each chopped parsley canned pimento green pepper, 1 cup French dressing and Potato Salad Dressing (use all of this). Four cups mayonnaise, 1-2 cup prepared mustard, 1 tablespoon paprika, 4 tablespoons salt, 2 teaspoons white pepper. Method for combining potato salad: Cook potatoes in their skins. Peel and dice. While warm marinate in French dressing for 2 hours in the refrigerator. Add all the remaining ingredients but dressing and mix thoroughly. Serve in lettuce-lined bowls garnished with hard-cooked egg wedges.

COLE SLAW (For 50)

Twenty-five cups chilled shredded cabbage, 2 cups mild vinegar, 2 2-3 tablespoons salt, 2 teaspoons pepper, 4 tablespoons dry mustard, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-2 cup butter, 8 well-beaten eggs, 4 cups light cream. Method: bring the vinegar, seasonings and butter just to the boiling point. Slowly stir the hot vinegar mixture into the beaten eggs. Cook until mixture thickens. Remove from heat. Beat in the cream. While it is still hot pour over the shredded cabbage. Chill and serve cold.

GOLDEN SPRING SALAD (For 50.)

Five cups crushed pineapple, five packages lemon jelly powder, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 2 1-2 cups finely grated carrot, 5 tablespoons plain gelatin, 1 1-4 cups cold water, 1 cup mayonnaise, 1 cup pineapple syrup, 2 1-2 cups light cream or evaporated milk, 2 1-2 teaspoons salt, 5 tablespoons grated onion, 2 1-2 cups finely chopped celery, 2 1-2 cups finely grated and drained cucumber. Pineapple Layer—Drain pineapple. Add enough water to syrup to make 9 cups liquid. Heat to boiling and dissolve jelly powders in this. Add 2 1-2 teaspoons salt and chill until partially congealed. Add carrots and pineapple. Turn into lightly oiled fancy moulds, filling one half full and chill. Cucumber Layer: Dissolve plain gelatin in cold water, dissolve by stirring over hot water. Combine remaining ingredients. Add gelatin and blend well. If desired tint green (and a pale green is recommended). Pour over the pineapple layer and chill until firm. Unmould on greenish with salad greens attractively. This is beautiful in ring molds.

No New Concessions Given To Any Province House Told

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—No province got any new concession from the federal government at Friday's federal-provincial fiscal conference, Prime Minister St. Laurent said Monday.

In statements to the Commons, he also said the federal government has gone as far as it can in tax-sharing offers to the provinces.

The prime minister's outline to the House followed up a formal statement to the fiscal meeting Friday by Finance Minister Harris, who told premiers the federal government cannot improve now on a tax-splitting plan it advanced Jan. 6 and modified Feb. 18 in favor of the provinces.

WITHOUT CHANGE

This plan, informants said Monday, was the one put before the conference Friday without further change and left to the provinces to accept or reject.

Questioned in the House today about the possibility of "further concessions" having been made the provinces by his government, Mr. St. Laurent said:

"The provinces would not admit that anything that is proposed is a concession. There were explanations made (Friday) as to how the (federal) retirement from the field of taxation on insurance premiums might operate. I know of nothing further that could be regarded as a concession or as an increase in the burden the proposals would mean for the federal treasury."

MEMBER'S QUESTON

Hon. Earl Rowe (PC—Dufferin-Simcoe) asked about reports that Friday's federal-provincial conference here broke down and whether the federal government would consider a new approach to tax yield distribution.

Mr. St. Laurent said the conference had not broken, down—it had broken up.

His insurance reference was to a concession the federal government made Feb. 16 and which it disclosed Feb. 22. This would allow all provinces to retain what they collect in insurance company premium taxes without having this knocked off their federal payments under the proposed arrangements.

Before the Feb. 18 offer, Quebec as the only province not renting corporation taxes to the federal government was the only one getting a concession in this respect. Under the latest federal plan, all the other provinces come under it.

Laborer Saves Life of Fellow Worker

CORNWALL (CP)—Construction laborer Albert Lalonde Monday gave his life for a fellow worker.

Lalonde, 42-year-old father of five children, was crushed by a falling crane boom just as he shoved Paul Faubert of nearby Martintown clear.

The boom smashed across the lower part of Lalonde's body. He apparently saw the boom falling and pushed Faubert to safety. He died in hospital three hours later after both legs were amputated.

The men, employed by Iroquois Constructors Ltd., were working on the St. Lawrence seaway power project at nearby Barnhart island. It was the third fatal accident at the site since work started late in 1954.

OIL IN NEGEV

LONDON (Reuters)—Israel radio said Friday night that Israeli oil prospectors struck oil in the Negev desert Friday afternoon. It said oil shot out above the derrick over the 4,500-foot-deep well. Drilling was continuing in the hope of finding a greater stratum in addition to the two formations so far discovered, the radio added.

ROBBER SUSPECT PICKS WRONG PLACE TO HIDE

Slapstick comedy became real when police were chasing a suspected robber in a Montreal shoe store. While police ran up and down the aisles the suspect, Georges Christin, was reclining peacefully in what he thought was a cupboard. But the cupboard was revealed as a glass showcase when a photographer unintentionally snapped this photo and Mr. Christin did not long enjoy his rest. (Central Press Canadian).

Report-Making Stage Reached In Rail Dispute

HAMILTON (CP)—Eric G. Taylor, chairman of the federal conciliation board inquiring into a dispute between five railways and their 150,000 non-operating employees, said Monday the board now is in the report-making stage. Union demands include higher wages.

Mr. Taylor, in Hamilton for two days in connection with another board, said in addition to the two formations so far discovered, the radio added:

"We've concluded the formal submission stage and have held exploratory talks with both sides privately, hoping to reach a direct settlement between both parties.

"We were not successful.

"I can't say whether we'll have any more meetings. One of us might get a brainwave and want another meeting or the railway or union might ask for another meeting."

DISCOVERY ISLANDS

LONDON (AP) — Moscow radio says the Soviet Antarctic expedition ship Ob discovered a group of three islands near Knox Land last Wednesday. The broadcast said the crew of the ship suggested the islands be named "The Eighth of March" group in honor of International Women's Day.

252 Inches of Snow

REVELSTOKE, B.C. (CP)—Citizens in a community that has had more than 20 feet of snow dumped on it during a continuity cold winter have a common job—to dig and dig and dig.

The record snowfall has made this Rockey mountain town of 3,000 persons 200 miles west of Calgary a fantastic sight.

From last September to this week, Revelstoke has recorded 252 inches of snow.

Along a road adjacent to the railway tracks, the drifts on each side are so high that on the track-side tops of the train coaches are out of view.

So far snow removal has cost $15,000.

Heavier Taxation May Be Necessary Says Treasurer

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Porter of Ontario Monday night hinted that heavier taxation of Ontario residents may be necessary if the provincial government is unable to work out a satisfactory tax-sharing agreement with the federal government.

Mr. Porter said projections for the future indicate necessary increases in special grants to municipalities and other expenditures.

"We may not always be able to carry on without increases in taxation. But now we are seeking to bring to finality our negotiations with the federal government as to distribution of tax resources."

Mr. Porter spoke on a radio broadcast over a network of Ontario stations. His text was released to the press prior to delivery.

SPECIAL NEEDS

If the federal government recognized the special needs of Ontario, the province could expect great things.

He said Ontario's development program would make tax revenues larger. A tax-sharing plan with the province would actually increase federal resources of revenue.

"I suggest that increases in taxation should be a last resort. Our people are now heavily taxed."

While forecasting a prosperous year ahead for Ontario, Mr. Porter advocated caution in government fiscal policies.

"In rapidly-changing times when we face the prospect of sudden downward trends with as much likelihood as swift upward movement, caution becomes the first note of sound fiscal policy."

HIGHEST BUDGET

The $400,000,000 1955-56 provincial budget was the highest in Ontario's history. Revenue for the next fiscal year ending March 31, 1957, was estimated at $420,000,000.

The treasurer said some government critics have suggested government revenues should be calculated more closely.

"An economy that has moved ahead as quickly as ours has done in the last few years is highly sensitive. Under these conditions it is well to estimate revenues with special caution and to keep our estimates of expenditure in line."

Grants to municipalities for roads, education and other purposes would total $185,000,000 this year—40 per cent of the total revenues collected by the government.

White Owl Back on Job

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—A white owl is back on the job again this year guiding the icebreaker James Whalen during its initial voyage to the outer edge of the ice pack in Thunder bay.

The owl has returned for the third year in a row, to sit each day a few yards in front of the tug. When the icebreaker nears the spot the bird flies yards further on, still in the path of the vessel.

Frontier Spirit Runs High In Peace River Country

By STAN McCABE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP)—A frontier spirit prevails in the towns of the Peace River country sitting astride the northern boundary between British Columbia and Alberta.

There have been settlements in the Peace since 1793. Thousands of settlers, eyes on the rich wheat lands, arrived during the first of the century. But in 1956 residents of the Peace, engaged in a post-war boom, assert: "You ain't seen nothin' yet."

The Northern Alberta Railways is the one rail link between the rest of Canada and the fruitful 80,000 square miles of the Peace. It's the "adopted child" of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways which took it over from the province of Alberta in 1929.

TWO BRANCHES

The NAR has 600 miles of steel running out of Edmonton to the northwest. One branch swings north to Peace River, Grimshaw and Hines Creek in Alberta and another comes west through Grande Prairie, Alta., to this town 16 miles west of the provincial border.

The atmosphere of the nightly train that shakes, rattles and rolls through the Peace—here, it's never called the "Peace River area" or the "Peace River block"—is itself indicative of the difference that prevails in this frontier country from that of the more settled parts of Canada.

Husky workers headed for bush lumber camps and oil fields mingle with staid businessmen. As the train, usually lightly patronized, clicks leisurely along the conductor finds time to talk curling as well as keep an eye on the odd passenger who may be a bit "flikered up" and may give trouble.

The boast of this town of 8,500 is that it is the "Gateway to the Northwest." Young Mrs. Evelyn Fox, who has lived in the north west most of her life, supported the claim enthusiastically. She was headed north by air from the "end of steel" here to rejoin her husband 393 miles up the Alaska highway at Summit Lake, B.C.

She said: "Dawson Creek is really growing. If I'm away only six months I can hardly recognize it."

STILL NEED HOUSES

A housing shortage that still exists developed when Dawson Creek became a railhead boom town during the Second World War when the Alaska highway was built. Mrs. Fox recalls that her family first moved into a one-room house and her father considered himself lucky to find one with linoleum on the floor.

Buildings reminiscent of Hollywood horse-opera architecture can still be seen. But the visitor from "outside" finds that wartime and post-war growth, hastened by development of gas and oil resources, has provided much that is familiar to the city dweller.

In the sparkling air of the Rocky mountain foothills Dawson Creek displays a raw newness and a picture of brisk activity. Pedestrians crowd the sidewalks. Trucks, from pickups to giant diesels and trailers, run along the streets.

Much of the architecture might be classed as "Prairie modern"—a boxy shell with stucco finish, lavishly decorated with neon signs. The interiors tend to somewhat raw-looking woodwork with all the worst of modern chrome and leatherette fixings. The frontier feeling is heightened by such names as the "Alaska Hotel."

New buildings all beside structures thrown up hastily during the Second World War and before. The South Peace high school, of modern design, covers an entire block.

FINE LOCATION

On the outskirts, the new "Grandview" housing development, unlike its counterparts in some other centres, rates the same. It sits on a hill with a clear view over the town and the valley in which it lies to the rounded hills to south.

The spirit of adventure seems to have hit Dawson Creek's builders, too. They use all the colors of the rainbow in their painting schemes and thought up, a few more besides. Such combinations as pink and black are common.

Bank manager J. C. Hennion wears a somewhat harried look as he prepares to move from outgrown quarters to shiny new ones.

LAW-ABIDING FOLK

The absence of serious crime—motorists don't bother to lock their cars on the streets—is rather startlingly indicated by the bank move. An employee was seen casually trudging from a car trunk to the new building with a waste basket full of rolled-up coins.

Residents are practically unanimous in moaning about the town telephone system. It's bogged down at rush hours because it hasn't grown like the town.

Dawson Creek is blessed with a wide main street, but under the load of northern snow it is reduced to two narrow lanes in winter. (Just outside the town, the Alaska highway is so well maintained by the army that it is practically bare of snow from shoulder to shoulder.)

The railway, which ended here practically by chance in 1930, provided the nucleus of this town. The Peace now has become more and more a trucker's country though the NAR still is a major artery of commerce.

The schedule of the one train that comes in daily to turn around is loosened more in the breach than in the observance, residents say without any bitterness. In the winter, its steam locomotive is likely to come in with snow piled high above the cow catcher from bucking drifts.

RECALLS "OLD WEST"

Forty-nine miles up the Alaska highway is Fort St. John, probably the closest Canada has left to a piece of the "old west." Although the streets rumble with diesel transports and parking spots have replaced hitching posts, many buildings are false-fronted affairs of the "last chance saloon" school of building.

Fort St. John is the centre for the rich farm lands of British Columbia's share of the land "north of the Peace." The river lies about 15 miles to the southeast.

About 2,000 persons now live in Fort St. John. Although it doesn't look as prosperous as Dawson Creek, it is closer to the airport that serves both towns and it hopes for the future are just as high.

George Murray, former Liberal member of Parliament for the Cariboo, visualizes Fort St. John as a centre of the petrochemical industry and a breadbasket for the lower mainland of B.C. He says of the flats along the Peace:

"These bottomlands are just as rich as any you'll find anywhere. You can grow anything.

"A turnip costs as much up here as a grapefruit. But they'd sooner talk about how they can grow lemons rather than raise ordinary vegetables."

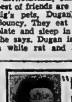
New Zealand Children Attend Funeral of Fish

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (Reuters) Children played truant to attend the funeral Mon. of their beloved Opo, the playful dolphin who gave them rides on her back at Opononi beach, near Auckland.

Her funeral was this afternoon and mourners flocked to Opononi to pay their last respects to the dolphin.

The local hotel and other businesses arranged to close for an hour to honor Opo, who had become a national idol for tens of thousands of New Zealanders.

Her fame was such that the New Zealand cabinet even passed an order in council protecting the Opononi dolphins.



Opo's grave is in a sandy beach close to where she sported with children and adults during the summer months. She also learned to play ball and could throw one 60 yards with a flip of the fin.

Opo was given the second name of George, but experts who examined the dolphin when it was found dead wedged in some rocks close to the shore last week found that George was a lady.

Rare, Medium, Well-Done

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

DOWN TO THE WIRE . . .

It's dog-eat-dog in the mad dash to the playoffs wire of the Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs while the New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings are not doing any pauty-waisting in their drive for second place.

The Conny-Clancy crew apparently had the fourth spot almost in the well-known container when the pesky Bruins upended on their haunches and clobbered and clawed the Canadiens for a pair of wins and four million-dollar points. The twin wins pulled them to within a point of the Leafs.

Tonight's tilt is an important one for Schmidt's grizzlies. They face the Red Wings in Beantown and you can bet your life the tea-party crew will go all out to snatch an all-important victory. Their remaining clash sees them tangle with the lowly Chicago Black Hawks. By the same token the Leafs meet the Wings and Hawks, playing Detroit south of the border next Sunday and entertaining the Hawks Saturday night.

The Wings and Blues have three games left to play with the all important one coming on Thursday when the teams clash one against the other The Wings up to now have a two-point head and a win Thursday will give them a stranglehold on second place Wings also play Toronto and Boston while Rangers tangle twice with Canadiens and once with Detroit.

INDUSTRIAL SOFTBALL

A lot of the fellows who are over the OASA hump or lack the ability to make the teams of the Belleville District League play their chance to cavort on city softball diamonds if suggestions now afoot blossom into fruition.

Bill Bersch, vice-president of the BDSL who fathered the suggestion, will outline proposed plans for a city industrial league at a meeting called for Sunday next at the West Moira Street Fire Hall.

Bill, who hasn't been letting the alfalfa grow between his pinkies, has been working on the idea of an industrial league for some time. As a matter of fact he says he has a dozen teams lined up already for the venture.

The greater part of the city industrial organizations have fallen in line with the idea, and there is a distinct possibility that the loop may extend to a size where sectional organization will be necessary.

As far as this department can understand, the new industrial league will be operated as a separate entity from the Belleville and District loop. This is as it should be as to prevent a lot of administrative work from the shoulders of the district league executive. —

We also hear that it is proposed to exclude players who played for OASA teams last season. Also that players must be bona fide employees of the firm for which they play.

It won't be world championship softball, but after all that is not the purpose of the league. It is felt that a lot of players who, as was said before, are not good enough to make the league clubs should have the opportunity to play—and the industrial league is the answer.

Bersch says this type of industrial softball was undertaken in Hamilton during his sojourn as an official there, and the idea was a huge success.

If there is a large influx of team entries, the new loop may be faced with grounds troubles, or unless the clubs are willing to play on grounds other than the larger parks of the city.

However, there is is, and something of a definite nature should emerge from the meeting next Sunday. Entries are welcomed and with the dozen or so already in the fold, as Bersch says, the foundation of the league can be laid.

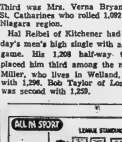
COSSA BASKETBALL

Despite the fact that Belleville Collegiate Institute did not enter teams in the COSSA basketball tournaments, the outstanding performances of the participating Quinte district schools denote a marked increase in the calibre of play over previous years.

So stated COSSA secretary "Pete" Beach. "All the clubs of Quinte district displayed fine exhibitions with some coming home with championship honors."

Quinte Secondary School, which was defeated by Dundas in the junior "B" boys' class, deserved a better fate, said Mr. Beach. "They were the better club and the loss of Bill Dickey in the first quarter took away a lot of their offensive power. All the teams played well and are a distinct credit to the district."

Men's Women's Bowling Singles At Half Mark



TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Mabel Wilks of Kitchener region and George Miller, representing the Niagara district led women's and men's singles events at the half-way mark of the Ontario bowling championships.

Twelve men and women representing 12 Ontario regions rolled five games Monday and will complete a 10-game block today.

Mrs. Marion Pusey representing London-Sarnia, with a 320-game Monday, made the highest single score for women so far in the bowling competitions.

Her 1,084 five-game cross, however, was only fourth best. Mrs. Wilks, whose home is Woodstock, led with 1,139, Mrs. Irene Atkinson from Sudbury, representing northern Ontario, was second with 1,105. Third was Mrs. Verna Bryan of St. Catharines who rolled 1,092 for Niagara region.

Hal Reibel of Kitchener had the day's men's high single with a 322 game. His 1,208 half-way total placed him third among the men. Miller, who lives in Welland, led with 1,256. Bob Taylor of London was second with 1,259.

"Mr. Schmidt, after losing 32 games in a row, we feel a change is necessary. We've decided to get a new sponsor!"

Jolting Left Jab Featured Canadian Welter's Attack; Foe Outclassed from Start

TORONTO (CP) — Li'l Arthur King's jolting left jab, now packing welterweight poundage, has put him back in professional boxing business.

The 29-year-old Toronto fighter Monday night set off in pursuit of sports prominence—after a forced layoff—with an upset main-event victory over Chico Vejar of New York.

It was the first time King had stepped under the glare of ring lights since he suffered a hand injury in a lightweight bout against Eddie Chavez of San Francisco two years ago. But he didn't show any signs of staleness.

Li'l Arthur, displaying a great left jab that continually had Vejar to the punch, won as many as seven rounds on one official's card. Vejar was bleeding from the nose and forehead at the end of the battle.

ONLY 8TH LOSS

The loss was only the eighth in 71 pro fights for Vejar, one of the game's most televised boxers. He was an 8-to-5 favorite but was outclassed from start to finish.

King, former Canadian and British Empire lightweight champion, has a record of 59 victories in 70 pro scraps. It was his first appearance as a welterweight.

King conceded nearly seven pounds to Vejar, who tipped the once an outstanding welterweight, but it didn't bother him a bit.

He opened a cut over Vejar's left eye and nose in the eighth round with vicious rights and lefts. The New Yorker's handlers had a tough time stopping the flow of blood. In the 10th round both fighters and referee Sammy Lawrence were splattered by it.

Judge Tony Canzano gave King seven rounds with three even. Judge Jackie Johnston scored five for King, one for Vejar and four even; Lawrence had it 6-2 with two even. Vejar weighed 153½; King 145¾.

DECISION CHEERED

The 3,500 fans cheered the decision. King's lightning jabs held Vejar off for most of the first five rounds. Then King switched to right-left combinations. Vejar tried desperately for a knockout late in the bout.

Vejar figured it was just a bad night. He said in his dressing room:

"I just didn't feel right. It was one of those nights. I'll be back to get started."

He conceded that King had a good left but added: "I've always gone good against jabbers. I just couldn't get going."

In a four-round preliminary Dave Swank, Syracuse, N.Y., 124½, gained a decision over Jimmy Hurley, Brantford, 125¾.

In another preliminary, George Kartalian, 177, Syracuse, N.Y., won a six-round decision over Frank Degazio, 198, Niagara Falls, Ont.

Former President Montreal Royals Dies in Sleep

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Hector Racine, 69, president of the Montreal Royals of the International Baseball League for 22 years, died in his sleep here Monday night.

When he came into baseball with the Royals during the depression years, he was credited with playing a major part in assuming contribution of the franchise in Montreal.

Racine also was a vice-president of the parent Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League. He was vacationing with his wife at Miami before going on to Vero Beach, Fla., where the Dodgers and their farm clubs train.

Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International League, was instrumental in getting Racine into baseball in 1933. Shaughnessy took Racine and associates — Romeo Gauvreau, Gaudeau Shaughnessy and the late Charles Trudeau—that the franchise could be purchased for $100,000.

LARGEST SHARES

Trudeau and Gauvreau were the largest shareholders but made their investment only on assurance that Racine would take over the presidency. Trudeau had little confidence the investment would turn a profitable one. Shaughnessy wrote under his signature on a cheque for $50,000 "in protest."

Racine made Shaughnessy team manager in 1935, when the club won the pennant and finished the season with a profit of $80,000. When Shaughnessy resigned in 1936 it was Racine who became one of his biggest boosters for the league presidency.

Many prosperous seasons followed, especially following purchase of the club and stadium outright by Brooklyn Dodgers.

Shaughnessy in paying tribute to Racine, said: "Hector became a smart baseball man. The game has suffered a really serious loss."

Short Games Will Pay off For Cleveland

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—General manager Hank Greenberg thinks Cleveland Indians are taking too much time to play a baseball game and he is doing something about it.

Greenberg promised Monday that the club will pay $100 into a players' fund for each game Indians win in two hours or less during the regular season. The promise will hold good on road games as well as those at home.

The players' fund will be administered by manager Al Lopez. It will be used for any purpose that Lopez and the players choose.

"Maybe this will make them hustle a little bit," Greenberg said. "Something has to be done to speed up games. They are dragging more and more every year."

The average length of Indians' games last season was two hours and 20 minutes. They were involved in only about six games which consumed two hours or less.

Winnipeg Fetes Curl Champions

WINNIPEG (CP)—More than 400 persons crowded into the rotunda at the union depot here Monday night to greet Ellis Walsh and his Canadian curling champions.

Flashes were reading "Fort Rouge, home of the champs," "Welcome home Walsh rink," and "Manitoba is proud of you." The crowd swarmed up to a hastily-erected platform as Walsh, third Allan Langlois and second Cy White entered the rotunda. Lead Aetje McWilliams remained in East to visit a sister.

Walsh's rink from the suburban Fort Rouge club were out in a body. The men provided an honor guard as the rink was piped to the platform.

Among those on hand was Premier D. L. Campbell, who said: "We had every confidence in the Manitoba rink for we knew they would bring the Dominion curling championship back to Manitoba. We are all very proud of you."

The Walsh rink won the championship last week at Moncton, N.B.

Baltimore Orioles' Fledgling Crop Won't Burst into Pennant Plumage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Manager Paul Richards of Baltimore Orioles must be mellowing. Or else the depths of seventh-place in the American League have made high pull his ball in a notch.

No longer is he breathing fire and brimstone, challenging his opponents to lick him.

"We're just about the same as last year," he sighed today before sending his outfit against New York Giants in an exhibition game in Phoenix. "We have some good boys, but they're pretty young. We tried to operate too much in a hurry with kids last year."

Richard's main problem is no secret. He has adequate pitching built around Jim Wilson, a better-than-average defence with shortstop Willie Miranda as the butwark, but no hitting.

BUILDING PROGRAM

Richards is the first to admit he is involved in a long - range building program. He has several youngsters in camp who are highly impressive but will require a season or two away. The most impressive are John Francona, a 22-year-old first baseman, and Jackie Robinson, an 18 - year - old third baseman.

"But right now, for this year," said Richards, who doubles in brass as Oriole general manager, "our big need is for batting."

Orioles' lack of power was evident in Scottsdale, Ariz., Monday when they took a 9-3 lacing from Giants. Jim Pisoni, a rookie outfielder, got Orioles' only big blow, a two-run belt off Jim Brewer. Giants' victory kept their cactus league record unblemished—three victories in three starts.

The world champion Brooklyn Dodgers, doing poorly while manager Walt Alston has been testing his rookie crop, won their first exhibition, a 5-2 decision over Milwaukee in Miami. It was Braves' first defeat.

New York Yankees' Whitey Ford tossed four scoreless innings while his mates were whipping Chicago White Sox 8-2, and sore-arm Curt Simmons held Pittsburgh Pirates at bay for three innings as Philadelphia Phillies whipped the Bucos 5-1. Robin Roberts also chipped in with three scoreless frames.

Kansas City has stopped Boston Red Sox 7-4 behind effective elbow work by three rookies—Walt Craddock, Bill Herriage and Bill Harrington. Charley Rabe, Tom Acher and Pat Scantlebury, three more freshmen, tamed St. Louis Cardinals 3-1 for Cincinnati rednegs.

Cleveland Indians crushed Chicago Cubs 7-6 with five runs in the eighth inning.

TO BUILD BIG BOARD

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—Philadelphia Phillies Monday announced the building of a $175,000 scoreboard for Connie Mack Stadium. The board will be 70 feet high and 75 feet wide, almost twice the size of the present board.

Wings, Bruins Battle Tonight Affects Standing of 4 Clubs; Howe Can Narrow Points Gap

MONTREAL (CP)—When Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins meet tonight in Boston Garden—only game scheduled as the National Hockey League's regular season enters its final week—the outcome will have a direct bearing on the ultimate occupants of second, third, fourth and fifth places.

While the close battle for the scoring championship continues, with Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens now leading Detroit's Gordie Howe by only four points, immediate attention was centred on this single game.

The second-place Red Wings have 75 points; the third-place New York Rangers 73. Each club has three games in the final week.

Second place is worth $500 to each player and the club has the home-ice edge in the semi-finals of the post-season Stanley Cup series. The third-place club, rewarded with $350 per player, loses that edge.

FOR FOURTH PLACE

More important, at least to the successful club, is the struggle for fourth place between Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago. The runaway reward is only $150, but fourth-place finish means entry into the cup series and more money. Players on clubs finishing fifth and sixth pick up and go home.

The Leafs and Bruins each have two games left. After meeting the Red Wings, the Bruins are at home again Sunday when they meet the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks. The Leafs play the Hawks in Toronto Thursday and travel to Detroit for the windup.

If Boston can tonight, Toronto could clinch fourth place with a win and tie even if Boston wins its final game. This eventuality is on the assumption that the Bruins can't overcome a nine-goal deficit in two games.

Each club would have 24 wins and 33 losses—the first two combinations in case of a tie on points—but the Leafs now have 150 goals during the season to the Bruins' 141, a difference figure in the third method, when ties persist, of determining which club will place Club.

Gordie Howe's five-point production on four goals and two assists last week has turned the scoring race into a tight affair. Jean Beliveau of the first-place Canadiens, who dropped two games in three starts last week, collected only two assists and has 83 points to Howe's 84.

The Montreal centre is leading goal-getter in the league with 44. Howe and Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal are closest with 37. The Rocket had two goals and one assist last week and ranks third with 70 points.

An extra assist for Bert Olmstead of Canadiens turned up in the official scorer's report of the March-to-April game of March 4 and Olmstead's assist total now stands at 53, two short of the NHL record held by Ted Lindsay of Detroit. The official sheet hadn't been received at NHL headquarters when the league's statistics were issued a week ago. Since then Olmstead counted one goal and one assist and is in fourth place with 65 points. Tod Sloan of the Leafs counted one and slipped back into fifth place, with 64 points.

Fairfield Takes Pensacola Open; Balding Fourth

By STAN ATKINS

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Don Fairfield scrambled to a four-round three-under-par 69 Monday to win the Pensacola open golf tournament with a 72-hole total of 275.

Al Balding of Toronto had a 68 Monday for a total of 282 and picked up $810 for a fourth-place tie with Don January of Abilene, Tex.

Fairchild's 72-83-63-69 was 13 strokes under regulation figure and earned him $2,200. He led the field after Saturday's third round with 206 for a two-stroke edge on the pack. The finals were postponed from Sunday to Monday because of a heavy rainstorm.

The victory was the first for the 27-year-old Casey, Ill., pro during the current winter tournament grind.

Bo Wininger, Oklahoma City, Okla., closed with a 68 for a total of 277 and second prize of $1,500. Wininger's previous rounds were 72-67-70. Paul Harney, Bolton, Mass., had a 71-279 for $1,170.

BEST SCORE

Balding's score Monday was his best of the tournament. Going into Monday's round he was tied with six others in 13th place with a score of 72-70-70-71.

Ed Furgol, the 1954 U.S. Open champion from Elk River, shot a three-under-par 33 on the front nine, but slipped to a par 36 on the back nine for a 69. Furgol wound up in a tie for sixth place with five others at 283—$541.

Fairfield dropped a 20-foot putt for a two-under-par eagle on the 540-yard, ninth hole to go under at 34 at the turn.

He was in trouble almost continuously on the back nine but managed to recover nicely.

Says Porterfield Trying to Alibi For Poor Year

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Charlie Dressen denied today he ever had harsh words with Bob Porterfield, the pitcher who said he was "ticketed to death" when traded to Boston, away from Washington Senators, because he couldn't get along with manager Dressen.

"I don't know why Porterfield put the blast on me," Dressen said. "I never had any words with the fellow. I have been in baseball a long time and I did make one or two suggestions to him on the subject of pitching. He was supposed to pitch his way, anyway. But we never had any kind of argument. I let him have his way.

"It just goes to show you. Wearing a major league uniform doesn't always make you a big leaguer. The fellow had a bad year and he's trying to alibi for it. . . ."

Smoky Burgess Is Philly Hope

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — When Smoky Burgess came to Cincinnati last April in a trade with Philadelphia, manager Birdie Tebbetts said him two questions.

"Can you hit lefthanded pitching?"

"Do you want to work every day?"

Burgess, a part-time worker in both Chicago and Philadelphia answered a positive "yes" to both questions. The result was a .301 season and a career high of 21 homers and 78 runs batted in. The most homers he ever hit before in the majors was six at Philadelphia in 1952.

"The ball park helped some," Burgess admitted. "Not that it's any shorter in Cincinnati in right field. I think it's a little long (it is 342 to 329 feet) but the screen is lower. I could hit balls against the wall in Philadelphia and they would bounce back for singles or doubles. In Cincinnati they clear the screen for home runs.

"But the big thing is confidence, the kind you get from playing every day. In Philadelphia you only knew if you were going to catch until the public address fellow announced the lineup. Usually they played me only against right-handed pitching. I always thought I could hit lefthanders just as good and think I proved it last summer."

CAMPBELLFORD

Schools Hockey Teams Complete 50-Game Series

CAMPBELLFORD — A 50-game hockey series between classes in the Campbellford Public and Separate schools was completed on the weekend, when the two teams, the Red Sox and the Canadiens, played off in the local arena, with the Canadiens winning by a 2-1 score in a fifteen-minute overtime session.

The league comprised ten teams, who were organized by Allan Taylor, athletic director of the Campbellford Public School. The top six teams played sudden death encounters to wind up the series, and the quality of the hockey ii evident from the scores in the finals. The three games ended 1-0, 1-0, and 2-1.

The final game was a thriller, and the first goal was scored by Garry Hollings of the Canadiens, against his own team. In attempting to clear the puck, Garry shot it into his own net. His teammate, Bob Reid, tied the score a few minutes later, and Garry Hollings redeemed himself at about the 15-minute mark in the overtime period, by scoring again, this time against the opposing Red Sox team, to win the game and the championship for his team.

At the end of the game, William McComb presented the Campbellford Cloth Company trophy to Bob Reid, captain of the Canadiens team, and Terrance R. Dennis presented a trophy on behalf of the Public School Board to Tom Barnum of the Red Sox, the leading scorer in the league during the season. H. L. Macmillan of the Campbellford Rotary Club, who sponsored the school teams, presented championship crests to the winning team members, and finalists crests to the runners-up.

Mr. Taylor, the athletic director of the public school, organized the ten teams from among students at both the public and separate schools. He was assisted in the project, and in the refereeing of the games, by principal William Rothwell an dassistant principal Albert Whitfield of the public school. The teachers plan to organize a similar league next year, and hope to have a baseball league going as soon as the weather permits.

Chatham Maroons Edge Dutchmen 4-3 Take 2-Game Lead in Senior Finals

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham's high flying Maroons edged the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 4-3 Monday night before a sellout crowd of 3,200 fans to take a 2-0 lead in the Ontario Hockey Association senior A finals.

The wizard of the game was diminutive Marv Edwards, Chatham Maroons goalie, who turned aside 41 drives compared to 22 stopped by Dutchmen's Dennis Brodeur.

Maroons scored three times in the first period within the space of two minutes and six seconds. Ed Busch opened the scoring at 8:13 followed by rangy Ted Fryer slipping a slap shot in past the startled Brodeur at 9:36. Eric Unger pushed the Maroons into a 3-0 lead at 10:19. Dutchmen got their first tally with Eddie Litz in the penalty box. Bob Schertzi fired the goal.

The Dutchies opened up in the second period but managed to tally only once, Gerry Theberge scored the goal on a picture effort with Schertzi drawing the assists.

Jimmy Connelly scored the winning goal at 9:30 of the third with Kitchener's Ken Laufman in the penalty box. Connelly worked for the Maroons from the left wing center blue line and stumbling and falling to the front of the Dutchmen net through Kemp and Lee to push the puck past Brodeur. The goal moved Maroons into a 4-3 lead.

Dutchies took advantage of a Maroons penalty, Jim Logan firing a screened shot through a maze of players to make the score 4-3.

Dutchies pressed hard and coach Bobby Bauer pulled his goalie with just a minute to go. The plan almost backfired with Jimmy Connelly and Lloyd Ferguson getting shots at the empty net but missing.

Eight penalties were called, four to each team.

Napanee Defeats Marmora 7-5; Takes 3-1 Lead

NAPANEE — (Special)—Led by the veteran Tim Williams, who counted for two goals and three assists, Napanee defeated Marmora Millionaires 7-5 here last night to take a 3-1 game lead in their OHA intermediate C final round playdowns, before 1,341 fans.

The win game is slated for Marmora tomorrow night with the sixth if necessary in Napanee on Friday.

Paced by Williams' pair, Napanee broke into a second-period four-goal splurge after trailing 2-1 at the end of the first period. The teams split four goals in the final frame.

The Williams-Fish-Brady line was the best for Napanee scoring three goals and being credited with ten assists. Brady was good for a goal and four assists and Fish, three helpers. Billy Meehan received a pair with Linten getting the rest.

Brooks, McLellan, Maynes, Brown and Darrah were the Marmora sharpshooters. Napanee used the veteran Ken. Murphy in place of Walt Gerrow who reportedly suffered a fractured nose.

Soo Will Pay Subsidy to North Bay

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Sault Greyhounds of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A southern group said Monday they will pay a playoff subsidy to the North Bay Trappers.

The announcement was made jointly by president Vic Haft and treasurer Austin Thompson. It followed receipt of a letter from the NOHA ordering the club to pay.

Greyhounds had refused to pay the subsidy on grounds that North Bay Trappers had deliberately juggled the score in their final league game Feb. 19 to insure meeting Greyhounds in the playoffs.

As a result of the fiasco, coaches Ed Reigle of North Bay and Pete Backor of Soo (Mich.) Indians were each fined $200.

It is expected Sudbury Wolves will fall in line and also pay their subsidy to the Indians. Mr. Haft said the Greyhounds share of the receipts for the two playoff games in the Sault was "in excess of $500." He said Sudbury's share would be about $1,700.

The letter from the NOHA executive said a check through the agreement among the league's five teams has revealed nothing on which a protest against paying could be based.

"It was probably poor business on our part to accept the contract," Mr. Haft said. "But who could have expected North Bay and the Indians to put on such a performance?"

Boleslaw Bierut, Polish Communist Chief, Dies

LONDON (AP)—Warsaw radio announced today that Boleslaw Bierut, Polish Communist chief, has died in Moscow "after a severe illness" at the age of 64.

Bierut was first secretary of the Polish Communist party and former president and premier of the Soviet-bloc state.

He had been Poland's No. 1 Communist since the war, and was elected president of the Polish Republic by the Communist-dominated Diet in February, 1947.

Five years later he gave up the presidency to become premier. In 1954 he resigned the premiership to take over the party post, the same switch was made in other Communist countries, and all three were viewed by Western observers as a reassertion of party control following the rise in power in the Soviet Union of party chief Nikita Khrushchev.

The Polish radio broadcast this medical bulletin on the Red leader's death:

"At the end of February, Comrade Bierut was taken ill with influenza and pneumonia. On March 1st infection of the great heart muscle set in and March 12, sinkl symptoms of progressing heart-vessel failure, death occurred."

Bierute had gone to Moscow to attend the 20th congress of the Soviet Communist party.

Bierut, the son of a peasant, was a rebel from boyhood. He joined in student strikes and was expelled from school for anti-Czarist activities.

He became a printer, joined trade union and co-operative movements and published an illegal newspaper.

During the First World War he was active in underground work and was forced into hiding. He resumed his work with co-operatives after the war and ran late Communist with Polish authorities for secret writings on the subject. The result was a six-month prison sentence.

Bierut was known as a plodder in the Polish Communist party. His star didn't begin to rise until Moscow began shopping around near the end of the Second World War for someone to head a Communist government of Poland.

Council of Churches of Christ In U.S. Wants Free Time

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — A commission of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U. S. A. has condemned the practice of buying or selling radio and television time for religious broadcasts. It also believes free time should be given religious programs at peak evening hours.

The action last week by the broadcasting and film commission of the council, the largest nondenominational Protestant body in the United States, raises for broadcasters and telecasters a matter as delicate as political time.

All four major networks—NBC, CBS, ABC and the Mutual Broadcasting System — now provide some free time to religious groups. But only Sunday daytime hours, ABC and Mutual also sell time for an over-all total of 17 religious programs. CBS and NBC always have opposed selling time to religious groups and individuals.

A quiet, thoughtful talk about religious faith still commands a good audience in radio and television.But it cannot attract a large evening audience against the competition of big entertainment programs, all networks agree.

There is little likelihood that free time ever will be given for religious programs at peak viewing theme.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Good influences offer another favorable day in this generally good month for you. You will profit more if you aren't restless or changeable. Good thinking!

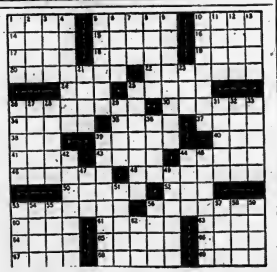
July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—This may not be just the day for big personal achievement or financial gain but you can accomplish much in your daily work and general interests, especially if you study situations carefully and work quietly.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—This should be a gainful day for worthwhile activities, domestic interests and personal advancement generally.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Friendly rays for conferences, study, practice, or law, debating and mental work. Journalists, authors, religious, students and teachers have fine Mercury vibrations. Use caution if handling tools.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio)—Good rays for seeking stewards, grocers, all those handling food stuffs. Also encouraged: chemists, scientists, writers, bookkeepers, secretaries. Mental work favored.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)— One of your peak periods, so don't waste time on unessentials when you can achieve a great deal by emphasizing your mental ability and innate efficiency. Finances, business, your work should gain.



December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)—Fine rewards for sensible, steady application to duty. Money matters, skilled management, mental work have planetary aid, inspiration. Win!

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Co-operate with those achieving in your specific field, with executives, promoters, successful persons in enterprises allied to yours. Conservative action, steadiness urged.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Friendly and stimulating influences in your sector should give you incentive to achieve. Taboo timidness; try what you know you can do.

You born today are creative, original; may enthuse greatly at first thought of things new but sometimes "simmer down." You wonder thoughtfully before starting work. Do not give up creative ideas till you have given them proper time to materialize, work out. You have splendid business sense and are intuitive and industrious, soundly capable and more talented than you yourself realize. Many noted writers, actors and promoter were born in your sign. Try to follow through in that field to which you are best suited. Keep cheerful, always. Birthdate: Prof. Albert Einstein, famed physicist; Johann Strauss, Austrian composer.

Post Offices Robbed 66 Times In Ten Months

OTTAWA (CP)—The post office department, through its branches across the country, was victim of 66 robberies or burglaries last April and the end of January, a Com-mons return shows.

Two robberies involved $30,986 in cash, $94,528 in postage stamps and $704,884 in Canada savings se-surance stamps, the department said Monday in replying to a ques-tion of Erik Hamilton (PC—Montreal Notre-Dame-de-Grace).

Involved were breaking and en-tering cases, 58 netting the in-truders cash and $20,094 in stamps. Of 139 prosecutions, 100 resulted in con-victions. There were four acquit-tals and three still are before the courts.

The thieves were busiest in the Toronto postal district, which includes Hamilton, Niagara Falls and Oshawa, in 18 robberies. They took $2,116 in cash, $15,258 in postage stamps and $20,094 in unemploy-ment insurance stamps.

New Champions Loom on OMHA Horizon

That there will be a new and different distribution of Ontario Minor hockey association championships this year is evident from a glance at the list of last season's championship crews who have fallen by the wayside.

Of the seniors the luminate enough to win two championships last season, only Owen Sound still has two teams title-bound. Their defending champions midgets and bantams are set to play Port Colborne and Simcoe respectively.

St. Catharines is the only city in the hunt, after their narrow squeak with Toronto, but the St. Kitts bantam A champions have fallen by the wayside. Toronto, defending midget champions are currently engaged in an elimination series with Hamilton. The survivors play Oshawa in the semi-finals.

Barrie, Juvenile A-Minor champions have been eliminated, as have Newmarket, the juvenile defenders, and Thorold, the midget B champs. Simcoe, bantam B champions, moved up to the A - minor series, and are now engaged in the championship final round against Owen Sound. Cannington, dual winners of the juvenile and midget C crowns last season, failed to go to the post this year, but Bracebridge, bantam C champions, are again in the semi-finals, after moving up to the B series and losing to even the perennial contenders.

Elmira, Brooklin, juvenile D champions moved into the junior OHA ranks; King City midget D title-holders moved into the C class and drew out to South River, but Mildmay, bantam D defenders, have again reached the finals and will be playing Elmvale. Forest has a big edge over Stirling in the bantam C finals.

Nobby Wirkowski Renews Contract With Tiger Cats

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union said Monday night they have renewed the contract of quarterback Nobby Wirkowski.

But they appear to be on the verge of losing Canadian halfback Ron Howell to hockey.

Wirkowski, veteran quarter who was traded to Hamilton last season by Toronto Argonauts, is said to have signed a 1956 agreement at a slightly higher salary than he got last season.

Meanwhile, Howell, 20-year-old outstanding half, left Monday night to play three games with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

Howell, as all-star defenceman with Guelph Biltmores of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League, can play three games with a pro club without losing his amateur status. It is not secret that Rangers want him on their roster.

There is speculation that Howell will decide soon on a pro career either in hockey or football. He can't have both.

Before he left, Howell said he had not yet talked contract with TiCats.

Patterson Tumbles Bermuda's Walls

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (AP)—Heavyweight Floyd Patterson of Brooklyn, N.Y., floored Bermuda champion Jimmy Walls three times Monday night before the bout was stopped in the second round of a scheduled 10.

Deputy state athletic commissioner Edward Casey said later Walls put up "a bad performance" and said he would recommend to the commissioner that he be suspended for 60 days.

Patterson, who is gunning for a shot at heavyweight champ Rocky Marciano, dropped Walls with a left hook in the first round. Walls went down at the start of the second and again at 2:29 when referee Max Marcus stopped the bout. He scored it a technical knockout.

Patterson's manager, Gus d'Amato, said that Patterson complained between rounds Walls was "putting up no opposition at all."

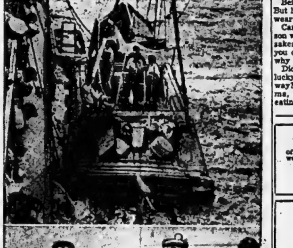
Patterson weighed 13½. Walls 13½.

ROYALS ACQUIRE HURLERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Royals Monday announced acquisition of two pitchers and a first baseman, bringing to 16 the number of players now signed for the International League club's baseball season.

The pitchers, both right handers, are Leo Cristante and Mel Waters; the first-baseman is Jim Pisarcik. Cristante last was with Detroit Tigers of the American League last season and had a record of 0-1. Waters played with Fort Worth.

BEATH PLAIT



PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Hugh McNair of Montreal Saturday eliminated Don Plait of Toronto 4-6, 6-2, 6-4 in an early upset of the Everglades invitational tennis tournament.

GREEK SHIP RUNS EGYPT BLOCKADE

Israeli soldiers look out toward the Greek ship Konitsa as she rides out rough weather in Eilat harbor after running through the Egyptian blockade with a cargo of cement for Israeli housing. The Konitsa is the first ship to run the blockade into Eilat since April 1951, when another Greek vessel came through. (Central Press Canadian).

STORM-TOSSED RAFT'S CREW SAVED

BRITISH TROOPS

Meanwhile, the Greek ambassador to Britain, Basile Mostras, left London for Athens. He was recalled by the Greek government in protest at the exile of Makarios, but his recall does not mean a break in diplomatic relations. Mostras told reporters in London that he was returning to Athens "for a limited period of time," and would confer with leaders of his government.

As tensions continued to mount, a state department spokesman in Washington said the United States has suggested to Britain that she find some way of resuming negotiations with Cypriot leaders in the dispute over the strategic island's future.

Foreign Minister Spyros Theotokis of Greece announced that his government is making vigorous representations to the U. S. Greece's ambassador to Washington was instructed to direct special attention to what Greece terms the threats to the West contained in the controversy.

Greece's Premier Constantine Karamanlis has called for decisive U. S. intervention in the situation, saying "the future of the free world should be a matter of grave concern."

Trade union leaders in Greece have called a general strike to protest the "barbarous acts of the British in Cyprus" and the arrest and abduction of Archbishop Makarios. The executive committee of the Greek General Confederation of Labor also called on their countrymen to attend special services in all churches to pray for the success of the Cypriot movement.

Athens police rounded up 150 alleged Communists Monday as celebrated riotin again swept the city. At least 77 persons were injured.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was starting to run out of the house, and ma said, Benny, come back here. Would it intrist you to know that you've got your swetter on inside out? she said.

Aw G, ma, that's intiristing about that? I said, and she said, Let's not stop to write a book on the subject. Put it on the way it belongs, she said.

Well fimminine, ma, do you mean take it all the ways off and then put it on again? I said, and ma said, Well, if you think you're Hoodenny, just take it half way off and then put it on again.

Being sourcastic, and I said, But heck, ma, maybe it's lucky to wear your swetter wrong side out.

Can you give me one good reason why it should be lucky for land sakes? ma said, and I said, I bet you cant give me one good reason why it shouldn't be.

Did you ever hear of it being lucky to do anything the wrong way? ma said, and I said, Sure, ma, suppose you happened to be eating something and it went down your wrong throat, and you quick cawfled it up again just in time to find out it was poison. Heck, ma, if you had started to swallow it right instead of wrong, you would probably be dead without even knowing why.

That's very brilliant indeed, but it wasn't so brilliant to waist 10 minutes agrewing when you could of turned your swetter right side out in a few seconds, ma said, and I said, Well then heck, ma, considering I've waisted all that time already, de I have to waist still more by changing my swetter back the way it belongs before I go out?

You certainly do, ma said.

Which I did.

New Canadian Labor Congress Gives Equal Status to Unions Under Constitution Now Public

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Equal status for the traditionally rival craft and industrial unions will be provided in the new Canadian Labor Congress under a draft constitution made public today.

The CLC is to be created in Toronto next month in a 1,000,000-member merger of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, largely made up of craft unions, and the Canadian Congress of Labor, mainly organized on the industrial basis.

The constitution, drafted by a TLC-CCL unity committee and proposed for adoption at a joint convention starting April 23, says the CLC will recognize that all types of union are "equal and necessary."

The craft type of union organizes workers by individual trades. Industrial unions gather the working force of a whole industry into a single body.

SERVICE TO UNIONS

Unlike the procedure followed in the recent AFL-CIO merger in the United States, it was learned, Canada's new congress will not set up a separate industrial unions department.

However, the constitution opens the way for the future establishment of trades departments a CLC headquarters to service the particular needs of union members in different fields. These would include such as the building, metal, railway and needle trades.

Congress leaders do not intend to set these departments up immediately. For the time being, it is planned to have CLC departments cover organization, legislation, education, research, international affairs, government employees, political education, public relations and provincial and municipal federations and councils.

The constitution suggests that unions in the same organizing field, who now are members of the rival congress, should merge or work out some agreement so that their activities do not conflict.

It also would perpetuate a no-raiding agreement in effect for more than a year between the TLC and CCL, involving many of their unions. The congress should recognize, the constitution says, that each affiliated union should respect the established bargaining relations of every other union and refrain from membership raids.

WARY ON POLITICS

On the touchy question of affiliation with political parties, the draft constitution has a section apparently designed to head off, for the first convention, efforts by some groups to have the CLC hooked up with the CCF party.

For several years, the CCL has designated the socialist party as "the political arm of labor" and has actively aided the CCF, the CLC always has been politically neutral.

The men who have steered the two bodies into the merger hope the new congress will stay out of politics for the first couple of years of its existence at least. They have agreed to use their influence to this end. After that, they would let rank-and-file thinking take its course.

The proposed constitution statement on the CLI's purpose politically reads this way:

"While preserving the independence of the labor movement from political control, to encourage workers to vote, to exercise their full rights and responsibilities of citizenship, and to perform their rightful part in the political life of the federal, provincial and municipal government."

In line with the leadership's stand on no political entanglements, the the politics department of the CLC will be designated as "political education." The CCL's department now is called "political action."

BAR RED GROUPS

Under the proposed constitution, the CLC would carry forward the long-standing battle of both the Trades and Labor Congress and the Canadian Congress of Labor, against communists and other subversives in unions.

The constitution will have clauses barring red-dominated unions from membership, excluding red and other totalitarian-sympathizing individuals from conventions and demanding an anti-totalitarian oath from candidates for CLC offices.

These provisions are taken largely out of the TLC constitution. The anti-red CCL keeps no Communist-dominated unions but does not bar individual communists, though none ever has managed to get into CCL office.

Another point in the constitution provides for more top-level guidance for provincial labor federations and local labor councils than either the TLC or the CCL now gives its regional affiliates.

SEPARATE JURISDICTIONS

The aim, it is understood, is to have federations confine their work generally to the provincial field, and councils to local and municipal problems. Sometimes they overlap now.

Another objective would be to see that federations and councils follow a basic pattern in such matters as representations to governments, but with allowances for particular local conditions.

The constitution proposes that TLC and CCL provincial federations and local councils merge within two years of the general merger. Some councils already have amalgamated.

The constitution sets out salaries for CLC officers as $14,000 a year for the president and $12,000 each for the secretary-treasurer and executive vice-president, plus out-of-pocket expenses for each. They work out to about the same as TLC pay, though on a different basis.

The CLC's first president, under an arrangement between the congresses will be Claude Jodoin, now head of the TLC. Secretary-treasurer will be Donald MacDonald, who has that office in the CCL, and executive vice-president will be Gordon Cushing, secretary-treasurer of the TLC.

Two honorary presidents will be elected—A. R. Mosher, 74, now CCL president, and Percy Bengough, 72, president emeritus of the TLC. Their pay is not set out in the constitution, but the convention will get a leadership recommendation that they receive about $4,000 a year apiece.

Council Has Full Agenda

STIRLING — The Village Council considered numerous items of business at their meeting on Monday evening and they passed several accounts for payment.

The Bell Telephone assessment in the village at $16,450.30; and clerk Mallory also read correspondence from various departments and this included the auditors' report of Centre Hastings' High School area; a message from the Ontario Department of Highways, The council granted the local community Hall to be used as a "Vaccination Clinic" by government Vetrerinarians on March 12th, for cats and dogs against Rabies.

A representative of the Lake Ontario Regional Department of planning and development, Mr. D. W. Kingdon, will spend Friday in the village and meet council members.

Councillor Wright was authorized to have a wire mesh, netting placed along the sides of the centre bridge as a safety measure for the children.

At a later date, the curb around the cenotaph will be repaired and the plot improved. The matter will be fully discussed with representatives from the Legion and Horticultural Society and all will plan co-operatively.

The floor in the ladies rest room is to be completed under direction of Councillor Wells.

BUILDING PERMIT RENEWAL

Those applied for renewal of a building permit for 100F, 229 Front and this was granted.

A Deputation from the Stirling Legion asked for a grant to cover the cost of the arena. The local legion has spent time and money on the area and there is still a great deal of repair work needed. They have provided a place for skaters to enjoy and the cost of operation has exceeded their profits. The council decided unanimously to reinburse the Stirling Legion with a grant equal to the amount of the current year's taxes and they also plan to bring in a by-law to make rink non-assessable for tax purposes.

Nuclear Blasts in Pacific Will Emphasize H-Bomb

Editor's note: Another milestone in the 10-year-old atomic age will be marked in the weeks just ahead with new H - bomb experiments in the Pacific. How do such tests fit in with talk of a bright new atomic world? This first of four articles on the growing atom discusses the weapon aspects; what devices will be tested and why the experiments must go on.

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Out in the distant Pacific, where weapons of city-killing size are tested, the United States will fire within the next few weeks its 64th nuclear blast since the atomic era began.

This explosion, like the last two at the Eniwetok proving grounds, will emphasize the hydrogen bomb —the weapon to which world strategy now is patterned.

This is the heavyweight member of a family of weapons which the United States has developed through more than 10 years of effort and an investment of $12,000,000,000.

Of what does this family consist? A casing small enough to fit into the bay of a medium bomber, containing energy equal to the explosion of 10,000,000 tons of ordinary TNT.

Or a tactical fission bomb, with the power of only 20,000 tons of TNT, suitable for striking enemy troops on a battlefield or taking out a specific group of buildings or an airfield.

Or artillery shells for the same purposes.

Or missiles which can mount warheads ranging anywhere between the energy yield of the little atom bombs or the hydrogen bomb.

Unhappily, this array is not the only such family of weapons in the world. So the Eniwetok tests will be aimed not only at improving their potentialities but devising or improving defences against them.

Here are some of the considerations involved:

A 10 megaton weapon (10,000,000 tons of energy release) produces a fire ball three miles in diameter. Near the core, objects are vaporized by extreme heat. Farther out, metal melts. Beyond the fire ball itself, thermal radiation instantly touches off all combustible material.

The blast from a 10-megaton hydrogen bomb would leave no survivors, even among those seeking shelter in a reinforced concrete structure, outward for more than three miles from "ground zero." Out to 12 miles average homes would suffer severe damage, with more than ¾ of the people in them killed, the rest severely injured.

LETHAL PARTICLES

The fall-out peril spreads much farther. A single H-bomb blast could dust an area of 7,000 square miles with lingering potentially lethal radioactive particles.

Then there are other weapons which, while not of nuclear nature, must be considered in planning defences for the atomic age. These include toxic warfare devices such as nerve gas, which kills almost as quickly and far more agonizingly than the bomb itself. It can be planted by missile or plane.

Another potential mass killer is bacteriological warfare — "BW"— which can be applied in two ways: Against people and against the food on which they must live. It isn't fully effective in its present form, and its use might entail several applications.

Under pressure of the Second War, science took the abstract theory of atom splitting and translated it into the atomic bomb. A considerable amount of medical and industrial knowledge has since been gained almost as a byproduct of weapon invention and improvement. Take the matter of reactor development, the business of using atomic energy to turn shafts and produce power.

Its first application was to a submarine. Now a whole fleet of submersibles, capable of cruising unlimited distances underwater at speeds impossible for conventional submarines, is under construction. Next will be nuclear - powered cruisers. Beyond that, aircraft carriers.

Under high priority is the development of another power-producing project — for a military airplane. Tests of atomic engines for aircraft will begin soon.

Why can't more money and manpower now go into the peaceful application of the atom to medical, agricultural and industrial purposes.

The answer lies with that other family of weapons — in Russian hands. In the absence of a workable pact with Russia, the weapon and its deterrent potential may hold the answer whether she could impose her will on, or even obliterate, the Western allies.

So far no such pact has been found. So the vast and costly program of weapon design and improvement must continue.

The total number of all types of nuclear explosions to date is believed to be 76. Of these, the United States has fired 64, Russia 10, Britain three.

The great majority of them have been in the smaller, kiloton range. Probably not more than three or four have been mega - megaton bombs. This year, both the United States and Britain have announced plans for more hydrogen tests. Russia makes no announcement of plans.

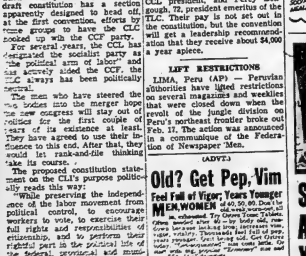
(Wednesday: Do the coming nuclear tests imperil human existence?)

Horticulture Society Plans Flower Show

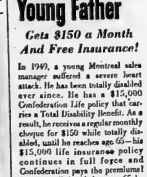
STIRLING

STIRLING — The Horticultural Society held its meeting Wednesday evening in the board room of the local agricultural office with president Fred Houchin in charge.

The group decided to donate to the local public library a book entitled, "The Complete Book of Garden Magic."



At the March meeting an exchange of plants will feature the meeting. The scheme will be on an equal basis irrespective of either size or value of plant.



The annual membership canvass is now on and all those interested in horticulture are asked to join with the membership of $1. There is a choice of free premiums, two boxes plants, three dahlia tubers or 10 mixed gladiolus bulbs.

It is hoped to have a flower show in the early summer and further information will be given at a later date.

The usual quibble planting will be carried on, namely in the Memorial park, in library boxes and at the cemetery bed.

The 24 oak tree seedlings which are two years old are now ready to be given a permanent home and recommendations were made re their planting.

We know how you feel, sport, but it's good for you. With the threat of an epidemic of rabies in Southern Ontario, thousands of dogs have been inoculated, still thousands more will receive injections. Though several dogs have been found to have rabies, which spread from Northern Ontario, they have been infected by bites from raccoons or foxes and not of other dogs. Authorities are satisfied that the threatened epidemic will not materialize.

Two Children Burned to Death While 26 Apt. Dwellers Escape

Canadian Press Staff Writer

HULL,—Que. (CP) — Flames trapped two young children in a second-storey bedroom today as their mother and 26 apartment dwellers escaped. The children's death boosted this district's winter toll of fire deaths to 14.

The bodies of Julius, 3, and Louise, 2, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royal Bastien, were found in their bedroom in the frame and brick-siding building. Firemen lowered the bodies in canvas sacks from the still-burning apartment.

Mrs. Bastien, asleep when the fire started about 8:30 a. m., fled her hair afire. Mr. Bastien, a laborer, was at work. He collapsed on being informed his children were killed and was taken to hospital.

The building contained a restaurant on the ground floor and four apartments. The Bastiens' apartment occupied ground and second storey rooms on one side of the building.

The apartments were heated by space heaters, and neighbors said the blaze appeared to have started from one of these units. However, fire department officials declined to speculate on the fire's origin.

Mrs. Bastien tried to reach her children but flames drove her downstairs. The children could be heard crying. Later, she tried unsuccessfully to enter the building through a rear window.

One fireman was overcome by smoke and was treated in Sacred Heart hospital.

The winter fire toll has included 25 children, four of them in this city, across the Ottawa river from the capital.

Harold Hodges Of Deseronto Killed in Crash

One man was instantly killed and another suffered serious injury Tuesday night when their car ripped into an auto transport one mile west of Shannonville.

Killed was Harold Hodges, 51, of Deseronto, passenger in a car driven by James A. Quackenbush, 35, of Carrying Place, who suffered a broken arm and facial lacerations, head and internal injuries.

The Quackenbush car was westbound when it collided with the eastbound transport driven by James Rivers of Chatham. Rivers escaped uninjured.

The Quackenbush auto was a complete wreck with the top of the car sliding torn almost completely off level with the hood. The auto transport, loaded with one new car and a Bren carrier, went on its side angling across the highway and traffic was delayed until the wreckage was removed.

Quackenbush was thrown from the car and was found in the road way, while Hodges was found slumped in the front seat of the car. Both were taken to Belleville General Hospital in Bush's Ambulance where Hodges was pronounced dead on arrival. At noon today Quackenbush was still unconscious and in addition to his broken leg and facial lacerations was said to be suffering from fractured and possible internal injury.

A preliminary inquest was held this morning at the hospital before Dr. D. C. McVicker, the hearing being adjourned until April 4th at 3 p.m.

Provincial Constable G. M. Robertson investigated.

Hodges is the second Deseronto man to die in a highway crash within the past ten days. Leonard Lease, 38, was killed when he was thrown from a car as it missed a turn west of the town.

SMALL MEASURE RELIEF EXPECTED IN BUDGET TUES.

Deficit This Year May Be Non-Existent

OTTAWA (CP) — Only a small measure of tax relief is expected in Finance Minister Harris' 1956-57 budget next Tuesday.

Well-informed sources here say the budget likely will be designed to prevent Canadians spending too much at a time of inflationary pressures.

This would be in line with recent pleas by Mr. Harris and Trade Minister Howe. Canada has used tax restraint in 1956 to reduce pressures on demands for goods which could in turn increase prices.

Financial authorities here say a budgetary deficit tends to be inflationary while a surplus is deflationary. They believe Mr. Harris will think more in terms of surplus than deficit.

SEE NO TAX CUTS

Although the Canadian economy is showing signs of continuing a spectacular advance, officials here say there is little chance of any substantial tax cuts. They believe Mr. Harris will have to maintain current tax rates to help balance the budget and curb inflationary tendencies.

Few observers say the chances of big tax cuts may be better next year when the current economic pressures have taper off slightly.

The government also may be more inclined to grant tax concessions next year on political grounds. It now is expected that the next federal general election will be fought in 1957.

The budget year will cover the fiscal year starting April 1, will be the second presented by Mr. Harris since he was appointed finance minister in July, 1954.

ECONOMY SURPLUS

In his last budget, Mr. Harris knocked off $148,000,000 in taxes and forecast a 1955-56 budgetary deficit of $100,000,000. However, the economy has outpaced all the government's predictions and the actual deficit may be less than $148,000,000—perhaps virtually nonexistent.

Mr. Harris' deficit forecast was based on a $19,000,000 national product—value of all goods and services produced—of $25,250,000,000. Now, on a $1,000,000,000 from 1955.

However, the gross national product made a spectacular $27,000,000,000 jump to a total of $26,500,000,000. The finance minister said he could balance his budget on a $27,500,000,000-$28,000,000,000 basis.

Except for the fact tax collections tend to lag behind economic expansion, Mr. Harris would be expected to have a small surplus for 1955-56. There may be a small deficit.

Lloyd Leaves After Talking To Ben-Gurion

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd of Britain left Israel today for Tripoli, Libya, after a 22-hour visit on the last leg of his Middle East tour.

While here he held private talks with Israel's Premier David Ben-Gurion and Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett. He also saw Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada, United Nations chief truce supervisor.

In another border incident in the tense Palestine area, an Israeli military spokesman said an Israeli policeman was slightly wounded by a Jordanian sniper who fired a single shot from the Jordan section of Bartaa Tuesday.

3 Die in Accident

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three men were killed Tuesday night in a two-car collision 12 miles north of Winnipeg.

The victims were William J. Tomko, 39, Winnipeg Beach, Man., Dunstan Thompson, 39, St. Andrews, Man., and David Wood, 41, Winnipeg.

Told French Poison School Milk, Wailing Mothers Call for Children

ALGIERS (Reuters)—At least 50 Algerian rebels and 24 French soldiers have died in the last 48 hours of bitter guerrilla warfare in Algeria.

Four of the rebels were killed when they ambushed a French military convoy on a mountain road about 75 miles east of Algiers Tuesday night. Three French soldiers were wounded in the ambush, according to reports reaching Algiers today.

In Tuesday's fighting 13 French soldiers were killed in two clashes. The rebels left 11 dead behind.

In smaller clashes another 20 rebels were killed, six wounded and 30 captured, some with their arms and ammunition.

Unofficial Algerian authorities reported that nationalist propaganda broadcasts in Arabic are responsible for Tuesday's demonstration by the parents of Moslem children at state schools in the Algerian capital.

Hundreds of wailing mothers hurriedly took their children away from afternoon classes when they believed that the French were "poisoning" the school milk supply and inoculating the children with deadly germs.

Difficult NATO Years Ahead Gen. Gruenther Tells Canadians

OTTAWA (CP) — The next five years for NATO will be even more difficult than the first five, warns Gen. Alfred Gruenther, supreme allied commander in Europe.

He said Tuesday that Russia's new tactics of seeming to relax international tension—while Soviet industry girds for a war effort—will make it harder for the West to maintain and strengthen its unity.

"Our job is to improve and increase unity when the fear element is beginning to diminish," he told packed luncheon meeting of the Canadian Club.

Today, the four - star American scored was to conclude his two-day Canadian visit with a talk to members of Parliament in closed session and an address to the Montreal Canadian club. He was scheduled to leave Montreal for Washington this afternoon.

Gen. Gruenther, flying here from his Paris headquarters for talks with Canadian leaders, told a press conference that a reassessment of NATO strength probably will be necessary if present political difficulties within NATO continue. All in all, however, NATO was stronger than a year ago.

He said he considers it unlikely that Greece will withdraw from NATO because of its dispute with Britain over Cyprus.

NATO still was not strong enough to defend Western Europe against Soviet attack and probably wouldn't be until West Germany was rearmed in three or four years.

Even if Russia should over-run western Europe in the meantime, it would still lose the war when the West launched an aerial counter - offensive. The United States had more and better long - range bombers than Russia and the American B-47 jet bomber could fly so fast and so high there was "no answer to it."

Gen. Gruenther said the U.S.S.R. now is capable of carrying war to North America but not on a sustained basis. Its war capabilities were greater than a year ago and the Soviet aggregation of peacetime power was the strongest in the history of the world.

All-White Jury Acquits Man In Shotgun Slaying of Negro

SUMNER, Miss. (AP) — Elmer fled Otis Kimbell, acquitted of murder in the shotgun slaying of a 63-year-old Negro, says "I wasn't sure justice would be done, but I should have known."

An all-white jury, made up mostly of farmers, deliberated more than four hours before freeing the 35-year-old cotton-gin operator who is white.

Two witnesses testified that they saw Kimbell blast Emmett Till three times with a shotgun Dec. 3 at a Glendora service station.

Witnesses said the shooting was an aftermath of an argument between Kimbell and Milton Carlisle, 24, a relative but no kin to Kimbell's family. Kimbell testified that Carlisle started him during the argument.

Defence lawyer J. W. Kellum said Kimbell fired the fatal shots in self-defence. Kimbell said three shots were fired at him before he opened fire, one wounding him in the shoulder. He showed a scar and brought in a doctor who verified the gunshot wound.

But neither Lee McGrath, white owner of the service station, nor George Woodson, a Negro who said he witnessed the slaying, said they saw or heard Melton fire. No weapon was found on Melton's body or in his car.

The trial took place in the same courthouse where half-brothers J. W. Milam and Roy Bryant were acquitted six months ago of murder in the slaying of Emmett Till. Chicago Negro. Kellum was one of the defence lawyers in the Till case.

Shortly after the slaying, the Glendora Lion's Club passed a resolution unanimously on "the regrettable incident . . . which claimed the life of one of the finest members of the Negro race in this community."

Last week, Mrs. Melton was delivered of her five Bible-named slightly injured when she drove off the highway road and turned over into a bayou near her home.

Preston Boy, 8, Floats Mile After Falling into Stream

GALT (CP) — Eight-year-old Teddy Schmidt of nearby Preston, fell in a stream here Tuesday and then turned up alive after police had dragged the river for him.

Police and neighbors were using a rowboat to boat the body after several unsuccessful dragging attempts. The lord is supposed to grow when passed over a body in water.

The rooster was crowing loudly when a Grand River freight train stopped near the dragging operations.

"Anyone know this kid?" asked conductor Harry Gibbons. "We found him in the boxcar."

Police wrapped Teddy in blankets and took him home to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Schmidt.

The youngster was uninjured but suffering from shock and exposure. He has been unable to speak since his ordeal. He had injured when he was three.

Police said Teddy may have floated a mile downstream before being washed ashore.

Napanee Boy, 3½, Drowns Before Eyes of Mother

Before the eyes of his frantic mother who saw him disappear, Teddy Van Koughnett, 3½, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orvis Van Koughnett, R.R. 5, Napanee, drowned Tuesday afternoon in the Napanee River.

The lad was playing on the ice of the river at the rear of his parents' home just outside the south limits of the town when he broke through. His mother was watching from a short distance away and saw him go down but was helpless to rescue him.

Provincial Police who immediately commenced dragging operations said the ice was thin where the lad broke through. Dragging was continued through the night but the accident to midnight without success. Funeral arrangements for the child's father returned to work Tuesday for the first time in three months after being laid off because of a broken shoulder.

CLOSE SCHOOL

SODUS, N. Y. (AP)—The Sodus central school in this Lake Ontario village was closed Tuesday until next Monday because of a high level of respiratory illness, Dr. Ralph Hungerford, supervising principal, said about 30 per cent of the school's enrolment of 1,244 pupils are out because of illness.

MAHE, Seychelle Islands (Reuters) — Archbishop Makarios and three other Greek Orthodox Church leaders deported by British from Cyprus last week arrived today on this remote Indian ocean island to begin their exile.

The churchmen were banished for 3 for part in the Greek Cypriot campaign on the Mediterranean island for union with the British authorities and incorporate Cyprus with Greece.

HOUSE REJECTS PROPOSAL FOR PARITY PRICES

Liberal Majority Voted Solidly Against Move

OTTAWA (CP) — An opposition proposal for farm parity prices, linking the returns on agricultural products to prices of other commodities, has been rejected by the Commons.

The Liberal majority voted solidly Tuesday night against the parity move after Agriculture Minister Gardiner said that system of price support, unsatisfactory in the United States, would be unsuccessful in Canada.

A Progressive Conservative motion urging parity price legislation this session was defeated 146 to 65, after a two-day debate. A vote of 144 to 64 minutes earlier turned down a CCF amendment stating the plan should ensure farmers a fair share of the national income.

The resolution, technically worded, of-confidence moves, were backed by all three opposition parties and two Quebec Independents, Paul Gagnon, Chicoutimi, and Raoul Poulin, Beauce, Saskatchewan Independent Ross Thatcher, Moose Jaw-Lake Centre, voted with the government.

DESCRIBES PARITY

John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) who sponsored his party's motion, described parity farm prices as those which give farm products the same purchasing power they had in a chosen base period when farm prices and costs were in general in good balance.

Mr. Gardiner, in an unusually long speech for him, forcefully defended present federal price supports and criticized the operation of parity prices in the United States.

He said U.S. parity prices had resulted in huge surpluses, filling storage space with grain or cotton and wheat. Surplus potatoes had been turned into starch.

U.S. RECOMMENDATION

A recent report by some of the ablest men in U.S. agriculture had recommended that the parity formula there be changed to one under it had made agriculture inflexible and unable to meet changing conditions.

Mr. Gardiner said Canadian farm production plans, on the other hand, are made by the country's best brains. For the years a federal-provincial agricultural conference each December had given out information about farm and marketing conditions. The farmers themselves could on the basis of the right conclusion.

The government last month's brief of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture which had set out a parity plan. Mr. Gardiner said the brief's prices ranging between 65 and 85 per cent of parity.

ASKS INCREASE

Colin Bennett (L-Grey North) called for an increase in the floor price for hogs and said he is "a little nervous" that the butter floor price might be reduced by two or three cents a pound.

Governor-General Massey to Make 10,000-Mile Air Trip Among Eskimos

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's much travelled governor-general will don his parka March 26 for a 10,000-mile air jaunt that will take him into the primitive life of the Eskimos in the treeless tundra and lonesome river land to Coppermine, Arctic coast trading settlement in 1927.

Mr. Massey will have a chance to speak with missionaries and settlers, fur traders and soldiers, construction men and the RCMP, across the north country.

It also will give him a chance to see parts of continental radar and defence systems and to talk with United States and Canadian servicemen in the Arctic. It is believed one reason for the trip is to remind the world that the Arctic, right up to the Pole, belongs to Canada.

It will be a rugged trip for the governor-general but he's a veteran in covering miles. Somewhere along the 10,000-mile journey the roof of Canada, he will chalk up his 100,000th mile of travel since assuming office four years ago.

Government House said Mr. Massey is keenly interested in the north and has always wanted to see the Canadian Eskimo.

One of the few remaining frontiers in Arctic.

In 50 hours of flying, the plane—an RCAF four-engine North Star—will pass through six time zones, from Atlantic to Yukon standard time.

The trip has been planned to coincide with normally good northern weather but even so, temperatures will probably run from 10 degrees above zero to 40 below, Government House said.

Aboard Mr. Massey's plane will be his son and secretary, Lionel Massey; his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Vincent Massey, women aboard the plane; and several aides and northern experts.

U.S. Ambassador Calms British Ire Over Cyprus Stand

Britain Has 'No Criticism' After Statement Explained

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, is pressing both Greeks and Britons to put aside violence and force in their bitter dispute over Cyprus and return to the negotiating table.

At the same time, the state department has sought to impress on Britain particularly that the U. S. is not taking sides in the angry controversy that looks only "a fair and just solution" agreeable to Britain, Greece, Turkey and the people of Cyprus.

The department moved quickly Tuesday night to make public its position after Prime Minister Eden's government ordered the American ambassador, Sir Roger Makins, to find out whether the U. S. was beginning to give support to the Greek drive in Cyprus.

British apprehension arose after U. S. Ambassador Cavendish W. Cannon told the Greek foreign office in Athens that the American government and people had a "sympathetic concern" in the dispute.

Newt Wilbur In New Location On Thursday

Belleville's latest store location is being operated by a man long familiar to city and district shoppers.

It is the new site chosen by Newt Wilbur to continue operations as one of the city's first clan outfitters. Tomorrow Newt reopens for business at 56 East Bridge street, just seven doors up from his old location where the first West Ind business as his own boss over three years ago.

Over thirty years in the outfitting business Newt was associated for many years with another men's clothing business in Belleville before he branched out on his own.

With the opening of his first independent business, he became well known for the specialized service, which he provided — that of custom-made suits. Now, in the new location, he is continuing to operate this specialty line while expanding and adding to his sales offerings. Among these are ready-made clothing and a complete stock of hats.

The expansion is well provided for in the area of the selling store which has a floor space of 16 x 30 feet. This compares to the store's 8 x 24 feet area of the old location.

Decorated in two tones of attractive green, the store has been laid out with the idea of customers comfort and ease of eye of the customer. Besides the wood-and-chrome showcases and racks lining either wall, islands of display cases also will be located in the centre of the floor.

Dressing rooms, for fitting and stockrooms are situated at the rear of the premises. The layout now is nearly complete for the store's opening on Thursday.

Besides his being familiar to many shoppers in his commercial dealings, Newt also will be remembered for his civic service. He served six years on Belleville city council. Mr. Wilbur is an active Kinsmen and served as president of the club.

He married a Belleville girl, the former Helen Scantlebury, and has one daughter who is a student at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Kefauver Wins Primary Victory In New Hampshire

MANCHESTER, N. H. (AP) — Senator Estes Kefauver's clear-cut victory in Tuesday's New Hampshire primary has put new punch and power into his drive for the Democratic presidential nomination—but the election's real surprise was Vice-President Richard Nixon.

Nixon received a towering "write-in" vote of 18,268 from 250 of the state's 297 precincts in the vice-presidential preference poll.

The figure is all the more astonishing in light of the fact that Nixon's name was not on the ballot, he did no campaigning in New Hampshire, and no organized effort was made on his behalf.

$5,320 Budget Presented to Kiwanis Club

Belleville Kiwanis Club this year is budgeting for a $5,320 expenditure both directly and indirectly on its community gift projects.

Among the items listed in the budget are: underprivileged children, $600; sports, including minor hockey and the big National Kids' Sports Day, $350; scouts, $350; agricultural programs, including scholarships and junior — farmer projects, $350; general community welfare, $100. Some $3,000 is planned for the club's Dundas — street centre, already the focal point of many community activities.

The figures were presented to Kiwanis here yesterday by the club's ways and means committee chairman, James Huff. In giving the run-down and the proposed budget, he empasized the necessity for Kiwanis to inject much energetic effort into the club's fundraising projects. Because the Travel-and-Adventure series programs have been dropped as the club's major money-raising campaign, the committee presently is working on several subsidiary projects, Mr. Huff said.

His remarks were reiterated by club president Al Dyzdale.

Three members also were inducted into the club during yesterday's meeting. They were: Don Templeman, city barrister; Don Bell, organist at St. Thomas' Anglican church, and R. S. Murphy, MD. They were introduced to the club by Will Purtle, Hugh Murray and Harold Cruthers, respectively.

Past lieutenant - governor Bill Slade performed the induction ceremonies and welcomed the members into the club. Informing them that membership in Kiwanis now is almost 250,000, Mr. Slade stressed to the three members that they should acquire as extensive acquaintance with the club's objectives and in this way contribute to the good organization of Kiwanis.

"A good club builds good fellow members. A good club helps to build a better community and a good club helps to build a better Canada," Mr. Slade said.

"We welcome you to the club and wish you every success."

A special welcome also was extended to the trio by Lawrence Kells, a past-president of the club.

McIntosh Bros. Store to Open New Department

Tomorrow morning will see the opening of a new department to one of Belleville's long-established businesses — McIntosh Brothers Stores Limited.

It is the store's brassiere and foundation section that formally is officially opened, will be the only department of its kind in this area. Its range of apparel at their disposal, can meet the requirements of every class of customer from juniors to those requiring mensical fittings. The store still retains one of its outstanding feature lines of loungi-standing—brick floor. Two of the most famous and exclusive lines have been carried through the years by the store for the benefit of customers requiring highclass table and bed linen.

Canada Lagging In Prison Reform Says MacDonald

TORONTO (CP)—A charge that Canada is lagging behind other countries of the western world in reform programs was made in the Ontario legislature Tuesday by the provincial leader of the CCF party.

Donald C. MacDonald, who singled out Ontario for criticism, said the province was basically wrong in its approach to reform programs when it permitted strapping or other physical punishment.

He spoke during a 3½-hour debate on the department of reform institutions, during which Reforms Minister Foote handed down estimates of $10,782,000 of which $8,-846,000 is for maintenance and operation of institutions The estimates were approved.

Mr. MacDonald quoted from the Cadogan report, presented to Britain's House of Commons by Lord Cadogan in 1938, which outlined a two-year study of reform methods and stressed that physical punishment had been banned in every civilized country of the world except Canada.

Corporal punishment, Mr. MacDonald said, continues in Ontario institutions under direct instruction of the deputy minister of reform institutions.

Mr. Foote said the CCF leader is not giving a fair picture of the 13 institutions in Ontario in his criticisms. Because not every prisoner was being rehabilitated successfully did not mean the institutions were a failure.

Canada to Legalize Control Of Hormone to Speed Beef Growth

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will legalize controlled use of a synthetic sex hormone stimulant that speeds beef growth, thus saving on feeding costs.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced Tuesday in the Commons, in reply to a question by James McBain (PC—Peel), that the government intends to legalize the previously-banned American drug stilbestrol. He gave no details.

Outside the House, it was learned regulations probably will be submitted for cabinet approval next week. They were to have come before cabinet today, but draft regulations were sent back to officials for some technical changes.

Canadian authorities banned the drug, used for some two years in the United States, while it was given a careful study in view of the belief it has a tendency to stimulate sex hormone activity and might affect humans who consume beef from animals subjected to it.

Officials said the study showed that when the drug is used in minute quantities in cattle feed, it does not show up in carcasses.

To assure none of the drug will appear in beef, strict controls will be exercised over the preparation by authorized dealers of feed mixes containing stilbestrol. As an extra precaution, meat inspectors will make spot checks of beef carcasses.

U.S. livestock men had found cattle fed small amounts of the drug in their regular feed reach required market weights faster than usual, saving between $7 and $15 a head on feed costs.

It does not appear the Canadian government will approve of the use of stilbestrol on poultry as requested by poultry men.

Fined Under Combines Act

COCHRANE (CP)—Fines ranging from $100 to $1,000 were imposed Tuesday on eight Porcupine area coal dealers, all but one of whom pleaded guilty Monday to charges laid under the Combines Investigation Act.

Albert Chalifour of Timmins, who pleaded not guilty, was convicted Tuesday by an Ontario Supreme Court jury and fined $100 or 30 days in jail.

The John Fogg Company, Ltd., and Ted Byck of Frank Byck and Sons Ltd., were each fined $1,000 or three months in jail.

The Consumers Co-operative Society, Ltd., was fined $750, and Simon J. Malnuvile was fined $500, each with an alternative two-month term.

Wesley Dundas of Dundas Brothers, Charles Holland of Superior Fuels, and George Blitva of Mirkovitch Coal Yard, were each fined $100 or 30 days.

A ninth man, Charles C. Taylor of Belleville also pleaded not guilty Monday and was acquitted.

The men were indicted by a grand jury Sept. 12 in Cochrane. The indictment read that the dealers and suppliers conspired, combined, or agreed, or arranged together, between April 1, 1947 and July 31, 1953, with other dealers to prevent, or lessen unduly, competition in the purchase, barter, sale, transportation or supply in Timmins, and the townships of Mountjoy, Tisdale and Whitney in coal.

Curling Club Meeting Called For Thurs. Night

With an assured membership of over one hundred and promises from a like number a new curling rink in this city for next season's activity is practically assured. All the canvassers will report at a meeting of the club to be held in the City Hall on Thursday evening and the committee to nominate a slate of directors will also give their report and the club will be well on its way to fruition.

The club's membership has been limited to three hundred and anyone thinking about joining should do so before Thursday night because it looks as if there will be a waiting list. The prospective curler can submit his name at the Bank of Montreal and secure all the information required.

Those members having to do with the plans for the building and location on the fairgrounds are working on the detailed drawings and it is expected work on the project can be commenced shortly after the first of April. This will give plenty of time to construct the building in time for the fair and after the exhibition is over the pipes will be laid for the new artificial plant and ready for curling early in November. The enthusiasm, which has been shown by ated.

the fair board, parks board and the curling club, has been little short of marvelous and shows what can be done if it becomes a community effort.

This curling club is not a Belleville project but a Quinte district one and anyone in this area is entitled to join and will be most welcomed. Prospective curlers from Tweed, Madoc, Trenton, Picton and other centres are cordially invited to the meeting on Thursday evening and take part in the discussion. It is hoped and believed that this club will foster and make stronger the co-operation and good fellowship that exists in the district.

Your presence is requested on Thursday evening at the City Hall because by your presence the club can feel you are interested.

STRATEGIC AIR COMMAND

Development of intercontinental guided missiles is proceeding at such a pace that the U. S. Secretary of the Air Force, Donald A. Quarles, has announced that Gen. O. M. Solandt, retiring chairman of the Defence Research Board, predicted recently that the CF-105, now being developed, would be the last fighter plane produced in Canada. The CF-105, expected to perform in the 1,500 mile per hour class, will have neither the speed, range, nor power to protect against missiles.

Aircraft can defend against other aircraft. Defence against guided missiles is provided only by other guided missiles.

Intercontinental ballistic missiles seem destined to render war planes obsolete. Because of their speed and because they will travel in the ionosphere between 300 and 500 miles above the earth, intercontinental missiles will also render obsolete the aircraft warning systems now stretching across Canada at three levels.

In the past 10 years the North American defence system has been a combination of radar warning systems, co-ordinated Canadian and United States fighter forces and the retaliatory bombing force of the U.S. Strategic Air Command which has three groups in the continental United States and three more overseas. The cost of this defensive armor has been enormous. The Distant Early Warning radar chain is not yet complete in Canada's Arctic. The advent of intercontinental missiles renders this entire system obsolete.

Some idea of the size and expense of the air defence program that has been erected in the past 10 years can be gleaned from figures about the Strategic Air Command which celebrates its 10th anniversary this year.

The Strategic Air Command (SAC) is a retaliatory bombing force that will not be called into action until war is declared or North America attacked. SAC has a striking force of 1,500 long-range bombers and a total complement of 3,000 aircraft including fighter escorts, tanker planes and transports.

The investment in aircraft is 12 billions of dollars. The explosive power which SAC can deliver staggers the imagination. One modern bomber carrying a nuclear weapon can do as much damage as 1,000 World War II bombing planes. All the bombs dropped by the Allies during World War II did not exceed the equivalent of 2,400,000 tons of TNT, or 2.4 megatons. One hydrogen bomb has a power measured in megatons, the number not yet made public.

SAC has 95 combat wings. Each wing has a complement of 540 officers, 3,060 airmen and 40 civilians. The cost of training one wing is $151,300,000. Since a large percentage of the personnel in SAC is composed of draftees serving two years' compulsory service, the task and expense of training is a continuing one.

In 1954 SAC crews completed more than 100,000 missions and ranges bombers and logged more than 1,000,000 hours' flying time. It was estimated that in 1954 SAC bombers and aerial tankers around the world made an air-refueling contact every three minutes, day and night, for the entire year. Navigators must be able to navigate, without prior warning, to within 15 miles of any spot on earth using only celestial navigation only. Every combat squadron in every wing has its emergency operation plan in case of war. Each crew has its own target and alternate targets.

Defence planners have calculated that it will take only 50 enemy bombers to wipe out every city of 1,000,000 or more people in North America. Conversely, retaliation from a similar small numbers will be able to obliterate enemy cities.

SAC is one arm of Continental Air Defence (CONAD). The DEW, Pinetree and mid-Canada radar chains and the RCAF CAF and RCAF Defence Commands are the other. An intricate communications network links the radar chains with the RCAF air defence headquarters at St. Hubert, Que., and the USAF air defence headquarters at Ent Air Force base, Colorado Springs. The Combat Operations Centre of both fighter forces is at Offutt Air Force base, Omaha, Nebraska.

The Strategic Air Command is a retaliatory force and exists solely because of the threat which militant Communism poses to world peace. It will become an attacking force only if attacked.

There can be little doubt that the enormous potential power of SAC has been one of the great deterrents to aggression in the past 10 years. And less than that the United States, has been protected from attack by SAC. In other words, Canada has had the protection of a vast and expensive air armada which has been paid for by a friendly power. The United States has also contributed vast sums to the construction of the radar chains in the Canadian Arctic and sub-Arctic. Canada's share of continental defence has been provided on an operational fighter force co-ordinated with USAF fighters.

Since the end of World War II Canada has given more than four billions of dollars to foreign countries, of which 37 per cent has been for military equipment for European partners in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Canada's contributions to the defence of the free world have been significant. However, defence is not a one-way street and Canada, as has been outlined above, has received significant aid from the United States.

Perfecting intercontinental guided missiles will render much of this elaborate defence structure obsolete. That is not to say, however, that the effort has been in vain or the expense folly. Ten years of peace have been gained. Our present armament is the price we have paid for that peace.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

How About Baseball Here This Summer? Mister Citizen, are you in favor of Belleville being represented in the Central Ontario Baseball League this season? Are you in favor of senior baseball being played and retained in Belleville? Are you in favor of baseball in general? If you are in favor of any one of the three above questions, by all means attend an open meeting of the Y.M.C.A. this evening for the purpose of ascertaining the opinion with regard to the future of baseball in this city. At the present time the question of Belleville entering a senior team in the Central Ontario Baseball League is highly problematic as baseball in general is in a bad way, and the rejuvenation of the game, Belleville must do its part to gain its lost laurels on the diamond. The future of baseball in Belleville now rests with you, Mister Citizen, are you going to let a mere thirty minutes of your time this evening? If so, come early, voice your suggestions and let us all unite to put the good old game of baseball back in its former standing in the Bay or Quinte district.

Mr. Newton Thompson, of this city, past president of the Y.M.C.A. Belleville, has been appointed recently to the National council of the Y.M.C.A. The announcement of his appointment was made by Mr. Joseph B. Short, secretary of the local Y.M.C.A. at the weekly meeting of the Men's Club. This appointment, Mr. Short said, is an outstanding and well deserved honor to Newton Thompson who is an ardent and sincere worker in the interests of the Y.M.C.A. At this meeting of the club Mr. Thompson gave an interesting and informative address on the Men's International and its recent developments affecting the individual clubs.

Geese Is A Low Bird

(Ottawa Journal)

Ducks, unlimited, is a vigorous and admirable organization devoted to the preservation of wildlife and we are happy to note that in its enthusiasm it has not lost its sense of humor. Its official publication contains this from a young bird-watcher:

"Geese is a low, heavy set bird which is mostly eating feathers. His head sits on one side and he sits on the other. Geese can't sing much on account of the dampness of the moisture. He ain't got no between-the-toes and he got a little baloon in his stummick to keep from sinking.

"Some geese when they get big has curls on their tails and is called ganders. Geese likes a bath to sit and hatch but just eat and loaf and go swimming. If I ever is a geese I'd rather be a gander."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GO ON—AND ON!

Nearly everyone who has made a success worth recording has been one who suffered many a serious setback—and often many a failure. They have been those who did no flirting with the impossible. They didn't even consider it cowardly! And so they rose from the simple, through the complex and discouraging, to the possible.

The great of this earth have always believed in ideas of going on—and on. That's how Columbus, and all those who followed him, happened to make this Western World a thing that has amazed the world. All progress, of whatever nature, has had this idea as the controlling one. In progress there is constant unfolding.

Go on—and on. The further you go the more you realize the paucity of every experience. Where there was once darkness, this is replaced with the light, incentive to go, and to grow, increases as you near your goal—or your many goals—for so long as life goes on a variety of goals are met and conquered. This is the secret of a free way of life. Be "full of new beginnings!"

Whatever we should exult, as we view all about us, opportunity attends the opportunity to go beyond. How much we have to live for. How proud we should be for life. Happiness is not to be had in any other way. It is not "just around the corner," as some sight where may be. Samuel Hopkins Adams once wrote: "The gospel of humanity is work, and work and effectual." Every one of us can go on and give energy and hope if we give to another a life!

Most of our inspiration comes from others. We cannot return enough. We all have friends. Perhaps we can help them. We have help of us to go on—and on. We are on the way to the best things in life when we dismiss all fears and worries and take our forward stride in faith.

Hard Money Kind Policy

(Montreal Gazette)

It seems too bad that the policy of fighting inflation should ever have been described as a "hard money" policy. There is something about the very expression, "hard money," that seems hard-hearted and unmerciful. Yet a hard money policy, when justly applied, is the finest policy any government can adopt.

The other day Mr. Walter Reuther, the distinguished American labor leader, launched an attack upon the hard money policy in the United States. He seemed to represent it as a social evil, a blow struck at the working man. He demanded that this policy be repealed.

And yet the fight against inflation is the fight to preserve the value of money — the only foundation for anyone's future. An easy money policy only becomes a false money policy.

Billy Graham's Defence Plan

(Vancouver Province)

American evangelist Billy Graham has come up with an idea of immediate consideration.

He suggests that in our struggle with communism we are ignoring the most important weapon—Christianity. Plain, simple Christianity. Men and women who are good Christians cannot be good Communists. Communism will not flourish. Asia if we can "sell" Christianity to the brown and yellow peoples.

The simplicity of this idea should not be overlooked by statesmen and delegates and foreign ministers on our side who are formulating high-powered political, economic and defence plans to "contain" communism.

Mr. Graham, completing a trip through Asia, takes issue with the statement that "communism is an American or British or European."

"It is not true," he reminded a press conference in Tokyo. "Communism took birth in the Middle East. Christ was not a westerner. He came from the Middle East and West at the same time.

"The church in India is 1600 years old. It is not a western church.

"The evangelist feels that western missionary movements "are going to have to rethink their positions ... more and more leaders will be in Asia and they will be in the hands of the people."

The more we think about it the more sense Mr. Graham's ideas make.

After all, Occidental Christians are in the minority. Figures issued by the U.S. Census Bureau stated that of the world's population of 2,400,000,000 about 800,000,000 are Christians. When we realize the entire populations of Canada, Europe, the U.S., and France total not much more than a quarter of this figure we realize just how few Christians there are in the far parts of the world.

If we can make them feel like fellow Christians, as we do when we live with the same faith and outlook as ourselves — the less likely they are to fall for Communism.

It is easy to sneer at such suggestions as ridiculous. But communism cannot be turned aside by the teaching of a simple religious doctrine.

Such scoffers should remember the tremendous impact of a man like Christ. The word of Christ lived through the persecutions of the Roman Empire, through all the horrors of war, famine and pestilence of the last 2000 years.

Today it can still be forged into a mighty shield for our way of living.

A good Christian cannot be a Communist. Enough in India, Pakistan, China, Japan, Indochina or anywhere.

Iron Nail Is Heirloom

(The Western Producer)

Recent news reports have it that at a London ball, Lady Strathcona showed guests what she called the "Family Nail" which was described as a "large diamond brooch with a small iron nail in the middle." Her Ladyship said the "small iron nail" was the original last nail driven in the Canadian Pacific Railway by Lord Strathcona, in which he is a family heirloom.

We find this an interesting revelation. We also find it as one more story to add to the legend which surrounds the famous last spike driven at Craigellachie.

The C.P.R. is one of many early Canadian pioneers and no matter what we say about it in 1955 the construction with freight rates we cannot permit even the possibility of monopoly hindering our pioneer railway used the spikes so delicate and so small that they could be driven by a woman's brooch. The true story is that Lord Lansdowne had presented a solid silver spike to be driven in Eagle Pass sometime in 1885 but this was refused by wily Sir William Van Horne who had seen to it that a railway spike was used, had been silver or gold, go broke. A real railway spike was driven on the occasion. Donald A. Smith (the first Lord Strathcona) hammered the last spike home after having bent one on his first attempt. The Pass spike was then taken and Smith had it cut into small strips which he had mounted in diamonds and presented to the men close to those associated with the building of the line. Intended for them was good, so he had another one cut up and more brooches made, but this time he had the "nails" made larger so the possessors might not lose them somewhere which was which. So it is one of these nails that her Ladyship displayed in London, a small section of a spike, and nobody should be permitted to think that there is any similarity between a nail in a brooch and a spike in Canadian Pacific lie.

Wants Pin-Ups Of Senators

(Christian Science Monitor)

A high-school girl has written to Senator Hurrid Humphrey, the Democratic aiming him to help her assemble a pin-up collection of United States senators. "Your boy friends," she wrote, "are saving pictures of movie stars, and I want a man believes that counts but what he is and what he stands for. Isn't that the kind of attitude we should be cultivating?

"Therefore, carefully," the young lady added, showing she has an incipient interest in practical politics, since, as she observed, "even the best are sort of funny looking."

This future citizen is very much in the mainstream of the history of celluloid Romance have quite their share of teen-age adulation. Even Daniel Webster, one of the junior members of the Senate, had a following less than that of his classmates with the satorial if not historic capacities of some of our lawmakers.

In a political era when a successful debate between candidates is "Meet the Press" on television is well as hold his own with a panel of newsmen, it seems that this should not be impossible. Yet we would say to the civic-minded less than to dismiss sometimes crops up behind unimposing visages, the world-wide devastating actor does better with a good author to write his lines for him. We cannot, of course, that senators write their own.

Should Be Free Not to Retire

(Toronto Financial Post)

It is likely we will see more companies following the example of Prudential Insurance company of America which has just raised its official retirement age three years to 68.

Other companies will follow simply because they cannot afford to retire from needed production the hundred thousand or more fifties and sixties who reach 65 every year. There wouldn't be enough younger people left to do the necessary work.

Between the ages of 65 and 69 there are almost a quarter of a million men in this country. Most of them are in good health, experienced and many of them would like nothing better than to go on working. They would be happier, healthier, and wealthier if they were permitted to do so.

Compulsory retirement for a great No. of people is now the law. It is made their 65th birthday is not something to look forward to with pleasure.

In the last half century medical and other sciences have been making very steady progress in lengthening the life span of man. The average person can expect to live a few dozen years longer than his great-grandfather lived.

But if we are going to get awfully bored with those added years, to the best, if we insist that he can't hold a job.

Personal Health Talks

Diet Has Little To Do With Acne

Most physicians apparently still go along with the traditional notion that excessive consumption of sweets causes or at least predisposes to oiliness of skin, blackheads and pimples.

Like a convicted murderer who feels he may as well knock off a few more persons who annoy him, before he goes to the gallows, I don't mind saying that I think the notion that indulging in cream, candy, pastries, cake, chocolate fudge sundaes, syrup on pancakes, honey or what-you have causes blackheads, oily skin and pimples (BOP), is just one of the many theories or fancies expounded by the eminent medical authorities of yesteryear when they didn't know what they were talking about.

The list of foods which some skin specialists still exclude from the diet of one with BOP (acne), comprises not only the items named but also fatty foods, such as cream, butter, mayonnaise, pork, bacon, sausage, gravy, and anything fried with or in any kind of cooking oil or shortening. Remember, now, kids I'm telling you; not advising you.

From The Care of the Skin, by Herbert Lawrence, M.D., (Lippincott, Brown & Co., Toronto) just published last year, I quote what is probably regarded by the 2000 other certified dermatologists in the U.S.A. as radical.

"The unfavorable effect that starches and fats have" (note the author doesn't say "purport to have") "on some patients with acne is primarily a matter of medical observation. It has by no means been proven beyond all doubt in the laboratory." I'll say this myself, I thought. "Here's a book about BOP I can recommend to anyone interested in the problem."

But the author immediately back-pedalled: "However, sometimes physicians are slow to find the exact explanation for conditions which are common knowledge."

All we have to do, then, is to decide, as amicably as possible, just which conditions are common knowledge.

Yahoo!

Hold on here. For years I have been trying to get a definition or description of "the common cold" from a recognized medical authority. I've been unable who use the dodge to make the patient think they know what they're talking about. The challenge by saying everybody knows what "the common cold" is.

I remembered how I suffered when I had BOP, at 16 and 17, and I have great sympathy for any young person who is going through it now, especially for the girl with acne, for blackheads and pimples are a source of embarrassment at times whereas they make a girl miserable all the time.

SATISFACTORY VOYAGE

Doubt may be a spiritual disease or it may be the first step in the searching of one's faith. Whatever it is, it is a very serious problem.

Discarding the whole of Christian life is belief. Many modern Christians try to make light of belief. They say that faith is not what a man believes that counts but what he is and what he does, stating that everything we do is the result of either a correct or an incorrect belief. Some of this is created by its philosophy. We may not be conscious of this philosophy but it dominates us none - the - less. Every cell in our bodies may be responsible for a little or an infinite value to us, although we have never put that sentiment into words. But the sentiment expresses itself in appetites, passions, and acts.

There is no such thing among men as a neutral belief. Jesus, in St. Paul said, "We know in part." Yet all that is necessary for us for the salvation of our souls we can know and most of us do know that which we need to do is to exercise that knowledge.

Belief apart from faith is like a ship without an anchor. Faith without belief is like a ship without a navigator. Theology without unselfish purpose is like a beautifully equipped ship without a propeller. An anchor, rudder, and propeller are all needed for a safe factory voyage.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

If you didn't know north from south, you could still stand on the Canada-United States border, at Virginia Falls where Canada, and know which was Canada and which the States by the appearance of the customs sheds. I spent very new areas in which the so called ranch-style bungalows predominate, there is a striking difference between the modern architecture and United States architecture. The houses are not larger buildings, whether factories, stores, churches or public buildings. The are smaller. The border cities and towns, but of the country and even of the interiors. There is some almost indefinable which, at first glance might be considered trifling, which, on closer look, becomes wholly evident.

You would not suppose that two societies, two societies so closely linked by language, habits and customs as ours and the states could exhibit such distinctions. But it does not take a practised eye to discover the difference. The smell of a United States city is entirely different from that of a Canadian. This may be largely due to the tobacco they smoke. Their cigarettes and their pipe tobaccos are quite distinctively scented. We have few United States style cigarets

By April Oursler Armstrong

MYSTERY ON THE MOUNTAIN

Jesus knew many who did not witness it did not believe the miracle of the loaves and fishes. And, so no one should ever doubt, so everyone would study the meaning of that miracle, Jesus did it again.

This time Jesus led the throngs into the wilderness for three days. Without a murmur they followed, but the food they had did not last. They grew hungry.

As before, Jesus sent His apostles among them to collect what food they had. This time there were seven loaves, and a few fishes among four thousand people.

And Jesus blessed the food, and multiplied it, and all were fed. And everyone counted the baskets of leftovers. Seven baskets!

Then Jesus reminded them that centuries before, God gave the Jews in the desert manna to eat, food from heaven. And Jesus said:

"My Father gives you the true bread from heaven. For the bread of God comes down from heaven, and gives life to the world."

The people answered: "Lord—give us always of this bread"

BREAD OF LIFE

"I Am the bread of life!" said Jesus. "He who comes to Me shall not hungert, and he that believes in Me shall not thirst."

"I came down from heaven," said Jesus slowly, "not to do My own will, but the will of Him that sent Me."

And: "This is the will of the Father who sent Me: that everyone who sees the Son, and believes in Him, may have life everlasting!"

The people stared in amazement. Did not He like the sound of that! The same people who had been delighted with His wonders, so proud to eat of the miraculous loaves and fishes, now grumbled and growled.

"Who does He think He is? Isn't this just a plain carpenter, son of Mary? How dare He say He came down from heaven!"

"What does He mean calling Himself 'the bread of life'?"

—Crumbs of bread still clinging to their beards they turned and walked away. They would believe He was a wonderworker, a fine Teacher, a very good Man. But they refused to believe He had come from heaven.

Why doesn't He wear a crown?" they snorted. "If God is His Father, why is He like an ordinary Man?"

SHOCKED AND ANGRY

They left Him, because He was what God wanted Him to be—and not what they wanted Him to be. Shocked and angry, they left, hundreds and thousands of men who had followed Him for years.

Jesus asked the twelve apostles:

"Will you also go away?"

Peter answered for them. Peter did not yet understand completely. No man can until God shows him! But Peter said: "Lord—to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life."

That was enough. Peter already believed. God would help him understand.

Then Jesus asked:

"Whom do people say I am?"

John, James, Andrew and shy Philip told Jesus the strange ideas people had. Some thought Jesus was actually John the Baptist come back to life! Others thought He might be Elias, the ancient prophet, returned to earth.

"But whom do you say that I am?" Jesus asked.

Peter's voice was strangely quiet:

"You are the Christ! The Son of the living God!"

And Jesus answered: "Blessed are you! Flesh and blood has not revealed this to you, but My Father, in heaven. And I say to you: You are Peter, and upon this rock I will build My church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it! And I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven!"

NEW COMMAND

Then Jesus gave the twelve a new command. Tell no one else, He said, who I am. The time will come when the world will know. Till then, keep it secret.

And as they stared in puzzlement, Jesus spoke of pain. Their faces grew thin with horror.

The day comes, said Jesus, when in Jerusalem, the Temple agents and the scribes and Pharisees will arrest Me. And I will be put to death. And on the third day I will rise again.

Peter groaned: "Lord! No! These things shall not happen to You!"

Fire in His eyes, Jesus turned to Peter:

"Go behind Me, Satan!" He said to the man He had just called blessed. "You are a scandal to Me, because you do not understand the things of God, but only the things of men!"

Poor Peter! He still did not understand. It is not easy to believe that Jesus should suffer and die. Yet that was in God's plan, the supreme mystery of all the ages.

In God's good time, Peter and the others would understand. Till then, they must follow as children follow. Step by step He would lead them. The next step was near at hand.

THREE WERE CALLED

Six days later Jesus called Peter, James and John to follow Him on an adventure that would bring them close to heaven. Only those three were called.

Up the windswept slopes of Mount Tabor He led them almost to the top. Without a word Jesus knelt on the stubble to pray. The others knelt beside Him. The only sound was the wind. . .

Suddenly the three apostles realized something extraordinary was happening! Some new power had come over their Master. He was not now as He had been.

The shape of His face had changed! And, a moment later, His clothes became white and glittering.

Jesus' robe daily stained by dust, now shone as if woven of stuff softer and more radiant than snow, whiter than a cloud beside the sun.

"He is being transfigured before us," Peter whispered.

Suddenly from the heavens came two men shining like stars, talking with Jesus! One was Moses, the other Elias, famous prophet of the Old Testament, the living talking with the dead. It was too much for the apostles, this meeting of heaven and earth! They were overcome.

They never knew how long they slept. Only that as they awoke, light shone around their beloved Jesus. Moses and Elias were vanishing, walking into another world.

"Master!" cried Peter. "Let us make three altars. One for You, Moses and Elias." And Peter grinned, not knowing that the only altar that could ever be built was for Jesus and the Father.

VOICE FROM THE CLOUD

Instantly a bright cloud blotted out the sun and a Voice said: "This is My beloved Son in whom I am well pleased. Hear Him!"

At the voice of God, the three apostles fell on their faces in fear. Then Jesus said, "Arise. Do not be afraid."

No more voices then. No more shining figures. Only Jesus smiling, and the clear breeze over Mount Tabor.

As they went down the mountain, Jesus said:

"Tell no man what you have seen, till the Son of Man shall be risen from the dead."

The mystery was closer than ever, the mighty mystery of Jesus, Son of God, Son of Man, who must die, and who would one day rise from the dead.

That one overpowering phrase was still beyond them. Rise from the dead?

Peter, James and John had been Him transfigured in the glory of Godhood, seen Him speak with Moses and Elias. They knew He commended every power of heaven. They had seen Him feed the thousands, and raise Jairus' daughter from the dead? He was, He said, the Son of God.

Yet now He walked beside them in His dusty robe, truly a Man, their Teacher, Master — and Friend.

He was a Man. And He was God. That alone was almost too much to understand.

They kept silence about the vision on Mount Tabor, but the glory of that afternoon glowed like faith's fire in their hearts."

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

GOING SHOPPING?

Maybe we get it into our heads that Christmas is all on times. Of course it is but any time is gift time. Birthdays and weddings and special days, such as anniversary days, pop up here and there all year round making it necessary to browse and look for this and that for that special "him or her". We found ourselves in this category and, lo and behold, we discovered that our problem was not in the finding but rather in the choosing. The selections are multiple and the surprises are very pleasing. We are constantly amazed at our wonderful shops in Belleville and do not tire of continually emphasizing this fact.

One thing we learned with joy, since we have some that was handed down, is that heavy, old-fashioned real cut glass is back in fashion with a bang. The thick, heavy crystal, deeply cut, is popular again in all sorts of shapes and sizes — bowls, compotes, vases, candy dishes, relish dishes and so on. There are unusual ash trays in either clear crystal or emerald green, of heavy glass, in the shape of hollow spheres about four inches in diameter. A small flattened section makes the base. The opening for ashes is not on the top as in a rose bowl, but part way down the side — very convenient and designed to keep the ashes definitely contained.

We saw a handy hostess wagon of wrought iron and brass, three shelves with a tumbler rack in brass on two sides of the top shelf, and a pull out, being very modern and neat for entertaining.

Lamps have become as attractive for a long time as they appeared to us on our recent shopping tour. Here, too, are some smaller crystal lamps with drops, especially for the mantel or for ornament. The bases of the larger lamps are of many materials and many shapes, some gracefully ornate, others starkly modern. One particularly lovely one had an English China base of Rouge Royal. TV lamps have really inspired the designers even to the fantastic, but one of the simpler styles lamb is in the shape of a sea shell with the light inside.

If you have no aversion to artificial flowers, you might find the plastic, washable arrangements practical. There are bright China flowers on wall plaques that would make a shower gift for a new home. Both ornamental and useful is a bank in the form of a perky French poodle with a padlock on its neck. A tiny key opens the bank. Also, there are cups and saucers with the insignia of women's lodges that might at some time make a very suitable gift.

Turning to more practical things, have you seen the new spray oven cleaner? It eliminates the wearing of gloves and the messy application.

We mentioned paint brushes last week, and now we hear of a paint that actually breathes. It has a plastic base, can be used either inside or outside, on cement and even on a damp wall without fear of coming off. The hazards of doily-pourself painting are being gradually eliminated.

But a new kind of painting is here — liquid leather. That's right, there is a new liquid leathering coating that is pliable and durable, won't crack or rub off. It can be brushed on fabrics, leatherette, plastic and leather. We are told that it gives a beautiful leatherized washable coating. It comes in fourteen colors and transforms kitchen chairs, lamp shades, car seats as well as regular covered furniture. Handy, too, for smaller articles such as purses, shoes and belts.

We have record bars, milk bars, and coffee bars, and now there are sweater bars. Although the idea has been used for over a year in other centres it reached Belleville since the first of the year. It is a new twist to the general idea of geoeteria and cashes in on impulse buying but it is handy and convenient.

If there is anything new or startling in food purchasing, it escaped us. There are good buys in lamb, smoked pork butts and

Nanette Fabray Leaving Caesar's Show in June

NEW YORK (AP)—For the second time in a little over two years, comedian Sid Caesar is splitting with the leading lady of his television show.

An announcement Tuesday said Nanette Fabray will not be with him after the present season ends in June. No reason for the split was given.

In 1954, Caesar and Imogene Coca parted company after both achieved top television ranking in the "Show of Shows" on NBC.

Miss Fabray replaced Miss Coca for Caesar's new "Caesar's Hour" on NBC. In sending their association, Caesar said in a statement: "I want to thank Miss Fabray publicly for her wonderful contributions to my television program for the last two seasons. It will always be a matter of great pride to me that Nanette reached such new heights of public acclaim and favor while with me. She is a great trouper. Everyone on the show joins me in wishing for Nan all the success she so richly deserves."

Miss Fabray could not be reached for comment.

Miss Fabray, 33, a striking brunette, has been in show business since childhood.

British Bachelor Girls Have Hard Time Making Ends Meet

By SYLVIA HACK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—British bachelor girls have a hard time trying to make ends meet when they come to the big city. It's easy to find a job but the salaries are small.

A really good secretarial job can earn as much as £10 a week but the average shorthand-typist — the one the common British term—draws between £5 and £9. Those who live away from home have little left after rent is paid, and many have to choose between eating well or dressing well. Most girls prefer a semi-starvation diet.

Canadian girls coming to London are often appalled at the low salaries offered. They usually bring a nest egg and can get along all right by themselves, but they feel sorry for their English girl friends.

LUCKY CANADIAN

"I just don't know how they do it," says 22-year-old Pat Coleman of Edmonton and Toronto. Miss Coleman is luckier than most. Her publicity job with a British film organization brings in £12 a week and she gets by nicely, sharing a £1.25-a-week room in Kensington with Peg Woods, a 22-year-old physiotherapist from Victoria.

Miss Woods earns £8 at a London hospital and "only just manages." She doesn't smoke, which helps, and the two Canadian girls pool resources whenever they can. During the February cold spell, they found their British gas metre used up so many shillings that it was cheaper to go to the cinema to keep warm than it was to stay home."

As with many Canadian bachelor girls in Britain, they say the chief fault with furnished accommodation is lack of closet space.

"Wardrobes are so small in this country," said Miss Coleman, who stands five feet eight inches in her stockinged feet. "I've just had to get used to the idea of having my clothes mangled."

The difficulties of British bachelor girls in London are stressed in a series of articles published in The Evening Standard. A typical case was that of Elizabeth Slow, a 22-year-old drama student, who found her £6 weekly for occasional stage roles and part-time work in a coffee bar left her with little room for manoeuvres.

She wanted to spend only about £2 a week on rent, but trying to find a suitable place for that sum led her on a wild - goose chase through squalid districts. "It made me feel we were back in the days of Dickens, where all is squalor and avarice and the characters eerie and frightening," said Miss How, who came from Bournemouth to try her luck in London.

She finally managed to share a room at £2 10s, a price which leaves her small scope for luxuries.

Similarly Miss Woods and Miss Coleman have their difficulties, including the necessity of sharing a kitchen with four other persons. One of them is a warning individual who throws fish on the floor for his cat," said Miss Coleman as a parting shot.

BEAUTY

KEEP WELL GROOMED—EVEN WHEN IT RAINS

Rainy day outfits should be assembled as carefully as costumes for any other occasion.

There's nothing like a rainy day to bring out the best—or the worst—in a woman's clothes sense. If she's a stickler for good grooming, you can be sure she looks just as smart on a rainy day as she does on a sunny one. But, if she's inclined to be careless about her grooming generally, the rainy day seems to emphasize the fact even more. That's the day she decides to wear her old clothes—the dress that's not even fit to wear marketing, the coat which should have been retired at least six seasons previously, a pair of shoes that no self-respecting puppy would bother to play with, and, to top it all, a wilted bedraggled tied around her head. If she carries an umbrella, you can be pretty sure that it's seen its best days, too, and of course, its color harmonizes with nothing, but nothing in the rag-bag ensemble that she's pleased to call her rainy day outfit.

These days shops simply teem with smart, colorful rain gear and there's absolutely no excuse for a woman to go about looking like a walking rummage sale. Instead of making a bad day even more depressing by her appearance, the women who may not have given the matter much thought until now should hie herself to her favorite department store or the nearest sportswear house and invest in a smart rainy-day costume. They're priced to fit every budget so money need not be a glaring consideration.

Raincoats are more colorful than they ever were, coming as they do in pastels, in vivid reds a n d greens, in silvery tones, in bold plaids, and smartly checked patters. Some have their own hats to match, but if they don't, it's easy to find a rain hat which will either match or cleverly contrast with the color of the coat. Unless the kerchief-tied-under-the-chin style is exceptionally becoming to you, skip it. A hat is really much smarter.

When you select an umbrella, be sure that its color harmonizes with the rest of your rainy-day outfit—and do use the one you've purchased for that purpose. Don't put it in a closet and then, comes a rainy day, just reach in and grab the first one that comes to hand. Consider your rubbers and your handbag, too. You can get matching ones these days and some of them are cute as all get-out. Inexpensive, too.

It all sums up to the fact that, as we've emphasized on previous occasions, a well groomed woman is well groomed always—not just on sunny days.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. ERKCKMAN

WHO SHOULD BE INVITED TO THE WEDDING?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiance and I have been showing a list for invitations to our wedding. His mother has been very helpful in making out their list, but when we turned to my mother, she was very hesitant about whom she wishes to invite. She feels that I don't know her friends well enough to invite them, although many of her women friends have been invited to a luncheon in my honor. I was under the impression that it is proper to invite these women friends of my mother to the wedding, but my mother does not believe that way. Is she correct? Or who should be on our lists? — J.M.B.

First you and your mother must figure out how many guests can be invited to the ceremony and how many to the reception. The first list is principally dependent on the size of the church. The number to be invited to the reception is naturally depend on several factors, the most important one usually being the budget. With that number determined, your mother tells your fiance's mother how many invitations are the limit allowed for your fiance's family. First on the lists are members of the bride's family. Then relatives of both families. Then close friends of both families. And as many "other" friends as the lists will allow. And indeed your mother's friends should be invited, if possible . . . whether or not you personally know them well. It would seem strange to invite the ese friends to a shower given for you, and not to your wedding, unless the wedding is to be a small one. (And of course the husbands should be invited!)

TO CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When my husband and I had our Fortieth Wedding Anniversary we held Open House, extending the invitations through the church and newspaper. Next summer we are to have our Fiftieth Wedding anniversary. Would it be wrong for us again to celebrate this occasion with an Open House? Is this rather sending invitations to out-of-town friends? — M.

Please, please begin to plan ahead to make this Golden Wedding Celebration as wonderful and memorable as you possibly can! This is the great occasion . . . and indeed it makes no difference whatever that you had an anniversary celebration ten years ago or even one year ago. This is a special feature of the invitations, and send them to the entire list of relatives and friends to be invited, both in town and out-of-town. You may use the usual printed-and-addressed cards, white, gold-edged, using gold-colored ink. Dramatize the dates at the top:

1906 1956
Mr. and Mrs. James Hill
at home
Tuesday, the fifth of June
four to seven o'clock
(Address)

Also please feature the "luncheon and "noble" Anniversary Cake. And a cold beverage of your choice for the guests to drink the high-hearted toasts "To the Bride and Groom."

INVITATIONS TO THE CHRISTENING AND TO TEA FOLLOWING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our little son is to be christened soon, in church, and after the christening I would like to have a tea in our house, inviting the few relatives and intimate friends (about 16 in all) who will be at the christening. What kind of invitations should I send? — C.R.

For this small, intimate occasion it isn't necessary, or appropriate, to send invitations. I suggest you invite your guests verbally or by telephone.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

PERHAPS YOU COULD TAKE A PLACE BY YOURSELF FOR AWHILE

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am a real young housewife and very unhappy.

In the first place, we live with my husband's people. I have tried to persuade my husband to get us even just one room until we can do better, but he won't do it. Also, he drinks, and I don't like it.

Sometimes I am tempted to leave him, but we have a baby about a year old who is very sweet, and I want to do what is best for her.

I am 18 years old, and my husband is 22.

Please give me some advice before I go crazy. — U.P.

Dear U.P.:

The only reason for saying what I am going to say first, is that it makes even one teenager stop and think before deciding to marry, it will be worth while. It casnot, obviously, do anything to help you now.

And what I want to say is just this: Any girl who marries at 17, as you evidently did—or perhaps you may have been even younger—is almost certainly going to be a very unhappy young housewife, as you are now. Oh yes, I know that once in a rare while such a marriage does work out. I'll probably be hearing from one or two wives who married in their teens and are perfectly happy. But because there may be one happy teenage wife out of 500 unhappy ones don't lessen the risk for others.

And another thing that can't be emphasized too often, or too strongly, for young people contemplating marriage is the vital necessity of talking over all important factors in a marriage before making definite decisions on them in advance—such as living arrangements, money matters, the question of children and so forth. Did you yourself, for example, agree before you were married to live with your husband's people? Did you know the young man you married was a drinker? Are there, perhaps, other difficult things in your married life for which you were totally unprepared and which came as shocks to you?

Well, what are you going to do about it all?

Do you have any money of your own, or would it be in any way possible for you to go to work for awhile? If so, then my first suggestion would be that you ask your husband to move out if he won't get a place where the three of you could live alone. If he refuses, then tell him that you're sorry but you feel you can't stand living with his folks any longer, and that you have made up your mind to find a place yourself and move in there with the baby. Say that you hope he will come with you, and that he will be welcome to join you any time, but that you must have a place of your own.

If you have money to live on so that you could take care of yourself and the baby for awhile, or if you can arrange for the baby at a day nursery, and you go to work, try things that way, and see how you work out. If your husband really loves you, I think he will miss you so much that you won't be able to stay away.

You might, of course, if you prefer, apply to the family welfare agency in your town before making this decision. This organization would not recognize her brain child. The press girls loved it so here is

SEAFOOD CASSEROLE

This serves six generously and requires only a generous salad—which in our case was Bob Kreis' salad given here last week. Eighteen large raw shrimp, cooked, shelled and de-veined, 1 8-oz. can flaked tuna, 1 18-oz can whole clams drained and cut in halves or instead of clams use 1-2 pint oysters or 7-oz. can of lobster; (the liquid from the clams we used next day to dilute a can of clam chowder for lunch); 3 tablespoons butter, 1-4 cup green onion tops chopped, 1-2 green pepper, 1-2 cup long grain rice cooked in 3-4 cup boiling water, 1 10-oz. can condensed mushroom soup, 1 1-2 cups milk, 1 cup-cup 1-2 cup very fine cracker crumbs, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1-2 cup blanched almonds. Add the cooked rice to the three flakes and lightly mix. Heat the 2 tablespoons butter and gently sauts the onion and green pepper in it until they are limp but not brown. Add to fish mixture. Add the milk to the soup, stir until smooth. Put a layer of fish in large buttered casserole, then soup mixture. Repeat until both are used. Cover with buttered crumbs, then sprinkle whole blanched almonds over top. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 40 minutes. Top should be tinged with gold. If it is not, turn on top burner for a couple of minutes, just before removing casserole from oven. A combination of shrimp, crabmeat and lobster is good too.

Casserole of Three Sea Foods

By Mary Moore

Probably there are cooks who are intrigued into serving fish dishes to their families who do not observe Lent from religious convictions. The National Fisheries Department and food editors and fish packers connect and offer to you such mouth-watering recipes that you can't resist them.

Ordinarily you might trot out to buy round steak or sausages but with all of these fish recipes you are given pause, and wonder how the family will take to them.

In 1933 a Canadian magazine co-operated with a fish canning association to sponsor a salmon recipe contest in Toronto. A girl by the name of Mrs. Gordon Hill won that contest with a salmon casserole, and received a new car for a prize.

Since then I have experimented with her recipe using other fish and making the inevitable changes, and last week served the dish to five Press Club girls who were slaving over some Press Club constitution revisions at my sister's home.

It bears some resemblance to the original but little Mrs. Hill would not recognize her brain child. The press girls loved it so here is

Branding Forms Greater Service In Preventing Rustling than Detection

By LORNE BRUCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta ranchers think cattle rustlers nowadays receive too light sentences, says livestock commissioner W. H. T. Mead.

"There's practically no penalty now," snorts Mr. Mead.

In Alberta's early days, the usual sentence was seven days. If there ever were lynchings for cattle rustling in Alberta, they occurred before the province was formed in 1905.

Mr. Mead, in an interview, talked about the province's registered brands—25,330 for cattle, 4,050 for hobos, 19 for sheep, 24 for poultry and 10 for fox.

ALWAYS SOME RUSTLING

"Branding forms a greater service in preventing rustling than in detecting it after it occurs," he said.

"There is a little bit of rustling done all the time. The majority is done for home consumption without getting into the trade. There's the odd case of organized rustling. Now it's mostly a neighborhood deal."

Mr. Mead's advice to ranchers and farmers: "Don't use unregistered brands."

It is illegal to use an unregistered brand. The maximum penalty is $200.

DIFFERENT VERSIONS

Of expressions used to describe a part of the brand, the livestock commissioner said different people, for instance, have various versions of "running."

A running bar or a bar are the same thing—a sort of dash mark either before, after, in between, above or below the letters or figures.

"Lazy" is used to describe a character shown on its side.

One-character brands cannot be registered.

Signs of intricate design are not issued, for example spurs and bridle bits.

Two-character brands are registered only where one figure is directly over the other.

Three characters in line, such as SOS or —7B are recommended only for the rib positions.

APPROVED SYSTEM

The recommended type is two letters, or two numerals, or a combination of one letter or one numeral with a bar or a quarter circle or a half diamond.

Quarter circles are registered only with the points away from the other characters. Half diamonds are registered only with points toward the other characters.

The letters I and Q and the figure 1 are not used. The letter G is registered in the reverse position to avoid confusion with C, which is never reversed.

Alberta brands are for the entire province but Saskatchewan has only one-third of the province in the brand-inspection area. Saskatchewan has about one-third and British Columbia about one-quarter as many brands as Alberta.

Manitoba and Ontario have brand registrations but no inspections.

10,000 Leave Money Untouched In Canadian Banks

OTTAWA (CP) — Names of nearly 10,000 persons who, forgetfully or on purpose, have left money untouched in Canadian banks for nine years and more were published by the government Tuesday.

Their holdings, chiefly in savings and current accounts, total $231,210.60.

The names were published in the official Canada Gazette as a reminder to the money's owners to do something about it. Otherwise the long-dormant accounts, except for unclaimed bank dividends, will be turned over to the central Bank of Canada at the end of this year.

After that owners still will be able to claim it but with more difficulty.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both— Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Trying to Force Red Cross into Joint Appeals

TORONTO (CP) — The head of Toronto's Red Cross branch has stated that a form of blackmail is being used to force the society to abandon its practice of independent fund-raising in favor of uniting its appeal with those of other welfare groups.

Marshall Stearns, retiring president, told the branch's annual meeting:

"This year we have already been rejected by certain firms, few in number so far, in our fund campaign. These firms have always been good contributors to our cause, but they are now imbued with the spirit of the united appeal and choose to subscribe only to those who are in such a federated appeal.

"It is a form of blackmail, I presume."

He said it is necessary for the Red Cross to maintain its identity, conduct its own campaigns and be master of its own finances at all times.

Fuel Board Plans Safety Rules For Gas Mains

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario fuel board said Tues. it will announce soon a compulsory safety code for the installation and maintenance of gas mains and appliances throughout the province.

The board, reporting on two recent Toronto gas explosions, said that since more natural gas is expected to be used in Ontario after Alberta gas is available, more protection will be needed.

It would investigate gas company practices in installing and maintaining their distribution systems to be sure maximum safety prevailed.

The report said the two east-end Toronto explosions, one in a private home and the other in a bank, were caused by gas leaking into the buildings from broken mains.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY Mrs. Ann Parker MOTHER OF 11

Frequent question from new mothers: "Will too much attention spoil baby?" That's probably the most-discussed subject in the annals of baby care; so who is to say. But I like to think that a nice young neighbor of mine has the right idea. "Comforting a fussy baby is only using common sense. Every time you pick him up and croon away his loneliness you give him the security he is so obviously reaching out for."

* * *

Calories may be unpopular with outsize grownups, but little live wires need a goodly share of these important energy-givers.

* * *

Brand new-delectable fact Gerber Strained Bananas, available for the first time in Canada, are rich in the calories baby needs for growth and energy. Doctors recommend this fruit as one of the desirable starting solids. Gerber Strained Bananas are made from only fully ripe fruit (key to easy digestibility)—carefully prepared to preserve the delicate banana flavor and appetizing banana color. As for texture, they're pureed to a pleasant-feeling smoothness that's especially satisfying to small-fry.

* * *

Sweet music. Why not attach some tiny jingle bells to baby's carriage? The merry, "soft-spoken" music will delight him when he's awake—won't disturb him when he's asleep.

Scientists Disagree as to Possible Effects of H-Bomb Tests Soon Due in Pacific

Editor's note: Does the radiation released in a "peaceful" atomic age offer a threat to human existence? This second article on the growing atom tells why some scientists disagree as to the possible effects of H-bomb tests such as the United States soon will stage in the Pacific.

By FRANCIS E. CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some day you may carry in your wallet a little card called a radiation card.

It would be a cumulative tally of all the radiation you have been exposed to—including fall-out from A-bomb and H-bomb tests; X-rays or radio-active isotopes used in diagnosis or treatment; workday exposure if you are an atomic worker; any accidental exposure to radio - active waste from an atomic plant; or exposure to radio-active materials released in any giant accident.

Plans of scientists are giving thought to such a personal radiation scorecard. They are concerned with the possible cumulative hazards of radiation of all types.

The idea of a cumulative record would be primarily a precaution against building up a dosage over the years which could result in cancer or anemia or cataract. There's even a possibility that radiation can shorten one's life span even without causing any disease.

HEREDITARY DEFECTS

But your record card, while offering doctors means of keeping tabs on your own health from a radiation standpoint, wouldn't necessarily be any assurance against the possibility of your passing on a harmful hereditary characteristic to some future descendant, perhaps generations away.

All scientists agree that radiation can cause bodily effects, such as cancer, leukemia, cataract, anemia in persons sufficiently exposed. And all are agreed that radiation can under certain conditions cause hereditary defects—such as increased susceptibility to disease, sterility, malformed bodies and mental deficiency—in future descendants of persons exposed to radiation.

The big question is: How extensive are such hazards and exactly under what conditions might they be expected?

All scientists are agreed that an extensive nuclear war would present extremely high radiation hazards to both present and future generations.

But there are disagreements as to the extent of the hazard in a "peaceful" atomic age.

Perhaps the biggest area of disagreement among scientists concerns the genetics, or hereditary picture.

While all are agreed that radiation can cause mutations in genes, which are the carriers of heredity, there is disagreement on these scores:

How frequently do such changes occur? What significance do they have in terms of entire populations? What level of radiation from fall - out and other sources would be required to present a wide-spread genetic problem?

MANY CAUSES

Scientists know that mutations have been occurring spontaneously in man throughout history, caused by a variety of things, including radiation from cosmic rays and radium in the soil. But there are other non-radiation causes of such spontaneous mutations.

Scientists do not know with certainty how frequently such spontaneous mutations occur or what proportion of them are due to natural radiation.

Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission has told Congress:

"Medical and biological advisers of the commission are of the belief that the possibility of serious (widespread) genetic effects from the small amount of additional radiation produced by the (weapons) testing program is remote."

But Dr. H.J. Muller, Nobel-prize - winning geneticist of the University of Indiana, while declaring that bomb tests should be continued in he interests of defence, has estimated that at least "tens of thousands" of mutations will be passed on to future generations as a result of fallout from atomic tests by all nations so far. They would be spread out over "scores" of generations, he said.

Muller maintains that questions concerning radiation genetics need to be discussed and investigated "far more realistically than they have been in the past."

PEACETIME DANGER

"Otherwise," he said, "we may at last find ourselves...genetically facing a parallel to already accomplished deforestation and erosion, on an even grander scale."

And that goes, he said, for peaceful uses of radiation, as well as for "the possible aftermath of atomic war."

Without touching upon the genetic aspects, except in a limited sense, Dr. Willard Libby, an AEC commissioner, said recently that "worldwide health hazards from the present rate of testing (weapons) are insignificant."

Before Libby's speech, another AEC member, Thomas Murray, had called directly for a public statement on the number of H-bomb explosions "that the human race can withstand without harmful bodily effects" from radioactive strontium.

Radioactive strontium, considered the most dangerous matter in H-bomb fall - out, can cause bone cancer.

Murray said estimates of the safe level for this product of both atomic and hydrogen bombs had "changed almost wildly" in a year's time. Libby, however, discounted any suggestion that public safety would be endangered by the bomb tests.

Pat Sheehan May Be Answer To Ed Sullivan

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — NBC-TV has unveiled television's first starlet—the network's answer to Ed Sullivan.

She is Pat Sheehan, a San Francisco dish with better lines than the Golden Gate bridge.

How she got signed by NBC is one of those Cinderella stories that crowd bus lines into Hollywood. It started a few weeks ago when Jack Keller, publicity man for Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, needed a good-looking model to pose for some still photos with the comics.

Pat was suggested, and showed up for the sitting in a brief costume.

"With those curves," commented Lewis, "this girl would be an ideal straight man for comics." The boys put her in a skit on their TV show.

One of the viewers was Sylvester L. (Pat) Weaver, NBC's chairman of the board. He turned to an aide and ordered:

"Sign that girl to a contract.

Previously, most of television's signees have been big names or new comics, but never starlets.

"We've always been able to get them at (union) scale," explained one network source.

Under terms of Pat's contract, she will become a regular performer on "The Comedy Hour," take dramatic and voice lessons and pose for cheesecake.

"The Comedy Hour," is the program appearing opposite Sullivan. The fact that Sullivan consistently beats the NBC show in the ratings is the reason for Weaver's particular interest in the show.

TO AID CANADIAN SHIPS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Representatives Clarence KILBURN (Rep, N.Y.) introduced a bill Monday to permit Canadian vessels to transport coal to Ogdensburg, N.Y., from other points in the United States until such time as American ships are available. Under the bill, the secretary of the treasury would issue annual permits to Canadian ships.

Aviation Needs Tax Facilities Of Weathermen

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's head weatherman declares that the country's weather forecasting resources are being taxed to their limits by aviation demands.

Andrew Thomson, controller of Dominion meteorological services, told the Board of Trade: "We really are pressed beyond what we can do."

Canada's $12,000,000-a-year weather service was called upon to supply more aviation information than ever before. And the demands were getting heavier, making the gap between what could be comfortably accomplished even larger. Mr. Thomson said:

"The problem is not lack of money, for we have a very good and very generous government. No, the thing that's holding us back is the inability to obtain trained personnel. If we could get more trained personnel from the universities most of our problems would be solved."

Despite these difficulties, he predicted two important improvements in weather services: Better short-term or three-hour forecasts; and better forecasts five days in advance.

GETS FIVE YEARS

MONTREAL (CP)—Harold Henrichon, 45, on the RCMP's "most wanted" list until his arrest in Calgary last week, was sentenced Monday to five years in penitentiary for his part in a $3,000 bank holdup in suburban Ville Lasalle in 1951.

Anglers Likely To Work Out New Agreement

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's superintendent of game and fisheries says that department officers are scheduled to meet April 16 in Cornwall with anglers from the Quebec-Ontario border region to work out "a gentleman's agreement."

Charles Fremont made the announcement when asked to comment on the demand Monday for a reciprocal angling licence made to the Ontario legislature's game and fish committee by the Ontario Federation of Anglers and the Conservation Council of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry counties.

Ontario residents fishing in Quebec are required to pay $5.25 for an angling licence, plus $2.10 for each additional member of the family.

Mr. Fremont said there are two boundary regions where Quebec and Ontario fishermen sometimes trespass their respective provincial waters. One is along the Ottawa river from Temiscamingue to Pointe Fortune. The second is on Lake St. Francis.

Both shores on the eastern end of the lake belong to Quebec and there is no question of allowing Ontario fishermen to go there to fish without a Quebec licence. But some solution is scheduled to be worked out for the west end of the lake where the provinces each own one shore.

Dennis Riggin To Turn Pro With Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP) — Goaltender Dennis Riggin is making the jump from junior to professional hockey with Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League, coach Bud Poile announced Tuesday.

Riggin, who moved to Flyers from the Hamilton Tiger-Cubs of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series to replace the injured Giles Boisvert, has now played the six games he is allowed with Flyers while still an amateur.

Poile said Flyers will turn him professional before they meet Winnipeg Warriors here Wednesday night. Riggin played two seasons of junior hockey in Windsor, Ont., and three in Hamilton. He is 20 years old.

Hats Curve To Headline Slim Styles

For the first time in many years, spring hat fashions are dramatically different. The newest hats have curving contours that give attention-value and effectively headline slim costumes. Leading designers and manufacturers call these curve-conscious hats "bountiful" silhouettes.

The hat of inflated outline, whether mild or mammoth in size, achieves its "bountiful" look in two ways.

It may be a toque — all crown, puffed up over the merest sliver of a brim or no brim at all. Or, it may be a hat with a bristle of curves — a deep bell cloche or a widespread brim with a bold flange turned up or down or cushioned for a look or volume.

On the other hand, milliners have not forgotten the woman, reluctant to wear a very big hat. For her, there are charming small toques that are simply pillboxes grown larger, higher in the crown, curved at the edges and fitted more securely on the brow.

Small tambourine silhouettes are also easy to wear. The shallow shell becomes a cushioned bonnet, its prow brim reaching forward to shade the brow.

Small sailors with larger-than-headsize crowns are another choice.

While most brimmed hats are posed level across the top of the head, the deep, downward curve of their brims makes them seem to be pushed forward. Smaller, pot-shaped toques are often tilted down almost to the eyebrows.

The new hats are feminine without being fussy. Flowers are pressed and/or strained under veiling. Blossoms and petals, arranged in a stylized manner, make the all-flower hat look like a silk print.

Snips of pastel feathers and small frills of uncurled ostrich combine with flowers or are appliqued on straw and veiling. Lace inserts, embroidery and tiny beads in matching or harmonizing hues give pattern and texture to straws.

Airy malines and tulle are importantly used for entire hats or for richly draped bands and edges.

Silk organdy and chiffon are draped on straws and feather-weight felts. Silks and straws make both casual and dressy hats.

Fine baibuntals, toyos, shantungs and shiny panamalaces highlight the importance of fine, smooth straws. Rough-textured straws often have a brilliant, satiny sheen.

Synthetic strawcloths appear in weaves that imitate fabrics such as satin, ribbed faille, alpaca and shantung.

SPRING HIGHLIGHTS MANY DAINTY DETAILS

Fabric Picture Shows Linens, Silks in Lead

Fashion spotlights textured, lightweight fabrics for spring, with subdued patterning and muted tweedy effects. The two major influences are linen and silk.

Many fabrics contain linen alone or in mixtures, or else attain its textured effect in other fibre combinations. Blended with wool or, worsted, linen is most effective when translated into coats, suits and sportswear outfits.

Cotton, linen and rayon often combine in unusual reversible coatings. In sophisticated Oriental-styled coats — the cotton especially—natural textured linens and basket-weave linen tweeds are beautiful.

SILK LOOKS TWEEDY

Silk has reached a new peak of popularity and versatility, making its spring debut in every field of fashion from the basic suit to the "little evening" sheath. Often it has a tweedy character.

Most striking are the herringbone, Donegal, stripe and pepper-and-salt weaves in the season's new coats and suits. Rustic silks are seen most frequently in black, navy, beige and brow

A "knit look" highlights the new, lightweight wool blends, achieved through use of hopsacking, basketweave and boucle woolens with nubby or slubbed surfaces. Oatmeal coloring emphasizes spring's "natural look." Wool combines with cotton as well as with linen in many coats to achieve the important light-textured feeling.

FLEECE HAS SPRING AIRS

Coats in the pastel palette capture the light feeling of spring in cloud-like fleece. New colors are luscious periwinkle blue and butter yellows.

Woollen suits and dresses, appear in "paper thin" or chiffon weight fabrics. Fine tweeds, basic to every classic wardrobe, appear in pastel shades and get an "extra soft" look from mixtures of wool with rabbit or angora. Other important suit fabrics for spring are wool barathea, worsted crepes, fine twill and silk with mohair blends.

Spring evenings will float by in a swirl of transparent sheers. Pet of the season is the silk chiffon cocktail dress — soft and moldable or lightly starched. Paper taffetas and satiny surfaced silks are also designed to enhance a party enchantress.

Weights of Fabrics Are Also Lighter

This spring will see the biggest change in men's wear since the advent of charcoal grey some seasons ago. Again it's a color change, the line a dominant trend to intermediate and lighter shades. Tan, light-to-medium gray, gray-green, gray-blue and slate blue are rapidly replacing the dark tones recently prevalent.

Patterned fabrics have staged a comeback. Glen plaids, stripes, checks, overchecks and overplaids will be style leaders in both the suit and sport jacket fields.

Along with the swing to lighter colors, comes increased interest in lighter weight fabrics, especially all-wool worsteds, as the most practical solution to the multi-season suit problem. These suits can be worn well into June, if last year's weather history repeats itself, and on mild days throughout the summer.

The advent of really warm weather will turn the spotlight on lightweight tropical worsted fabrics for men's suits. The cool will follow the strong style trend toward lighter colors, incorporating a wide variety of solid shades and patterned fabrics.

NEW COLOR RANGE

A new range of lighter colors and small patterns will present itself in the "miracle fibres" and blends. These will run the gamut from "comfort weight" suits in a covert cloth of "Orlon" acrylic fibre and wool, through the popular tropical weight suits of "Dacron" polyester fibre and wool to the light weight "wash and wear" suits with their high content of "Dacron," nylon and "Orlon."

The "natural look" in suits continues popular, but now appears in more than one version. While some men look well in the more extreme "ivy" type model, others with naturally sloping shoulders and longer neck will be well advised to seek the modified version, with slightly more shoulder padding and longer jacket.

CONTINENTAL INFLUENCE

Proper choice of accessories to go with a "natural look" suit are important. These include a hat with a narrower brim and slimcut ties.

The continental influence has resulted in the slightly shortening of jackets, which in turn has been responsible for smaller sleeves and slimmer trousers. The new season will mark some degree of return for the double-breasted suit. Its styling has been overhauled to meet "natural look" requirements. The most noticeable differences are narrower lapels, less overlap at the front, and a reduction of six front buttons to four.

Many new ideas have been introduced in sportswear. Sport jackets have emerged in a new array of styles and fabrics with emphasis on what are loosely described as "sport car clothes" — Sport short topcoats, suburban coats, leisure jackets and waist-length jackets.

Elegance Combines with Animation to Provide Pretty, Youthful Effect

Slimness with animation is the fashion theme for spring '56, as the understated elegance of the slender silhouette yields to the feminine, youthful influence of many pretty details.

Tucks, draping, pleats and panel-pleats or floating back panels add delightful variety to belt-less, semi-fitted sheaths, while the high-rising waistline of dresses and suits heralds the triumphant return of the empire look to fashion prominence.

With waistlines generally higher, the waist-length-or-shorter jacket for dresses or suits emerges as one of the most important spring trends. It appears sometimes as a bolero, straight and short or dipping lower and blousing in back. Other popular tops are stoles, with or without sleeves, and little capes.

Throughout spring fashions, the bloused back deserves attention. Suits and coats use it boldly, dresses modify it, but either way, it makes a big contribution to feminine easing of straight and narrow styles.

In fabrics, surface interest is the big story, with silks and woolens making special news in rustic weaves and blends. Navy sails in the lead of spring colors, closely followed by black and the blond-and-beige family.

Prints have an Oriental feeling which extends to fabrics and is carried out by the extensive use of silk. More Far Eastern influences are seen in the use of mandarin necklines, caftan coats with deep side slits, obi drapes and slit hemlines.

A new approach to the slim look is indicated by the sheath that looks narrow but isn't, that suit with the pleated or gently-flaring skirt, the coat with straight lines that artfully conceal its comfortable, roomy cut.

New-looking, too, are the full-ler-skirted styles, a persistent minority for spring. Pleated fullness" is the way designers identify this type of styling, and it proves again that, even when slim lines are prevalent, many women find full skirts most flattering, most fashion-right for them.

A look of slimness with full-skirt ease and grace is achieved by pleats. This season, pleating makes its play for fashion in pleating and diversified ways, from the high back pleat seen in many sheaths to all-around accordion pleats.

Side pleats are used to enhance the slim line, as are other style devices or trims which focus the interest at the side, back or top of the silhouette. Top attention getters are big balloon sleeves, simulated boleros or bibs, little bows, gilets, guimpes, lace collars or jaunty white cotton collars and cuffs.

Button trimmings are everywhere, and bustline pocket flaps or welts draw attention to the empire-waist effect.

Far East Gives Cue to Dramatic Coat Fashions

Spring dictates a slim, light-weight story for coats. Many taking their cues from the Orient, are bamboo-pole-slim.

In others, the narrowness is eased by broader shoulder treatments or gradually widening hemlines, achieved by flat width at front and back spreading from a natural shoulder line.

Coats are frequently designed to pair easily with dresses for a costume effect.

Novelty fabrics with unusual textures—the "knit look" is news—add distinction to spring's simple yet sophisticated coat lines. Blends of silk and wool that have a soft tweed or silken effect are of major importance, followed closely by woven wools and silks.

Linens too are beautiful in tweed and basket-weave effects. Often they are blended with wool for fabrics with wool's warmth and moldability and linen's texture qualities.

Especially suited to the new textured fabrics is the Orient-inspired coat. Generally it follows the caftan or mandarin silhouette with stalk-slim lines and deep slits at the side seams.

Often this coat is decorated with embroidery and other detail. Pale beige tones are most effective in setting off the woven fabrics.

The fashion of a broader shoul-der line is sometimes created with capelet sleeves or deep capes directing the eye to the top, at other times with dropped shoulders or yoke seams. Wrap coats, tapering imperceptibly to the hemline, also give the effect of shoulder width.

EMPIRE IS IMPORTANT

Empire silhouettes, with high seams from which the coat bells slightly to the hemline, are important for spring. Bow treatments of ribbon or fancy jewel touches add to the regal effect of the style.

The tunic look, so important last fall, has been modified for spring to a tunic length coat, gaining back interest through blousing, wide flat bands or back detail.

The unfitted reefer or tube Chesterfield scores a hit as an interpretation of spring's popular easy-slim silhouette. It is generally seen in smooth wools or tweedy silks.

Because it steps so nicely into summer, the versatile shortie is a star of the spring coat picture. Newest ones have panel backs and are hip length. They are prettiest in water pastel colors or white and when designed in basket-weave - and other textured woolens such as cloud-like fleece.

BELTS WANDER

"Wandering-line" construction is new in belt designs for spring. The belt is designed to be worn just above the natural waist in back and curves up in front to buckle at a centre point just below the bustline.

Matched Sets Go Inside Handbags

Well - dressed handbags can now have their own spring accessories in matching or accent colors.

Sets of everything from wallets to compacts to cigaret lighters are available in matched designs. Especially attractive are lustre leather handbag accessories in pastel shades with jewel trim.

One set includes a French purse, eyeglass case, compact, key-holder, cigaret case and lighter in pale beige trimmed with a topaz-colored jewel.

TEAMED WITH COATS

Marbelized print dresses teamed with solid color coats have found a wide audience.

FOR SPRING, TRA-LA

The era of the Gibson Girl is recalled in this full-blown straw hat which is swathed in smoky folds of frothy black organza. Small rosebuds carry out the new all-black theme which is forecast for this spring. (CP Photo).

Slim Lines Have Place in Designs For Spring Brides

Fashion's darling, the slim look, has eased its way into the spring bridal picture, but top honors still go to the traditional bouffant gown.

Noteworthy among slender gowns is an elegant strapless sheath demurely topped by an empire lace bolero. In bouffant styles, the little girl look, characterized by Peter Pan collars, tiny sleeves and billowing skirts rates as a trend setter.

The Victorian influence presents itself in elaborately detailed gowns, many triple-tiered, many lavishly adorned with lace.

Side embellishments such as scalloped tiers and ruffles are seen in some instances where the basic silhouette is classically simple. Empire waistlines predominate.

Fabric-wise, Chantilly lace again is widely used, along with other dainty fabrics, such as Schiffi embroidered nylon tulle, cotton or silk organdy, opaque taffeta and sheer nylon chiffon.

FULL BACK SCORES

Fashion note in late day and evening dresses is the sheath silhouette with back fullness. Overskirts float out softly at the back, to reveal contrasting lining.

Leather Gloves Take Gala Hues

Costume – co-ordinated colors, dressmaker treatment and washability make leather glove news this spring, according to Leather Glove Industries.

Matched to new shoes, bags and belts, colors include a series of porcelain pastels, ranging from pale rose and mauve seashell to Dresden blue.

Other important shades are the yellows, light green, beige, blues and pink. Navy and white are also prominent.

Among the leathers are silky-surfaced glace kid, suede with a cashmere feel and feather-weight pigskin. Many are washable.

Lengths run from shorties that barely reach the wristbone — often edged with thin hand-stitched bands or tiny bows — to elbow length leathers with soft dressmaker-shirring along the side from glove top to wrist.

Sharing the spotlight is the 4-button bracelet-length glove, sometimes piped with contrasting tone leather or embroidered with heavy cord knots and flower motifs.

Luxury details reflect the dressmaker theme. There are flower-shaped mother of pearl buttons in pastel colors, knotted gold-thread clusters and scrap or butterfly designs appliqued in leathers of contrasting colors.

Also prominent are a number of leathers patterned in metallic thread embroidery.

Pigskins, distinctively grained, include shorties that are buckled at the wrist and often hand-sewn, as well as elbow length glove length gloves with elastic insets for a shirred effect.

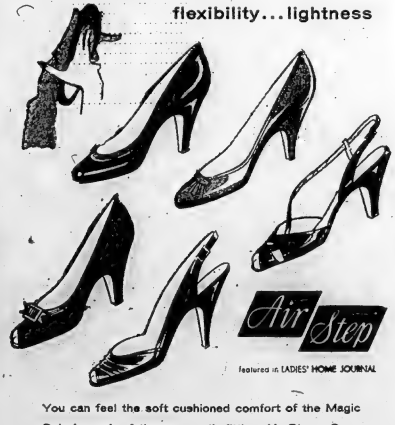
BUTTONS FAVORED

Dresses sport buttons in unusual ways this spring. Especially effective on slim dresses, buttons appear at the front for a midriff-defining effect, across shoulders, down sleeves, from under arms to hem, or on double-breasted front panels.

Many are simply made, of pearl or bone, or covered with fabric to match or contrast with the dress.

Self-covered fabrics are various, including wools, flannels, silks and cotton jersey.

KNIT COSTUME GOES EVERYWHERE



A knit with a knack for going places, this two-piece costume is a perfect all-in-one wardrobe for day-to-date wear or travelling. The pert cardigan jacket covers a scoop-neck dress. A linen-or-lion-wool blend, it's hand-washable, packable and light in weight. By Lass O'Scotland.

Color Sparks Latest Jewelry

Use of color is an important highlight of spring jewelry, the Jewelry Industry Council report.

Beads of lilac, rose or aqua are strung into multiple-strand necklaces designed to ra wide or V-neckline. For a brighter theme there are necklaces in coral, deep turquoise and royal blue — often teamed with matching earrings and bracelets.

Bone beads are opalescent, flecked with gold or bright color, while others are clear and sparkling. In sapphire, emerald and ruby colors, linked with gold metal.

Chalk white combines with gold metal for a new and interesting treatment of white jewelry. Included are large earrings, basket-of-throat necklaces and rigid cuff bracelets with flower motifs.

White beads in unusual shapes — such as triangles — are framed in gold wire to dangle from a necklace of classic beads.

For late afternoon and evening wear, rhinestones in golden settings continue as favorites.

Pearl jewelry, another classic, is often combined with rhinestones and set in silvery or gold-colored metal.

Glamor Prevails in All Things for Gal on Go

All factors combine to make travelling this season a particularly happy event for the fashion-wise gal on the go.

Whether she travels alone, with family or with friends, whether she takes a 'round the world cruise or a weekend trip, she's certain to travel in high style — and comfort.

Both glamor and convenience are important features of her travel wardrobe, including the luggage that carries it. Her luggage even becomes a fashion accessory — part of the co-ordinated look so important this spring.

LUGGAGE CO-ORDINATES

She can select her travelling outfit in virtually any color, from the popular naturals and beiges to bright or pastel shades, and then choose luggage that co-ordinates in color and texture.

For example, there are cases with genuine leather coverings, including bright suedes in colors that don't rub off.

If she likes a personal touch, her choice may be airplane cases featuring a large-scale monogram. This is embroidered right in the fabric covering, to match the leather binding and handle.

When she plans what to buy and pack, she'll find other pleasant surprises.

Now that practically everything from cotton to leather is processed for easy washing and easy care, the feminine traveller can give fashion free reign, without having to worry about whether or her clothing is practical for travel. Automatically, it will be.

OFFER VARIETY

Another bright side of this picture is that what she buys to take with her will be equally right to wear when she comes home.

Of course, dressy separates, sportswear, and casual dresses will probably continue to be the mainstay of her travel wardrobe. They're all good travellers, and, more important, they offer infinite opportunities to mix and match

Colors Lighter In New Neckties

The color picture in Spring neckwear takes on a light touch, with blues, pinks, whites, grays and beiges favored as backgrounds hues to blend with the new medium toned suits and contrast with the darker ones. Small figure motifs will be played against the new pastels.

The Ivy-League trend continues, and the man who prefers more muted shades can choose from a variety of rep stripes in red, yellow, navy, green, brown and black. Ties in subtle patterns will be worn for the more formal occasions.

Tartan plaids will figure prominently on the casual scene. Black Watch, MacDuff, MacDonald and Campbell are but a few of the most colorful. Glen plaid motifs will also be worn with sport coats and slacks.

Fabric-wise, cotton is favored for pale ties, with a blend of cotton and silk making style news.

Narrower ties continue popular. However a new 3-inch width is being introduced as a compromise between the "slim Jim" width and the very wide neckwear of yesteryear.

ACCENT ON TURQUOISE

Hued to the slim line of spring, turquoise shows up as an important accessory color. Large beads or bits in turquoise accent slender fashions in beige or natural tones.

GAP NARROWS

LONDON (AP) — Britain's chronic trade gap, the excess of imports over exports, narrowed in February, the Board of Trade said Monday. The country bought £49,500,000 ($138,600,000) more goods and materials abroad than she sold, the lowest figure since last May.

Fabric Gloves Go Feminine, Feature Dainty Detailing

Femininity is in the forefront of fabric glove fashions for spring. Dainty accents include ball fringe, flower appliques, taggoting, feather-stitching and other embroidery.

Even tailored gloves have a touch of daintiness, with eyelet or open work detailing, hand stitching and pearl buttons. Pearl and bead trims are liked for cocktail styles.

Colors are varied, and combinations of two or more shades look especially new. These include harlequin, polka dot, striped and floral patterns.

Double-woven cottons, nylons, sheer, string and stretch gloves appear in a wide range of pastels, with special attention to yellow. Blues, greens, roses and of a slave country."

other reds fit the spring style picture.

Whites, browns, black and neutrals come in for their share of attention.

The silhouette is slim, with flexibility provided through aida vents and other details.

HAREM SKIRT LIKED

Harem skirts enter the day time picture this season. One designer breaks the slim line with a gently-bloused skirt, held in check by a wide band at the hem.

CHANGE STRIPES

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Indian policemen want to replace their elaborate red-striped turbans with police caps because the stripe reminds them of the days when British ruled their country. Their recently formed union presented the inspector-general of police with a complaint that their present uniform "was designed by Britishers and was well suited to the police

UPHOLD DAMAGES

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two judgments totalling $20,000 against the Toronto tabloid Flash, its publishers and distributors, were upheld Monday in British Columbia Supreme Court. The judgments were obtained in Prince Rupert, B.C., by Hugo Kraupner and deal Cleaners and Laundry Ltd., over a letter to the editor.

Prints Show off Fresh Charms of Softened Styles

Feminine, spring-fresh and easy-slim fashions find prints a perfect medium for displaying their charms. New patterns in prints adapt ideally to the softened sheath and the coat-dress costume, and are equally appropriate to the most casual clothes.

Full covered ground prints are favored for the slim silhouette, reports the Silk and Rayon Print Institute. Small, delicate patterns, often spaced florals, are used to advantage in skirts pleated to combine fullness with a narrow line.

Richly patterned sheaths are seen separately and with jackets. Other types include textured fabrics with print blouses and identical-print-lined jackets.

Print patterns repeat flower and foliage designs in flamboyant or muted colorings. Included are realistic florals, scattered flowers and subtle suggestions of florals and foliage.

Many abstracts are noted, with suggestions of dots, spotted effects and spattered designs predominant.

Gold-splashed, sari and paisley impressions are among the more important traditional-influenced prints.

Surah, shantung, rayon linens, acetates and blends in fresh colorings dominate the print fabric selection.

NECKLINES GO BARE

Lower necklines are a spring style favorite. Interpretations include camisole strapless tops, covered up for day, bare for late day.

DIDN'T TRUST BANKS

CHICAGO (AP) — A 78-year-old partially blind widow, who told police she and her late husband did not trust banks, Monday reported the burglary of $25,000 in $20 bills from her home. Mrs. Sophia Wysokinski said the money was kept in a paper bag in a trunk in her third-floor apartment on the city's southwest side, and that she had last opened the trunk a month ago.

Prevailing Coat Line

By ALICE ALDEN

The high waistline, actual or simulated, is a distinguishing feature of new spring coats. The slim line still prevails, often softened by blousing or panels. Navy petit-point wool is the choice for this handsome coat designed by one of New York's leading coat houses. Slim in line, the coat is belted for a slightly high-waisted look. It buttons from tailored revers, has cuffed, below-elbow sleeves and to break the severity there is a streamered self fabric bow in back, a telling touch.

Lingerie Shows Oriental Airs, Empire Effects

With Oriental influences and empire lines dominant, lingerie and sleepwear follow the latest fashion trends and add some fabric news of their own, in the form of newly-developed non-textured no-iron cottons and blends of miracle synthetics with silk.

The smooth surface of such fabrics as little-or-no-iron cotton batiste, broadcloths or lawn permits more elaborate detailing.

Tucks, smocking, shirring, draping or embroidery combine with lace and ribbon trims to give spring lingerie a delicate, feminine air.

Silk-synthetic blends with the texture of crepe or satin are liked for their opulent appearance and easy-care advantages. Drapability is a factor here, too, and often results in a custom-made look.

Along with the newer fabrics, embossed cottons, pliases, nylons and cotton-synthetics get fresh, attractive treatments.

Plain or fancy, slips and petticoats are designed with an eye to their appropriateness under spring fashions. A complete lingerie wardrobe should include both slim and full-skirted silhouettes.

Slender slips make effective use of the empire effect, with tucked and ribbon-trimmed bodices. A pretty example of the flaring-skirted slip has diagonal lace inserts.

For spring slumbers, popular entries are knicker pyjamas and straight shorts with long torso tops. The latter style is a variation on the "baby doll" combination of shortie top with bloomer briefs.

Pyjamas, waltz or full length robes and gowns take mandarin necklines or caftan-coat side slits.

AIDS SHOPPING EASE

What's in a name? In the case of stockings, new names mean easier shopping.

Thanks to a welcome innovation in the hosiery field, women may ask for hose to fit specific needs, using these easy-to-remember terms: "Walking Sheers," "Dress Sheers," and "Evening Sheers."

Walking Sheers are recommended for hard, everyday wear, Dress Sheers for wear with dressier daytime outfits, and Evening Sheers for gala occasions.

Ensembles Top Maternity List

Good things come in twos and threes for the mother-to-be this spring. Ensembles in both the dressy and sportswear categories show delightful surprises style and fabric-wise.

Slimming all-round pleats below shoulder-draped collars and tops with detailed back appeal are the pace setters for dress-up styles.

Two-piece tailored suits of textured weaves are distinctive; headliners, with straight packets relieved by pleats in the majority. Dressy styles show up, and refreshingly so, in two-piece buttons, as rhinestones and angora trimmings put the accent on glamor.

Three-piece ensembles of lively versatility consist of jerkin tops with matching skirts and bright contrasting blouses which can be worn with other skirts or slacks.

Princess sheath in wool worsted houndstooth check features detachable cape, collar. By Junior Sophisticates. Kodak camera.

Lighter Weights Predominate In the New Spring Topcoats

The current swing to lighter weights in every segment of a man's wardrobe is reflected in the new topcoats for Spring.

Tweed will continue to register sharp gains over its nearest rival, gabardine, with cheviots, saxonies, and coverts bringing up the procession in about that order.

The color trend, as in all men's wear, is away from dark shades to light and medium tones. Gray will be the leading basic color, except on gabardines, where it will be tan. Herringbones, and small checks will be favored among the tweeds, many of which will feature duo-tone effects, such as blends of brown with white and blue with gray.

In general, the style trend is in the direction of greater formality and elegance in topcoats. Lines will be predominantly straight from the shoulder. Many models will feature notch collars, fly-front closings and extra ticket pockets.

LUGGAGE FOLDS AWAY

For the family with limited closet space is luggage designed to fold down for storing in a bureau drawer. The bags open by means of an aluminum spring frame into a conventional appearing suitcase.

STRIPES ARE STARS

Stripes will play a stellar role on the sportswear stage this year. Shirts, slacks, shorts and knit shirts run the gamut from the boldest of blazer stripes to the finest of hairlines in both horizontal and vertical treatments.

Foundations Have Attractive, Gentle Ways Of Coaxing Silhouette into Slender Shape

Foundation fashioned for fuller figures has a zipper front that eliminates back hooking. All-in-One Tapered by Diana.

Underneath spring fashions, foundations form a slim line in a gentle and attractive way.

Fresh colors, sheer fabrics and decorative details add glamor to girdles, brassiers, corselets and bra-lettes that subtly shape the bosom, ease the waist and gradually curve the hips.

Perhaps the best news in brassieres is the number of styles with convertible or wide-angled straps to suit the varied and more open necklines of outer fashions.

Enticing, too, is the wide range of colors in which bras are available. Pastel pink, blue, lime, beige, lilac and maize join the more conventional white and black.

JUNIOR STYLES VARIED

There is an equal color range in junior girdles and pantie girdles, along with imaginative styling. Many rise high at the waistline; others dip in front.

Some pantie girdles have cut-up legbands, others feature elastic-cuffed leg sections.

Girdles for the average to full figure feature rigid panels alternating with elastic and easy-fitting waistlines. These high-rise girdles without cinch effect give the figure a longer look.

The lengthened line is similarly achieved by the corselette, both in all-elastic versions for the youthful figure and in more controlled styling for the average figure. Light boning through the midriff insures the smooth fit of both fashions as the empire sheath.

FITTED FOR FASHIONS

The popular wrap outline of fitted bolero with softly-pleated skirt has perfect underline in the bra-lette, with control ending at the hipline in front and dipping lower in back.

An innovation in bra-lettes, as in bandeaux, is fuller padding in the cup sections, to lift the bosom high. Many bra-lettes have yet another recommendation; they are cut low in back for dresses plunging to a deep V.

In the fabric picture, cotton makes its annual reappearance, in lace or with embroidery more often than plain. Dacron-cotton blends, patterned satin elastics and stretch nylon are other fabric highlights in foundations.

Along with ever-all color, there are interesting touches of color in embroidery and appliques. Most often these are pink or blue, but maize, lime and combinations of the pastels are also noteworthy.

Comfort Is Big Feature Of Fashions

Sportswear with an international flavor captures fashion's imagination for spring, as separates combine foreign themes with slim American lines and modern, easy-care qualities.

From the Orient come tiny prints and exotic colors in silk and fine cotton blouses, and tunics that cover everything from bathing suits, shorts and slacks to almost-formal separates. Caftan or mandarin coats, often sleeveless, often knit, act as cool weather cover-ups.

Flaky, slim "column" slacks, not tapered but slender all the way up, are new, combined with ever-popular cotton knit shirts or easy overblouses.

SPANISH INFLUENCE SEEN

A growing influence this year is Spanish, even sometimes in cotton blouses with delicate lacy designs, sometimes in hand crocheted wool mantilla blouses. From France, striped middies are gaining in importance.

England's classic, the cashmere, receives new interpretations this year, in the "elongated" look in pullovers and the waist-length "clipped" look for cardigans and twin sets. Many of the sweaters have dyed-to-match skirts.

Color keying follows a variety of trends. A skirt may pick up the dominant color in its accompanying print blouse, or a tone on tone effect may be achieved.

KNITS MAKE NEWS

Knit dresses, long loved for their versatility and packability, have multiplied their virtues. Many of the new fabric blends of synthetics with cotton and rayon or linen and wool which give them a textured look and increase their wonder-care qualities.

The synthetic-blend knits are hand-washable, need no ironing or blocking, and can be hemmed, making it possible for the smaller woman to wear a one-piece knit. Most popular are sophisticated scoop or bateau neck sheaths with their own bolero, short jacket or coat cover-ups.

Pants go to all lengths this year, from long, tapered slacks, sometimes with vertical stripes to emphasize the leggy look, to extra-short shorts.

Replacing Bermudas as an in-betweener are Jamaica shorts, slightly shorter than Bermudas and much more flattering. Cotton chinos in all lengths are popular in co-ordination with bright calico print blouses.

Major colors in spring sportswear are apricot, yellow, mint, blue and pink.

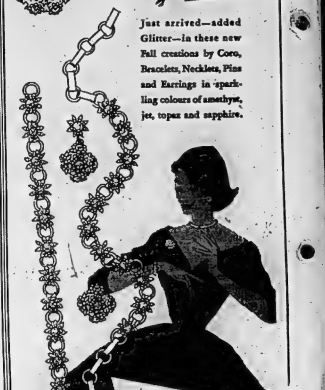
Subteens Borrow From Adult Styles

Subteen fashions emulate adult preferences this spring, especially in ensembles and Oriental styling, and the result is delightful.

Ensembles for the growing-up girl represent one of the most wanted groups. Here, dresses team up with long, straight coats, dusters, caftans, sleeveless boxy or bolero jackets or little capelets.

In subteen suits, boxy jackets coupled with narrow or gently gored skirts head the favored list, with bloused backs providing a new variation of the box jacket.

Textured silks and woollens are popular, and a quality look in fabrics pervades styles in all price ranges as cottons, rayons and synthetic blends dress-disguise as silks, linens and satins.



The empire dress continues as a favorite with the junior high set. Side-slit sari dresses styled in Oriental cotton prints and seersucker are liked for dress-up wear, along with other Orient-inspired fashions.

High-School Set Favors Empire Line

Elegance prevails in spring fashions for teens, with luxurious fabrics, Oriental influences, empire silhouettes and dressmaker details all contributing their share.

It's a lady-like but youthful elegance, appropriate to the age and activities of the high-schooler.

For example, trend-setting styles such as the empire line undergo special treatment as they enter the teen world. The high-rise waistline combines with the low hemline to produce a perfect silhouette.

For this teen look, both high and low lines are indicated with self or contrast trim.

SHEATHES SOFTENED

Sheaths are softened with ribbons, bows and back streamers. Cardigan styling for the coats that cover the sheaths provides youthful sophistication, as do the side-slit caftan coats.

Fashion-conscious teens like the costume in all of its varieties —sheath or princess dress with jacket, cape, bolero or coat. They like, too, the well-tailored suit, newly important for the high school crowd.

In this age group, suit jackets are most often semi-fitted classics, teamed with gently gored or pleated skirts. Another favorite here is the boxy jacket and easy-slim skirt.

FABRICS FAIR OFF

The Oriental theme appears not only in the caftan coat, but also in dresses with cummerbunds like obi sashes and in other details such as inverted pleats around the hemline of full skirts.

The fabrics used are distinguished for their look of luxury, and that applies not only to the silks, linens and wools but to the cottons, nylons and rayons as well.

Often, teen fashions display the charms of not one but two fabrics, co-ordinating cottons and rayons, silks and wools, cotton satin and dotted Swiss. Colors coordinate too, as checks or pastel plaids pair with solids.

Boys' Togs Feature Stripes, Campus Cut, Lightened Colors

What are little boys' fashions made of? This spring, the answer seems to be Ivy League togs and everything stripes.

Since its inception last year, the campus cut in boys' clothes has gained considerably in popularity. One important reason is the more wearable color-range witnessed this season.

Whitened colors make this a light, bright spring and are a striking change from deep and charcoaled tones. Light and medium grays and tans in solids, tweeds and plaids emerge as the big suit and coat colors, while light blues are close runners-up.

Stripes blaze across the boys' apparel horizon in a big way, appearing in everything from tweedy coatings and washable suits to blazer jackets and slacks and shirt sets. Blazers lean to the conservative and dressy side, favoring khaki-white-black and clear stripes.

An Italian look finds wide approval in casual shirt and shorts sets, with stripes appearing again as an important factor in developing the look. Here, as in the sum and substance of this season's boyswear the cut and look of Dad's clothes are effectively imitated.

Favorite trouser style this year is the tapered, no-pleat model with back-buckled belt.

Considerable interest is centered on the silk look in rayon and acetate suitings which are styled to look like Italian silk or silk shantung.

Hose Co-ordinate With Color Groups Of Major Styles

Color co-ordination is outstanding on the fashion scene this season, and spring and summer hosiery follows the pace.

Stockings have been lightly color-kissed in Oriental tones to match up with the Eastern influence in major fabric and leather color groups. But, in all the new stocking shades, delicacy is the keynote.

Nylons with color names such as "Persian Rose," "Pink Poppy" or "Bali Rose" are delicately tinged with pink or peach. They're designed to wear with pink to rose-red fashions.

Then there are stockings in pale-tinted gold, called "Mandarin" or "Sun Blossom," and in an iridescent gold, named "Butterfly." All point up the fashion liking for yellow.

To wear with costumes in ivory, off-white, cream and beige, there are nylons in pale blonde tones, with the provocative names of "Water Lily," "Bamboo" and "Chopsticks."

Spring pastels are reflected in sheer stretch stockings. An iced blue shade bears the name of "Bali Blue," and a whitened mint is called "Cathay Green."

Colors taken from the plumage of a Chinese bird appear in one group of stockings. Shades range from light to dark and include soft pastels.

Miniatures of 'Mile Zero' Post Souvenirs for Dawson Creek

MILE ZERO

This sign-post in the middle of the main intersection at Dawson Creek, B.C., marks the beginning of the 1,533-mile Alaska highway. Atop the sign is a board giving mileage to the important stops along the highway. Miniatures of the mile-zero post are distributed to the Peace River area as souvenirs. (CP Photo).

By STAN McCABE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP)—Dawson Creek makes a lot out of nothing.

A fancy sign in the middle of the town's main intersection is considered here to mark "Mile Zero" of the 1,533-mile Alaska highway.

Atop the sign is a board showing that Fort Nelson, B.C., is 300 miles away, Whitehorse, in the Yukon, 918 miles off and Fairbanks, Alaska, 1,523 miles "up the highway."

Just as Calgary distributes white cowboy hats to distinguished visitors, officials of this Peace River community of 6,300 hand out miniatures of the "mile zero" post to prominent persons.

SOLD TO TOURISTS

They are displayed in many offices in town and are sold to tourists headed over the motorist's version of the Northwest Passage.

The "Mile Zero" promotion doesn't stop with the sign post erected by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. There's a Mile Zero Hotel, a Mile Zero cafe, a Mile Zero service station and a local soft drink company bottles "Zero" in nine different flavors.

Another slogan goes far back into the town's history and says:

"One hundred and sixty years ago, Alexander Mackenzie slept here. Nobody is asleep here now."

The place where Mackenzie slept has grown into a community nestled against the foothills of the Rocky mountains, 736 miles from Vancouver and 453 by highway from Edmonton.

Practically everyone in the Peace River country, roughly 80,000 square miles in northern British Columbia and Alberta, talks boom in the most flowery chamber of commerce terms. The population is numbered in thousands but many feel the country can support at least 1,000,000 persons.

RICH GRAINLANDS

Trucks haul more than 3,000,000 bushels of grain a year to the Northern Alberta Railway. Livestock sales bring in more than $1,200,000. Millions of feet of lumber are cut in the area each year.

Although the community is classed as a village under British Columbia law, it would rank 17th among 34 cities in the province if it assumed city status. Incorporated in 1936, it has extended its boundaries four times since 1951 and now has an area of 2,606 acres.

Similar growth has occurred in the rival town of Grande Prairie, Alta., 72 miles to the southeast, where the population, set at 2,664 in the 1951 census, now is estimated at about 6,200.

Even the small town of Grimshaw, Alta., the jumping-off point for the Mackenzie highway that leads to the shore of Great Slave lake in the Northwest Territories, has doubled its population in 10 years to about 800.

GAS, OIL RESOURCES

Gas and oil development and expansion of the economy of the Northwest Territories and the Yukon are major reasons for the growth of the Peace River area.

Discovery of natural gas reserves on both sides of the provincial border has led to plans for the $152,000,000 Westcoast Transmission Co. pipeline to the Pacific coast. Clearing gangs have started slashing a route for the line through the bush of northeastern British Columbia.

Construction of the line will mean the building of an $8,000,000 gas scrubbing plant at Taylor Flats, 36 miles up the Alaska highway from here. Tests are under way at a Pacific Petroleums Co. well near Port St. John to pave the way for the plant's removal of by-products from the gas.

Two oil refineries are being built here and at Grande Prairie. Each will have a capacity of more than 2,000 barrels a day.

In one week recently drilling crews were looking for oil at 36 widely-separated points in the Peace River country. And builders expect that oil will be moving soon through an 8,000,000 pipe line that runs 110 miles from the Shurgeon Lake oil fields to the Trans Mountain pipe line which crosses the Rockies to the Pacific coast.

HOUSING SHORTAGE

The Peace River boom has resulted in housing difficulties in growing centres.

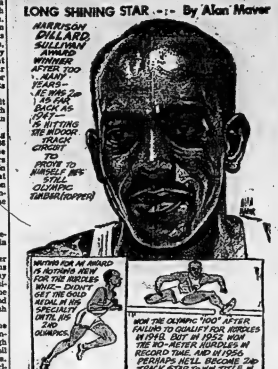
"I came up here last October and it was more than two months before I could find a place for my family," said a Dawson Creek businessman. "One fellow said he wanted $18,000 for his house and when I asked him how much cash was needed he said, '$8,000.'"

A. E. Galway, secretary of the Grande Prairie Chamber of Commerce, recalled he had a tough job finding homes for the first oil company executives in the area. Their office space was in a curling rink.

Now builders are finishing 305 new houses in one development and building permits for 1955 totalled $1,983,467.

All the shopping districts in major towns boast new buildings or display signs that new buildings are coming soon.

In Grimshaw, construction totalled $285,965 in 1955.



PROPORTIONATELY LARGE

Mayor Fred Kennedy said: "That might sound like a drop in the bucket to someone from a city, but for the size of the town it is proportionately more building than there was in Edmonton."

To make room for new building, Dawson Creek has started to subdivide its old air field, with the village commissioners committed to finding space for a new landing place.

The Dawson Creek office of the National Employment Service in 1953 placed close to 3,000 workers, the equivalent of almost one-half the population of the community. Manager W. Wilson said the work of his office has tripled in three years.

LONG SHINING STAR . . . By Alan Mavor

Mr. Wilson said the number of workers who can be placed in the area is determined by the tight housing situation.

One dark spot in the Peace River picture is the grain marketing situation. Asked how farmers' inability to sell their crops was affecting business, a bank manager said "farmers haven't got money so they're not spending it." He said some farmers have not been able to meet commitments such as ordinary bank loans.

MANTLE HURT

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees became a spring training casualty Tuesday, complaining of a sore right arm and lame right leg. Mantle took part in 25 innings of the club's first three exhibition games but was not permitted to make the trip to Sarasota to play Boston Red Sox. He has been instructed to rest for a few days.

Quebec League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Shawinigan-Falls Cataracts, with the Quebec Hockey League championship safely tucked away and nothing at stake but their prestige, appear determined to display their vaunted power down to the wire.

The Cataracts treated themselves to a scoring party Tuesday night, romping over the runner-up Montreal Royals 9-2 at Shawinigan Falls. The victory boosted their lead over Montreal to 12 points. Both teams have two games remaining in regular season play, which ends Sunday.

Meanwhile, Chicoutimi Saguenens, already assured of third place, sharpened their scoring eyes for the playoffs by crushing the hapless Trois-Rivieres Lions 7-0 on home ice Tuesday night. Lions have been eliminated from the post season round.

Bowling Contests Singles Play in Quarter-Finals

TORONTO (CP)—Singles play in Ontario five-pin bowling championships enter quarter-finals today with eight contestants in both men's and women's division matched in teams of four.

A two-day 10-game initial round ended Tuesday with the low-scoring four of 12 regional representatives in both men and women divisions dropping out.

Dennis Linton of Oshawa led the men with a 2,688 total pin-fall of 2,625. He scored 1,586 points in Tuesday's five games to recover from a poor 1,043 in his first five games. Four of his games were over 200 and one of 363 was the best in the round.

Hal Reibel of Kitchener was second with 2,393 and George Miller of Welland third with 2,386.

LEADS LADIES

Mrs. Irene Atkinson of Sudbury, a former regional winner, leads the ochetz of ladies who will continue into match play. She rolled 1,214 Tuesday, with a 272 single, for a first-round total of 2,319.

Mrs. Mabel Wilkes of Woodstock who led after first-day play, was edged by a scant two pins to finish second.

The four bowlers with the highest scores will be drawn against the remaining four for the next round in both men and women divisions.

Those forced to drop out included northern Ontario's male entrant, Norm Coppelelli of Copper Cliff; Mrs. Betty Matthews of Gananoque; and Miss Margaret Rutledge of Campbellford, representing Peterborough-Oshawa.

Pep Gets Nod Over Mexican

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Wily Willie Pep, former featherweight champion from Hartford, Conn., gave Mexico's Kid Campeche a lesson in boxing here Tuesday night as he won an unanimous decision before 1,000 fans.

Pep had things his own way for the full 10 rounds and received the nod from all three judges by outboxing, outpunching and outsmarting the eager but outclassed Campeche.

At 127 pounds, Pep gave away a little more than a pound to his opponent.

RUN OR FIGHT!

What should be a pleasant departure from the usual run of yawn-and-stretch flistic battles on television screens takes place tonight in Chicago's stadium when welterweight champion Carmen Basilio takes on Johnny Saxton in a title-bar brawl.

It should be one of the better jousts since there is a no or love lost between these gloved gladiators. Nor will it be any fifteen-round bicycle chase if Basilio gets his way.

Saxton is not averse to back-pedalling and furnishing a running target for the foeman's futile guns. And he has a strict admiration for the lethal power concealed in the champion's gloves. Twice he watched Basilio come from behind and blast out the forward-moving Tony Demarco with the thunder of his leather-cased artillery.

And since Saxton lost the crown himself on a 11th-round technical knockout he is fully aware of the Basilio power and ability to absorb punishment and keep coming.

Basilio has no intention of breaking Landy's record in the ring chasing the wily Saxton. In fact the battle-scarred ex-marine has informed his opponent that if he wants the title, he must come and get it in a stand-up knockdown battle.

"I like the man who comes in and is willing to exchange," said the New York welterweight boss. "It takes two to make a fight and any fighter owes it to his public to give them a run for their money. Especially Saxton, after a couple of bad ones he's been in."

But these caustic comments do not raise a wrinkle in the Saxtonian brow. For Johnny is canny. He knows what could happen if he stands toe-to-toe and slugs it out with the champion. He is sure he can outslug him. He admits it.

Says he: "I know I can outbox him, but I'm not sure about those stand-up-and-hit tactics. Why should I try to exchange punches with him? I'll box him all the way, but I won't run."

Saxton's behavior in the ring in his past fights scarcely raises him as being a brash young man who figures he can overcome the opposition with the audacity of his attack. Not Johnny. He is noted for being a clever, but so cautious a fighter, "He who has and runs around lives to fight another round" could be his maxim.

Basilio knows his "onions." He should. He worked on his dad's scallion farm with nine sisters and brothers, and lifting those crates of vegetables helped build him into a powerful man. He is a converted southpaw and from the forside comes his knockout punch. He has exceptional stamina and fifteen rounds do not bother him.

Saxton, in turn, must go back to the sharp boxing form of two or three years ago to cope with the steady, sturdy, self-confident Basilio. Saxton snapped back against Tiger Jones, but here he is faced with a problem that he couldn't handle against Tony DeMarco, and Basilio has knocked out DeMarco twice. DeMarco in turn lays'd Saxton.

But the dead-pan Saxton is said to be in prime condition. He sets his own pace, fast or slow, and has a dangerous left hook. Since losing the title to DeMarco he has won four straight, his last being an unanimous decision over Tiger Jones. Outweighed by ten pounds he treated the middleweight like a punching bag, opening cuts under both Jones' eyes.

Saxton has fought 56 bouts, winning 49, 20 by knockout. He has lost three and drawn two. Basilio has fought 66 times, winning 48, 22 by knockout, and losing 11.

GETTING HOT!

The fat's in the senior "B" fire, and the feud's a-fannin' fast betwixt the Kingston Goodyears and the Cornwall Colts. Word from Cornwall has it that the Colts' management has protested the first Goodyear victory on the grounds of inefficient officiating. Messrs. Andy Bellemer and Jim Crombie are the gentlemen involved.

Cornwall claims a goal that tied the score did not cross the goal-line and sent on another occasion a Kingston player grasped the puck and pushed it to a waiting team-mate who obligingly raced in to score a goal.

Now this is not cricket in the best of hockey circles, Cornwall claims, and according to the sports pages down thataway, Manager Ray Miron has filed an official protest with the OHA.

Better be careful, buster. This OHA and its officials have been going steady for some time and a measly little alleged misinterpretation of the rules is not going to break up a beautiful friendship. The hockey brass has shown a decided yen, especially this season, that right or wrong, the officials are always right.

The Goodyears have a 2-1 game edge in the series with the teams clashing again in Cornwall tomorrow night. They're back in Kingston Saturday night, and return to Cornwall for the sixth fray Sunday afternoon.

REVIVING HISTORY

ROME (AP)—The traditions of ancient Rome will be revived for the 1960 summer Olympics, Olympic planners said Tuesday. Tentative plans call for the weight-lifting competition to be in the Colosseum, where gladiators fought for their lives during the sports festivals 2,000 years ago.

Need Help from Other Clubs To Clinch Playoff Position; Toronto Wants Pair of Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins are in fourth place in the National Hockey League but they'll need help from two other clubs to retain the last Stanley Cup playoff berth.

Bruins defeated Detroit Red Wings 4-0 at Boston in Tuesday night's only game. The win gave Bruins 59 points, one more than fifth-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

Boston has one game left — at Boston Sunday against Chicago Black Hawks. Leafs play two more games, Saturday at Toronto they play Hawks, then visit Detroit Sunday.

A Boston win would leave Bruins with 61 points. The Toronto wins would give Leafs clear possession of fourth place, a win and a tie for Leafs would leave the teams deadlocked in points and games won.

Should they have the same number of victories, the team scoring the most goals would enter the playoffs. Should it further tie-in breaker be necessary, the dispute would be settled in favor of the team that permitted the least goals.

Bruins gave the idle New York Rangers a shot in the arm by defeating the second-place Detroiters, who have 75 points. Trailing the Wings by two points with three games to go, the third-place Rangers would have had virtually no chance of overhauling Wings if Detroit had won. Wings have two games left, one at New York Thursday.

Backed by the netminding of Terry Sawchuk, Bruins recorded their first shutout win over Wings in 33 games. It was Sawchuk's ninth shutout of the season.

Cheered on by 8,418 fans, Bruins jumped into a 2-0 lead in the first period and added a tally in each of the last two frames.

Real Chevrefils, Vic Stasiuk, Jerry Toppazzini and Johnny Peirson were the scorers. Chevrefils, Stasiuk, Toppazzini and Sawchuk all are former Detroit players.

Canucks, Barrie Series All Square; Play Tonight

KITCHENER (CP)—Left winger Willie O'Ree punched home a goal at 5:40 of the overtime period here Tuesday night to give Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks a 5-4 victory over Barrie Flyers in the second game of their OHA Junior A quarter-final.

The teams finished all even, with three wins and a tie apiece, necessitating a sudden death game in Barrie tonight.

Tuesday night's game was the third overtime contest in four played on Kitchener ice and the winning goal was scored while left winger Jack Kane served a penalty for interference.

Kitchener - Waterloo defenceman Bob Duncan also served a minor penalty in the overtime period, but the Canucks held the Flyers at bay until he returned to the ice.

Barrie coach Hap Emms withdrew goalie Bob Senior from the nets with two minutes to play in the extra period, but the Flyers couldn't get the equalizer which would have given them the series and the right to advance against Toronto St. Michael's.

Right winger Walt Bradley scored his second goal of the game with less than five minutes remaining in the third period to tie the score at 4-4 and force the overtime period.

Bradley and Stan Balluk gave the Canucks a 2-0 lead in the first period before Flyers' sharpshooter Bob Beckett got the first of his two goals. Defenceman John Chaszczewski tied the game at 2-2 all on a breakaway in the second. Whitey Dougherty's goal gave the K-W a 3-2 lead, but Beckett tallied in the last minute of play to knot the score again.

George Ranieri pounced on a loose puck to put Flyers ahead 4-3 midway through the period on a solo goal and Bradley's tying goal came on a passout from Balluk at 15:43.

Junior Habs Trim Teepees Before 5,000

OTTAWA (CP)—Montreal Junior Canadiens edged St. Catharines Teepees 3-1 Tuesday night in a Laurier Cup hockey game before close to 5,000 fans.

The Laurier Cup champion Canadiens broke into a 2-0 first period lead on goals by Ralph Backstrom and Claude Richard. Don Courey widened the gap to 3-0 at the halfway mark of the second period before Wayne Hillman replied for the Teepees near the end of the final frame.

Blackstorm opened the scoring at 11:06 when he took a pass from Richard, faked a return pass and rifled a high shot past Mary Edwards in the St. Catharines net.

Richard made it 2-0 at 16:16, cruising in to take a relay from Claude Provencher before slipping the puck behind Edwards who was caught out of position.

GRABBED LOOSE PUCK

Courey counted the only goal of the second frame when he grabbed a loose puck at the losers' blue line and rammed a hard shot into the St. Catharines goal. Pat Kelly of St. Catharines was in the penalty box at the time.

Hillman saved the losers from a whitewashing at 7:23 of the last stanza. The Teepees had been pulling on a sustained gauntlet attack when the puck was flipped back to the point. Hillman drove a screen shot which never left the ice as it went past Ed Johnston in the Montreal goal.

Referees Jimmy McEvoy and Perry Shero handed out 10 minor penalties including four to defenceman Pat Kelly of the Teepees.

Belter Basilio 2-1 Favorite Over Boxer Johnny Saxton

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP)—It's slugger vs. boxer for the welterweight championship of the world tonight with Carmen Basilio defending his 147-pound crown against former champion Johnny Saxton.

Basilio, a wade-in belter, held as a 2-to-1 favorite as the two scrappers turned up for the weigh-in at Chicago Stadium, where the 15-round title match is scheduled for 10 p.m. EST.

A crowd of 10,000 is expected to contribute a $75,009 gate with another 100,000 coming from TV-radio. The tightest will split 30-30. There will be an 80-mile TV blackout of the Chicago area.

This is the second title defence for Basilio, who won the championship from Tony DeMarco June 10, 1955, and then repulsed DeMarco's bid to recapture the crown Nov. 30, the champ's last start.

LOST TO TONY

Saxton, 22, lost the 147-pound title to DeMarco April 1, 1955, on a 10th round technical knockout in his very first defence after winning the crown from Kid Gavilan Oct. 20, 1954.

Although tonight's principals have somewhat similar records—Basilio with 48-11-7 and 22 knockouts and Saxton with 50-4-2 and 20 KOs—the muscular little tiger from Canastota, N.Y., is regarded as a slight favorite by most bettors.

While Basilio was dishing out two knockouts to the rugged DeMarco last year, both in 12 rounds but the first called a technical K.O., Saxton chilled only one foe, Jimmy Fuller.

Furthermore, Basilio is riding a 15-bout unbeaten streak dating from a 15-round loss to Gavilan in a 1953 title match at Syracuse, N.Y., while Saxton gets this title shot after a modest comeback.

Basilio has said Saxton can only win the title by "coming to me." That could mean a lot of body punishment for Saxton and he may elect to hit and run.

Jim Norris, International Boxing Club president, has promised tonight's winner a June shot at the winner of the May 18 Sugar Ray Robinson-Bobo Olson middleweight match.

Canny Watson Used Psychology On Conacher

NEW YORK K(CP)—Coach Phil Watson, who has used just about every trick to keep New York Rangers rolling in high gear this season, disclosed Tuesday how he combined a newspaper story and some psychology to steam up left winger Pete Conacher for last Sunday night's game here against Toronto Maple Leafs.

The story in a Toronto newspaper quoted Leaf general manager Hap Day as drawing a comparison between Charley Conacher, Pete's father, and Jerry James, a Toronto rookie forward.

James, who gave up pro football with Winnipeg Blue Bombers to join the hockey Leafs this season, scored his second goal of the season when Montreal beat Toronto 4-3 last Thursday.

Day remarked afterwards that James played so well that "he looked just like (Charlie) Conacher."

TOOK LIBERTIES

Watson took some liberties with the quote, twisting it just enough to make his Day had said James would be another Charley Conacher.

Before Sunday night's game, he called Pete Conacher in and said:

"You should be proud of your father's name and you ought to be mad enough (about the Conacher-James comparison) to knock James out of the rink."

Watson said he told Pete "there was only one Charley Conacher and if anybody's going to be the new Charlie Conacher it should be his son, number 9."

The Ranger coach said Pete "got so mad he wanted to punch me in the nose."

Pete was the outstanding player against the Leafs Sunday night as the Rangers won 4-2 after losing 5-2 in Toronto the previous night. He scored two goals to boost his season total to 11 in 38 games since coming up from Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League.

Make Changes In Big Four TV Schedule

TORONTO (CP)—The Big Four Football Union's television committee Tuesday drew up a revised schedule to take into account the CBC's inability to provide TV time for night games.

The new schedule will be submitted to all four clubs for approval and will be released for publication after they have discussed it and made any further changes, said Sam Berger, president of Ottawa Rough Riders and committee chairman.

The Big Four hoped to televise a number of night games that were included in the schedule announced last Jan. 24. The change of plans became necessary after the league learned that the CBC did not have night time available.

Under the proposed new schedule night games will still be played, but only games on Saturday afternoon and the Labor and Thanksgiving holidays would be telecast. This year, Ottawa, Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Toronto Argonauts are planning to play floodlight games. Floodlight facilities are not available in Montreal's park.

'Gutless Draft Boards, Politicians Take Athletes' Best Years'—Williams

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Ted Williams says Brooklyn pitcher Johnny Podres wouldn't have been caught in the draft if he had been a world series flop.

"Podres is paying the penalty for being a star," the Boston Red Sox slugger said Tuesday. "If Podres had lost those world series games, he would probably still be with the Dodgers."

Podres recently was reclassified 1-A from 4-F after three years of being deferred from military service because of a bad back. Williams blamed the situation on "gutless draft boards, gutless politicians and gutless sports writers."

In sounding off, Williams brought into the open a matter subject to ball players.

"When Podres became a hero in the series," he said, "some politicians said, 'why isn't a big tough kid like that in the army?'"

"DIDN'T HAVE COURAGE"

"The draft boards didn't have the courage to oppose the politicians and the sportswriters are equally to blame because they didn't take up the case for Podres. . . ."

Ted himself was recalled as a marine corps pilot at 34 for Korean action after a Second World War hitch.

He decried what he called the inequality of deferments which allow college students and major corporation employees to continue their work while players are robbed of seasons of comparatively few productive years.

"The owners should go to the government and have the draft law changed," Williams said. "There's no reason why—with no war—ball players shouldn't serve their time in the off season.

LOSE 20 PER CENT

"Baseball careers are short and they are depriving a player of 20 per cent of his career by the draft. College students get passing grades and they are referred four years.

"Guys who work for corporations, too. What a lot of malarky! The president of the corporation goes to the draft board, pleads his man is indispensable, and whambo, the guy is deferred. Nobody is indispensable.

"But the athlete gets famous and he's gone right now. They get their best years snatched away from them because gutless draft boards and gutless politicians get a few letters and panic."

Will Question Willie Pep on Bronx Killing

NEW YORK (AP) — Assistant district attorney Fred Baroni of the Bronx said Tuesday he has asked Miami, Fla., authorities to question boxer Willie Pep to see if he can throw any light on the Bronx murder of Vincent Macri.

Macri was found shot to death in a parked car April 27, 1954.

Baroni said his office has a group photograph of Pep, Macri and others in a nightclub but he emphasized that Miami authorities only wanted Pep questioned to see if he could give them any leads in the Macri case.

Meanwhile, the Miami Daily News said Tuesday that Pep, former featherweight champion, was expected to be subpoenaed as a witness in the Macri murder disappearance in Miami last April of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ferri.

DENIES KNOWING

Pep, asked about the story in Miami, said:

"I don't know the people and don't know anything about them. I haven't been notified about any subpoena or anything but I will make an appearance if a subpoena is served."

Ferri was to have been a witness in an income tax evasion case against Albert Anastasia, of Brooklyn. However, Ferri and his wife disappeared from their Miami home and The News says officials have evidence that their disappearance was part of a gangland plan to protect Anastasia.

Baroni termed Anastasia the "common denominator" in the Macri and Ferri cases but said clues were tangled and obscure.

WAITS FOR TICKET

DETROIT (AP)—A 37-year-old press operator waited nearly half a day—then turned down four choice seats and took a third-row balcony seat for the Stanley Cup hockey playoffs at the Olympia.

Victor Vescoso had his pick of 3,500 seats. He arrived at 12:30 a.m. Monday with his portable radio. No one else showed up for seven hours. It was the seventh time Vic had been first in line for playoff ducats.

Maglie to Make Clean Start With Indians

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sal Maglie, the erstwhile Barber of New York Giants' pitching staff, is out to make a clean start with Cleveland Indians this season.

Maglie is out to:

1. Regain the salary cut he took in signing his 1956 contract.

2. Prove that he's not washed up at 38.

3. Win his first American League game.

Maglie, reported to have been slashed the maximum 25 per cent in salary, was sitting atop the baseball heap five years ago. He won 23 games for Giants in 1951, the year they won the pennant by beating Brooklyn in a three-game playoff.

He still had enough on the ball to come up with 14 victories in 1954. But he had a 9-5 mark last summer before Indians bought him from Giants. With Cleveland he was 2-2.

Tuesday, however, the right-hander from Niagara Falls, N.Y., gladdened the heart of manager Al Lopez by turning in a brilliant three-hitting stint against Chicago Cubs.

Indians won the exhibition game 11-7 as Maglie walked lead-off man Gale Wade and then set down the next nine Cubs in order, registering three strikeouts.

It became a slugfest after that and it took a six-run eighth inning, highlighted by Chico Carrasquel's three-run home run, to get the game in Indians' keeper.

Meanwhile, Maglie's former teammates, the Giants, maintained their perfect exhibition record by edging Baltimore Orioles 7-6 on George Wilson's single with the bases loaded in the 11th inning. The win was New York's fourth straight. Giants got home runs from rookie Bill White, Wes Westrum and Dusty Rhodes. Dusty was a pinch-hitter (what else?).

TO START BIG 'SPIEL

SASKATOON (CP)—The Saskatoon Hub City Curling Club is car hospiel, with a total value of prizes nearly $30,000, will start March 26 and run for a week, it was announced Tuesday.

Bonspiel chairman Fred Randall described it as "the biggest prize money curlfest in the world." Cars would be given to champions and runners-up, the other two automobiles being special awards.

Johnny Temple of Cincinnati did not hit a single home run during the 1955 season. However, he got 165 hits and is considered a "peaky" hitter by most National League pitchers.

In the following instance, Redleg manager Birdie Tebbetts used the right strategy with Temple scheduled to bat.

BIRDIE TEBBETTS

What would you have done?

(It stands for a right-handed batter or pitcher and (L) for a left-handed batter or pitcher.

The Reds are playing the New York Giants at Cincinnati. Jim Hearn (R) is pitching for the Giants as the teams go into the last of the eighth with the score tied 3-3. Roy McMillan opens the inning with a single. Pitcher Harshel Freeman, attempting to sacrifice, forces McMillan at second base. Johnny Temple (R) is the next scheduled batter with Smoky Burgess (L) and Ted Kluszewski (L) to follow.

Would you:

a. Order Temple to sacrifice?
b. Let Temple swing away?
c. Try a hit-and-run (hitting behind runner)?
d. Put in a lefty pinch-hitter for Temple?

(Result: A—Temple sacrificed Freeman to second and it paid off as Burgess singled, scoring Freeman. Redlegs won 4-3 (Sept. 10).

Duke of Flatbush Scoffs at Complacency Jibe

MIAMI (AP) — Duke Snider scoffs at those who think complacency will be Brooklyn's chief contender in the National League race this season.

"How can anybody expect this club to be complacent?" he asked. "We're still a bunch of hungry fellows. It took us a long time to get that winning share of a world series and we won't be satisfied with one helping.

"We can remember very well what happened to us in 1954 when the Giants beat us in the National League race. And don't think we also have forgotten 1951 and Bobby Thomson's home run.

"I'm still hungry. That extra money comes in handy, especially with three children, and all the responsibilities that go with them."

The Duke's "hunger" is strictly mental for he is in the $42,000 bracket, on a par with Roy Campanella, the Dodger catcher who was voted the most valuable player in the league.

Podres Induction Delayed Month

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The army induction of Johnny Podres, Brooklyn's pitching star in the 1955 world series, has been delayed at least a month.

Club officials said Tuesday that Podres' draft papers have been transferred from his local Ticonderoga, N.Y., board to a New York City board. When his local board calls him, he'll enter the army from the New York board.

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Brooklyn manager Walt Alston, never one to turn down an opportunity, announced today that army-bound Johnny Podres will pitch against Chicago White Sox in Friday's exhibition game here.

"I plan to have Johnny take a turn for a few innings against the Sox," said Alston after learning that Podres may be available to the world champions for a short while during the regular season.

Other than that, Alston would say nothing. Nor would Dodger vice-president Buzzy Bavasi.

Pompey Easy For Moore Says 'Victim'

LONDON (AP)—Moses Ward, the Detroit middleweight who failed in his attempt to make it two victories in a row over Yolande Pompey, predicted today that Archie Moore will have little trouble defending his light-heavyweight title against the Trinidad fighter.

"Moore will win by a knockout or easily by a decision," he said.

The postponed Moore - Pompey match is now scheduled for June 5 in London's White City Stadium.

Pompey, outweighing Ward by more than six pounds—170½ to 164½—was credited with a seventh-round technical knockout Tuesday night.

HIT ON CHIN

Ward moved straight into a right cross to the chin at the start of the seventh round. He staggered back, tumbled on the canvas and took a nine count. He managed, however, to weather out the round.

Pompey, who was expected to win inside of six rounds, was somewhat of a disappointment to the near-sellout crowd of 11,000 in Harringay Arena.

"Ward is an awkward customer who can make a boxer like me look bad," said Pompey.

Ward outpointed Pompey in Chicago July 21, 1954.

25 Korean Children Will Act In 'Battle Hymn' Being Filmed

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Col. Dean Hess was in Hollywood this week with 25 of his children.

The kids were flown in from Korea, where they live in the orphanage which Hess founded and helps support. They are here to act in "Battle Hymn," the film version of the colonel's amazing life.

Hess, lean, handsome and dark-haired, was at Universal-International when his charges arrived, and he rushed forward to greet them affectionately. The kids, who ranged from 2 to 8, changed their neat outfits to tattered clothes, which is how Hess found many of them in strife-torn Korea.

While he watched over the wide-eyed youngsters, he talked about the movie.

"Yes, it is somewhat eerie to be re-living your life," he observed. "I find myself looking back with regret about things I should have done.

"For instance, I remember during the early days of the war when a pew squatter like one of these came up to me in a street in Seoul and begged for something. I had the equivalent of 50 cents in my pocket, but I had been saving it to buy something to send home. I let the Korean urchin away with shoo him away."

"When I got back to the base, I kept worrying about that boy. That 50 cents would have meant so much to him."

The Hess story, which will be portrayed by Rock Hudson, begins in Marietta, Ohio, where he was a minister in the Church of the Disciples of Christ. The preacher, who had flown his light plane to churches around Ohio, joined the air force during the Second World War.

"A commission as a chaplain came through after I had graduated as a first lieutenant," he recalled. "But I sent it back. I felt that I couldn't ask my neighbor to bear arms against the enemy if I didn't do so myself. I also felt I could accomplish more as a regular officer than as a chaplain."

He flew 63 fighter-bomber missions in Europe. During one of them, a bomb dropped accidentally. He later learned that it fell on an orphanage. This weighed heavily on his mind.

During the Korean War he helped organize the South Korean Air Force and flew 250 missions himself. He was touched by the pitiful bands of orphans in that wretched land and decided to do something about it. He took over an old government building on Cheju and airlifted the orphans out of the combat zones.

"We had over 1,000 at first," he said, "but 200 died in the first two months. Death was a kindness to them."

Now there are 714 in the orphanage, and Hess has donated proceeds from his book and the movie to its support.

Life Within Mental Hospital Will Be Subject of TV Show

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 10,000,000 Americans now suffer from some form of mental disorder. . . . in the last 10 years the population has increased 20 per cent while the number of mental 44 per cent. . . . Still, hospital facilities are nowhere near adequate and large numbers of people are ignorant about mental disease, its nature and its therapy.

This is part of the background which has inspired a striking 90-minute filmed "actually drama" on CBS-TV next Sunday. The work of the CBS public affairs department and endorsed by the American Psychiatric Association, it is entitled Out Of Darkness.

Specific credit for the program goes to a quiet, intense writer-producer, Albert Wasserman, 35, who spent 3½ months with a camera crew at the Metropolitan State Hospital, Norwalk, Calif., filming life within a mental hospital.

What gives Out of Darkness both focus and dramatic impact is its study of a specific woman patient, suffering from catatonic schizophrenia. Her symptoms are those of an extremely rigid, withdrawn personality.

ROLE NOT ACTED

The TV audience will see her from the time of her entrance to the hospital until she is well on the road to social recovery. Hers is not an acted role. She is introduced by her first name and the audience sees her actually undergoing therapy. As far as can be learned, it is the first time the life of an actual mental patient has been filmed for public view. She and other patients are observed full face and in a variety of situations.

Wasserman had to wrfx out the problem of legal permission from the woman's family to allow the filming. Legal permission also had to be obtained in order to film all other patients.

For, while Out of Darkness focuses on one woman, it broadens into a small gallery of other patients in its examination of this question: What constitutes psychosis?

AT THE CAPITOL. — Johnny Weissmuller as Jungle Jim, seeks carving Angela Stevens in the opening jungle thriller, "Devil Goddess", opening Thursday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program is Technicolor "Lawless Street", starring Randolph Scott. Both features are first showings.

At The McCarthy

Fay Wray, who retired from the screen at the height of her career 12 years ago to devote full time to her children, is now back in films at their request.

The actress, who starred in 75 motion pictures, including "The Wedding March," "Legion of the Condemned," and "King Kong," appears in "Hell on Frisco Bay," which stars Alan Ladd, Edward G. Robinson and Joanne Dru. The film closes tonight at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

In Miss Wray's career time doesn't seem to march on. She's as beautiful and shapely as she was when she was one of the screen's top stars.

Now a fresh career has opened up for her. As the sweet and lovely heroine her roles never changed. Today, she says she is achieving greater satisfaction from acting in a variety of characterizations.

She now has the chance to run the gamut of emotion from A to Z, and does so in her scenes with Alan Ladd, Edward G. Robinson, Joanne Dru and Paul Stewart in "Hell on Frisco Bay" as an ex-movie star involved with a group of underworld characters.

The film is a Jaguar Production for Warner Bros. in Cinema-Scope and WarnerColor.

Your Horoscope

FOR THURSDAY, MARCH 15,

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)— Helpful influences are abundant today. So it's up to you and how you manage your affairs just how much bonus you can attain. Forward!

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)— No synthetic effort - will do this promising day. Innately solid and genuine yourself, give that kind of exertion to duties, extra tasks, and you will register worthwhile gain.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)— The effects of this day's influences will be gauged by your sincerity, the gains will steady and balance of your talents and knowhow. Don't weary or lose interest in what you do. Persist!

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)— You are efficient, dependable, creative, all grand assets to have and to use—now and always. Today you can make progress in your regular work and also in new undertakings.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)— You are qualified mentally to cope with big projects and if patient enough you will wisely value and heed smaller, even tiresome, details that will spell success and fuller achievement eventually.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — You could perhaps use more audacity to achieve results now. Splendid aspects prevail and advantages should be snapped up and turned to profit. Forward!

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Nobody spoils this day's brilliant outlook for the do-er, the rightly ambitious individual. You have talent and capability so the score is up to you. Have faith.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — A promising period. Team your industry and fine intelligence and put them to work. Much is in store for those of you who study, labor.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Day's helpful aspects furnish the wherewithal to put you and your affairs in front foot of accomplishment. But you will have to work and desire it, of course.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)— Very favorable aspects. You should have many useful, purposeful hours. Keep your objectives worthwhile and their attainment will be the pleasanter. Make time for rest, too.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Day generally can be gainful, cheerful with your willing and able co-operation. Get to important matters; maintain a steady pace.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Neptune rays now urge caution in handling chemicals, drugs, all liquids, also in water activities. In other interests, fresh opportunities are promised. YOU BORN TODAY are among the Zodiac's most personable and clever natives. You are innately modest, unassuming, yet willing to help another at any time (without show or aggrandizement). You are artistic, have talent for entertaining; may lean toward an industrial trade or perhaps study a science; versatile but not always as sure of your talents as you should be. It is important that you promote your wares and develop your capability so that others may appreciate them. You have good prospects ahead, so strive to make the most of valuable leads, offerings. Birthdate: Andrew Jackson, 7th U.S. president; Harold L. Ickes, former Secretary of the Interior.

The Soviet government and the central committee of the Communist party made the nation's restaurant service a matter of state concern in a directive broadcast by Moscow radio Friday. Waitress Admits Killing Six With Arsenic

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—State's attorney prepared to present in court today the bizarre tale of a middle-aged waitress who, they said, confessed slaying her mother, three small daughters and two of her five husbands with arsenic.

Plump, 49-year-old Mrs. Rhoda Bell Martin also told in a signed statement, said circuit solicitor William F. Thetford, how she fed ant poison to her present husband —who was once her stepson. He is still alive, though paralyzed.

A preliminary hearing was scheduled for today on the only formal charge drawn up thus far against the auburn-haired waitress —the killing of Claude Martin, her fourth husband who died in 1951.

UNDER TREATMENT

She now is married to Martin's 29-year-old son, Ronald, who has been under treatment for nine months for arsenic poisoning. Ronald's illness led to the murder investigation, and authorities arrested Mrs. Martin Friday.

After three days of questioning, Thetford announced Monday that the bespectacled waitress had signed a statement admitting the poisoning of the two Martins and five others.

Mrs. Martin was vague about a motive for the killings, the solicitor said, but said she had taken out insurance on all six victims who died. The amount was not disclosed, but Thetford said she recalled receiving between $3,000 and $4,000 from the death of Claude Martin.

She married Martin's son eight months after the death of his father.

LETHAL DOSES

Thetford said the woman told of feeding lethal doses of ant poison to three-year-old Jimmie Caroline in 1951; to six-year-old Anna Carolyn Garrett in 1940; and 11-year-old Elyn Elizabeth Garrett in 1944. The solicitor said she also described how she poisoned her second husband, George Garrett, father of the children, in 1939, and her mother, Mrs. Ida Clibborn, in 1944.

But Mrs. Martin denied killing two other children, Judith and Marty Adelaide Garrett. Thetford said the woman told of slipping the arsenic-containing ant poison into Garrett's drinks, poisoning the breakfast coffee of the two Martins and her mother, and killing her three children with poisoned milk.

Hydro Conversion In North Not Until Early '59

TIMMINS (CP)—No start is to be made on Hydro conversion from 25 to 60 cycles here until 1959 at the earliest, chairman Richard L. Hearn of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission said Tuesday.

In a letter to the town council, Mr. Hearn said the program of conversion in southern Ontario would not be completed until 1958. The commission would then consider a program for northern Ontario.

Coun. J. P. Bartleman said the policy amounts to discrimination against the North.

"We've contributed millions of dollars to the economy of this province with little return. We've contributed to the successful economy of Toronto and southern Ontario and in time we got some consideration," he said.

Same Formula Applies to All Says St. Laurent

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said Tuesday it is not the intention of the federal government to negotiate individual taxsharing agreements with the provinces on different bases.

The whole purpose of federal-provincial negotiations during the last year on the problem of sharing tax fields, to which both levels of government are given entry by the constitution, has been to find some formula acceptable to all provinces, he said.

He was replying in the Commons to Opposition leader Drew who asked whether the prime minister meant that anything offered one province by the federal government will be available to the other nine.

"Oh, certainly," said Mr. St. Laurent.

Hunters Appeal for Thorough Probe of Hunting Accidents

TORONTO (CP) — A hunters' organization told Tuesday of a "fantastic situation" under which it said it is possible for a man to commit a perfect murder simply by saying he mistook his victim for a deer.

The Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters outlined the situation before the Ontario legislature's game and fish committee in an appeal for more thorough investigations of hunting accidents.

At the same time, manager H. V. Sutton, who made the federation's appeal, said a man should be charged with criminal negligence if he said he mistook an a deer a man he has shot.

ALL INVESTIGATED

A.V. McNeil, commissioner of the Ontario Provincial Police, said later that all hunting accidents are investigated thoroughly. There were cases of men being charged with criminal negligence when they said they mistook their victims for animals. There were even circumstances where manslaughter charges would be warranted.

Mr. Sutton said "under the present procedure, or what might be termed lack of interest in investigating hunting accidents, it is quite conceivable that murder could be planned and committed without fear of detection or punishment."

"In this way, apparently all the evidence the murderer would need would be to state he thought his victim was a deer."

The federation said it is safer and cheaper to shoot a man in mistake for a deer than to shoot a domestic animal the same way.

The federation demanded that hunting permits be issued only after applicants have taken lessons in the safe handling of weapons.

In other matters, the committee refused Mr. Sutton's request that the number of hunting licences issued to Americans for pheasant shooting on Pelee island, 45 miles south of Windsor, be limited.

He said the island is so small that after Americans get on it there is no room for Canadian hunters.

Reeves Charles Oare said island residents favor the Americans for their more generous spending.

Gregory Clark, associate editor of Weekend Magazine and director of the Audubon Society of Ontario, asked in another brief for an end of regulations permitting destruction of birds of prey. He called the birds beautiful, intensely valuable and interesting features of Ontario's countryside. The Audubon brief suggested that hawks and owls in Ontario be legally protected except when doing specific damage to poultry and other domestic animals.

The recommendation was supported by the Anglers' Federation, the Federation of Ontario Naturalists and the Conservation Council of Ontario.

See Eisenhower's Words Hint Arms To Be Sold Israel

Hope for Better Solution Mentioned in Past Tense

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has provided fresh evidence that the United States administration is taking a critical new look at the whole range of its Arab-Israeli policies.

Eisenhower told a press conference Wednesday that neither he nor State Secretary Dulles had said that "what we would not furnish arms to Israel." But he added that "we were hoping for a better solution."

His use of the past tense renewed speculation that eventually the administration may decide to let the Israelis buy at least part of the $63,000,000 worth of weapons they are seeking. The Israelis submitted the requests in November to offset the purchase of Soviet-bloc arms by Egypt.

It was learned the request is under active study now on the assumption been on the shelf for months while Eisenhower and Dulles established a policy of avoiding an arms race with Russia in the Middle East.

State department officials here say that until now there has been no actual change in American policy with respect to the Middle East. It was learned last week-end, however, the U. S. was restudying relations with Egypt in the light of Cairo's increasingly strong anti-Israeli moves.

RESIGNATION NEITHER

(The New York Times, in a dispatch from Washington, reports that the U. S. is considering two proposals for a watchdog United Nations commission to keep the peace in the Middle East. The Times says the commission would warn the Security Council of any threat of war or aggression in the Middle East, and recommend action to maintain or restore peace. The UN set up such a commission in Greece in 1947 when that country was threatened by Communist guerrillas supported by her Soviet-bloc neighbors.)

Labor Body Asks Standing Board On Automation

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Labor (CCL) today asked the province to set up a standing committee to study economic and social problems likely to arise with automation.

The federation, in a brief to the Ontario government, also suggested changes in the Ontario Labor Relations Act, new legislation to establish a maximum 40-hour work week, a minimum hourly wage of $1 and a complete public health insurance system.

The brief was released to the press before delivery.

The federation, representing 200,000 Ontario workers, recommended a six-point program to deal with automation.

The program would include:

(1) The establishment of a standing committee representing labor, management and the public to study the "many social and economic problems arising from the application of automation and to recommend a continuing program of action in face of any dislocation."

(2) Economic assistance to students allowing them to be fully-trained before entering the labor market.

(3) Training and retraining of workers displaced by automation.

(4) A progressive reduction of the work week without any reduction in take-home pay.

(5) Assistance to workers required to move to other communities.

(6) Adequate social security measures to encourage early retirement.

Cenotaph Would Honor All Men Killed in Wars

OTTAWA (CP)—Construction of a national cenotaph to honor Canadian service men killed in wars is being considered by the government.

Veterans Minister Lapointe informed the Commons Wednesday that an advisory committee is about to make a recommendation on the subject, submitted its report a short time ago.

He was replying to a question by Gwen L. Grimes (CCF—Okanagan-Boundary).

The minister referred to the recommendation of the Canadian Legion's executive council that Nov. 10 that a national cenotaph be built.

The legion suggested the cenotaph be located on the broad walk leading up to the centre block of the Parliament buildings.

Today's Chuckle

"Married men live longer than single men," argued the married man to the bachelor.

"Which may be true," replied the bachelor, "if you call it living."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: With the exception of the eastern shore of Hudson Bay skies were clear throughout the province this morning in a mild spell. Winds from west pushed into the eastern half of the continent in the wake of Wednesday's storm.

A new storm developing in Texas this morning is expected to develop northeastward by Friday evening with increasing cloudiness followed by snow Friday afternoon in southern Ontario.

A second low pressure area moving rapidly southeastward from the vicinity of Great Slave Lake will bring scattered snowflurries to northwestern regions by Friday evening with a little change in temperatures.

NIXON OPPOSES SEPARATE INDIAN SCHOOL POLICY

Makes Children Shy On Mixing with Whites

TORONTO (CP) — A Liberal member of the legislature said Wednesday Ontario's 7,000 Indian children should attend the same schools as other youngsters in the province.

Harry Nixon, member for Brantford the separate education in federal-run Indian schools was demoralizing. When a few of them entered regular high schools or colleges, they were shy and suffering from inferiority complexes.

If the Indians mixed with other children from the start of their education, they would be better citizens.

Education Minister Dunlop said the government would integrate Indian schools with public schools if the federal government would pay the cost.

Mr. Nixon said he had talked with federal officials and that they are willing to enter an agreement with Ontario for financing of Indian education.

APPROVE ESTIMATES

The discussion arose during debate on the department of education estimates.

The estimates, for $108,460,000, were approved—the largest presented in the house of commons session so far during current budget debate.

The debate took up almost all of the afternoon sitting. Estimates included $84,000,000 for school grants, $8,700,000 for colleges and universities, $5,400,000 for teachers' superannuation fund, $2,500,000 for secondary schools branch and $1,000,000 for primary school branch.

CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald said provincial schools are leading children up "an educational blind alley" because they do not supply the right subjects in the right time.

He said Ontario's school system is designed "primarily to meet the needs of the few academic" and is botching in a tragic way the education of the great mass of our children."

Of every 100 students in 1950, he said, only 47 completed grade 6; 90, grade 7; 84, grade 8; 58, grade 9; 46, grade 10; 33, grade 11; 21, grade 12; and 13 grade 13.

CLAIMS WRONG SYSTEM

Only 13 per cent of students reached grade 13, he said, reason so many fell by the wayside was the government's refusal to direct the system itself to the needs of the great majority of pupils whose education ends back at some trade.

A provincial director of curricula was needed instead of letting municipalities set their own standards, Mr. Nixon said, and provincial IQ could not cope with pressures from local boards.

The government immediately should set up industrial schools to meet the needs of these thousands of students.

His remarks were answered briefly by opposition leader Farquhar Oliver, who said the government's legislative powers were easily persuaded, they "would have wooden heads if they were to work saving."

Ontario's school system was structurally sound, although there were some faults—chiefly in the "over-academic" training of teachers and principals.

Premier Frost said the government is doing a "remarkable job" in the educational field.

Wake of Jet Caused Crash Inquiry Found

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says a United States Army board of inquiry has found the wake of a flight-lying jet-plane caused the crash of a de Havilland Otter air-craft killing four persons here Feb. 14.

As a result, the newspaper says, jets on commercial flights are banned from air-space used by regular traffic.

The board of inquiry investigating the crash near suburban Downsview decided that the Otter flew into an area of turbulence created by a T-33 jet-trainer piloted by a high-speed run. No blame was attached to the jet pilot.

Investigators were reported to have found no structural defect in the Otter.

De Havilland officials said it was impossible to establish how far the jet was from the Otter, when the light aircraft went out of control, crashed and burned. Eye-witnesses reported seeing a wing drop off before the plane crashed.

The group—two RCMP officers, two soldiers and two trappers—set out from this town 350 miles northwest of Edmonton after George Wood, 20-year-old partner of Terry, trudged 25 miles on foot through heavy forest and deep snow to report Terry's plight.

The group's party ran out of gas 13 miles from Terry's main cabin on the Wolverine.

CONFER ON SIMILAR PROBLEMS

A flying visit from Paris brought French Premier Guy Mollet, left, to London for a conference with British Prime Minister Anthony Eden. Subject of their conference was the mounting tension in the Mediterranean, with France involved in retaining Algeria and Britain faced with rioting on the island of Cyprus. French premier's visit was short as new clashes in Algeria caused him to hurry back to Paris. (Central Press Canadian).

Eden Wins Confidence Vote On Pledge to Retain Cyprus

LONDON (CP) — A parliamentary vote of confidence gave weight today to Prime Minister Eden's determination to restore order to restless Cyprus before making concessions to the islanders.

The Conservatives Wednesday night defeated a censure motion, 317 to 252, after Eden made plain that his government intends to retain control over the strategic Mediterranean island colony.

Eden declared Britain faced a choice of calling Archbishop Makarios, leader of the Cypriot movement for union with Greece, or abdicating British authority. He said loss of Cyprus would weaken Western defences from the Mediterranean to the Persian gulf and would menace Britain's Middle East oil supply.

British troops on Cyprus put Eden's words to action. Soldiers and police sealed off with barbed wire a block of downtown Nicosia where terrorists killed a British police sergeant and wounded a Cypriot policeman Wednesday.

New disorders broke out again this morning, however. Terrorists wounded a British airman just outside the city walls, and two other British airmen escaped injury when fired at in a Nicosia suburb. The airmen captured one of the bicycle-riding assailants.

British authorities served notice they would make a thorough search for "a secret hideout for arms and possibly terrorists" in the region, where nine British servicemen have been killed by backers of the union-with-Greece movement since last August.

At Lanarca, another Cypriot city, a seven-year-old Greek Cypriot boy stoned military vehicles with other children was shot and killed Wednesday.

RCAF Keeping Close Check Of Russians on Ice Islands

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF is keeping check on the activities of Russian scientists working on floating ice islands in the Arctic ocean, it was learned today.

The air force doesn't make special flights to the vicinity of the North Pole to check movements of the drift stations, but takes a close look at them when carrying out training missions in the Early Warning line.

RCAF planes make frequent flights to the far Arctic for training in polar navigation. Polar missions are the trickiest of all aerial routes because the North Magnetic Pole makes it necessary to use special methods of navigation.

Governor-General Vincent Massey may catch a glimpse of the Russian-occupied ice islands when he flies to the North Pole later this month. Two Russian drift stations now are in the vicinity of the pole in the central Arctic basin.

The Russians have not attempted to conceal the secret of their occupation of the ice islands, which are being carried through blizzards on the Canadian side of the Pole. They supply information regularly from the islands which are picked up and used in Canada.

The U. S. Air Force has radar-equipped planes on regular patrol across the pole. These planes and RCAF four-engined North Stars keep watch for any possible Soviet activity in the polar regions north of DEW (Distant Early Warning) radar line along the 70th parallel above the Arctic circle.

The Russians say their work on the ice islands is connected with research into Arctic ice conditions to improve their northern sea route. Canadian officials have said they have no reason to doubt this statement.

A little more than a year ago, it was disclosed that the Russian-occupied ice islands were then 200 miles on the Canadian side of the North Pole. Authorities here said this would probably happen again and it has in the last few months.

Soviet scientists say they live on the alert because their ice floes are in the path of breaking up. The station staff has had to move four times in the last two months. The other ice island is roughly two hours' flying time away. Both drift stations have airstrips.

Last year, a group of American scientists re-occupied floating ice island T-3 in the Arctic ocean for a few months. No Canadian planes on hand for research work on ice Arctic ice island though T-3 had been discovered in April, 1941, by RCAF Sqdn. Ldr. Keith Greenaway of Woodville, Ont., one of the world's foremost aerial navigators.

Attlee Sees U.S. Apt to Stand On Sidelines

LONDON (Reuters)—East Attlee, former leader of the Labor party, said today the United States is little apt to stand on the sidelines and leave us to carry on the fight."

Attlee, making his first speech in the House of Lords and was calling attention to the deteriorating world situation in the Middle East and Cyprus.

Lord Attlee said the United States is not a participant in the Baghdad pact embracing Britain, Turkey, Iran, Iraq and Pakistan.

"Yet they draw more oil from what might be called the soft underbelly of that region than we do ourselves," he added.

Attlee said when he was prime minister the United States was "not always so helpful when we had to deal with difficulties in Iran and Egypt."

He thought it was "partly due to a rather outdated anti-colonialism."

REFUSE RESEARCH PROBE POWER TO CALL WITNESSES

House Rejects PC Bid For More Latitude

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons research committee, once it is set up and starts reviewing the role of government in non-military research, will not have the power to call witnesses or send for documents.

That is what the Commons decided Wednesday by a vote of 127 to 72, rejecting a Progressive Conservative bid to widen the proposed committee's powers. All opposition members voted en bloc against the Diefenbaker proposal.

However, the vote did not mark the end of debate on a resolution calling for the establishment of the committee, Claude Ellis (CCF—Regina City) adjourned the debate now suggesting that by CCF leader Coldwell and Finance Minister Harris, government house leader, that the debate end at the 6 p.m. adjournment of the Wednesday half-day sitting, the following the committee to start its work today.

Mr. Harris said there had been some kind of understanding that the debate end Wednesday, but Messrs. Coldwell and Ellis said they knew nothing about it.

ASKS BIGGER ALLOWANCE

During the Commons research discussion, George Isees (PC—Simcoe, Broadview) called for a more generous tax allowance for industrial research. Canadian regulations allowed a five-per-cent reduction, except in special cases approved by the revenue minister.

Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) suggested care in granting such tax concessions. The public would benefit more from inventions developed by the National Research Council than by those produced by private firms.

Fred Robertson, a doctor and parliamentary assistant to Health Minister Martin, said the government recognizes the need for more medical research in Canada, but assistance to such projects probably was limited by the number of qualified research specialists.

John B. Hamilton (PC — York West) urged greater government research on military aircraft so that information gathered could be passed on to commercial aircraft manufacturers.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC — Oxford) said some means must be found to develop more engineers and technicians in Canada so that more opportunities could be given to underdeveloped Asian countries.

W. M. Pugh (PC — Parry Sound-Muskoka) suggested establishment of a national agricultural council to coordinate research in agriculture. Such a body would provide agriculture with the same kind of service as provided industry by NRC.

62,829,323 lbs. Storage Butter

OTTAWA (CP)—Butter held in storage by the agricultural products support board totalled 62,829,323 pounds at March 2, the agriculture department said in its return tabled Wednesday in the Commons by C. H. Chamberlain (L—Pontiac-Temiscamingue).

Bulky Bookkeeper and Young Miner End 65-Hour Piano-Dance Marathon

TIMMINS (CP) — A bulky bookkeeper from Montreal lurched from his piano stool today after staggering off to bed after 65 hours at the keyboard.

Tiny, 26-year-old former worker on the Distant Early Warning radar line at Moosonee, started at 9 a. m. Monday. He was awakened by two seconds, who washed, massaged and fed him. Toilet facilities were provided for the pianist.

He was twice checked by a doctor, who reported his pulse, pressure and heart action normal, his general condition remarkably good.

Mrs. Irene Hunter Awarded Fortune At Monte Carlo

Receives Entire Estate Of Indochina Planter

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (Reuters)—Mrs. Irene Hunter, Frenchborn wife of a former Canadian Army veterinary surgeon, today was awarded 1,000,000,000 francs ($2,800,000) under the will of a French plantation owner she nursed for 20 years.

Court here she received the entire fortune under the will made out in 1941 by Gustave Sabourain, who died in 1955 at 86, after making his fortune as a pioneer rubber and coffee planter in Indochina.

It included property here and in Saigon, Indochina, and an art collection valued at $500,000. His first sisters and nephews contested the will.

The judge said today that before the will was published the family had written letters expressing their gratitude to Mrs. Hunter for being "a devoted nurse."

Mrs. Hunter's husband is Capt. Howard Hunter, of Bellevilla, Ont., who served in the Veterinary Corps of the Canadian Army until 1945.

CHARGES NOT PROVED

The court was told Mrs. Hunter first met Sabourain in 1930 in Monte Carlo and nursed him from 1934 to 1942 when she was interned. She married after the war to nurse Sabourain until November, 1954.

The judge, in ruling in Mrs. Hunter's favor, said the family had failed to prove their charges that the will was "the fruit of immorality and adultery"—proof of which would have been sufficient to nullify the will under French law.

Mrs. Hunter said afterwards that her husband, whom she married at Wimbledon, England, in 1918, had not been back to Canada since the First World War.

"Perhaps now we can take a holiday in Canada," she said.

They settled in Monte Carlo after Hunter, 70, retired last year from his post as a French agriculture ministry veterinary surgeon.

An intensive check of the city and district by Intelligence officers immediately following the release of this story failed to uncover any present links with Captain Hunter.

Up to the time of going to press no relative of the captain had been located in the Quinte district.

The Ontario Intelligencer would appreciate receiving any information on Captain Hunter.

The Russian ex-premier arrived here by air from Berlin for a three-week visit to Britain at the head of a delegation of Russian experts, here at Britain's invitation.

British Detain Two More Senior Cypriot Priests

NICOSIA (Reuters) — British military and police authorities detained two more senior priests of the Greek Orthodox Church as the campaign in Cyprus against the banishment of Archbishop Makarios continued with a general strike, bomb attacks and street shooting yesterday.

The priests were picked up for questioning, but the reason for their detention was not officially announced.

One of them, Father Kallinikos, was a senior clerical official to Archbishop Makarios. who was banished Friday to the remote Seychelles islands in the Indian ocean with three other clerics.

There were two street ambushes against British servicemen today, resulting in one wounded, and two bomb-throwing attacks on British military patrol cars.

Two Cypriots were killed and another wounded in a cafe near Limassol Wednesday night. A band of guerrillas walked in, ordered the customers to stand against the wall, shot their victims and fled.

Reports from all over the island meanwhile indicated that all major towns had gone completely locked up as a result of the general protest strike against the banishment of the archbishop. The strike has grown steadily since it began four days ago.

Radio Engineers Given Details of New Technique

Fifty district engineers were given an excellent description of the very latest radio communication technique last night by Mr. James R. Day, vice-president in charge of engineering and broadcasting at Radio Engineering Laboratories, Long Island City, New York. The meeting was the regular monthly session of the Bay Quinte section of The Institute of Radio Engineers.

This new technique, known as "Scatter" is a means of obtaining reliable communication between two points in the manner of the microwave chain by which television pictures are transmitted from Montreal to Toronto, viz over much greater distances at low "pop" to miles is not uncommon. It is of great interest technically because of these distances, because of equipment enormous power, and particularly because the technique was accepted up until six years ago denied its possibility.

In the main use has been to furnish communication with radar sites in Canada's north and the first large installation was made by the Bell Telephone Company of Canada. Equipment installed in that system and in a number of Canada's radio stations by Mr. Day and in addition to giving his audience a good overall picture of the apparatus he was able to describe in detail several particularly interesting components and circuits.

The meeting was chaired by Mr. R. L. Smith. Mr. Day was introduced by Mr. S. S. Kostabuk and thanked by Mr. H. L. Blacker.

Cattle Breeding Association Continues to Show Progress

The Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association continues to show progress with district farmers drawing heavier on its services in 1955 than in any year since its inception eight years ago.

Directors of the Ontario association members held their annual meeting at the Kiwanis centre in Belleville, Monday night and heard a compilation of the past year's operation and a forecast of further expansion in the years ahead.

Guest speaker for the meeting was Rev. William A. Young, public relations officer and Chaplain at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

The Association's financial statement for 1955 showed receipts of $175,187.95 as compared with $167,589.10 for 1954. The number of cows serviced increased to 32,-1934 as compared with 31,922 in 1954 and 28,803 in 1953.

Net profit of the unit was $3,-720; salaries and wages for the unit $18,735 and commissions to technicians $103,267.

The Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association with headquarters in the bull centre on Sidney just west of Belleville, is made up of 12 local units in Hastings, Prince Edward, Durham and Northumberland, Lennox and Addington and Peterborough counties. Each unit elects a president, who in turn serves on the Association's directorate. R. E. Drope of Harold, was Association president for the past two years.

Directors for 1956 include Mr. Gilpin, J. S. Mackies, Stirling; Douglas Turney, Morganston; Fred Hubbs, Shannonville; James Broad, Belleville; Allan McComb, Belleville; Harry Coulter, Tweed; Lorne Hagerman, Stirling; Harold Hough, Napanee; Wesley Werry, Hampton; Wartman Wallace, Harrowsmith, and Aylmer Fetherick, Campbellford.

Breed directors are: Jersey, William Simpson, Kingston; Guernsey, Hugh Wilson, Kingston; Scotch Shorthorns, Russell Osborne, Newcastle; Dual Purpose Shorthorns, Scott Gilmore, Tamworth; Ayrshire, William Hume, Campbellford, and Hereford, Harold Dettor, Stirling. Dr. J. M. McLean is manager of the Association.

Although half a dozen breeds are serviced by the Association, Holstein-Friesian is the predominant breed. One of the Association's Holstein bulls has been could Rocket Tone for several years has been top winner in international and local shows.

A review of artificial insemination methods was given by Dr. McLean who said that the Association should consider means through which its services could be extended to a still greater number of farmers. The Association could be stronger by being larger, he declared.

Rev. Young, as public relations officer for the O. A. C. spoke on "Progress and Motion", referring to the tremendous advances which have been made in the past half century. "We are living in a day of miracles when nothing is impossible," he said.

He referred to advances in electronics, in transportation and agriculture, which he said had advanced more in the past 50 years than in the past 5,000. "Agriculture has become a specialized business and the successful farmer of today has to be something of a scientist."

Research and the use of machinery, agricultural production has increased 50 per cent, man-hour cent in the past 25 years.

Mr. Young was confident that progress would continue but he saw detour signs such as overproduction and other problems ahead for the farmer. He was just certain that these problems would be solved.

In admitting that machines had helped overproduction, the guest speaker warned however that the importance of man must be not slight of. The human element was still most important. Well trained leaders would become increasingly important in the future, he said.

Vote of appreciation was given by A. O. Dalrymple of Stirling introduced Dr. McLean and spoke on behalf of the members being expressed by Harold Dettor, Stirling.

Rabies

Confirmed cases of rabies in wild life and domestic animals have been reported throughout the province. The outbreak was confined to areas north and west of a line extending from Georgian bay at the Lindsay – Peterborough district and thence north easterly to the Ottawa River in the vicinity of Pembroke. However, this line has now been broken and cases of rabies have appeared in areas south of it.

We in the Corporation of the City of Belleville have been fortunate in that no cases have developed within its boundaries, however there have been cases reported in the surrounding areas.

The City Council, some weeks ago, Board of Health feel that By-law 2931 should, and will be strictly enforced. The council on March 12, 1956, passed an amendment the substance of which is that owners of a dog or dogs, when applying for a licence will have to present a certificate of vaccination against rabies.

This was done not only to protect the owner and his family, but for the protection of the public at large.

Clinics, which are free, as you have seen in the press, are to be held on Tuesday, March 20, 1956, at Fire Hall No. 1, Dundas Street East and on Wednesday, March 21, 1956 at the Fire Hall on Moira St. West. The hours of each are as follows: morning 9 to 12; afternoons 2 to 3; and evenings 7 to 9.

The Health Department strongly urges owners of a dog or dogs to have them vaccinated at this one, or other of the free clinics.

So let us keep City of Belleville free from this dreadful disease by each and everyone doing his or her part in following out By-law 2931 which has appeared in the press.

Thurlow Twp. Dogs Must Be Kept on Leash

Dogs in Thurlow township are due for a strictly dog's life at least until the current rabies scare is ended.

Township Clerk Earl Dafoe this day stated that dog catcher Jack Walte had been ordered to pick up all dogs running at large whether or not they were wearing a dog tag of current vintage. The township dog by-law calls for all dogs to be confined or kept on a leash, it was stated.

Monday, March 19th, a free clinic for vaccination of dogs and cats against rabies will be held at Canniffon by Federal Department of Agriculture veterinarians. The clinic to be held at the township machine house will be held from 10 to 12 in the morning, 2 to 4 in the afternoon and from 6 to 8 in the evening.

Farmers' Union Members Hear Outline of Aims

The Farmers' Union meeting was held recently in Roslin hall with a good attendance. The president, Don Holbert, opened the meeting by singing "O Canada." Secretary's report of meeting were read and approved. It was decided to change the night of meeting to the third Monday in the month. Plans were made to hold social evening and card party in the hall.

A short program followed. Musical selection by the Brooks trio; a reading, Mrs. F. Howes; Mr. J. Brooks gave a solo on the mouth organ selection and a reading by Mrs. F. Elliott, after which Mr. Don Holbert introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Rex Martin, who stated that the farmers just can't get along without the Union. They are the backbone of the nation. "Let the farmer quit producing and see what happens," said the speaker. The farmers are the first to organize, so come, join the Farmers' Union, and help fight the battle with the government.

Are you satisfied with what the Federation of Agriculture has done for the farmer? The farmers have been paying in the Federation for the past 18 years and what benefit have you received from the Federation? So join the Farmers' Union, give them a chance as much as they can do, the speaker declared.

Slippery Roads Contribute to Minor Crashes

Slippery streets were a contributing factor yesterday for a series of motor accidents in the city two of which resulted in considerable property damage.

At the corner of Bridge and Coleman streets, a traffic light standard was broken when struck by a car driven by Robert J. Hughes, 363½ Front street. Police said Hughes was southbound on Coleman, when he was unable to stop when he applied brakes for the red light.

At the last moment he swung right in an attempt to avoid a Nelson bus, which was crossing in front of him and his car struck the traffic signal standard, breaking it off at the base and allowing it to topple against the bus.

On Yeoman street, Doug Shaw, 22 Chatham street, driving a store delivery truck, swerved to miss a car which slowed in front of him and in doing so smashed a tree with $500 damage to the front of his vehicle.

And on Wills street two cars proceeding in opposite directions collided when one driver, Lloyd Peck. The cars were driven by Aaron Tompkins, 71 Quarry street and Mary

Bob Owens' feat this year of scoring the possible 100 caused considerable excitement. It was a noticeable effort on the part of other marksmen to emulate it. Mr. Owens repeated his possible on a competition target but he Vandermeulen 93; Bob Pope 93; Don Wilson 93; Dan Moon 92 and Jim Dens 91.

Bob Owens' feat this year of scoring the possible 100 caused considerable excitement. It was a noticeable effort on the part of other marksmen to emulate it. Mr. Owens repeated his possible on a competition target but he was congratulated by John Potter and Don Wilson, the latter a great scorer during the '30's.

Last week the confirmation of the Dominion Cadet Rifle Association shoot scored raised four of the scores previously published—Gerald Wallbridge being the target of Gerald Wallbridge whose score of 99 was raised to 100.

The Belleville Cadet Association awarded a jacket to the marksman scoring the first 100 and has repeated the gesture with each competitor who scored a perfect target.

Warns Children To Leave Muskrats Alone

A warning for school children to leave muskrats alone due to the possibility of a bite from a rabid animal, was given today by Dr. H. M. Youngbusband, head veterinarian for the province of Animal Division, Federal Department of Agriculture at Belleville.

"There have been several children bitten by muskrats in recent weeks, but fortunately so far none of them have been rabid," Dr. Youngbusband said.

The veterinarian stated that two muskrats and a fox were now away to have tests for rabies.

Vaccination clinics for dogs and cats in Hastings county have been very successful so far with further clinics scheduled next week for the Canniffon and Belleville area. So far 8300 pets have been vaccinated.

Tuesday, March 20th, two vaccination clinics for dogs and cats in the Canniffon area will be held at the township machine shed west of the village. The clinic will be for dogs only from 2-3 in the afternoon and 6-8.

Clinics will be held in Belleville Tuesday, March 20th, and Wednesday, March 21st. The clinic Tuesday will be at the Fire Hall on Dundas street from 8-12 in the morning, 2-3 in the afternoon and from 7-9 in the evening. Wednesday the clinic will be at the Moira St., firehall with the same hours.

Dr. Youngbusband asked that dogs be brought to the clinic on a leash and referably by an adult.

Fire Damage Totals $3,000 At Frankford

FRANKFORD (Special) — Fire damage estimated at $3,000 resulted in Frankford yesterday afternoon when flames gutted the interior of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Schuliga.

The Frankford Volunteer Fire Department under Chief Mervin Dafoe saved the building from being a complete loss.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Schuliga about 4:30. She hustled her two small children out of the house and turned in the alarm. Neighbors carried the family's furniture to safety.

The Schuliga home is in the southwest section of the village near the canning factory. Origin of the blaze which gutted the two-storey frame building was not determined.

Health Insurance Plans Discussed By Legislatures

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Health insurance plans were discussed in four provincial legislatures Wednesday and two other houses talked about roads.

At the opening of Newfoundland's seventh session of the 30th general assembly the speech from the throne outlined a scheme of health benefits for children. Lieutenant - Governor Sir Leonard Outerbridge said the Liberal government planned to take "full responsibility for the cost of medical, dental and optical care of all Newfoundland and Labrador children to the age of 16."

Geoffrey Stevens, Nova Scotia's health minister in the Liberal government, said the province's parliament in an Ottawa-assisted health plan would hinge on recommendations of a four-man committee. The committee will recommend sources of funds to finance the plan, possible collection methods and hospital payments.

Ontario Premier Frost said any comprehensive health plan probably will have a charge to prevent abuses.

STATEMENT EXPECTED

Manitoba's health minister, R.W. Bend, said the Liberal-Progressive government will make a statement on the federally - proposed plan within the next two days. He explained terms of the Ottawa plan, which offers 25 per cent of the average per capita costs for hospital care throughout the country, 50 per cent and 75 per cent of the provincial average.

Saskatchewan Highways Minister J. T. Douglas outlined the 1956 program, largest highway program in the province's history. He said a budget outlay of $25,000,000 will enable the province's economy to full- a 1952 pre-election pledge of a $75,000,000 five-year program for highways and market roads.

Mr. Douglas said Saskatchewan leads the three Prairie provinces in over-all construction of blacktop roads since 1945. Saskatchewan had constructed 1,086 miles, Alberta 941 and Manitoba 467.

In his budget house Highways Minister Gordon Taylor said the Social Credit government plans to drop its stipulation that 40 per cent of provincial grants to municipal districts for roads must be used on district highways. He said highways officials will give guidance on the use of the money when they meet district councils to draw up agreements on grants to municipalities.

Mr. Taylor said payments out of an unsatisfied judgments fund exceed collections and the fund will be in bad shape unless payments are reduced.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Billy Graham returned from a 2½-month tour of the Far East Wednesday and reported seeing people friendly everywhere.

The 37-year-old Evangelist said he came away from a 30-minute private interview with India's Prime Minister Nehru "with the feeling that he is pro-Christian."

He said Nehru believes the Communist world "is not beyond conversion to Christianity."

Graham said he has been invited to speak in Russia but has not decided whether to do so.

Ford Reports New Records in Production, Sales

TORONTO (CP) — Ford Motor Company of Canada, in its annual statement released today, reported new records in production, sales and income in 1955.

The directors' report to shareholders, signed by Rhys M. Sale, president, said the year's income from Canadian operations did not fully reflect the earnings potential at the increased volume, owing to the costs of the strike (Oct. 10, 1954 to Jan. 3, 1955) applicable to 1953 and the costs of the new model changeover deferred from 1954, absorbed in the year's accounts."

The figures, with 1954 and 1953 comparatives in brackets, include:

Net income before taxes: from Canadian operations $4,616,447 ($1,066,382 — $10,595,500); dividends from overseas subsidiary applicable $16,113,376 ($12,276,937—$9,434,-031); total net income $20,729,823 ($14,243,319 — $20,029,513); net income per share issued $12.50 ($8.58—$12.07).

Dividends to shareholders $8,204,-800 ($7,050,560 — $4,916,800); dividends per share issued $5.00 ($4.25 —$3.00); average employment 10,-423 (8,560 — 14,758 — 14,400); wages and salaries to employees in Canada $64,500,000 ($46,317,160-$58,924,538); income taxes on Canadian operations $4,000,000 ($1,400,-000—$7,500,000); net working capital $53,892,977 ($31,923,805 — $36,048,973).

Hope to Settle Strike of U.S. Seaway Workers

NEW YORK (AP) — Hopes for early settlement were held out as negotiators prepared for another mediation session this afternoon in the strike over wages that has halted construction work on the United States side of the St. Lawrence seaway and power projects at Massena, N. Y.

Representatives of six contractors and the International Union of Operating Engineers met jointly for seven hours Wednesday, but no progress report was issued.

Last Saturday, 1,400 operating engineers walked out in a wage dispute. The walkout left 1,600 other workers on the projects idle.

Governor-General May Serve Extra Year in Post

OTTAWA (CP)—Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey who, at 69, begins a 10,000-mile Arctic tour next week may serve an extra year or more as Canada's governor-general.

His normal five-year term is due to expire in February, 1957. No governor-general has remained in office for two full five-year terms but four have received extensions —three of one year and one of two years.

Reluctant of Mr. Massey's term seems virtually assured by the likelihood of a general election in mid-1957. Prime Minister St. Laurent is unlikely to appoint a governor-general before it is held.

Mr. Massey may be asked informally by ministers to remain in office until the government decides otherwise. If the Liberals lose the election, this would give the incoming government a chance to recommend a new appointee to the Queen if it so desires.

YEAR AT LEAST

If the Liberals win, Mr. Massey's term extension likely will be made formal. He would be given at least one year in office and perhaps more.

Mr. Massey has willingness to serve and his general success in office, role as Canada's first native-born governor-general are other reasons why the extension appears likely.

Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Massey met informally at governmental level last night. The extension may have been discussed.

Mr. Massey leaves Tuesday on a 17-day tour of the deep north that will make him the first governor-general to travel through the high Arctic and circle the North Pole. They will fly from Ottawa to Inuvik in White Suphur Springs, W. Va., March 26 for talks with President Eisenhower and President Ruiz Cortines of Mexico.

Other visiting governors-general who were given extensions were the late Viscount Bessborough, who served for six years, 1872-78; the Earl of Minto, six years, 1898-1904; Earl Grey, six years, 1904-11; Viscount Alexander, six years, 1946-52.

Religious Group Against Paying To Health Plan

TORONTO (CP) — A religious group which believes prayer is the only treatment for illness said Wednesday its members shouldn't have to contribute to Ontario's health insurance and hospital-care plan.

Leslie A. Tutte, representing the Christian Science Church in Ontario, issued a brief intended for members of the legislature's health committee. It will be presented officially to the committee Friday.

Mr. Tutte said the right of individuals to rely upon prayer and spiritual means for the prevention and healing of human ailments should be respected by the government.

Member of the Christian Science Church should not be compelled to paying any individual premiums levied by the province.

E.P. Taylor's Price-War Philosophy Is Changed Maryland Governor Told

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Governor Theodore McKeldin was told Wednesday attempts to characterize Carling Brewing Company as the offspring of a Canadian monopoly were based on letters more than 20 years old.

The letters, a Carling spokesman said, do not reflect the company's present condition but the present firm's position in Canada's postprohibition world of "hurly burly competition" among breweries.

John Avireti, Baltimore lawyer representing Carling, made the statements at a hearing on a legislative act which would prohibit foreign-owned breweries from operating plants in Maryland. Carling stock is controlled by Canadian Breweries Ltd.

McKeldin called the hearing to help determine whether he should sign the act into law.

The governor has ban foreign-owned brewing plants caused a controversy in the Maryland legislature, where backers cited a report on Canadian Breweries by the Canadian Association of Justice.

The report included excerpts from letters sent by E. P. Taylor, Toronto industrialist and board chairman of Canadian Breweries, to stockholders outlining the company's plans for expansion.

Asked by McKeldin what he thought of statements that Canadian Breweries deliberately undersold local competitors to drive them out of business and gain control, Avireti said the statements were based on Taylor's letters of more than 20 years ago.

Avireti said the letters were written when Taylor was "a struggling young man," striving to keep alive a family brewery competing with 42 others. That was back in the 1930s.

But the lawyer added that the same competitive conditions do not exist now and this philosophy is no longer necessary.

If the firm established a plant in Maryland, he said, it would be subject to many restrictions which would make monopolistic practices impossible.

The firm has an option on property near Baltimore and announced last January it planned to build a $12,000,000 plant and set up an operation with a $2,000,000 annual payroll.

Expect to Open Lakes Shipping Season Monday

DETROIT (AP) — The United States weather bureau today said Great Lakes channels are open from Rogers City, Mich., on northwestern Lake Huron, to Cleveland, on the Ohio shore of Lake Erie.

Limestone carriers are expected to clear from Rogers City about Monday to mark the first important movement of big Great Lakes ships in the 1956 season.

The St. Marys river, the channel from Lake Superior, still is frozen over, and Buffalo harbor is choked with ice. But the St. Clair river, linking lakes Huron and St. Clair, was virtually cleared of ice Wednesday.

Chaplain Admits Curling Club 'Bootlegged'

WINNIPEG (CP)—Rev. Stanley H. Searle told the Winnipeg presbytery of the United Church Tuesday that he and his friends had engaged in bootlegging Monday night when they welcomed home Billy Walsh and his Canadian curling championship rink.

Mr. Searle, chaplain of Fort Rouge Curling Club and pastor of Rosedale United Church, was commenting on a statement attributed to Rev. J.H. Mutchmor of Toronto, secretary of the church's department of evangelism and social service, that he has glad Walsh's rink had won "from the Granite Club of Toronto with its cocktail bars and everything else."

Mr. Searle said it would be wrong to infer that the Granite Club is wet and the Fort Rouge Club dry.

"I can tell you that we bootlegged when we welcomed our rink home," he said.

Mr. Searle said it was "too late to do anything else" and legal drinking was not allowed.

"But none of the people at the club will give evidence. These are respectable people, and they would refuse to give evidence against the club," he said.

THE PRICE OF SUCCESS

The French are paying the price of success in North Africa, to judge from an article distributed from Ottawa by Service d'Information Francais.

Problems in North Africa are not solely of a political nature, says the information service. "If they were they could be solved with comparative ease," it states. "But behind them are concealed economic, social and financial difficulties."

Here is how the information agency sees the situation:

France has done her utmost to reduce the mortality rate in her territories in North Africa. She has succeeded so well that the population is now 22 million and this population is growing by 400,000 annually, as the result of one of the highest birth rates in the world. But it has proved difficult to provide this growing population with food and with work.

Some progress has been made in increasing the agricultural production of these territories. The production of hard cereals rose from 12 million hundredweight in 1938 to 21 million hundredweight in 1954. But the yield per hectare is still very low, because the land is poor and cultivated by natives with primitive machinery and natives for the most part are hostile to any innovations because they lack the knowledge to employ the best farming techniques.

It is impossible to find employment for the entire surplus labor force in agriculture. Therefore industries must be expanded. But industrial development requires finances and energy. These are rare in North Africa. The production of electricity has been almost doubled since 1948, but a rapid increase in the private consumption of electricity has reduced the benefits from the standpoint of industrial expansion. Coal production has also doubled, but the information agency says that oil production remains the great hope of North Africa.

So there is the picture, as Service d'Information Francais paints it. Yet modern medical skills have reduced the death rate, increasing the population; the larger population has increased the consumption of food; lack of adequate supplies of food and lack of jobs have produced hardships, unrest and revolt.

$120,000 FOR WHISKY BARRELS

Cuba spends $120,000 a year for whisky barrels.

For rum? Oh, no, for pineapples shipped in, of all things, brine.

This is just one of a dozen interesting facts which the Federal Department of Trade and Commerce has packed into a 250-word release about the Cuban pineapple industry.

In the first place, many Canadians may be surprised to learn that there is a Cuban pineapple industry. Pineapples are generally associated with Hawaii, although supplies are also coming from Queensland in Australia have become a familiar sight on the shelves of Canadian supermarkets.

Canadians like pineapples. They spend six million dollars every year for them. About 15 per cent of this amount is for fresh pineapple and surprise, surprise, over three quarters of the fresh pineapples sold in Canada come from Cuba. Canned pineapple is also shipped from Cuba, but Hawaii, Australia and, again a surprise, to us, Israel, service supply the lion's share.

We gather from the Department of Trade and Commerce item that the pineapple trade with Cuba is largely a one-way affair but the Canadian commercial secretary in Havana thinks that this could be changed. The Cuban industry spends $500,000 annually for crates, $120,000 for whisky barrels, $97,500 for calcium carbide to accelerate the ripening, $40,000 for sulphur dioxide to make brine, $30,000 for fertilizers, $11,000 for calcium carbonate, also used in brining, $6,000 for paraffin wax, $2,500 for wrapping paper and $1,500 for labels.

The list is a fascinating insight into the ramifications of a seemingly simple industry and the effects which it may have on a host of other industries.

NEW CANADIANS TAKE PRIZES

Four Toronto high school students, winners of a public speaking contest, will go to Ottawa later this month as guests of the Federal Government.

Three of the four are new Canadians. The two boys, both Romanians, are 16 and 17 years of age. One of the female winners is from the Ukraine and is a 16-year-old girl who is only Canadian-born winner in a contest which was sponsored by the Toronto branch of the United Nations Association.

Some people say that native-born Canadian high school students are not interested enough in a trip to New York to compete in a public speaking contest? Could it be that New Canadians, intent on learning a new language, have become more proficient in English than their Canadian contemporaries? Are New Canadians more appreciative of opportunities in Canada and more willing to work than native-born students? Could it be that New Canadians have such fresh, appealing ideas that they can defeat native-born students in a 3-1 battle?

It would be surprising if Canadian high school students in Romania or in the Ukraine could capture three of four public speaking contests.

"TAKE IT EASY"

"Take it easy" is the cry.
Don't you be running after buses;
Let the coming one go by.
Save your breath and start no fusses.

If the stairs you have to climb,
Never hurry to begin it.
Do one step at a time,
Stop half-way and rest a minute.

"Take it easy," counsel kind
"Move about with simple grace
Just remember you are old,
Settle down and read a book
If you hear the door bell ringing
Don't jump up and go to look
Who is there and what he's bringing.

"Take it easy," counsel kind
Which they think I still am needing.
"Just be age to keep in mind
It's the doctor you are heeding."
Nice folks all by love inspired,
Smiling people blithe and breezy,
Seeking how to make me tired
And to keep me old and easy.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

The Belleville Men's Chorus, the fourth annual concert of the Belleville Men's Chorus, under the capable direction of Mr. Ross Hunter, and the efficient organ and piano accompaniments provided by Mr. Alex Gordon, was presented to eight hundred music lovers on Tuesday evening in Bridge St. United Church. The program furnished by the chorus of well trained voices was indeed most enjoyable and the pleasure of the evening was augmented by the privilege of hearing the beautiful voice of Miss Jack Deacon, who won golden praise for the excellence of his offerings. Mr. Deacon is home from New York on a visit and kindly consented to be the guest soloist.

Following are the officers of the organization: president and musical manager, Harry R. Moorman; secretary - treasurer, Sanford R. Burrows; musical director, Ross Hunter; accompanist, Alex Gordon; executive committee: Harry R. Moorman, Sanford R. Burrows, J. Vincent Doyle, W. Ernest Wheatley, Harold Howard, Fred Sprague, Charles Spalding and Lee B. Riggs. Following are the members of the chorus: first tenor: Harold R. Burrows; second tenor: Sanford R. Burrows, Glen W. Elliott, Sidney Deacon, Harry R. Moorman, Fred W. Sprague, J. Lester Shiels, J. Arnold Thomson.

Mrs. B. Leeman is home on a short visit from Montreal.

The Rev. R. G. Stewart, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here, is spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. Alex Gordon, manager of the Standard Bank here, addressed the members of the Napanee Chamber of Commerce last evening.

His Honor Judge E. H. McLean, of Picton, presided at Cramahe Township Court of Measles close church and school. The United Church and Canadian and the public school, attended by pupils from Canniton and Corbyville, have been closed for a time by Dr. Ward, the medical officer of health, owing to an outbreak of measles in the communities.

School teams play overtime match. A fast and exciting hockey match was played at the arena between teams representing Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra schools. The result was a tie after ten minutes overtime had been played. The stars for Queen Mary School were Hagerman, Weir and Jarvis; the defence was strong and Wesse in goal played a good game. For Queen Alexandra school the stars were Holway, Ketcheson and Collins, while Deacon in goal did good work. The following composed the teams: Queen Alexandra: Deacon, McCle, Ketcheson, Holway, Boyle, Collins and Roberts. Queen Mary School: Wesse, Baker, McWilliams, Latta, Hagerman, Palmer and Weir. The referee was L. Wells and he gave entire satisfaction to both teams.

It is reported that several houses will be built, while the fitting up of the County House of Refuge, the proposed Corby Public Library and possibly the armouries will give considerable work to carpenters and masons.

Mr. Morley Sine, who will leave here shortly to reside in Western Canada, was tendered a banquet by a number of his friends at the Windsor Hotel, corner of Coleman and West Bridge Streets, and during the evening he was presented with a handsome gold locket.

Ald. Graham went to Toronto on business this morning.

ATTICS

I am wondering how much of the world's junk is stored in attics? Attics are supposed to be only for useable trunks and other objects that circumvent the cellars. But, no, you will find everything under the sun piled up in these attics of ours. And often the idea of cleaning that place out is suggested a little may start. So it remains to grow still more cluttered, year by year!

How we all hate to throw anything away after its usefulness has long departed! It will be no older place for anything discarded, there is always the attic—and the object out of mind and perhaps forgotten.

There are those who make a living, and some a fortune, out of selling "old junk" (attic food). However, there has been progress. Modern homes do not have attics. They have closets in every room for such that is an attic.

There are attics in many a business, though on a lower level, useless material is stored for years —no longer of any use to anyone. Little attics will be seen on filing cases, on stands and desks, the piled in corners. I recall a newspaper owner whose desk was a mess. He would write me several times inquiring about the same thing. He had "lost" the original letter from me.

John H. Patterson, the famous National Cash Register chief, used to clean out the desks and drawers of some of his top men, and dump what he called "dead material into baskets and destroy it. He once said: "Don't clutter up your minds with the past. Think of the future." There are invisible attics in the mind, that must clean out. That's where ideas should be given birth!

How to Farm on Moon

(New York Times)

Though millions of miles separate Earth and Planets Mars and Venus, astronauts have been designing space ships that look on paper. But how are the interplanetary voyagers to live on a body such as Mars, where water is most likely to be reached first, but also a body that is airless, waterless, soilless and about as dreary and desolate as anything that can be imagined?

Undaunted by these conditions Dr. J. W. H. Sholto Douglas, who adds BSe, Dip. Agric., Cart. Hortic. (Reading), RHS, RSA (econ.), FRIES, to his names, tells in the Journal of the British Interplanetary Society that his farmer on the moon could proceed and why he should be successful.

Sholto Douglas holds that hydroponics solves all problems, that is, the cultivation of plants by feeding them solutions of the proper chemicals, a well developed art on this earth.

How are the chemicals to be obtained? From the moon's own rocks, Sholto Douglas thinks there may be water in the form of ice deep underground. If there isn't, it will have to be transported from the earth. Even the atmosphere would have to be created. So the lunar farm would be a large science fiction.

transparent air-conditioned dome which would admit essential light and beneath which the lunar farmer could grow human crops.

"There are no insurmountable obstacles", says Sholto Douglas in an airy disregard of obstacles of which he is aware but which he perhaps scants.

Because of gravitational attraction — the moon is one-sixth of the earth's — sap will almost stream up into foliage and fruit, he says, carrots and apples.

Farmers on the earth have always been subject to frost, drought and sweat weeks, even months, before a crop can be harvested. On the moon it would be different since crops would grow with astonishing rapidity. Because of the moon's period of rotation vegetables would be ready for harvest in only two weeks.

To be sure, a lunar colonist would have to carry a tank of oxygen on his back and breathe through a mask if he weren't working inside of his dome farm. At least he would not starve to death, metabolism, nutrition, biochemistry and (2) I challenge any medical or health authority to refute anything I may say here or elsewhere about calcium.

"Calcium deposits" occur as the consequence of disease, inflammation, infection, degeneration, strain or injury. No medical or scientific investigator of standing has attempted to refute this, I am sure.

In many cases of bursitis the bursa becomes calcified—"calcium deposits"—and even after the course of several weeks all pain and functional disability may have disappeared, X-ray examination may show the calcium deposit unchanged.

Creepy Peepy Comes of Age

(Watertown Times)

The army's "walky-talky" of World War II fame has been provided with a companion gadget to give soldiers "electronic eyes and ears." It is a new television set which can transmit front-line pictures of a battle in progress. The typical radio-like set, which has been dubbed a "creepy-peepy," is the device consists of a handheld TV camera and a portable transmitter. The camera will take a picture every 20 seconds or so and a receiver mounted in a jeep a half-mile to the rear. The receiving set will then develop the picture to command headquarters.

This new "creepy-peepy" has been developed with what has now been labeled the "creepy-peepy." Its first successful military television equipment was bulky and cumbersome — but effective. Now the apparatus has been compacted into a light-weight set, weighing 60 pounds.

Fifteen years have been required to turn that original instrument into a compact gadget which will provides reception as good, if not better, than commercial television sets in our Northern New York was "in" on the premiere.

Plan Symbol For Air-Age

(New York Herald-Tribune)

More New Yorkers and a sizable number of persons in the suburbs and seven other states will be gaining skyward in March when the four new beacons atop the Empire State Building are lighted on. The two billion candlepower addition to the city's already brilliant skyline will, it is predicted, depending on atmospheric conditions be visible as far away as Reading and Baltimore.

The purpose of it all — having been beaten to the punch in every the other three making a complete counterclockwise sweep every minute from sundown to midnight — is to have "an air-age symbol of welcome and beacon" for the implement and not to supplant the Statue of Liberty. Last year, the Statue, one half million more persons came to this city by air than by sea, as it would seem that another lamp being lifted beside the golden door would be in order since the passenger ships are dwindling, powerful searchlights, however, it would also be well to express the sincere hope that they, as well as Bartholdi's copper statue, never become empty, meaningless symbols.

Vice Pees Are Vee Pees

(Christian Science Monitor)

Monarchies have habitually shown great concern about the next in succession to the throne and state. Much care is taken with the training and preparation of an heir apparent. But Americans have been strangely and dangerously careless in choosing Vice-Presidents.

The choice of President Eisenhower's ordeal should not have been required to center much more acutely upon the Vice-Presidency. Twice since 1900 Vice-Presidents have been named specifically for that office just one heartbeat away from the big battle for first place has resulted in the White House with the convention dissolving. This makes for haste and carelessness.

A second trouble is that there is usually an effort to cover up such cracks left by factional battles. United support for the ticket is sought by the party and the country's decoy to the defeated faction. This makes a Vice-Presidential candidate ship — sometimes almost as sharp as if the rival party had gained the White House. Let us merely mention the names of John Tyler, Andrew Johnson, and Theodore Roosevelt to illustrate.

Even if there were not the possibility of the Vice-Presidential office becoming too important in late years it ought to be considered at such high time that solid qualifications for the highest office rate ahead of delegated favor. In the present train, hence the possibility of Vice-Presidential candidates being a few votes from a certain state. Americans are fortunate in the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket every well-tried, well-matched, and personally in the closest touch.

This situation is not one easily remedied. Perhaps the best such remedy lies in a decision by the parties to ignore the call for delegates to improve the methods of selecting vice-presidential nominees. The importance of public opinion can be brought in many ways, especially through the press, to bear upon to greater care. This should not be a temporary reform, merely to meet a situation where votes may be swung by the caliber of the second man. The preparation and qualifications of the "heir apparent" should have more attention at all times.

Calcification of artery walls occurs in an advanced stage of the process of degeneration known as arteriosclerosis or hardening of the arteries. Even if we were vouchsafed a half column of space, it would be hard to explain physical degeneration to laymen. Suffice to say that degeneration takes place when the capacity to produce new cells (generation or regeneration) to replace old cells that have weakened or died from prolonged nutritional deficiency (nil/certified diet). When capacity or power to regenerate new functioning cells is lost nature does the best repair job she can with fibrous (scar) tissue or calcification (plaster of Paris.)

Hardening in physical degeneration of joint tissues. Let no pinnyhammer infer that my definition of rheumatic applies to rheumatism or to arthritis. Precisely I don't know "what" "chronic rheumatism" or "chronic arthritis" mean — and I doubt that any competent physician will dare to define either term. In short, dear knuckleheads, it is my belief that when a physician diagnoses chronic disability of any kind he's standing as "chronic arthritis" or "chronic rheumatism" he is merely revealing the fact that he doesn't know what is the matter.

I believe progressive or gradually developing joint disability over a year's duration is physical degeneration in most instances and the physical degeneration is the consequence of nutritional deficiency through the years from childhood.

A CREATURE BECOMES A SON

Karl Marx attempted to interpret life on a purely materialistic basis. To him, man was an economic animal. The plan was boring unevenly cut; Marx suggested a system by which he believed that can be more justly divided.

Of course the fallacy of his system was first, that man is more than eating animal; again, that collectivistic schemata kill incentive and therefore ruin production; and last of all, that differences in ability are very real and such differences account for much of the inequality of distribution. Marx also regarded man as an animal—a struggling animal seeking survival. There is some truth in this conception but there are many missing links, as the evolutionist would so well show. Existence is a struggle and survival an achievement, but some who do not survive do not struggle. For instance—are the ones who achieve the most. Jesus of Nazareth was a great survive the malice of his contemporaries, stands as the supreme Man of History. History has been dated from His birth, and the whole world and its thinking made different by His words.

The gospel of Christ combines man's greatest wisdom and God's revealed truth. It teaches that although man is born a creature he may become a child of God through a spiritual birth. The gospel alone answers the basic questions about human destiny.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On the TV the other evening they showed one of those ancient gramophones with the large petunia shaped horn. The records were wax cylinders, and the wax would be shaved off with a sharp spaniel to play them.

I noticed that the younger people in the room had the same attitude to it as the older folk were a little nettled. It is with some tenderness we recollect these old machines. In their time, they were a world wonder. And now they are fully as intense I suppose as the thrills this generation gets from hi-fi, did they impart to us similarly flared. button-booted bepcats of 1900.

So when the program ended, I composed a night letter telegram to the TV station which read as follows:

"Please be sure," I'll read, "to preserve kinescope of tonight's program and put it away carefully for it will be kept for fifty years. Stop. Then in the year 2006 A.D. Stop. Assure you hi-fi of 1956 will prove more hilarious to that generation than the gramophone is to us. Stop. Be sure to include old gramophone in the 2006 A.D. show."

I regret to think that my night letter was lost in the mail. Rather than the secretary who opens the envelope in 2006 will be much improved since, let alone ever be ridiculous. Besides, he will probably only forty. As a good secretary, winnowing the stuff that's left when the boss's mail, she will chuck the night letter in the waste basket along with all the other junk TV executives must get in their mail.

You have to be somewhere in the neighborhood of sixty before the funniest fact of all about life begins to dawn on you.

And that is that we are all going to look comical twenty-five years from now.

And in fifty years, we'll kill them.

THE FISH WITH THE COIN

XXVII

The spies from the Temple were always at the heels of Jesus.

The more the chief priests in Jerusalem heard about Jesus of Nazareth, the more alarmed they became. Every miracle that He performed they heard about, and in their council chambers they waggled their silver-grey beards and worried.

Sadly, those men of the Temple were not very holy men at all. The people, the thousands of good Jews who prayed in the Temple, were truly religious and loved the Lord their God. But these particular chief priests were more interested in power and in riches than in God, though they took good care not to let the people suspect it.

When they heard about Jesus they did not even stop to think that He might be God. All they knew was that the people of Palestine loved Him and followed Him—and that Jesus was becoming a powerful and dangerous leader.

"If only we could catch Him saying something wrong, or doing something against the law, then we could tell the people and they would follow Him no longer," said the chief priests.

So week after week they sent their spies and agents to follow Jesus, and watch everything He did or said, and if they could, to trap Him into doing something wrong.

TAX COLLECTOR

One day while the Master was staying in Peter's house in Capernaum, the tax collector came to town—and then the spies thought surely they would trap Jesus!

Taxes have never been a problem to all kinds of men, and in Palestine a thousand years ago they were a torment and a torture for everyone. The Roman Empire conquered Palestine, and the Romans were very clever at taking money out of the pockets of people they conquered. There was no end to Roman taxes!

If you lived in Palestine in those days, you paid two taxes on your land, your farms and houses and building lots. If you were a farmer you had to give one-tenth of your wheat and one-fifth of your wine and fruit to the Romans. You paid a toll to ride the highways, and a tax on everything you bought, even a tax on your own head for the privilege of living and breathing.

Now everyone must pay taxes to his own government, to support the country and meet the bills, yesterday in Palestine or today in our own land. But to pay money to a foreign conqueror, to the cruel Romans who had taken the country away from the Jews of Palestine, was truly painful. After all, the money went off to Rome for the Emperor to spend as he pleased; it was not used to make life better for the people who paid it!

PEOPLE POORER

The people of Palestine were growing poorer and poorer. Nearly all their money went in taxes now. Men who had once owned fine big farms had to sell their land to pay the Romans, and many a once rich man was now a beggar in the streets.

When the Roman tax collector came to Capernaum to collect what was called the didrachma, the Temple spies went to see Peter.

"Well, Peter—will your Master pay the tax?"

It was a very clever question. If Jesus said He would pay the tax, the good Jews who followed Him as their leader would resent it. Many of them, like Peter, wondered if it were not even a sin to pay taxes to Rome and Caesar, instead of to Israel, as the law in the Bible said. Yet if Jesus refused to pay the tax, the Romans would arrest Him, and throw Him in a dungeon.

"Will Jesus pay the tax?" asked the spies.

"You'll see," answered Peter with a scowl, and strode into the house.

Peter went straight to the little box where he kept the money he had earned by fishing. Peter knew he had not enough to pay the tax for himself, let alone for the Master. He had not fished nor earned a single penny in nearly two years, ever since he had started to follow Jesus. . . Still, Peter felt, to see what he could do.

WHO PAYS TRIBUTE

From a corner of the room Jesus spoke:

"What is your opinion?" He asked Peter. "From whom do the kings of the earth receive tribute and taxes? From their own children, or from strangers?"

"From strangers!" said Peter bitterly.

"Then the children are free!" exclaimed Jesus.

Peter cocked his head, and looked at the Master. . . Did He mean they did not have to pay the tax?

Jesus smiled. "But that we should not shock and scandalize them, Peter, go to the sea and cast in a fishline and hook. And take the first fish that shall come up. And when you have opened its mouth, you shall find a stater!"

Peter blinked. A stater was a coin worth twice as much as the tax, exactly enough for himself and for the Master. But to find a piece of money in the mouth of a fish?

"You shall find a stater," said Jesus. "Give it to them for Me and you."

NO QUESTIONS

Peter had learned not to question what Jesus said. He walked out of the house and past the spies, and the tax collectors, and down to the shore. He dropped his line in the water. Instantly a fish rose to the bait. Expertly Peter hauled it in, beached it, and opened its mouth. Right inside, tucked in its cheek, lay the coin, shining and golden.

With the fish under his arm, to be saved for dinner, Peter walked back to the house. The tax collector, flanked by Roman soldiers, and the grinning agents of the Temple waited outside.

"Well, Peter?" they said. "We saw you go fishing. Do you hope to pay the tax with that scaly creature? Come, come, pay up—in coin!"

Slowly Peter rubbed the stater dry on his sleeve, and blew on it, and watched it sparkle. Then, without a word he dropped it into the tax collector's bag, and went into the house. And there was nothing for the Romans and the Temple spies to do, but scratch their heads—and feel as foolish as they looked!

Later, alone in the kitchen, Peter cleaned the fish, and a haze of wonderment clouded his blue eyes.

What could it mean—to find tax money in a fish's mouth!—he asked himself as he scraped away the silvery scales. And as he worked, Peter found the answer in his thoughts, an answer as true today as it was then.

GOD PROVIDES

Whatever you need, thought Peter, God will supply,—if you trust Him, and obey Him—and work.

Money for taxes, or food, or clothes, money for medicine, money for whatever you really need is ready to your hand. Had not Jesus said, in the Sermon on the Mount, that we should not worry about the things we need, because He will take care of us?

What are we to do?, thought Peter. Stop sorrying, stop scowling, stop work. If you are a fisherman, fish! Do what you are meant to, and God will provide. The Father knows what His children need!

As Peter blew on the coals of the kitchen fire to cook his catch, he grinned. If only men would remember that, how much happier they would be.

"Some day," he thought, "I will tell the world the story of the fish with the gold coin in its mouth!"

And, of course, he did.

Easter Seals Bring Aid to Crippled Kiddies

Though a crippled youngster may live in a remote bushland area of Ontario, even apart from a small town hospital, the finest of medical knowledge is as available to him today as if he lived right beside any of Ontario's major medical centres.

This program, launched several years ago, has contributed to the society having 10,500 children on its rolls today who have had treatment, training and needed appliances provided for them. Hundreds who once faced lives of hopelessness are self-dependent citizens, working at tasks made possible by training patterned to their abilities.

The thirteen districts which cover the province there are twenty-one nurses of the Society, all of them graduate nurses who have taken special training in orthopaedic nursing. These nurses work in close co-operation with the committees of the service clubs in their area, and with school principals, public health officers and nurses, and the doctors of the district.

As a crippled child is brought to the attention of the nurse, she discusses the case with the child's doctor. If the attention of a specialist is needed, she arranges for the child to be brought to a clinic. And when clinic day is held, children are brought there, usually by transportation arranged by the service club and very often accompanied by a local doctor. The team of a half-dozen specialists then discuss with the doctor the results of their examination, prescribe what should be done, and if necessary plan to handle the child's care if it is brought to a hospital.

With such a program, children are reached even in far places. Indian youngsters are often among the little patients. Children of families who pioneer new areas in mining fields or farmlands are seen. No child need be missed; none needs to live a helpless life because he failed to receive the treatment or appliances that could mean a happier life.

Easter Seal dollars provide this service. More than 210 service clubs throughout the province are joining with the Ontario Society for Crippled Children to ask Ontario citizens for $625,000 to carry on this fine work.

Just as these volunteers help in a local cerebral palsy clinic, you can help the 10,500 crippled children in the province by buying and using Easter Seals. The Annual Campaign which is sponsored by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children in association with 211 Easter Seal service clubs has a provincial objective of $625,000 and runs until April 1st.

PREDICTS SOVIET CHANGES

BONN (Reuters) — The mass-circulation West German newspaper Bild Zeitung says diplomatic circles here believe the Soviet ambassador to West Germany, Valerian Zorin, is likely to replace Vyacheslav Molotov as Russia's foreign minister. Zorin, generally regarded as the brain behind the Communist take-over of Czechoslovakia in 1948, was a deputy foreign minister before becoming ambassador to West Germany last December.

Kinettes Enjoy Social Evening, Guided Tour

Eight Kinettes from Trenton were guests of the Belleville Kinette Club at their monthly dinner meeting held in St. Thomas' Church parish house on March 8th. 46 Kinettes were present.

President Jean Smith welcomed the Trenton guests and announced that the program for the evening was in charge of the past presidents. She appointed as pianist Phyllis Fraser; song leaders, Margaret Hallam and Maude Rollins; sergeant-at-arms, Helen Wilbur.

Modica MacDonald, chairman of membership, introduced Ailea Butler of Belleville, a new member, and Betty Hamilton of Peterborough, and Isobel Miller of Cobourg as Kinettes, whose memberships have been transferred to the Belleville club. A hearty welcome was extended to them.

A short business meeting followed the dinner, at which time reports were heard from committee chairmen. A rummage sale was announced to be held some time in April.

President Jean Smith turned the meeting over to past President Ruth Follwell, who, on behalf of the past presidents, outlined the program for the evening.

A guided tour of the Belleville branch of the Bell Telephone Co. of Canada was first on the agenda.

Kinettes were taken in small groups by guides through all the different parts of the building and saw equipment in motion and operators at the switchboard. The pleasant guides were very willing to answer all questions asked. This was indeed a very interesting and educational tour, much enjoyed by everyone.

After completing the tour all Kinettes were invited to the home of Mrs. Harry Rollins as guests of the past presidents. A very happy social evening followed.

On behalf of the Kinette President Jean Smith thanked past presidents Maude Rollins, Helen Wilbur, Ruth Follwell, Margaret Hallam and Mary Lang for planning such a pleasant evening.

Nanette Fabray Tells Her Story Of Break Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Vivacious dancing and singing star Nanette Fabray said Wednesday a "contractual impasse" with comedian Sid Caesar forced her to decide to quit the "Caesar Hour" television on NBC this June. She said money was not a major factor.

The breakup of the team—the second time Caesar has lost a leading lady—was announced Tuesday night by Caesar's office.

Miss Fabray said in a statement:

"Sid Caesar and I had sincerely tried to negotiate for next year's contract and its options for succeeding years for 'Caesar's Hour,' but we were apart on many phases of the contract. Since negotiations for the contract fell through I now have to make plans for next year."

Caesar and his first leading lady, Imogene Coca, who teamed on NBC's "Show of Shows," broke up as suddenly as Caesar and Miss Fabray. After skyrocketing to television fame, they split in 1954.

Home & School Assoc. Meets

The regular monthly meeting of the Home and School Association of Queen Alexandra School, was held in the auditorium, Tuesday, with the president, Mrs. Jones, in the chair. After the reading of the minutes by the secretary, the room count was taken which was won by Mrs. Calnan's morning class. Thanks were expressed to Mr. Hackett and his staff for the valuable help given at last month's meeting, when the association held their "Open House". This concluded the business, and the secretary then took over the meeting and explained the program of Court Whist which had been arranged to follow.

This proved to be both interesting and amusing especially when the "no talking or penalty" section was underway. Tongues were still but concentration was deep. The prize winners were, first ladies, Mrs. Greatrix; first men's, Mrs. Scott; and ladies' booby and consolation prize, Mrs. Walsh and men, Mr. Hackett.

Coffee and sandwiches were served by the ladies.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHOULD THEY HELP HIS MOTHER?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

My husband and I have been married nine years, have two children and live in a four room house which is mortgaged.

From the time we were first married, we had financial problems. And because of my husband's financial responsibility at home before he was married, he had only one hundred dollars in saving account at the time of our marriage.

Our chief problem now, however, concerns his mother. As soon as we returned from our honeymoon she asked us to help support her, even though she had two children still at home, a boy 18 and a girl 23. Since then, she has made us off and on to support her, and this week she asked again.

When she first asked, she sold her home, bought another house, then sold that and moved into an apartment. When the boy came home from the army, she bought another house which she is living in alone today, since her daughter married her home and her own, and the second son has just married and moved into an apartment. She has also made about forty dollars a week.

Now I appear to you, my husband that the one son will give her ten dollars a week, and her daughter will give five dollars a week if we also give her five dollars a week. My husband feels that she should sell her house, move into an apartment and support herself as she runs out of money. She should have about $5,000 from the house after the mortgage is paid off. By then, we would hope to be in a better position financially, and all of us could contribute to her support.

The point is that she put her present house in her younger son's name, and now her mother-in-law my husband feels it would simply be used to help support the mortgage on his brother's house and not help his mother directly. My husband has suggested to his mother that she live with us, but the children make her nervous. Her daughter has room in her house for her, but Ma says she doesn't get along with her son-in-law. She wants to live expensively all her life, without considering anybody but herself.

My husband is a hard worker. He has worked since he was ten years old and quit high school to help support his father and then his mother all his pay. That's why he had an income when married. I myself worked until I had the children.

This week we will start giving my mother-in-law the five dollars a week just to keep peace. Do you feel it's fair? We are interested in your opinion.

I am 28, my husband is 34 and my mother-in-law is 54. — E.F.

Dear E.F.:

Your letter was far too long and detailed for me to find space in this column to print it all, so I have had to boil it down the best I could.

If you have already decided to give your mother-in-law the five dollars a week, then I can hardly see that there is much point in giving you my opinion on the matter. However, since you have asked me for it, I might say I agree with your husband that it would be much more practical for your mother-in-law to give up the house and find a less expensive way of living, particularly since the corporate forty dollars a week. I also agree with your husband that if he does give his mother any money it should go directly to her and not be used to pay off the mortgage on the house which is in his brother's name.

As you have already begun giving her the money, there's not much use telling you what you might have said. But I think it would have been fair to have made the selling of the house a condition for your help. In other words, you might have said that, since you are hard pressed financially yourselves, you could see no reason why you should increase your burdens simply to enable your mother-in-law to maintain a larger and much more expensive place to live than she needs. You might have added that if your mother-in-law were doing everything she could to keep her expenses down, and still needed your help, then you would feel justified in making sacrifices to give what you could, but that under the circumstances you didn't feel obligated to do so.

As I say, I can't see that it will help you now to have this opinion of mine. But if the whole matter should come up for discussion again, perhaps it may then be of some possible use to you.

District Women's Activities

SALEM W.A.

The March meeting of Salem W.A. was held in the church hall on Friday of last week in the form of a quilting and dinner with Mrs. Orval Jackson and Mrs. Frank McGee as hostesses.

During the afternoon, Mrs. H. Holden opened the meeting. Mrs. Bert Sine acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. C. Carter. Several items of business were discussed including the dedication service of the new hall and Mrs. Teskey reminded us to read from us to take place on May 18, at Salem, put on by the schools where the Rev. and Mrs. Teskey teach religious education.

Mrs. Mel Wickens thanked everyone for remembrance and kindnesses to Judy while she was sick.

Mrs. Frank McGee took charge of the meeting. A hymn "Jesus, Saviour Pilot Me", was sung and Mrs. Bert Sine commented on the origin and history. Mrs. Will Johnson led in prayer. Mrs. McGee led in the reading of a psalm responsively after which all repeated "The Apostles' Creed." Readings were given by Mrs. Ern Broadworth and Mrs. Lindsay Danner. Mrs. McGee read a well-prepared and appropriate paper entitled "Lords for Lent".

Mrs. O. Jackson thanked all who had helped with the program.

SHANNONVILLE W.A.

The March meeting of Shannonville United Church W.A. was held recently at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Allen with 11 women in attendance.

In the absence of Mrs. K. R. Vivian through illness, Mrs. Sam Elliott conducted the meeting and welcomed all.

Miss Sara Stickney presided at the piano for hymn singing. The theme song, and prayer preceded the opening hymns and silent prayer was made for the absent president.

Mrs. Elliott gave an appropriate reading for Lent and called on Mrs. Clarence Mastin, group leader, to take charge. The theme for the month is "Penitence."

Mrs. Charles Wood read the lesson thoughts from the devotional leaflet, and Mrs. Mastin read Psalm 51, King David's cry of penitence and plea for forgiveness.

Mrs. George Osborne gave a reading, "Lift Up Thine Eyes," which was followed by the sailor's version of the 23rd Psalm, read by Mrs. Raymond Clarke. Mrs. Robertson also read "The Preacher with a Wooden Leg."

Mrs. Elliott thanked the group for their assistance, and then took charge of the business portion of the meeting, which included the reading of the last meeting's minutes; the calling of the roll, and the reading of the correspondence. Some other matters of business were discussed.

Another helpful reading was given by Mrs. Elliott, who tendered thanks to the hostess for her hospitality.

Following the close of the meeting the group in charge, assisted Mrs. Juby in serving tasty refreshments. A social time was enjoyed.

The next meeting will be held at the Melborne home on the 19th of March. Please note change of date which is one week later than the regular meeting day.

CENTENARY W.M.S.-W.A.

Mrs. D. A. Thrasher opened her home for the March meeting of the Centenary W.M.S. with Mrs. H. Hancock presiding.

During the business period, Mrs. G. Sills gave the treasurer's report showing 33 paid dues, and a substantial amount toward allocation and supplies. Mrs. E. Ray, as supply secretary, asked for woollens to be made into blankets and for toys for Christmas gifts, and also any other wearable clothing that could go into a bale.

Mrs. Hancock read from the program of the annual Presbyterial meeting to be held in King Street United church, Trenton, on March 14.

Mrs. W. Shortt assisted by Mrs. R. Edmondson and Mrs. G. Sills gave the chapter on the study book entitled "Changing Patterns." Mrs. Hancock closed the meeting with prayer.

W.A. MEETING

Mrs. D. A. Thrasher was hostess to the members of the Centenary W.A. on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. M. Nobes was in charge of the meeting. The roll call showed a good attendance and "Happy Birthday" was sung for Mrs. Thrasher. Mrs. D. Thrasher gave the report of the community friendship committee wherein cards and letters were read from Mrs. P. Sutherland, Mrs. F. Aikens and Mrs. W. Coon.

A "Care" parcel has been sent to Italy.

Mrs. Bernard May gave a most entertaining account of their recent holiday in Florida.

Mrs. G. Sills read an Easter message entitled "And then came Jesus".

Mrs. M. Harder read the Scripture lesson from Luke 23:33 and Mrs. M. Nobes read an article written by Padre Young entitled "Our Lord." Mrs. Hart gave a reading "He, Who Rises Quickly".

The meeting was closed with an Easter hymn and prayer.

The hostess and her assistants served appetizing refreshments and a social half hour enjoyed.

Mrs. Thrasher was given a hearty vote of thanks for her hospitality.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

TO BE CLEAR, COMPLEXION MUST BE DIRT FREE AND GERM FREE

Soiled powder puffs are germ carriers; should be disposed of immediately.

One girl has a dry skin, the other has an oily skin. They may get different skin care instructions from a dermatologist, but one thing they can both be sure of — that cleanliness will be the first treatment for any kind of skin. For only a clean skin can function properly. Pores that are clean and free to breathe are the first requisite for a clear complexion.

If your own skin looks dingy and unattractive, try this simple accent up program night and morning, and see what a difference it will make: wet your face with a washcloth, then work up a thick soapy lather between your palms. Massage the lather into your skin thoroughly — for a couple of minutes at least. Then rinse it with warm water. Repeat this lathering process and rinse again. Dash on a bit of cold water as a brisk finishing touch.

If you'll stick to this thorough sort of face - washing night and morning, you'll soon be in a gratifying results in a very short time. Remember that it's regularity of skin care that does the job.

"But," you may say, "I do wash my face regularly and still my skin breaks out. So what's the answer?"

The answer is that, in such cases, your skin may be dirt free but not germ free. Common skin blemishes are caused by infectious germs and you yourself may be responsible for spreading them over your face. So you, for instance, run your hands over your face when nervous or in deep concentration. Hands and fingernails are constantly exposed to bacteria, and when you rub your face, even lightly, you spread the contamination.

When removing make-up, do you dab away fresh tissues or do you at the office, for instance, reach into a cluttered bag and pull out a few decrepit pieces to which cling traces of face powder and bits of tobacco and calmly proceed to "clean" your face with them if you do, it would be amazing if your face didn't break out.

And what about your powder puff? Is it always immaculately clean? It should be if you're to keep your face germ free. Make it a habit to keep extra puffs on hand and the minute you notice the slightest soil on the one you're using, replace it with a fresh one.

Difficult skin problems, of course, need a medical authority's advice. But most women can improve their appearance with nothing more drastic than soap and water care—and nothing more costly than a few minutes devoted to their beauty homework each day.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHAM

SHOULD HOSTS PROVIDE ACCOMMODATIONS FOR OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS?

Dear Mrs. Beecham:

My wife and I want to have a celebration for our 50th Wedding Anniversary, and we want to send invitations to about fifty of our relatives and close friends. Many of these live too far away to make the trip in one day. Now my question: Should I provide a place for them to sleep and eat while they are here? — W.

And that, dear sir, is a $64,000 question! The idea is not so much whether or not you "should" provide these accommodations for your relatives and close friends who live at a distance as it is whether or not (a) you wish to make this generous gesture, (b) it is possible to find these accommodations, and (c) this plan is agreeable to your budget. Your Golden Wedding is such a wonderfully special occasion that I'm sure you and your "bride" want to have your relatives and close friends with you to celebrate this great day.

In usual circumstances, out-of-town guests would not expect to have accommodations provided for them; if they accept the invitation, they would expect to arrange for and pay for their own accommodations. However, sometimes when there are wedding or wedding anniversary guests from out-of-town to be provided for, in town relatives and friends offer accommodations in their homes. I have a feeling that, in your case, your in-town or nearby relatives and intimate friends know about your celebration-plans, they will (and don't hold back on some hinting!) volunteer suitable accommodations. This, with the guest-room space you have, might provide for all. Or, for further accommodations, you may have to do some pro-and-con budgeting.

WHO SHOULD BE INVITED TO SHOWER?

Dear Mrs. Beecham:

I am giving a Miscellaneous Shower for my niece. Please tell me whom to invite, friends of mine or friends of hers or a mixture of hers with whom I am not acquainted?

The women to be invited to this shower should be relatives and close friends of the guest of honor. Whether or not you know them doesn't make any difference . . . as long as you are sure she would enjoy having them invited to the shower and it is proper for you to invite relatives and friends of yours whom the guest of honor doesn't know. The point is: strangers to the guest of honor shouldn't be invited to a party to which they are expected to bring a gift.

SHAMROCK COOKIES

Sugar Cookie Dough: 4 cups sifted cake flour, 2 1-3 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup soft shortening, 1 1-2 cups granulated sugar, 3 eggs, 2 teaspoon vanilla, 4 teaspoon (level) milk. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt, then add them to the shortening which should be creamed well with the sugar, eggs and vanilla,—alternately with the milk. Chill. Roll out to 1-4 inch thickness and cut out with shamrock (or "club") cookie cutter. Bake at 400 deg. F. minutes. Frost with glaze of 3-4 cup sifted icing sugar, 4 teaspoons water and few drops green coloring. Top with slice of green maraschino cherry or citron peel.

SHAMROCK SANDWICHES

Since shamrock cookie cutters are usually small and you may like to make them a little bigger, make them this way: Cut rounds of white bread to use as a base; cut small shamrocks from whole wheat bread. For the filling, thin cream cheese with a little cream; tint part of it with green food coloring, and use some untinted. Spread the white rounds with the tinted filling and the shamrocks with the pale pink filling, and piece together in open-faced sandwiches and top with a piece cut to match the other.

If you are having two tables of bridge at home or a St. Patrick's Party, here are two sugar-saving recipe for a beverage which I think will give you what will be popular—even with the reducers. The amount will serve eight adequately but if it is for teen-agers double the recipe.

IRISH MIST

Two 6-oz. cans of frozen lemonade concentrate, 1 quart mint or lemon sherbet, 3 cups water. Combine the lemonade concentrate with the sherbet and whip with hand beater or electric beater until low. Add 2 cups cold water. Pour into tall glasses or mugs for young people). If you use lemon sherbet you should add a few drops of green coloring.

Nassau Story

'Is Fraser Working as Hard As Ever for Town of His?' Inquires Lord Beaverbrook

(By ELMER DONTER)

NASSAU, Bahamas (Special) — Lord Beaverbrook, the distinguished British newspaper man, provided me with proof that Trenton's Senator W. A. Fraser and the hometown he cherishes are known far beyond Canada's borders.

My meeting with the Canadian born member of the British House of Lords happened this way.

As I was about to leave the doorway of the Pan American aircraft that flew me from Nassau to Miami I overheard a passenger on the ramp ahead whisper "There comes a newspaper cameraman. Must have been some big shot on board."

By the time I reached the taxmac I got a side view of the photographer posing a man in a bomburg hat and dark topcoat. As I came around to the front I recognized the puckish looking deep-tanned face to be that of Lord Beaverbrook for I'd seen his picture in newspapers many times and once while walking down the road between Leatherhead and Hedley Court where the First Canadian Headquarters was situated. He was pointed out to me by a friend who knew him. Beaverbrook's English estate is in Surrey, England.

Once I dreamed about the day I would talk to this famous newspaperman.

I was so intrigued with stories I had heard that I made a special trip to Fleet Street, London, to have a look at his ultra-modern publishing building. I was impressed with what I saw. Needless to say my admiration for the Beaver's attainments increased. Later, however, I was disturbed to learn from a writer who worked for him that he was a hard man to please.

A newspaperman's curiosity goaded me to approach Lord Beaverbrook standing against a counter along one end of the room, where U.S. custom people were checking incoming passenger's baggage.

"Sir," I said, "I believe we know some of the same people," when he acknowledged this with a smile and offered his hand, I knew I had said the right thing.

"What do you do?" he asked.

"I work for a newspaper in Canada," I replied.

"That makes us both newspapermen," continued his Lordship, who seemed to be in a very receptive mood. Beaverbrook is publisher of The Daily Express, the daily newspaper with the largest circulation of any newspaper in the world.

"Do you know Senator Fraser of Trenton?" I queried. "Yes," he answered. "Is he still working as hard as ever for that town of his?"

He told me he had heard about the success the Senator had in inducing English industry to locate in Trenton. "Wonderful little fellow," he commented.

In the next few minutes I began to wonder who was interviewing whom.

Lord Beaverbrook was ready and willing to give me the inside information on E. P. Taylor's multi-million dollar housing development on the island of New Providence north of the city of Nassau. He stipulated, however, that I could not link the facts with his name although he did reveal them to me. I knew he had the complete story since he had entertained the Canadian business genius, Bay Street financier Jim Boyden, and Lord Illiffe, publisher of another large British daily at his Bahamas' estate in Nassau a week earlier.

Afterwards I tried to imagine the reception publisher Beaverbrook would give one of his reporters who failed in getting permission to print the big story.

Prime Minister Answers Member On Conscription

OTTAWA (CP) — Fear of unfavorable Quebec reaction is not the reason why the government does not impose peacetime conscription, Prime Minister St. Laurent said Wednesday. He did not elaborate.

Mr. St. Laurent was asked in the Commons by Paul E. Gagnon, independent member for the Quebec constituency of Chicoutimi, whether it is true "the government does not dare impose peacetime military conscription for fear of an unfavorable reaction from the population in Quebec province."

He apparently referred to newspaper reports quoting Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, retired army chief of staff, as saying the government does not impose national selective service for fear of Quebec reaction.

RITA GETS NOTHING

LOS ANGELES (AP)—In a brief opinion, a federal judge Tuesday ruled that Rita Hayworth was "entitled to nothing" in her $250,000 breach of contract suit against Columbia Pictures. The action stemmed from her walkout on the picture "Joseph and His Brethren." Still facing the actress is a counter suit of $150,000 brought by the studio.

False Teeth For Children Are Advocated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Temporary false teeth for children as young as three years of age are growing in popularity, Dr. William W. Demeritt Jr., a University of North Carolina dentist, said Tuesday. Some children lose their baby teeth several years sooner than normal. The false choppers tend to prevent speech problems and faulty eating habits, and to assure that the permanent teeth don't come crooked.

WOULD BAR GROUP

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The South Carolina General Assembly Tuesday ordered the firing of all public employees who are members of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Peaceful Atom Already Playing Active Role in Everyday Life

By FRANCIS E. CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 10-year-old peaceful atom already is playing an active role in everyday life.

Let's forget for a minute the possibilities for the future—which experts say are really tremendous—and see what jobs the atom is doing today.

1. You may be one of the half million who have had an ailment diagnosed in the last 10 years with the help of radioactive isotopes.

2. You may be one of the 50,000 who have undergone actual treatment with certain isotopes, although successes have been limited in the treatment field.

3. You may be one of many sick people who, while not treated with atomic energy, have benefited indirectly from research into various diseases conducted with isotopes.

4. The foam rubber mattress you sleep on, the kitchen linoleum you walk on, the tires on hour automobile, the cigarets you smoke, the ice cream you had for lunch may have been processed by industrial techniques employing radioactive isotopes as efficiency aides.

WHITER LAUNDRY

5. The gasoline pumped at your neighborhood filling station may have been sped through pipelines with the help of isotopes employed to spot obstructions.

6. Your laundry may be whiter due to improvements in soaps and detergents made possible through research with radioactive dirt and grease.

7. It's possible you may have munched on a new variety of peanuts produced through atomic research in genetics.

But despite other such gains to date, experts say that only a start has been made.

A special panel on "The impact of the peaceful uses of atomic energy"—headed by Robert McKinney, publisher of the Santa Fe New Mexican—concluded after consultation with scientists that:

Along the atomic medical front, the future holds promise of "fewer days of sickness, fewer days in hospitals, and a longer, more useful life."

In agriculture: "Tailor - made" crops, adaptable to wider ranges of climate and soil; more resistant to diseases and insects, . . healthier and better-producing animals. . .improved insecticides and plant growth regulators. . .

In industry: More and more processes aided by isotopes which already are saving industry $100,000,000 annually. . .A host of brand new products made through "radiation chemistry". . .

The experts say more research, more money, more trained personnel are required in order to realize the full potential of the peaceful atom. Also, greater speed in getting results of research into actual practice. But a start has been made.

Isotopes are being used in the treatment of certain cancerous conditions; some forms of heart disease; overactive thyroid glands or "toxic goiters;" "polycythemia vera," a disease in which excessive numbers of red blood cells are formed; and in certain diseases of the eye.

Best results have been achieved so far in the case of overactive thyroid where radioactive iodine is employed; and in "polycythemia vera," where radioactive phosphorus is used.

Skin cancers have been cured with radioactive phosphorus. Radioactive iodine is being used against thyroid cancer, and while it has had little effect on the "primary" cancer, it has helped fight bits of cancer that sometimes spread from the original site.

Radioactive cobalt and, more recently, radioactive cesium, are being applied as cheaper and easier-to-use substitutes for radium in attacking deep - seated cancers from outside the body.

Brain tumors can be diagnosed, localized with the help of radioactive materials which in the brain tend to concentrate more extensively in cancerous areas than normal tissue.

On the Cyprus question in the Middle East, Eisenhower said the U. S. stands ready to help work out a solution. He backed state department statements that the U. S. is not taking sides in British's struggle over demands by the predominantly Greek population of the strategic Mediterranean island for union with Greece.

Britain had expressed concern earlier over a statement by the American ambassador in Athens which had been taken to mean the U. S. was sympathetic toward Greece in the dispute. Eisenhower emphasized that British-Greek cooperation was "essential to the success" of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to which both belong.

American officials are becoming increasingly concerned over the attitude of Egypt's Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser. They say privately that Nasser has been bidding for leadership of the Arab bloc by playing on the common Arab hostility to Israel.

The U. S. has not been reported averse to Egypt's Arab-bloc leadership, but has hoped that Egypt would stress the possibilities of peace rather than emphasizing Arab enmity toward Israel.

It seems clear that if American hopes for the exercise of a moderating influence by Nasser are not to be borne out, then policies which have been based in part on those hopes must be reviewed.

This is the context in which Israel's request for weapons is being looked at again.

Get Free Check List at any Dominion Store. Find the "Phantom Famous Brand" listed on the check sheet but not illustrated in this advertisement. Next, if your telephone rings between 8 and 9 o'clock next Saturday evening, DO NOT ANSWER HELLO or you will be automatically disqualified from an opportunity to win $3,000. Instead of answering HELLO, say "DOMINION STORES" and then state the name of this week's "Phantom Famous Brand". If you do, and it is the DOMINION FORTUNE HUNT calling, you will win the Grand Prize of $3,000.

$1,000 BONUS! If you win the Grand Prize and have in your home at the time a box top or label from this week's "Phantom Famous Brand" (or a reasonable facsimile) PLUS a $5.00 or more sales slip dated this week and totalling $100 you will qualify for a bonus prize of $1,000.

$100 CONSOLATION PRIZES! If the DOMINION FORTUNE HUNT calls your telephone number and you make the mistake of answering HELLO, but can still name this week's "Phantom Famous Brand", you will qualify for a consolation prize of $100.

GRAND PRIZE MUST BE WON! If this week's Grand Prize is not won on Saturday night, it will be added to next week's Grand Prize of $1,000. This will be repeated if necessary until someone wins the accumulated Grand Prize.

Employees and agents of Dominion Stores Limited and their families are not eligible for this contest.

Thirty-one telephone calls Saturday night to all parts of Ontario failed to find a winner of the $2,000 Grand Prize in the DOMINION "Famous Brands" FORTUNE HUNT. One consolation prize of $100 was awarded to Mrs. F. Ryerson, 328 Bloor Street West, Toronto, who knew the Phantom Brand for the week but failed to answer the telephone with the words, "Dominion Stores — McCormick's Soda Biscuits".

CNR Financial Affairs Will Be Scrutinized Next Week By House Railway Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — Financial affairs of the CNR, which earned its biggest peacetime surplus in 1955, likely will be scrutinized next week by the Commons railway committee.

The committee will examine the CNR's annual report, showing a $19,717,000 surplus, and its 1956 budget expected to be tabled in Parliament this week. It also will conduct its annual review of Trans-Canada Air Lines and Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships.

In the 1955 report tabled by Transport Minister Marler in the Commons Wednesday, the CNR showed 1955 operating revenues at $683,088,000, second - highest point in its history. The figure was topped by about $13,000,000 in 1953, but was $42,000,000 from the year before.

ECONOMY SURGE

The CNR's strong comeback from 1954 was tied to a general surge in the economy. In the previous year, its revenues sank in line with a general sag in North American rail traffic.

The 1955 surplus was the only peacetime one of any significance. The two previous ones were of less than $1,000,000 apiece in 1952 and 1953.

The surplus was attained after paying off fixed charges of $33,694,000, mainly interest on bonds held by the public and the federal government.

The remaining $10,717,000 goes to the federal treasury as dividends on government-held preference stock.

In tabling the CNR and CNS report, Mr. Marler announced the CNS service between Canada and the West Indies will be continued for at least another five years. Because it has been a consistent money-loser, it has been run in recent years on a year-to-year basis.

However, the 1955 report showed its deficit was cut to $95,000 from $628,000 in 1954.

CHANGE HEADQUARTERS

VIENNA (AP)—Radio Prague says the new headquarters of the Communist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions will be established in the Czechoslovak capital. The federation formerly had headquarters in Vienna, but the Austrian interior ministry ordered it out of the country Feb. 4, saying Austria's Soviet-imposed neutrality was threatened by WFTU activities.

Two Senators Against Transfer Of Divorce Cases

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Liberal senators from Ontario said Wednesday a bill to transfer Quebec and Newfoundland divorce cases from Parliament to the Exchequer Court at Ottawa would be an injustice to Quebec.

Senators Arthur Roebuck and John Connolly were the second and third senators to oppose second reading of the bill sponsored by Senator Walter Aseltine (PC—Saskatchewan). The bill would give the Exchequer Court jurisdiction to hear divorce cases from Quebec and Newfoundland, only provinces with divorce courts.

Senator Roebuck said he originally supported such a transfer but "after careful reconsideration" had changed his mind. It would be wrong, he said, for Parliament to force on Quebec something the province does not want.

If it was desirable to abolish parliamentary handling of divorces from the two provinces this should be done by transferring jurisdiction to the superior courts of each province.

However, he said there has been long standing opposition by Quebec to such a step. There also has been no demand from Newfoundland for a divorce court.

Both Senators Roebuck and Connolly said Quebec agreed at the time of Confederation to accept parliamentary divorce. This was done to enable the Protestant minority in the province to dissolve marriages, a step banned by Quebec's civil code.

The present system, Senator Connolly, a Roman Catholic, said, allows Quebec minorities to obtain a divorce. To over-ride Quebec opposition to divorce would constitute an infringement of provincial law.

FIND ANTIDOTE

NEW YORK (AP)—Two Columbia University biochemists said Tuesday they have a potential antidote to nerve gas, one of the most horrifying of warfare's untested weapons.

"At this stage its value in preserving life is dramatic and certain," said Dr. Irwin B. Wilson and Dr. David Nachmansohn.

Garson Suggests Montrealer Seek Cut in Sentence

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Garson has suggested that Clifford Williams, Montrealer completing the fifth year of a 25-year prison term for armed robbery, take legal steps to have his sentence reduced.

Mr. Garson informed the Commons Wednesday that the government will not order a court review of the case as it did in the Wilbert Coffin murder case.

But he indicated that if Williams applies for remission the question would be referred, under terms of the Criminal Code, to the Quebec Appeal Court.

Williams was sentenced April 6, 1951, to 25 years in Montreal's St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary after pleading guilty to a series of armed robberies. He was then 20. It was his first conviction.

LAWYERS QUESTION

Wednesday two lawyer members of the Progressive Conservative party put a series of questions to Mr. Garson about reducing the sentence.

Davie Fulton (PC —Kamloops) said Williams had been "doomed to spend 25 unproductive years in prison." John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) said the sentence was "rather shocking."

Mr. Garson himself said that under the circumstances the term was unusual and "not warranted."

The minister said Williams had had counsel when the period expired in which he could have appealed his sentence in the Quebec courts. That was grounds for seeking leave to appeal. He now has a lawyer.

DIFFERENT CASES

"Then, if that were refused the only way in which it could get before the Court of Appeal would be in connection with an application for remission to myself and I should invoke one of the sections of the Criminal Code to refer it to the Court of Appeal as to sentence."

Both Mr. Fulton and Mr. Diefenbaker asked why the government does not follow the action it took in the Coffin case.

Last fall the government took the unprecedented step of ordering the Supreme Court of Canada to say what judgment it would have given if it had heard the appeal of Coffin, sentenced to death for a 1953 murder in Quebec's Gaspe peninsula.

Mr. Garson replied that the two cases are quite different. A government order for court reconsideration of Williams' sentence would be improper interference with the function of the courts to impose sentences.

Wedding on TV Program Brings Some Criticism

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said Wednesday he has seen some things on CBC television that he did not think were in good taste, but he had never tried to exercise any censorship over the publicly-owned corporation's activities.

He was replying in the Commons to Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) who sought to establish whether the government considered a telecast last month of a wedding was in good taste.

Mr. Fleming referred to the wedding of TV announcer Bill Christie carried on the television program "Tabloid" Feb. 6. It was a six-minute film of the wedding two days earlier.

In a written government reply Tuesday, Mr. Fleming was told no remuneration was paid those taking part in the ceremony. Mr. Christie is the regular "Tabloid" announcer. The film cost about $161, including $186 for the film.

RARE EVENT

POINT CLEAR, Ala. (AP) — An Aberdeen Angus cow gave birth Sunday to four live calves, an event rarer than human quadruplets. The shiny black calves were born on the nearby ranch of O. H. Delchamps, Mobile, Ala., businessman. Dr. J. Greely Moore, veterinarian, said quadruplet calves occur once in every several million births

Industries Must Be Wooed by Municipalities

OTTAWA (CP) — Development Minister Nicklin of Ontario said Wednesday industries won't seek out places to locate plants, they must be wooed and won by the municipalities.

Addressing the Eastern Ontario Development Association annual meeting, he said industry goes to the source of power and, with the St. Lawrence seaway and power development on their doorsteps, eastern Ontario municipalities are in a particularly happy situation for industrial expansion.

"We in Ontario are on the threshold of an indescribably great industrial expansion," he said. "The opportunity is here—measure up to it."

Mr. Nickle predicted a higher level of provincial taxation for Ontario.

Regardless of the fiscal relations existing between the provincial and federal governments, "I can say that Ontario will probably have to increase some of the taxes on the provincial level to keep up with our expanding economy," he said: "Youhave to spend dollars to make dollars."

Wants New Subway

TORONTO (CP)—Construction of an east-west subway—linked with the city's existing 4½-mile north-south line—must begin as soon as possible, metropolitan Chairman Fred G. Gardiner said Wednesday.

He told the Yonge-Bloor-Bay Association, a businessmen's organization, it would cost $150,000,000 and that metro council will have to give the project "careful, active and diligent consideration."

The metro council governs Toronto and 12 adjacent municipalities.

MORE DESERTERS

MONTREAL (CP)—The number of husbands deserting their wives and children is increasing each year, the Family Welfare Association said Wednesday.

Greater Use of Co-operatives Advocated by Hog Producers

TORONTO (CP)—C. W. McInnis, president of the Ontario Hog Producers' Association, said Wednesday greater use of co-operative agencies by farmers can offset spiralling wage rates.

He told a commodity marketing conference the development of heavy industry pushes wages upward.

Despite efforts to make economies in farm costs, competition for labor from heavy industry would keep wages high.

Mr. McInnis said the United Co-operatives of Ontario have served farmers in supplying equipment and other supplies at the lowest possible price.

"We may be able to offset these higher labor costs by better use of our co-op facilities," he said.

Many Ontario farmers were in serious financial difficulty which affected the economy of the whole

Farmers had no one to blame but themselves for their financial predicament but organized salesmanship was a key to success and prosperity for Canadian agriculture.

It was dangerous to lean on governments in marketing and selling programs.

Mr. McInnis said farmers should control quality and set up direct outlets to the trade for agricultural produce.

J. E. Musgrave, president of the United Co-operatives of Ontario, said UCO's role is that of a purchasing agent to reduce costs to farmers and as a marketing agent to get the best price for farm products.

The 150 co-op locals in Ontario represented 60,000 farmers.

Menzies Opens New Drive To Fight Aussie Inflation

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Prime Minister Robert Menzies has opened a new drive to fight inflation in Australia by increasing taxes on cars, cigarets, beer, liquor, gasoline and a range of semi-luxury goods.

His £115,000,000 ($257,600,000) "squeeze" becomes effective today.

Beer goes up about the equivalent of three cents a pint, cigarets more than two cents a pack and gasoline about three cents a gallon. The sales tax on private cars is increased from 16 2-3 to 30 per cent.

There is no increase in income tax, instalment buying or import restrictions, but the company tax is raised by one shilling (about 11 cents) to the pound and bank overdraft rates from five per cent to an average of 5½, with a six-per-cent maximum.

The interest rate paid by banks on fixed deposits goes up one per cent.

Announcing what amounts to a supplementary budget to the House of Representatives, Menzies said Australia's overseas balances have been dropping steadily despite import cuts last December. He said the vast demand for imported goods has put an immense strain on her balance of payments and the wage level is threatening the country's export capacity.

Menzies said his "moderate" program should balance the external account by June 30. He hopes employers and workers will work out means of increasing productivity. He said such devices as double shifts should be examined.

Opposition leader Herbert Evatt, who obtained an adjournment of the debate on the prime minister's statement, said outside the House that the proposals are "little more than a mockery."

He said inflation could not be cured by legislation which would result in drinkers, smokers and motorists spending more on beer, tobacco and motoring.

The pro-government newspaper Sydney Morning Herald says in an editorial that Menzies hit "too hard, too suddenly."

Some of the increases in indirect taxation could be defended, it says, but the total impact of all the measures was excessive at a time when business already was beginning to decline.

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP)—Miss Wilma Smith, a member of state Governor George Bell Timmerman's staff, removed the cover from her typewriter Tuesday.

Th unlimber her fingers she started typing a familiar typist's exercise: "The quick brown fox jumped over the lazy dog's back."

Miss Smith got as far as "fox" when something jumped out from the keyboard. It was not a fox, but a mouse.

Miss Smith jumped a little, too.
